Novel Love Letters.

It is well known, says a contemporary, that, when the petals of the great Laurel Magnolia are touched, however lightly, the result is a brown spot, which develops in a few hours. The fact is taken advantage of by the South American lover, who pulls a magnolia flower, and on one of its pure white petals writes a motto or message with a sharp pointed pencil. Then he sends the flower, the young lady puts it in a vase of water, and in three or four hours the message written on the leaf becomes perfectly visible, and remains so.

"Not Worth a Rush."

When calling anything "not worth a straw," one means to imply that it is worthless. The older saying was, "not worth a rush," and this brings out the origin of the phrase. In the days before carpets it was the custom to strew the floor with rushes. When guests of rank were entertained fresh rushes were spread for them; but folk of lower degree had to be content with rushes that had already been used, while still humbler persons had none, as not even being "worth a rush."

A Beautiful Skin

is one of the chief requisites of an attractive appearance. Rough, dry, scaly patches, little blisters, eruptions, red and unsightly ringworms, these would spoil the beauty of a veritable Venus. A Klondyke Opportunity.

The rapidity with which the Klondyke excitement has spread over the country is astonishing. It is but three weeks since the first of the treasure-laden ships reached port, yet the interest already extends from ocean to ocean. These Klondyke discoveries are from all accounts among the most wonderful in the history of mining; and certain it is that there has been no such opportunity for quickly acquiring a fortune since the early days of California. But the danger is that numbers of companies and expeditions will be organized by enthusiastic but inexperienced persons who will lose their own money and that of their associates in ventures of which they have had no previous knowledge or experience. Therefore, those who cannot go to the gold-fields must be careful to associate themselves with people who have had experience in mining and prospecting.

It is well known that Colorado Springs people have had a very large and successful experience in such operations. Among the Alaska companies formed in that city, the most prominent is The Alaska-Klondyke Gold Mining and Development Company, which was organized and its operations most carefully planned by the leading banking and brokerage house of Colorado Springs. This company's expedition is already in Alaska, under experienced leadership; and by reason of its superior equipment, strong financial resources and other special facilities which the forethought of the management has provided, should reach its destination and begin operations far in advance of the general rush.

This company is capitalized for 1,000,000 shares of a par value of one dollar each; and a block of its stock is now offered for a short time at fifteen cents per share. In this connection notice is given that on Sept. 15th the price will be advanced to twenty-five cents. Being full-paid and non-assessable, this stock is forever free from any possibility of assessment. Orders for the stock, accompanied by remittance covering the amount, should be sent to Wm. P. Bonbright & Co., Colorado Springs, Col., the financial agents of the company, who are desirous also of entering into arrangements for the sale of stock with responsible agents throughout the country.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

SHATTERED.

The Rocky Fortress of Desperado Hatfield Blown Up.

HE ESCAPES UNHARMED.

The Rocky Crest Where the Hatfields Have for Years Defied the Law and From Which They Have Carried Out Their Plans, is No Longer a Tenable Fortress.

A telegram from Huntington, W. Va., says: One half the Devil's Backbone, the rocky fortress of the Hatfields in the mountains on Tug river, was shattered by dynamite last Saturday, and Hatfield and his followers were driven from their stronghold by Sheriff Keadle and his posse after a desperate battle. Several of the sheriff's men are badly wounded. Only this has been accomplished: The rocky crest where the Hatfields have for years defied the law and from which they have carried out their bloody plans, is no longer a tenable fortress.

It was decided by the besieging force to dynamite the desperado and his gang. All day Friday and Friday night the closest watch was kept. At 9 o'clock Saturday morning the dynamite arrived and by 11 o'clock the explosive was placed. The fuse was laid, the match applied, and the attacking force began to fall back.

Until now the besieged seemed not to suspect what was being done, but with the flashing of the train which led to the dynamite a realization of their peril came. Men jumped from cover and rushed hither and thither in full view. Hatfield was seen to start for the path. A rush was made down the side of the mountain. Three men dropped wounded. It was useless to try to escape by the well-known path, and the desperadoes returned to the top of their rocky fort, Hatfield directing them. Great bowlders were hurled over the rocks in hopes of breaking the fuse. Then came the explosion. Rocks and trees flew in every direction. When the smoke cleared away Hatfield and his men seemed unharmed. Dan Lewis, Steve Stanley and Jake Monroe, of the attacking force, in the excitement left their shelter and were shot and wounded so severely that little hope is entertained for their recovery.

Another charge of dynamite was placed, but under cover of the explosion Hatfield and his men escaped. The chase was renewed and it is expected that Hatfield will be captured within the next twenty-four hours.

BRYAN WELCOMED.

He is Met by a Vast Throng at Butte, Mont., and Makes a Speech.

Amid the screeching of steam whistles and shouts of welcome from 30,000 throats, W. J. Bryan was received in Butte, Mont., last Thursday. The house tops sagged under the weight of the thousands and every window where a view could be obtained was crowded with faces.

The crowd at the depot was so dense that the police were unable to cope with it. On reaching the hotel Mr. Bryan responded to calls and made a brief address. He referred to the fact that this day was the anniversary of his notification speech of acceptance at Madison Square Garden, New York.

"I had not thought," he said, "of celebrating the occasion in this place, but I am forcibly reminded of the material difference between the two cities. I said on going to New York that I was going into the enemy's country. It would take a liar of big dimensions to declare that I was in the enemy's country on this occasion. I am pleased to see my friends and especially the people who were so universally on our side during the campaign."

Later in the day Mr. Bryan went to Walkersville, a suburb of Butte, where a monster demonstration took place.

CARLISTS ACTIVE.

Military Precautions Have Been Taken Against a Probable Uprising.

A telegram from Madrid says: Military precautions have been taken for some time past against the possibility of a Carlists or republican rising, and the steps that were taken have been increased lately, chiefly here, at Barcelona, Bilbao and Seville.

ACTIVE IN LONDON.

The London Pall Mall Gazette, in the course of a long article upon the increasing activity of the carlists, says it is not generally known that London is one of the strongholds of the Carlists, thousands of active followers of the claimant to the Spanish throne being located in this city. Their leaders seem to think the fall of Canovas brings their opportunity nearer. During the past week they have held many meetings to discuss the best means of assisting their colleagues in Spain in the event of an uprising.

Tobacco Can be Removed.

At Savannah, Ga., Hon. Pope Brown was re-elected president of the State Agricultural society. An address was made by Professor Welborn, of the Mississippi Agricultural college.

Peter Monahan, 74 years old, was hanged at Baltimore last week for the murder of his wife. The crime was committed May 23, 1897, and Monahan was convicted and sentenced June 7th.

SENATOR JAMES Z. GEORGE.

Was Born in Monroe County, Georgia Sketch of His Life.

Hon. James Z. George, the senior senator from Mississippi, died at his residence near Carrollton, Miss., Saturday. Senator George has been in feeble health for some months, not being able to occupy his seat in the senate during the extra session. He was suffering from a general debility and his death was not unexpected.

Senator George was not a native of Mississippi, but had resided in that state since his eighth year. He was born in Monroe county, Georgia, October 26, 1826. After the death of his father, which occurred early in his life, he moved with his mother in 1834, to Noxubee county, Mississippi, remaining there for only two years and then going to Carroll county, which he made his legal residence until his death. Senator George obtained his education in the common schools and did not begin his professional career until after the close of the Mexican war, in which he served in a regiment commanded by Jefferson Davis.

He afterward took an active part in the civil war, casting his lot with the South. He left the convention hall to become a captain in the Twentieth regiment of Mississippi Volunteers. He rose to the rank of brigadier-general of state troops before the close of the war.

When the civil war closed, Mr. George returned to Carroll county, resuming the practice of his profession, and later entering into politics. In 1879 he was appointed to the supreme bench and soon afterwards elected chief justice, in which capacity he was serving his state when first elected to the United States senate in 1881. Had he been permitted to serve his entire term he would, on the 4th of March, 1899, have completed his eighteenth year in the senate. He declined a re-election a year ago on account of his health. Senator George was well liked in spite of his rather brusque manner. His friends realized that beneath the outward crust was hidden kindly and gentle disposition. He was also greatly respected for his erudition on legal and constitutional questions. Probably there has been no man in the senate during the present generation who had made greater researches in constitutional questions and could discourse more profoundly on the government.

The University of Alabama.

For many years this old and justly celebrated institution of learning has occupied a position second to none for the ability and learning of its faculty and the thoroughness of its scholarship. Its graduates are scattered all over the South, and scarcely without an exception have made their mark and gained eminent positions in the various professions and avocations which they have pursued. In our midst may be mentioned Col. J. O. Banks, Col. S. M. Meek, Mr. W. C. Meek, Mr. B. L. Owen (county treasurer), Mr. J. I. Sturdivant, Maj. H. B. Whitfield, Mr. J. O. Banks, Jr., and perhaps others whose names at this moment escape us.

One of her graduates, Prof. J. W. Beeson, is the distinguished president of the East Mississippi Female College at Meridian; another, Dr. T. J. Mitchell, is superintendent of the Mississippi Insane Asylum.

She has furnished one governor of Texas, Hon. O. M. Roberts, and three judges of the supreme court, one of whom, Judge Robert L. Gould, was for some time a tutor in the University. At the last meeting of the trustees, Gen. Richard C. Jones, its then distinguished president, having, with almost universal regret, resigned the position to return to the bar, to fill this vacancy the trustees, by a unanimous vote, elected James K. Powers, LL. D. In the selection of Dr. Powers the trustees made no mistake. For scholarship, ability, untiring energy and magnificent executive attainments, he stands second to no man in the South. His life having been devoted to the high calling of a teacher, his success has been phenomenal, and we predict that, by the aid of the able faculty at his back, he will advance this institution, if possible, to a still higher grade of distinction and usefulness. Under his guidance and control, every man connected with this institution will do his duty.—Columbus, (Miss.) Commercial.

Over Two Cannon.

Since the war two Confederate cannons have been lying in Columbus, Ga., as relics of the late war, and were highly prized as such by the people. The last few days much feeling has been aroused by an order of the government to remove these cannon to be placed on the battlefield at Franklin, Tenn. It seems that Mrs. James Barber, of Columbus, had recently purchased these old cannon from the government, and they were on her property. She has obtained a restraining order against the railroad authorities, who had already loaded the guns on a flat car.

American Tobacco.

The state department is informed that the sections of finance, war and navy, representing the council of state of the French West Indies, have passed a law, which went into effect May 11 last, admitting manufactured tobacco from Algiers free of duty into Martinique, Guadaloupe, Cayenne and Reunion. This has had and will continue to have a tendency to curtail to a considerable extent the importation of tobacco manufactured in the United States.

Chinese Calendar Incorrect.

The Chinese minister at Washington proposes to correct the Chinese calendar now in use in this country, which was calculated at Hong Kong, but is one day out of true reckoning when used in this country, no allowance being made for the difference in longitude. The Chinese consular agent has just issued a proclamation setting forth the error and the reason for it, and directing it be corrected.

Anxious to Annex the Road.

No meeting held for years in Selma has been so full of what seemed to be genuine interest as was a meeting of citizens held last Thursday evening to take measures to extend the Birmingham, Selma, & New Orleans road, now running to Martins, thirty miles further to Linden, Marengo county. A committee composed of S. D. Holt, V. B. Atkins, C. W. Hooper, Wm. Ullman, E. Lamar, and M. J. Meyer, was appointed to confer with a similar committee already at work at Linden and the promoters of the road to Martins. The sentiment of the meeting was for business and to work at once.

Convicts Leased.

The board of convict inspectors has re leased the state convicts as follows: Sloss Iron and Steel company, of Birmingham, 350; Gen. Chas. M. Shelley, 150; Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railway company, the remainder, which is between 700 and 900. The prices to be paid are: Each first-class man, $14 per month; each second-class man, $10, and each third class man, $7 per month. The awards have not been made public. The present lease with the Tennessee company will expire January 1, when the new lease will go into effect. The convicts will be worked in coal mines in Jefferson county. It is estimated that the state will realize a net profit of $500,000 from these contracts.

The Contract Was Annulled.

The Madison county commissioners will advertise for bids for the construction of a $30,000 jail next February. A contract for the work was let to the Pauly Jail & Construction company several weeks ago, but because of the fact that this company was the highest bidder, the tax payers of the county suspected crooked work and demanded that the contract be annulled. The commissioners then refused to accept the Pauly company's contract after the bonds had been signed and now announce that a new contract will be let. The Pauly company will sue the county for breach of contract. The sum that had been set aside for the first payments on the jail will be devoted to the improvement of the county pikes.

Secretary of Agriculture.

The governor has been greatly interested in the announcement that the secretary of agriculture was coming south, and last Friday addressed the following letter to that official:

Montgomery, Aug. 13, 1897.

Hon. James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.:

Dear Sir—It has given me much pleasure to learn that you contemplate visiting the south with a view of investigating its agricultural conditions and wants. I beg to assure you that it will give me and the people of Alabama very great pleasure to have you come, and that I shall do everything in my power to enable you to get full and accurate information and to arrive at correct conclusions. I shall be happy to have you call upon me for any assistance I can render you, and to do everything in my power to make your stay amongst us pleasant to yourself and profitable to our people. I will be obliged if you will advise me of the date of your coming.

Yours respectfully,

JOS. F. JOHNSTON,
Governor.

Pickens Wants Her Notes.

The commissioners' court of the county of Pickens has called upon the governor for two notes of $5,000 each, made on February, 24, 1891, and payable to the state four years after date. Both are made by the Montgomery, Tuskaloosa & Memphis Railway company, and the securities are the Alabama Terminal company, J. W. Woolfolk, W. E. Woolfolk and G. Peterson. These notes were given for $10,000 of the two and three per cent fund in the treasury under the act approved February 18, 1891. The money was never to be repaid if the railway company built their road through Pickens county in three years. It was provided that if the company failed to comply, then the notes should be turned over to the commissioners' court of Pickens county, to be applied to any county. It was further provided that if no road was built or graded in Pickens county within two years after the notes were turned over to Pickens county, they should be returned to the state and replaced in the trust fund. The railway company never built the road. The notes should have been delivered to the Pickens commissioners on the 18th of February, 1894. The commissioners never asked for them and it is a question whether they are entitled to them. The attorney general will doubtless be called on to decide. The railway company and the terminal company are insolvent and there seems to be a question as to whether anything can be made out of the notes.

NATURE'S MODERATION.

The human constitution is very much like a fire, and the way many people try to take care of their health may be compared to the way a careless kitchen girl looks after the cooking-stove. One minute it is raging red hot, and then suddenly, first thing you know, the fire is out. People affected in this way sometimes led to believe that a medicine which has a sudden, tremendous effect must be truly wonderful. They forget that it may be merely a tremendous "draught" which imparts a temporary false effect of brightness and "fire" to the system, but suddenly drops it lower than before.

There is no sudden overwhelming effect about Ripans Tabules. Some people think the prescribed dose is too slow, and double it to get a quicker effect. But nature herself is slow, moderate and regular in accomplishing her best work. The Tabules relieve acute headaches, indigestion and nervous depression almost instantly. But their effect on the bowels is more gradual, yet it is sure and thorough. Ripans Tabules act in accordance with nature, and their results like nature's are complete and permanent.

A new style pocket containing TEN RIPANS TABULES in a paper carton (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores for FIVE CENTS. This low priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent cartons (100 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty eight cents to the RIPANS CHEMICAL COMPANY, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York. Of a single carton (TEN TABULES) will be sent for five cents.

ALTGELD HITS HARD.

MAKES VITAL PUNCTURES IN "PROSPERITY" WIND BAGS.

Tells the New York Herald Why the Price of Wheat Has Gone Up—Shortage of Crops and Klondyke—Laborers Still Suffering for Want of Work.

Ex-Gov. Altgeld accurately analyzes the present situation in a letter to the New York Herald.

"The American people know that while the wheat crop is phenomenally large in this country, it is a failure in the South American and European countries so that there must come a kind of wheat famine, and that consequently the farmer should get more than 50c for his wheat, and would get that through the financial system which formerly prevailed in the world, so that he is every few suffering a wrong caused by legislation.

"The average price of all other commodities grown to the world's markets has been steadily falling, and silver, whose uses have been restricted by legislation, has simply kept pace with the other commodities, as shown by the London markets. In our country the price of corn and most of the other farm products is so low as not to pay the actual cost of production. The present advance in wheat, being due to a temporary cause, cannot give general or lasting prosperity; besides, only a small portion of the farmers of America raises wheat.

"Should the Klondike country, or any other country, so greatly increase the volume of the world's money as to produce prosperity, it would be a demonstration of the correctness of the position that an increase in the volume of money gives prosperity, while a reduction in the quantity of money produces paralysis.

"The country has now enjoyed more than nine months of 'restored confidence' and as a result the great cotton mills of New England have shut down because they could not sell their products, the coal miners of America are on a strike against hunger and against nakedness, and the Chicago City Railway Company, which last winter helped to debauch the legislature of Illinois and got advantages worth millions of dollars, has just given notice to its men of a reduction in wages.

"The condition of the debtors and honest toilers is getting steadily worse. Congress has just given the Sugar Trust a year tribute in excess of what they formerly got from the sweat of American industries. In order that these patriots may not amass fortunes themselves, our may contribute millions to carry elections.

"The newspapers are persistently calling this prosperity, but the American people are not fooled by it.

"Nearly all of the events since the election have tended to show that the gold standard campaign was a colossal fraud managed by the unscrupulous agents of the trusts."

THE DIVINE ECONOMY.

Ex-Senator John Martin's Recent Radical Utterances.

Hon. John Martin, ex-senator and now clerk of the Kansas supreme court, recently gave to the press the following opinions:

"People denounce socialism nowadays for the same reasons which, when I was a boy, led them to reflect upon a man as calling him an abolitionist—simply because of popular prejudice.

"Every man who believes in the public ownership of any kind of railroads, street railways, light, heat, power and water plants, for public uses in cities, is a type of socialist.

"In the Divine economy I don't think it is lawful or morally right to exclude any number or class of men from the full enjoyment of light and heat or the means necessary and proper for the support of himself and those dependent upon him.

"God never intended that any man, or men, should monopolize the surface of the earth to the exclusion of others, or that he is with the highways of the seas, rivers and lakes. These are the common property of mankind and upon the same principle the gold and silver, the coal and the iron and all other minerals stored in the bowels of the earth were intended for the precise purpose for which they are being used, and God never intended that any man or set of men should have a monopoly of these great gifts of life, necessary to human existence to the exclusion of all others.

"If any one of the soil of the earth be wrong, a monopoly of the material elements of the earth, or any part of them such as coal, iron, air, light and heat, is equally more inconsistent with the divine economy and is manifestly wrong."

No Hope from the Present Congress.

It is announced that the American Federation of Labor officials have given up hope of getting legislation from the present congress. They would be in the way of progress if they gave up once for all the practice of howling and begging for class privileges in the same breath. No one is entitled to rights or privileges because he is a workingman; but all are entitled to right and justice because they are men and citizens. Petitioning for anything in the name of workingmen savors too much of "fake" business—which, indeed, it usually is. Not because they are workingmen, but because they are men. Let them stand up erect, scorning special considerations on account of vocation. A man is a man before he is a blacksmith; and when he ceases to be a blacksmith, even though he become a Rockefeller or a Hanna, he is still only a man.—Cincinnati Common Cause.

NATIONAL SCHOOLS.

The Building of Endowed Universities Must Be Checked.

The London Chronicle, referring to the forced resignation of President Andrews of Brown University, says:

"There is no doubt that, like Prof. Bemis, who was dismissed from the University of Chicago, President Andrews was dismissed because he warned his countrymen against the great monopolies. It seems certain that a conflict is approaching that will shake the Union as it was shaken by the great slavery question. It looks as though the splendid millionaire endowments of American universities had the unworthy motive of the promotion of the interests of the monopolies. We anticipate a great wave of opinion against the pretension of the monopolist class as dangerous to freedom. This movement will lead to the substitution of public for private control and ownership of the big trusts and monopolies and the substitution of state for private colleges and universities."

The foregoing is in line with a most rapid change in public opinion.

Last January Dr. David Starr Jordan, although president of Stanford university, an endowed institution, came out squarely against endowed universities. In an article in the Forum entitled "The Urgent Need of a National University," he said: "The great revival of learning in the United States, which has shown itself in the growth of universities, in the rise of the spirit of investigation, and in the realization of the value of truth, can be traced in large degree to Germanic influences. These influences have not come to us through German immigration, or the presence of German scholars among us, but through the experience of American scholars in Germany. If it be true, as Mr. James Bryce says, that 'of all institutions in America' the universities 'have the best promise for the future,' we have Germany to thank for this. It is, however, no abstract Germany that we may thank, but a concrete fact. It is the existence in Germany of universities, strong, effective, AND FREE, and most notable among these is the youngest of their number, the university of Berlin. * * *

"It is said that in America we have already some four hundred colleges and universities. Most of the work done in the best of them is that of the German gymnasium or preparatory school. The worst of them would in Germany be closed by the police. But in a certain number of the strongest and FREEST the genuine university spirit is found in the highest degree. For more of these good ones there is a crying demand."

But as a working principle AS WELL ASK WEALTHY MANUFACTURERS OR WEALTHY CHURCHES to endow and support our Supreme Court of law as to endow and support our supreme university. They can not do it; they will not do it; and, AS FREE MEN, WE WOULD NOT HAVE THEM DO IT IF THEY WOULD. * * * Whatever institutions the people need, the people must create and control. That this can be done wisely is no matter of theory. With all their mistakes and crudities, the state universities of this country constitute the most hopeful future in our whole educational system. In the long run few institutions are less subject to partisan influence than a state university. * * * There is no instrument of POLITICAL, SOCIAL OR ADMINISTRATIVE REFORM to be compared with the influence of a national university.

The foregoing, coming from one of the most profound scholars of the United States, is entitled to the most serious consideration of each individual who is anxious to protect the republic from the encroachments of concentrated wealth and the attendant evils.

Still another remedy for the lack of freedom of teaching in our universities is pointed out by Mr. George H. Shibley in the "Money Question," published last year. He states the fact that in many of our universities the trustees employ in the monetary departments only such teachers as put forth the ideas which suit these trustees, whereas "in the universities of our mother country and in the rest of Europe, TEACHING HAS BEEN AND IS OPEN TO COMPETITION, and, therefore, the indiyiduals who have held them have done so by fearlessly following truth wherever it led. In the United States, however, there is a new order of things. INSTEAD OF COMPETITION IN OUR UNIVERSITIES, THERE IS A MONOPOLY. The professors and all the other teachers are appointed by the trustees, and ONLY THOSE APPOINTED ARE PERMITTED TO TEACH THE STUDENTS. This is a deplorable state of affairs. But as it exists it should and must be known to the people."

The remedy he suggests is: "Let the state enact a law conditioning the franchises of endowed universities upon their adopting the European system of competition in teaching, i. e., the teachers selected by the trustees to meet the direct competition of other competent scholars, e. g., those who have attained the degree of doctor of philosophy. Through permitting these scholars to register for classes and receive the usual fee per scholar, and the scholar credited with the work thus taken, freedom in teaching the truth—the facts of history and the truths of nature—will be at once attained. Either secure freedom of competition in teaching in the endowed universities or permit nothing but state and national universities to exist."

It has been hoped that Mr. McKinley will do something for the interests of the common people as soon as his political debts are all paid off. Undoubtedly he will, but he'll be a private citizen again before his political debts are paid off.—Boulder Camera.

WHOSE PROSPERITY?

THE ALLEGED REVIVAL OF BUSINESS.

It Reaches Only the Monopolies, Trusts and Stock Gamblers—Extent of the Benefit of Good Crops—Farmers Get the Short End.

The gold standard newspapers, comprising nearly all of the great dailies of the country, which are owned by the monopolist class, are now teeming with stories of the return of prosperity. The business revival is here, they say, and this is declared a triumphant vindication of goldism, trustism and monopolism, and a death knell for the political future of Populism.

It is evidently true that the trusts, stock gamblers and goldmongers have entered an era of prosperity, but the files of the daily papers which widely advertise this fact also prove that the sufferings of the masses are unabated.

A New York paper says: "Eight starving persons have been reported here in the last ten days. Two of them, too proud to beg, have died of hunger, and others have been taken to hospitals."

A Bariboo, Wis., dispatch says: "News reached this city to-day of the tragic death of Arthur S. Frain, at the Cliff House, Devils Lake, Saturday night. He was found in his room on the bed dead, with two bullet holes in his head and a revolver lying at his side. He was for several years the manager of the stone crushing plant at Devils Lake. IT IS THOUGHT THAT DESPONDENCY WAS THE CAUSE OF THE DEED."

Duluth, Minn., dispatch: "Oscar Nelson, a waiter, was found dead in bed this morning. An examination showed it to be a case of suicide from morphine poisoning. DESPONDENCY IS SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN THE CAUSE. The man was comparatively unknown here."

New York dispatch: "A supposed double suicide by inhaling illuminating gas occurred at 456 Lincoln street, Jersey City. The victims were Henry Aubert, 58 years old, and Mina, his wife, 56 years old. Mr. and Mrs. Aubert lived in a frame building, where for sixteen years he has conducted the New Jersey Embroidery Company, which of late, as a business venture, had dwindled to nothing. THE SUICIDES ARE ATTRIBUTED TO BUSINESS REVERSES."

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch describes as follows the methods by which the general populace will receive their "prosperity" the coming winter: "Lieut. Col. Evans, commanding the Midland Division of the Salvation Army, is perfecting plans for caring for the friendless and hungry next winter. He expects to rent a building that will accommodate 800 men. A restaurant will be conducted on the penny plan that has been successful in other large cities—that is, each dish will cost one cent. In connection with the woodyard, there will be a brush factory or a chair-caning establishment for those unfit for heavy labor. A free employment bureau will also be established. It will cost $2,500 to carry out the plans, and Col. Evans hopes to get the money by public subscription."

Those who are now making fortunes in the stock exchange and grain pit will doubtless contribute enough to prevent general starvation this winter of those who can raise enough money to buy one-cent meals.

The cause of the speculative boom in the stock market is easy to discover. All trust stocks have been enhanced in value by the new tariff, which was framed for that purpose. Railroad stocks have also advanced all along the line. This is because the large crops insured a heavy business, and the foreign demand enables the traffic to bear increased freight rates.

A few crumbs of prosperity will actually reach the people through the money distributed for the heavy wheat crop, which the wheat famine everywhere else in the world will maintain at a good price; but this benefit will last no longer than this year. It is morally certain that next year wheat will strike the lowest point ever known in the history of prices.

Standing By the People.

Governor Russell of North Carolina is a man whom the masses should love. Judge Simonton of the federal court—and who is a resident of Virginia—issued an injunction against Governor Russell, at the request of J. Pierpont Morgan enjoining the governor from interfering with the leasing of a railroad belonging to the state of North Carolina, and which Morgan had obtained control of. The governor flatly refused to recognize the injunction and Judge Simonton has not dared to imprison him for contempt. It would be a good thing for the people if we had a few more men in power like Governor Russell.—Tacoma Sun.

State Ownership in Switzerland.

Switzerland is about to adopt the policy of state ownership of all railroads, the national legislature having just passed the bill of the federal council providing for the purchase of all the railroads of the state. This is regarded as a shrewd movement financially, as the state takes possession of the roads at a valuation which is about thirty million dollars less than the price which would have to be paid if the state bought the stock. As most of the stock is held in Germany, this feature of the transaction is regarded with complacency.—Boston Journal (Philistine).

POINTS FROM THE PRESS.

There is nothing this country can do to kindle the fires of patriotism so long as 64 per cent of the people are homeless.—Seattle Populist.

Prosperity has really been reached. A man near Canton, O., sold his wife and six children for $100. A little while ago wives were only quoted at $12.50 in Missouri. This is quite an advance in prices, considering the half a dozen serious incumbrances.—Los Angeles Labor World.

Hanna and the other coal barons are the friends of the coal miners and other laboring people. The laboring people recognize this and put them into office and wealth. They always vote for them or their friends, and oppose socialism. Darned if I can see any sense in striking against one's friends.—Appeal to Reason.

The conspiracy between the federal judges and executive authorities to rob the people by selling the Union Pacific road to the highest bidder, instead of taking it for the government debt, has reached to the point of a judicial decree at Omaha. No bid for less than $50,637,435 will be received. The date of sale is not yet fixed.—San Francisco Star.

In spite of the contended good results to come to the people from the new tariff law, a significant sign of what is to follow, at least in one line, is the advance in the price of sugar, an indispensable article to every householder.—Fort Morgan Times.

The average citizen is not a bitter partisan, and is always ready to say a good word for the bridge that carries him safely over rough waters, regardless of the builder. But the McKinley high tariff will not help him and he will pronounce it bad and help to overthrow those responsible for it.—Aspen Tribune.

Extravagance in public expenditures, unjust and high taxation, the gold basis for money and the rapid concentration of powerful business agencies, with consequent falling prices, are among the things which have carried the country down to the level of the coast line, and we cannot rise unless we unload some or all of these weights.—Topeka Advocate.

Representation according to the Hare-Astor plan would forever dispose of the political machine; taxation according to the single tax plan would forever dispose of landlordism; public ownership of all natural and political monopolies would forever dispose of trusts, corporations, and syndicates, and these three are one.—Pittsburg Kansan.

The people can only vote for certain public officials at limited periods; and these officials are, in turn, imprisoned in the straight waistcoat of constitutionalism. The fault is not with the people. The trouble consists wholly in the fact that they are not provided with weapons adequate to the war they are waging. The notion that the people are absolutely free, because they can vote for governors and members of congress once in a while, is very sedulously inculcated, but it is a very childish notion, nevertheless.—Twentieth Century.

A dispatch from South America says that the famous Inca gold fields of Peru have been found and that the richest mines in the world are thus opened up. If this be true, and one-half the stories about Klondike are true, gold will be so plenty in a few years that the speculators will want it demonetized and debts made payable in diamonds, or something else which will be difficult to get hold of. Some of the "sound money" fellows are laying awake nights wondering what next.—Chicago Dispatch.

The prosperity commission appointed by Governor Mount to investigate the condition of miners, report that the reports have been greatly exaggerated. We would refer such commission to the report of the late Republican Bureau of Statistics for 1896. This report states that the average yearly earnings of the miners of Indiana were $201. This gives them an average of $3.86 per week. After one year of such prosperity, the miners go on a strike. Many of them are reported destitute, and the prosperity commission, after due consideration, report that although a few need aid, that the reports have been greatly exaggerated.—Indianapolis Union.

History.

President Harper of the university of Chicago confronted the professor of history sternly.

"Your teaching is all wrong!" he cried.

The professor shuddered. He felt fearful of being discharged like the indiscreet E. W. Bemis.

"Don't I teach history?" he asked.

"No," said President Harper. "You don't know what history is."

That left the unhappy professor no alternative but to ask what history might be.

"History," replied the president, grandly, "is that which ought to have happened, illustrated by occasional references to that which has happened."

"Then," inquired the poor professor, "what name shall be applied to that which has happened?"

"No name," replied President Harper; "ignore it."

The poor professor promised to write a philosophy of history along those lines before he went to bed.—Twentieth Century.

New Government Map of the Klondyke to Be Issued.

WORLD'S OUTPUT OF GOLD.

Probability That a Convention Will be Arranged Between the United States and Spain to Settle Claims on Account of the Cuban Trouble.

Klondyke Mail.

The Canadian government and the United States have practically agreed upon co-operation in augmenting the postal facilities for the Klondyke region, and the result will shortly be evidenced in a substantial improvement in the mail service.

Uncle Sam's Klondyke Map.

Superintendent Duffield, of the Coast Survey, has received the proof of the new government map of the Klondyke region. It is on an enlarged scale, with the gold region as the main objective point, and this entire locality is given without reference to the remoter parts of Alaska and the Artic region. The map is 16 by 42 inches. It is called a route map, as it shows the route of travel from Sitka northward to the Klondyke country. The southerly part shows the head of the Lynn Canal, with the intermediate points—Juneau, Dyea, Douglass, Chilkoot Pass, the winding Lewis River and finally the Yukon river, with Dawson City and other main points.

Copies of the map will be ready for distribution in about ten days or two weeks. The map will be on sale at the bureau at twenty-five cents a copy.

World's Output of Gold.

Two hundred and fifty million dollars worth of gold mined in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1897; that is the glittering probability which the figures show, for Director of the Mint Preston is always conservative and is inclined to think that the sum total will not exceed $240,000,000. But since a general increase of production is noticed in every direction the higher figure is clearly within the limits of possibility.

The Wiltwaters-Rand, in South Africa, alone shows an increase of over $12,000,000. West Australia produced more in the last sixth months than in the previous twelve months. The United States shows a good increase, with indications of a marked advance for several years to come, exclusive of the Alaskan developments, which may in themselves eclipse California's palmiest days. Three hundred millions in gold a year by 1900 is now regarded as a conservative estimate.

Claims Against Spain.

It is probable that a convention will be negotiated between the United States and Spain for the settlement of all claims on account of the Cuban trouble by a claims commission similar to that appointed in 1871, which settled the claims of the citizens of both countries after the insurrection of that time. It can be stated that, although numerous claims of American citizens against the government of Spain for injury done their persons and property in the island of Cuba during the present revolution have been filed with the state department, no formal presentation of these claims has been made to the Spanish government by the secretary of state, although as soon as these claims have been filed in the state department, a notice of such filing has been presented at the foreign office at Madrid. It is doubtful, under the present circumstances, whether if any formal presentation of the claims made at this time Spain would recognize it.

The administration is, therefore, resolved to follow the precedent in this matter, and to await the cessation of hostilities, and meanwhile to negotiate a treaty or convention for the appointment of a claims commission.

General Woodford in his instructions was directed to negotiate such a convention as was arranged by General Sickles with the Spanish government in 1871.

The Alaska Boundary.

In speaking of the boundary line between Alaska and the British possessions, General Duffield of the coast and geodetic survey says:

"I do not believe that when the matter of the boundary line between the two countries is settled there will be any appreciable change from which is down on the map. Dawson City is a hundred miles or more east of the 141st meridian, which is the boundary line. The difference between the United States and the Canadian surveys on the 141st meridian is a matter of feet only. Mount St. Elias stands partly in American and partly in British territory.

An American Tired of War.

Consul-General Lee, at Havana, has reported by cable to the secretary of state that James T. Cary, who is said to have been employed with Messrs. Zeigler & Co., of Chicago, had surrendered himself to the Spanish authorities on account of the condition of his health. Gen. Lee reports that he will send him from the island. The case is a new one, and the department has no particulars beyond the brief dispatch.

Secretary Sherman's Reply.

Secretary Sherman has submitted to the Japanese government an answer to Japan's last note relating to the annexation of Hawaii to the United States. The answer was delivered to Mr. Hoshi, the Japanese minister. It is in reply to Japan's note of July 10. Mr. Sherman's answer is marked by its friendly expressions toward Japan, which give special satisfaction in view of the somewhat strained relations resulting from the previous correspondence. Two features are brought out by the answer. It reiterates the position heretofore taken by the secretary of state as to the right and propriety of annexing Hawaii to the United States. With this, however, is coupled an assurance that the interests of Japan in Hawaii will be fully safeguarded. It also expresses satisfaction at the plan of arbitration between Japan and Hawaii on the question of Japanese immigration to Hawaii.

Revenue Collections Increase.

The monthly statement of collectors of internal revknue show the total collections during July to have been $19,472,658, an increase as compared with July, 1896, of $5,218,976. The exceptional increase in the receipts from fermented liquors was due to the large purchases of beer stamps in anticipation of the increased tax from 92½ cents to $1 per barrel.

Claims for Improvement.

Lewis Jerome Edward Blanc, an American citizen, through attorneys, has filed with the state department a claim against the government of Ecuador for $200,000 for false imprisonment and ill treatment over twenty years ago.

JOHN P. LOVELL.

A General Expression of Sympathy Called Out by His Death.

Seldom has there been such a general expression of sympathy over the loss of one whose life has been devoted to business pursuits, as has been called forth by the recent death at Cottage City, Mass., of that venerable landmark of the business world, the late John P. Lovell, founder and president of the John P. Lovell Arms Company of Boston. Almost numberless messages and letters of condolence, on the death of his honored father, have been received by Colonel Benjamin S. Lovell, treasurer of the Lovell Arms Company. The wide scope covered by these communications is in itself evidence of the great regard in which he was held by the leaders in business and public life. These expressions of sympathy have not been confined to New England, but they have come from every prominent business centre of the North, East, West and South—in fact from every portion of the Union; because the name of John P. Lovell, and the corporation created by him, have been for more than a half century the synonym of honest dealing and business integrity. Even from England, from firms with whom Mr. Lovell had enjoyed the pleasantest business relations for more than fifty years, Colonel Lovell has received messages of sympathy.

CANOVAS'S ASSASSIN.

Michael Angiolo, Put to Death—His Friend Captured.

At San Sabastian, Michael Angiollo, who shot and killed Senor Canovas del Castillo, the prime minister of Spain, at the baths of Santa Agueda, on Sunday, Aug. 8, was executed last Friday morning at 11 o'clock.

Angiollo heard calmly the news that he was to be executed, but he appeared to be surprised at it and bitterly complained of the frequent visits of the priests, declaring that they would obtain nothing from him.

He declined to enter the chapel, saying he was comfortable enough in his cell. An executioner from Bruges performed the garrotting, just prior to which a priest exhorted the anarchist to repent, to which Angiollo replied: "Since you cannot get me out of prison, leave me in peace. I, myself, will settle with God."

The execution of Angiollo took place in the prison of Vergara.

ANOTHER ANARCHIST ARRESTED.

Isidoro Ricci, an Italian friend of Michael Angiollo, the assassin of the Spanish premier, has been arrested at Lisbon.

FORTUNE IN SHORT ORDER.

A Klondyker Cleaned Up Just $130,000 in Eight Weeks.

The steamer Alki arrived at Seattle, Wash., last week from Dyea, Alaska. Willis L. Thorpe was handed a letter by a man who came down on the Alki from Dyea. It was written by Edward Thorpe and came overland, saying that he had cleaned up $130,000 in the Klondyke in eight weeks and was coming home on the steamer Portland, which is due in Seattle on August 26. Thorpe left Seattle one year ago, having gone northward with a drove of cattle.

FRANCIS SCHLATTER MARRIED.

His Bride the Widow of the Farris Wheel Builder.

At Pittsburg Saturday it was positively announced that Mrs. Margaret Ferris, widow of the builder of the Chicago wheel, had been married in Pittsburg to Francis Schlatter, the divine healer of Canton.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Ward, pastor of St. Peter's Episcopal church.

Mr. and Mrs. Schlatter are now at a down-town hotel.

GENERAL TRADE.

Conditions as Shown by Bradstreet's Are Encouraging.

EXPORTS OF WHEAT HEAVY.

Upward Tendency in Prices is Shown by Nearly All Staples—Iron and Steel Market Improving—Volume of Trade Continues to Increase.

Bradstreet's report of trade for the past week says: Special telegrams from trade centers throughout the country emphasize the growing tendency of the farmer, due to high prices for almost all agricultural products still in his hand and point to a continuation of the demand which has been conspicuous within the past few weeks. The volume of trade continues to increase and prices are hardening. No such large volume of business, largely in anticipation of requirements, has been reported since 1892. Larger transactions have been in dry goods, clothing and shoes and South and West in wagons and farm implements.

Another favorable bank clearings report is found in the total $1,140,000,000, which, while it is 1 per cent less than last week, it is 40 per cent larger than in the third week of August, 1896; 26 per cent heavier than in 1895; 40 per cent larger than in 1894 and fully 55 per cent larger than in the like week of 1893, when clearings totals were reduced to very low figures. Compared with the like period in 1892, a year of large volume of business, this week's totals show a gain of 13 per cent among eighty-six of the cities reporting larger banking clearances only seventeen show decreases this week, compared with the corresponding total last year. Bank clearings at other cities than New York are 17 per cent larger this week than in the like week a year ago, but at New York the increase is 56 per cent.

Prices of staples continue the favorable movement of the past few weeks with advances for wheat flour, wheat, new pork, butter, eggs, cheese, corn and oats. Hides are also firmer and higher. Ginghams have advanced 1⅛c, while the cotton mills are starting up and jobbers in woolen goods are getting higher prices for spring delivery. There has been a large number of resumptions among iron and steel concerns this week. Bessemer pig is 25c higher, and the outlook is for improvement. Sugar, cotton print cloths, wood and petroleum are firm and unchanged, while coffee, almost alone among the staples, is lower than last week.

Exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States and Montreal this week are the largest in any week since September 1, 1894, amounting to 5,218,000 bushels this week, as compared with 4,460,000 bushels last week, 3,991,000 bushels in the week a year ago, 2,389,000 bushels two years ago, 3,182,000 bushels three years ago, and as contrasted with 4,960,000 bushels in the corresponding week of 1893.

Exports of Indian corn this week are also exceptionally the largest since the third week in April last year, amounting to 3,929,035 bushels, as compared with 3,275,000 bushels last week, 2,769,000 bushels in the week a year ago, 1,900,000 bushels three years ago, and as contrasted with 983,000 bushels in the like week of 1893.

There are 221 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, against 219 last week, 216 a year ago, 310 two years ago, and as contrasted with 546 in the third week of August, 1893.

Losses Caused by Rain.

The continued rains of the past few days have caused serious loss to the coal dealers, who have boats moored near Baton Rouge, La. Last Wednesday night at the fleet of W. G. Coyte & Co., eight miles above Baton Rouge, La., about fifteen boats filled with water and sank. The exact number cannot be ascertained until the books of Coyte & Co. are checked up. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

CHIEF A. B. CONNOLLY.

For Sixteen Years He Was Chief of the Atlanta Police Force.

A. B. Connolly, for sixteen years chief of police of Atlanta, died at his home in that city last Friday after a long illness.

He began his career on the force as a patrolman, rose to be captain and was finally elected to be chief, which post he held during three successive terms until his death.

He was a member of the National Association of Police Chiefs and well known throughout the country.

At San Francisco intense excitement prevailed in the local wheat market last week and options advanced with great leaps. December opened at 160, receded for a moment and closed at 160 5-8. After the call there was an advance to 161½. An hour later it rose to 163, but later there were large sales to secure profits and prices had a sharp decline. May opened at 164 and closed at 161½. In the afternoon December opened at 164 and closed at 164¼, while May opened at 162 and closed at 161½.

Alabama State Alliance

The Twelfth Annual Session of the Farmer's Alliance of Alabama is hereby called to meet at Jemison, Chilton county, Ala., on Wednesday and Thursday, September 22 and 23, 1897.

J. O. PINCKARD, President.

Jemison is on the Louisville & Nashville railroad 45 miles south of Birmingham, and 53 miles north of Montgomery

Papers friendly to the Alliance please copy.

CLANTON Alliance No. 1 re-organized with a whoop last Saturday.

SPECIAL State Examiner Cowan presumably finished his examination of this county's book over a week ago, but up to the present no report has been made public.

EVERYONE in the county is looking forward to the meeting of the State Alliance at Jemison Sept. 22 and 23. Unusual interest is manifested.

COOSA county has raised $80,000 towards building the Atlanta and Selma railroad. What does Chilton county propose to do in the matter?

FRANCIS Bartow Lloyd, better known to newspaper readers as "Rufus Sanders" the Sage of Rocky Creek, was shot and killed yesterday by John A. Gafford near Greenville. Gafford escaped.

IN Henry D. Loyd's "Wealth versus Commonwealth," may be found a statement of the very conditions that have brought about the present strike among the coal miners. Loyd gleaned his information from reports made before Congressional Committees—committees that sat and heard, but did nothing to alleviate the sufferings of these workmen, nor to restrict the encroachments of the mine operators. Is it not about time for the farce of the special investigating committee and the commission to be brought to a close?

The Montgomery Weekly Crop Bulletin says: The week ending August 23rd, was one of almost continuous rain over this entire section, the rainfall being heavy in the northern and central portions and excessive in southern counties; the weekly rainfall at Mobile, was 7.50 inches, and at Montgomery, 4.02 inches; the daily temperature averaged about 6 degrees below normal and there was hardly any sunshine and as a result nearly all crops have been more or less damaged. There is considerable complaint of rust, rot and shedding in cotton and some is sprouting in bolls and while the prospect is not so bright as it was a short time back, still cotton is heavily fruited and with favorable conditions from now on, it will make a good yield; picking has been delayed by rains and is not yet under way. Late corn is filling nicely and will be a good yield, but considerable fodder is rotting in shock. Late irish potatoes and sweet potatoes are doing fairly well and sorghum which is ready for harvest and cow peas and cane are excellent. Late fruits have made better yield than anticipated in central and norther counties and pastures are in flourishing condition: turnips are doing well.

Major Culver, commissioner of agriculture, has recently called the attention of our farmers to the advisability of their planting Scarlet or Crimson clover.

"It is an annual" he says, but when sown early in summer on good land it can be pastured on without harm during the fall and winter, and will make a crop of fine hay or seed at the usual time. It is a rank grower, and frequently attains the height of twenty to twenty five inches."

The commissioner thinks there is nothing better to sow in orchards or to plow in for fertilizing the land. The roots penetrate to a depth of three or four feet. Major Culver has already tried the clover in various Alabama soils, and is convinced of its entire adaptability. He has a small quantity of the seed for distribution, and will distribute them among those farmers of the state who will agree to give it a fair trial. The seed should be sown during the time from August 1 to October 1.

CHILTON COUNTY ALLIANCE.

Yesterday (Wednesday) was a great day for the Alliancemen of Chilton county. Since the meeting of the Central Alliance at Clanton last month, when Cedar Grove Primary invited the next meeting to be held with them, several primaries in the county have gone to work and reorganized. The consequence was yesterday the reorganization of the Chilton County Alliance It was a regular old time Alliance day—the business session was marked with deep and earnest enthusiasm and the social feature was unanimously pronounced the most agreeable gathering of the people since the time when the Alliance held its regular meetings. The ladies were out in force, and although Cedar Grove is proverbial for its hospitality, they yesterday surpassed all previous efforts and furnished the most bountiful and toothful Alliance dinner we have partaken of in a long time, and afterwards all enjoyed a watermelon feast.

Bro. J. H. Harris, State Lecturer, who was expected to be present was unavoidably compelled to be absent, much to the regret of the Alliance. Bros. L. H. Reynolds, T. J. Collins, W. H. Conway, Frank Crichton, J. M. Scott, L. B. Pounds, Wm. McCullough and others made good and strong Alliance talks—all to the point and all greatly appreciated.

The following officers were elected: President, Green Cofer; Vice-president H. A. J. Harris; Sec-Treas. Frank Crichton; Chaplain, N. J. Calloway; Lecturer J. M. Scott; Ass't Lect. W. H. Conway. Doorkeeper and Assistant, it was resolved, should be appointed by the President at each meeting. Executive Committee elected was W. H. Conway, A. F. Childress, J. W. Foshee.

The installation of the elected officers was impressively performed by Bros. L. B. Pounds and D. N. Riggins.

Bro. L. H. Reynolds was elected Delegate to the State Alliance, which meets at Jemison, Sept. 22.

Union and Macedonia Primaries invited the next meting of the County Alliance to be held with them, and it was decided to hold the next meeting with Union, they to fix the most convenient date (about the end of October). When the date is settled it will be published in the BANNER.

Bros. Pounds and Crichton were instructed to prepare some suitable subject for discussion at the next meeting, and any Allianceman is requested to also prepare a subject. Then the Alliance adjourned after a most enjoyable and satisfactory session, and anticipating a bright future for the Farmers Alliance of Chilton county.

The principles set forth by the Alliance, have taken deep root in the minds of many thinking men and with much interest they have watched the unfolding of those principles, and such men stand ready today to advocate and declare those principles, (first apparently, untenable, improbable and unwise) the true basis for govermental prosperity. Instances of daily occurence confirm the wisdom of Alliance principles and the necessity that they prevail. One of the most unpopular demands as set forth by the Alliance and considered extremely radical, is to-day a popular demand and is advocated by papers and men who once denounced it most bitterly

As lecturer of the Alabama State Alliance it his been my duty, as well as pleasure, to visit the people and meet with them, and to-day the principles of the order emanating therefrom are more deeply imbedded in the hearts and conscience of Alliancemen than I have ever known, them and as intimated before, thinking men everywhere are looking with no ordinary degree of interest to those demands of relief. Many who once looked with woeful forebodings on the Alliance, now admit, not only the feasibility of its demands, but the necessity of them.

When Benjamin Franklin published a newspaper in Philadelphia, he had the unique design of a serpent with his tongue out and cut in several peices, under the design was the following motto "Unite or Die." Union is necessary to win the victory, Union is necessary to carry out the demands and sustain the principles of the Alliance, to carry them out means victory, and this means a better purer and more stable government.

J. H. HARRIS.

Not any other city in America has the opportunity to-day that the city of Nashville has, because the success of the Exposition comes right on the eve of returning prosperity, the era which promises to be the greatest known in the history of the country. Nashville has it in her power, by a well directed and concerted effort, to ride to wealth on the crest of the incoming wave. This glorious opportunity must not be lost.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 25, 1897.

The recent self-prepared interview given to the press by Col. Preston, Director of the mint, in which he goes out of his way to administer a slap at Free Silver, in connection with the recent gold discoveries in Alaska, has envoked much criticism from Republicans as well as Democrats and Populists. Senator Chandler of New Hamshire, one of the Republican leaders, replies to Mr. Preston, in the Washington Post, in which he asserts that "the depreciation of silver ought to expedite Bimetallism as a means of preventing the injuries which mankind must suffer, if all commercial nations of the World are to continue and finally reach and adopt gold monometallism."

An executive committee has been chosen by the National Silver Republican Party as follows: Chairman, Fred T. Dubois, Idaho; Judge J. J. Harper of Washington Court House, O; Ben S. Dean of Jamestown, N. Y.; A. M. Stevenson of Denver, Colo.; Nathan Cole, Jr., of Los Angeles, Cal.; James H. Timer of Chicago, and Charles S. Hartman of Bozeman, Mont.

The National Bureau of Immigration is preparing statistics which will prove of interest to the general public. The total number of immigrants admitted to this country last year, was 230,832, with a total wealth of $3,541,241, an average of about $15 a head. The Germans are the most thrifty. The English and Irish make the next best showing, while the Italians are the poorest

John W. Breidenthal, one of the leaders in reform movements in Kansas for fifteen years, and five years chairman of the People's Party State Executive Committee, resigned his position last week and Taylor Riddle was elected to succeed him. Mr. Breidenthal was an indefatigable worker and acknowledged to be one of the best political organizers in the country.

Senator Jones, of Nevada, who is recognized as an authority on silver, thinks the increased production of gold in Alaska and Canada will have no appreciable effect on the white metal. He says an abundance of money whether gold or silver, means prosperity, and he wants to see good times in this country come as a result of good times everywhere.

Owing to the famine in India and the shortage of crops in European countries it is estimated that American farmers will realize nearly a half million dollars more for their products this year, than last. This is a verification of the old adage that "there is no great loss without some small gain."

Col. Seller's "New American Party" is supposed to be in session at St. Louis, the 25th of August being the date on which it was announced to convene. If Gen. VanDervoort with his "Middle-of-the-roaders," Gen. Coxey and Col. Sellers, could "join teams" it would be an awful relief to a long suffering people.

Since the assassination of Cannovas, the Spanish Premier, an order has been issued by the Bureau of Immigration, for the exclusion of Spanish Anarchists from this country, and all who sail from Europe will be prevented from landing.

W. J. Bryan, on his recent trip through Montana and Wyoming, received a perfect ovation, as he does everywhere, and was greeted with the booming of cannon, the rattle of musketry and cheering populace at every stop. No other man in the history of this country has been able, after a presidential defeat, to retain such widespread personal and political popularity.

Senator Teller, of Colorado, when asked recently if the rise in wheat was not a contradiction of the argument of the free coinage men that wheat and silver travel side by side in values, said: "I am surprised that such a question should be asked. It is generally admitted by the press of the country and by those who are familliar with conditions that the advance in wheat is due to the short crop in the world. All know that no wheat has been raised in India this year, and comparatively little in South America.

Jemison.

Our sick neighbors are improving. We've had an abundance of rain for the benefit of peas, potatoes, turnips, etc., to bless the farmer.

On the 21st inst. at Rockymount, the Sabbath-school celebration was a success in every particular. The many essays by young ladies led heavenward. The music led by Mr. J. B. Northcutt, who put his soul in this inspiring duty, was delightful.

Mr. Cordie Northcutt the superintendent, showed to all that he was performing duties he was born for. Every one must love those brothers. At noon, came the bountiful dinner enjoyed by many besides three Sabbath-shcools who joined in the celebration.

Then came the march with singing to the cemetery, where every grave was decorated by the little ones. How beautiful to see the dead thus remembered.

All returned to the church and listened to Rev. S. M. Adams on the subject of death. He showed that what we call death is the beginning of life. He had in the forenoon made impressive remarks on happy homes. Hon. L. H. Reynolds in his usual easy manner spoke on temperance. He laid whisky, tobacco and snuff so low we wish for no resurrection. Already we know of one convert from tobacco and snuff. We think there will be others.

Crops are some better than some people thought for, but are short to a great extent, fodder pulling is near at hand; cotton is opening in some places.

Health is good in our vicinity, people are in good cheer. We organized a prayer meeting in our community about 8 months ago; at this time everyone is taking a good interest in it. Those who have never tried to offer a public prayer are now getting down to their work; the sisters are accomplishing as much as the brethren. We have just closed a protracted meeting at New Salem church; received 13 members, all except one were converted before the meeting. We have never been able to see just such a meeting; everyone seemed to have the love of God in their hearts; there was no excitement at all, but pure religion was with us. We never heard such interesting sermons, they were all in line one with the other. We were happy possessers of three preachers. Brethren, we are thankful to them for their services and hope God will bless them for their work.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. Mr. Petty who has been sick a long time was moved Saturday to Mr. Rutland's. Mrs. Petty and children were also moved to her father's in Coosa county. Both husband and wife being unable to wait on the other thought it best to be moved where less trouble would prevail. We sincerely wish for them both rapid restoration.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhœa.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhœa. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold by J. S. Johnson, jr., Druggist, Clanton.

49 YEARS OF SUFFERING FROM RHEUMATISM.

5 DROPS

Read carefully this testimonial found below, also letters from those who have been cured of other diseases, and remember that "5 Drops" has and can never fail to quickly relieve and permanently cure.

Sept. 9, 1896.

DEAR SIR:—Your bottle of "5 Drops" received. It was for an old friend, Mr. Wm. Edwards, of Martinstown, Wis. He has had Neuralgia in his chest, suffering a great deal of pain, so much so that it affected his heart and he could not sleep on account of a smothering feeling. He has been under the care of the most eminent physicians, but found no relief until I gave him a dose of "5 Drops." The very first night he rested well, and has ever since and is gaining daily. I myself am 67 years old and began taking your medicine last April for Rheumatism, which I have had for 49 years, also for a weak heart. Since taking "5 Drops" the Rheumatism has all disappeared, the stiffness is gone from my joints, and my heart never misses a beat. I am to-day a well, strong woman, and I owe it to "5 Drops." I only wish I could sound my bugle of praise loud enough to be heard all over the world, and could convince every one that "5 Drops" is all you claim it to be and more.

Mrs. D. T. Carver, Winslow, Stevenson Co., Ill.

JANUARY 2, 1897.

DEAR SIR:— Over 34 years ago, I had Typhoid Fever, and barely escaped with my life. It left my system so shattered that I have had ever since, Rheumatism and Throat Trouble, which gave me a terrible Cough. I had been unable to find any relief for these diseases, until I learned of your "5 DROPS", which I commenced taking only two months ago, and my cure has been indeed WONDERFUL. Already my cough has entirely disappeared, and the Rheumatism which for a few years past has threatened to make a cripple of me, is cured, and I am free from pain. This is the most wonderful and the cheapest remedy ever discovered. I am more thankful to you than words can tell and I want everybody to know what "5 DROPS" has done for me. Although I am over 70 years old, I am feeling better than I have in years.

I shall be glad to answer any questions regarding my case from anyone enclosing a two cent stamp. Gratefully yours,

MRS. SAMUEL BIBLET, Litchfield, Mich.

CATARRH AND HAY FEVER.

I find the bottle of "5 DROPS" to be very good and just what you claim. My wife has been suffering with Catarrh and Hay Fever over 16 years. She has tried everything and doctored much, but no cure until she tried "5 DROPS" which completely cured her.

Yours truly REV. L. VON WALD,
March 31, 1896. Milbank, S. D.

NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA.

For twenty long years my wife suffered untold tortures from Sciatica and Neuralgia, and I thank God for the day that your heaven-sent remedy fell into my hands, for it completely cured her. I am a minister of the Gospel, and when I find any who suffer, cannot help but recommend "5 DROPS", for I know it will do more than you claim for it.

REV. F. M. COOPER, Washington Center, Md.

PARALYSIS AND RHEUMATISM

NOVEMBER 9, 1896.

DEAR SIRS:— It is with pleasure I speak of your priceless remedy and of the good it has done me. For the last eight years I have been an incurable cripple from paralysis and rheumatism. Just think, for eight years a total cripple not able to earn a penny nor able to walk or step on the ground without the aid of something to lean on. Heaven bless the man who discovered this remedy, for, thanks to him and to God, I am able to walk and able to work. I have only taken two-thirds of a bottle, but have not had any pain in my back since I took the first dose, and after the second I walked across the floor, which I have not done in years. I have thrown away my cane and shall never need it again. To any one sending me a two-cent stamp I will send my affidavit. I have another bottle of "5 DROPS" and value it at $1.00 per drop.

Thankfully yours, EDWARD CASTLE,
Sioux City, Iowa,
1005 Wall street.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

SEPTEMBER 24, 1896.

DEAR SIRS:— I wish to tell you and suffering humanity how much good "5 DROPS" has done me. On the beginning of this year I took down belfast with inflammatory rheumatism, and I was doctored by as good physicians as this country has, but they could not cure me. On August 4, I began to take "5 DROPS." At that time every joint in my body and my limbs were stiff, so that I could not be moved. Even my tongue was getting so that I could hardly speak so anyone could understand me, but to-day, only seven weeks from that time, I am absolutely cured, and thank you and God for my recovery.

Gratefully yours,

HORACE F. ANDERSON, McCracken, Kans.

If you have not sufficient confidence after reading these letters to send for a large bottle, send for a sample bottle, which contains sufficient medicine to convince you of its merit. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief, and is a permanent cure for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Catarrh, Asthma, Dyspepsia, Backache, Hay Fever, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, "La Grippe," Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and kindred diseases.

Something to Know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centres in the stomach, gently stimulates the Liver and Kidneys and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters improves the appetite, aids digestion, and is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. Sold for 50c or $1.00 per bottle.

Chronic Dyspepsia Cured.

AFTER suffering for nearly thirty years from dyspepsia, Mrs. H. E. Dugdale, wife of a prominent business man of Warsaw, N. Y., writes: "For 28 years, I was a constant sufferer from dyspepsia and a weak stomach. The lightest food produced distress, causing severe pain and the formation of gas. No matter how careful of my diet I suffered agonizing pain after eating. I was treated by many physicians and tried numerous remedies without permanent help. Two years ago I began taking Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and Nervine. Within a week I commenced improving, and persisting in the treatment I was soon able to eat what I liked, with no evil effects. I keep them at hand and a single dose dispels any old symptoms."

Detecting Icebergs.

One way in which the crew of an ocean steamer detect the fact that they are nearing the neighborhood of icebergs is by observing the action of the propeller. The water surrounding the vicinity of icebergs is much colder than ordinary for a considerable distance around, and when the vessel enters water of such a reduced temperature the propeller runs faster. When this action is perceptibly increased without the steam power being augmented, word is sent up from the engine room to the officer on the bridge, and a close lookout is kept.

Battery in His Mouth.

A gentleman recently suffered from a pain in his tongue, which he could not account for, and was afraid of cancer. After the doctor had said there was nothing the matter with his mouth an electrical friend discovered that two different metals had been used for fixing the teeth. These dissimilar metals had the effect of producing an electrical current in the gentleman's mouth.

That Boston man who insists that there are no angels should not limit his observation exclusively to Boston.

In Japan.

In Japan the total of a bill is put at the top and the items beneath. Many tools and implements are used in a way contrary to ours. For instance, Japanese turn the lock the "wrong way," and Japanese carpenters saw and plane toward, instead of away from, themselves. When the ingenious Jap was first introduced to corkscrews, his notion was to twist the bottle on to the screw.

WRECK OF A WORK OF ART.

Statue of Agnes Gilkerson Is Demolished.

The costly marble statue of Agnes Gilkerson, for years an object of interest on the lawn of the Hezekiah B. Smith's mansion at Smithville, N. J., was broken into thousands of pieces the other day. The wreckage of this remarkable work of art was then cast in Rancocas Creek, and the testimonial to Congressman Hezekiah B. Smith's folly went out of sight forever.

The story of Smith and Agnes Gilkerson is one of extraordinary romance and wrong, and, when first made public, stirred the whole country. The man had deserted his rightful family at Woodstock, Vt., and made a new home at Smithville with the woman of his infatuation. He became a millionaire manufacturer, creating a great industrial plant in the out of the way retreat he had selected. He also went to Congress and grew to be a political figure in the State, Agnes Gilkerson, known to those who knew Smith then as his wife, pushing him onward and upward. He would doubtless have won higher political honors, but his past became known. When the woman died the inconsolable and aged manufacturer had a statue of her made in Italy and placed it on his front lawn where he could see it always.

Captain Elton Smith, one of the manufacturer's surviving children, recently come into the great property of his father, and one of his first acts was to order the statue of Agnes Gilkerson destroyed, so it should never more plague him or his. A dozen stalwart men armed with sledges and axes sent the white statue crashing to the ground and hammered the marble fiercely until nothing but a pile of debris remained. Some of the villagers tried to secure pieces of the statue as souvenirs, but a cart took the whole mass to the creek, where it was dumped into ten feet of water and covered with stones.

Pistols and Pestles.

The duelling pistol now occupies its proper place, in the museum of the collector of relics of barbarism. The pistol ought to have beside it the pestle that turned out pills like bullets, to be shot like bullets at the target of the liver. But the pestle is still in evidence, and will be, probably, until everybody has tested the virtue of Ayer's sugar coated pills. They treat the liver as a friend, not as an enemy. Instead of driving it, they coax it. They are compounded on the theory that the liver does its work thoroughly and faithfully under obstructing conditions, and if the obstructions are removed, the liver will do its daily duty. When your liver wants help, get "the pill that will,"

Ayer's Cathartic Pills.

STATE TOPICS.

Late News Items of General Interest to Alabamians.

The New Code.

Proofs of 624 pages of the new code have been delivered. This brings it up to section 2,034.

No Lack of Bids.

There is no lack of offers made to President Trapp for the hire of state convicts, but they are all at a very low level of prices.

Registers in Chancery.

Since the appointment of Miss Lucile Baker as Register in Chancery in Morgan county, Alabama has three lady Registers in Chancery, the others being Miss Fannie Cabaniss, of Madison, and Miss Bessie Davis, of Limestone.

Convict Factory Will Close.

The state's cotton mill, at Speigners, which is worked by female and indigent convicts, will be shut down in a few days on account of the failure of the cotton supply and the hands will be put to picking the staple from the state's fields adjacent.

Will Assist.

Governor Johnston sent Assistant State Examiner Cowin to Mobile last week to assist Examiner Purifoy in the investigation of the affairs of the office of Tax Collector Lott. The office will be thoroughly checked over and the troublesome tangle there straightened out.

Agricultural Schools.

Major Culver, commissioner of agriculture, has written to the trustees and faculty of the agricultural schools in the state, inviting them to assemble in Montgomery on August 27th. The object of the meeting is to select a uniform curiculum and to discuss other matters of interest to the institutions.

Champion Melon Raiser.

The load of mammoth watermelons of the season was taken to Huntsville one day last week by J. B. Fisk, Jr., of Hazel Green, who is the champion melon raiser of that part of the state. The melons in this load weighed from fifty to sixty pounds. He has a tenacre lot planted in melons. He expects to have some on exhibition at the Centennial this week.

Huntsville Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber of commerce of Huntsville is getting in some good work in a quiet way. Prospectors and homeseekers from the north and northwest are there almost daily induced to come south by the literature sent out by that organization. The secretary is kept busy answering queries concerning his section of the country.

Dr. Louis C. Pynchon.

Dr. Louis C. Pynchon, aged 67, the second oldest physician in Huntsville, died last Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock from a stroke of apoplexy. Dr. Pynchon was widely known over Alabama and Tennessee. He moved to Huntsville from Savannah, Ga., forty years ago and engaged in the practice of medicine. He was a surgeon during the civil war in an Alabama regiment. Dr. Pynchon's wife survives him.

Sheffield to Have a Union Depot.

A special from Sheffield says that a new union depot will be built at once at that place. Col. J. Faulkner and Messrs. Brooks, of the Louisville and Nashville; Samuel Hunt and N. A. Adraine, of the Northern Alabama, and Superintendent Pegram, of the Memphis and Charleston, met with the Alabama railroad commission at Sheffield, and the location has been selected and the contract will be let at once. The depot will cost $15,000.

Severely Shocked by Electricity.

Charley W. Cooper, runner for Josiah Morris & Co.'s bank, Montgomery, and an estimable young man, was perhaps fatally injured last week by coming in contact with a live wire. He was walking along Bibb street, and as he passed under an electric light pole a wire fell in front of him. He thoughtlessly caught hold of it to throw it aside, when he was severely shocked. He was carried to his home on Virginia avenue and has since been in a precarious condition.

Mobile and Ohio Extension.

Plans for the roundhouse and depot of the new Mobile and Ohio railroad extension at Tuskaloosa have been completed and the work will begin very soon upon the buildings. General Manager Mann, of this company, has recommended to the president of the company that the shops for the Columbus and Montgomery extension be located at Tuskaloosa instead of Montgomery and it is very probable that Tuskaloosa will capture the prize.

Bridge Building Contracts.

At Tuskaloosa the Hanover Construction Company awarded contracts last week for building bridges over the Alabama and Warrior rivers on the Montgomery extension of the Mobile and Ohio railroad. The substructure of the Alabama river bridge was awarded McGhee, Kahmann & Co., of Kansas City. The superstructure iron works of the bridges over the Alabama and Warrior rivers was awarded to the Edgemore Bridge Co., Wilmington, Del.

Abbeville's New Bank.

"The Bank of Abbeville," located at Abbeville, in Henry county, has been chartered. The certificate of incorporation was issued by the Secretary of State, and the papers show that the capital stock is $50,000, with half of the amount actually paid in now. The incorporators are as follows: Robert Newman, S. P. Bradle, L. Bradley, G. M. Danzey, W. T. Dawkins, S. M. Stokes, W. J. Lee, E. M. Holly, B. J. Lindsay, J. B. Espy, L. Crawford, E. R. Partridge, M. V. Capps, C. C. Murphy, M. H. McAllister and J. W. Walden.

Legal Battle in Sight.

A legal battle seems in sight in Mobile from the following circumstance: Justice of the Peace Burns sent to the governor, it is said, some time ago, his resignation, conditioned on the appointment of a man named Stout. Stout was not named, but instead, A. J. Leibert was appointed. Burns says his resignation did not go, as the conditions were not complied with. Liebert made bond, and he and Burns are both holding court. The case will be carried to the high courts for settlement.

Alabama-Made Steel.

The Birmingham Rolling Mill company began last week for the first time rolling Alabama-made steel. This company has been making its own steel of Alabama iron since July 22, but not until last Thursday did it abandon the Pittsburg billets for the Alabama production. The steel was made into sheets, rods and rails, and found to be highly satisfactory for all. It showed qualities of great durability and but a slight trace of phosphorous. Hereafter no steel from Pittsburg will be used by the company. A ready sale is found for the home produced steel.

Result of Tax Commission Law.

Information received at the capital shows that the property assessments of Mobile county this year aggregate about $20,400,000, against $19,200,000 last year, a gain of nearly or quite $1,200,000. This is regarded as the direct and indirect influence of the tax commission law. It is estimated that this will put into the state treasury the neat sum of $7,000 in excess of the current year. Over in Georgia nearly every county shows a persistent decrease. Here in Alabama the contrary is the rule. It is not because any prosperity skipped Georgia and struck Alabama, but the more efficient execution of the law and preventing propety from escaping.

Pardons Granted.

On the application for pardon of John Sorrell, of Coffee, convicted March 8, 1897, of perjury and sentenced to three years in the penitentiary, the governor last week made the following indorsement:

"It is shown to me that the petitioner in this case was a gallant confederate soldier and had been a peaceable, law-abiding citizen. He is now an old man. It also appears from the statement of the solicitor who prosecuted the case that the perjury charged was through ignorance and not corruption. Believing that a man who has served his country gallantly should have the benefit of every doubt, let a pardon issue to John Sorrell and his political rights be restored."

The governor granted paroles as follows:

Ed Owens, of Crenshaw county, convicted of robbery; Samuel C. Welch, of Etowah county, convicted of murder in the second degree; Paul Hathaway, of Coffee county, convicted of manslaughter; Henry Wilson, of Montgomery, convicted of assault with intent to murder; Isham Neal, colored, of Pickens, convicted of attempting to assault a negro woman.

The terms of most of these prisoners were drawing to a close, and in each case large petitions were presented.

Briefly Noted.

A teachers' institute for the white teachers of Hale county will be held in Greensboro September 1.

It is said there will be eight candidates before the democratic primary for probate judge in Jackson county.

The county commissioners of Lauderdale have appointed a committee to select a suitable location for a poor farm.

The Dwight Manufacturing company has established a library at Dwight City for the benefit of the employes of their mill.

Important to Teachers.

The Howard College, at East Lake, Alabama, is the only college in the south which offers a complete university course in Psychology and Pedagogy. The degree of Master of Pedagogy, conferred upon the graduates of this department, will be their strongest recommendation as teachers of the first order and worthy of the highest salary.

There is a strong and growing demand for teachers, possessing collegiate and professional education. The collegiate course and the professional course can both be pursued at the same time in the Howard, and without extra charge. Teachers and those preparing to teach would do well to write the Howard for terms.

Will Cost Him Mony.

A special from Montgomery, Ala., says: Old man Thomas Huzzy's misfortune in falling by the wayside in New York with $35,000 worth of money and valuables on his person will cost him a substantial sum after all. The last Alabama legislature created officers whose duty was made to discover and assess property that had escaped taxation during the past five years. Huzzy assessed only his real estate. The house and lot at No. 303 Dexter avenue, which he valued at $12,000 is worth $20,000. The back tax collector, however, has charged to Huzzy the following items for taxation, which were developed by the old man's misfortune in New York:

Fifteen thousand dollars, bonds of the city of Savannah, forty-eight coupons on them; 100 shares New York Central stock, money hoarded $11,773, making a total of $34,833 in property.

The state tax on this amount for five years is $1,549.66.

SILVER DECLINE IN MEXICO.

Capitalists Are Flocking There With Gold to Invest.

A dispatch to the New York Herald from Mexico, Mex., says:

Exchange on New York has reached 145 premium. In other words it takes $2.45 of Mexican money to buy an American dollar containing less silver than the Mexican dollar.

This enormous depreciation of the Mexican dollar is ruining merchants. They are canceling all orders for imports and many will close their stores, as they cannot sell their stocks on on hand at a rate high enough to replenish them. They believe that the price is unnaturally depressed and is due to a conspiracy abroad.

Meanwhile home manufactures are booming as the depreciation in silver makes a tariff wall. Coffee, sugar, tobacco and sisal hemp planters are prosperous, as they sell abroad for gold and pay their laborers in silver. Strange to say, the Mexican dollar buys as much goods as it ever did, except of the imported variety. The government is hard hit, as it has to pay the interest on the foreign debt in gold. There is some talk of repudiation, but there no knowing what President Diaz will do. He may refund the 6 per cent debt, paying only 3 per cent interest hereafter.

Capitalists are flocking into the country to take advantage of the high premium and invest their gold. The belief here is that labor paid in silver will eventually win against labor paid in gold.

In support of this theory it is pointed out that the mines of Cornwall will have to shut down because they cannot compete with those in the straits settlements and Borneo, where Mexican dollars are current.

Bankers here say a handful of men in London are manipulating the money of the world, which means that they are controlling the prices of the world, and that it is the old fight of monarchy against society.

Rich Mexicans, accustomed to living much of the time abroad, are staying at home investing their silver in building improvements. All kinds of real estate are rapidly increasing in price and the demand for contractors is large. Attention is also being directed to tropical agriculture.

SURVEY FOR CANAL.

Project to Connect Birmingham With Mobile and the Gulf.

Joseph Ripley, assistant government engineer at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., arrived in Birmingham last week for the purpose of making a preliminary examination of the route of the proposed canal from North lake, near Birmingham, to the Warrior river, near Tuskaloosa. His visit is in accordance with an act of congress, passed at the recent extra session, which provides for a survey of the canal route by the government and a report on the same to the war department, including the feasibility of the project, cost, etc. After looking over the route and making preliminary estimates Mr. Ripley will return north and bring back with him about Sept. 1 a corps of surveyors for the purpose of making a final survey of the canal. Such a waterway would give the Birmingham district an all water route for coal and iron to Mobile and the gulf, and would it is believed, revolutionize the coal and iron business in this section by the introduction of cheap freight rates. If the project is reported upon as feasible every effort will be made to have the government aid in building the canal. The route will be along Five Mile creek from North lake to the Warrior, about thirty miles.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe has appealed the pope in a letter asking him to to interfere to save Evangelina Cisneros, the Cuban girl who is said to be about to be transported to the Spanish dungeon of Ceuta. Mrs. Jefson Davis has written a letter to the queen of Spain, making a similar request.

The Manitoba government crop bulletin issued last week places the total yield of wheat for this year at 21,284,274 bushels, or an average of 26.39 bushels per acre.

W. C. Mitchell, a farmer of DeKalb county, exhibited three apples in Guntersville covered by one pealing.

The city council of Eufaula passed an ordinance at a recent meeting prohibiting bringing into the city second-hand clothing, furniture, etc.

Radical Changes Probable.

It is not improbable that official announcement will be made in a few weeks of a radical change in the present attitude of the pension bureau toward pension claimants who had a Confederate war service.

Under the present construction of the laws, any service in the Confederate cause, irrespective of latter service for the government, is a bar to pension.

Commissioner of Pensions Evans believes that if a claimant served in any capacity in the Confederate service, but later deserted or left its ranks, enlisted in the Union army, served therein and was honorably discharged, it would be an injustice to refuse him a pension. He believes that having performed honorable service in the Union army, the past hostile services should be overlooked.

Assistant Secretary Webster Davis, whose decisions have been in the line of a liberal construction as to the pension laws, is understood to have similar views.

The question has been referred to the president and Secretary Bliss for their approval.

Alabama Iron.

An order for 4,000 tons of Alabama iron has been received at Birmingham from a Holland firm of steel manufacturers. The delivery is to be made this fall in several consignments. Several other exporters of iron are knocking at the door of Birmingham for big shipments this fall when the cotton boats will be ready to take iron ballast.

The new Alabama code will be ready for delivery about October 1.

Business Vicissitudes.

The annals of commerce are not entirely without a spice of romance. There is a little retributive justice that savors of the novelist's art in the way the spoiler is sometimes spoiled in business relations. In an article entitled "Made in Japan," the Pall Mall Gazette shows how nations have encroached upon one another's business, and reaped for a time a rich harvest, only to see the same tactics employed by a rival people, and be forced to stand aside while the trade slipped from their hands into the keeping of another nation.

In old times the Dutch, by importing English clay, made a good profit out of imitations of Chinese porcelain, and presently the Dutch product became world as Delft ware.

But the Dutchman was no more secure in his profitable trade than had been his predecessor, the Chinaman. The English potters took to copying the Dutch patterns, and sold their pottery much cheaper, and the north of England became headquarters for the Delft china.

Again, however, the spoiler has been spoiled. Of late the Japanese have made themselves masters of the art of reproducing the patterns best liked in England, and have begun to encroach on the domain long monopolized by the English potter. The Japanese product is finer and stronger, and above all cheaper than the best English ware, and Japan is providing the markets with goods which were originally a Chinese monopoly.

TEXAS LADIES

Don't Lie.

Mrs. D. H. Hood.

Quitman, Tex., writes: After 12 years' suffering from Dyspepsia and Sick Headache I was cured by Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine. It cured my Husband of Constipation, our little Girl of Nervousness, and our Son of Catarrh of the Bowels. It cured Mrs. Newman of Painful Menstruation, and carried Mrs. Fields safely through Change of Life. It perfectly regulates the Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and leaves no bad effects, while both "Black Draught" and "Zeilin's Liver Regulator" did not leave my bowels in such good condition. I found more of it in the Package, and it only required half the quantity for a dose, and I had rather pay 25 cts. per Package for it than use "Zeilin's" or "Black Draught" as a free gift.

Bad Taste in the Mouth.

Digestion is the grand process by which nature repairs the wasted tissues of the body, which, when the intellectual health is performed with great faithfulness and regularity, and without giving rise to any disagreeable sensations.

Indigestion is a disease which consists of a deviation from this ordinary mode of health and in the deficiency or vitiated character of those secretions which are essential to the conversion of food into blood. The best corrective for this complaint is Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine a few doses of which will remove the offensive taste.

A. C. Perkins

Randolph, Ky., writes: I will never be without Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine. It cured me of Chronic Constipation and Torpidity of Liver after several Physicians and many Patent Medicines had failed. I took three times as much "Black Draught" as the directions said I take, and it had but little effect on me, and I don't think it had much strength.

Backaches Common to Mothers.

The busy mother sometimes feels an inability to perform her accustomed duties. She feels inactive, weary and depressed. Her back, oh, how it aches! When she sits down she feels as though she must get right up, and when she stands, that she must sit down. The truth is, the capacity of her nervous system has been overworked, it has become exhausted and there is a breaking down. What she needs is a course of Dr. Simmons Quaw Vine Wine to restore healthy functional activity and give tone and vitality to her nervous system.

PRESTON OF THE MINT.

THE DIRECTOR'S WILD PARTISANSHIP VENTILATED.

His Declaration That the Nations Will Go to the Gold Standard Is Equivalent to Saying That They Will Sink Into Barbarism.

The statement of the Director of the Mint Preston in an interview recently, that outside of the United States all nations want to go to a gold standard; that Mexico would do it to-day if she could; and, further, that the country would fall into line with the rest of the world, coming, as it did, from a public official whose business it is to deal with nothing but the cold, hard facts that come before him, has attracted much attention and called down upon him the censure of the silver men. The advocates of free coinage believe that Mr. Preston has gone out of his way when he seeks to represent Mexico as contemplating anything like an adoption of the gold standard.

In discussing this interview, Senator Stewart, who is familiar with conditions in Mexico, and understands the financial question thoroughly, told the Washington Times that he could not account for the aberration of mind of the person who could talk such nonsense. "The declaration that all nations will go to the gold standard," said Mr Stewart, "is a declaration that they are prepared to go into barbarism. It is estimated that there are $4,000,000,000 of silver coin still doing duty as money. If all this silver coin is to be discarded and all the vacuum filled by gold, it will take many generations before the amount of metallic money of the world will be equal to the gold and silver now doing duty as money. It would be a rash estimate to suppose that there could be $4,000,000,000 of gold added to the present stock of gold in a century to come, because it has taken all the period since pre-historic time to accumulate $4,000,000,000 of gold and $4,000,000,000 of silver. If all nations discard silver and adopt the gold standard, humanity must wait for relief until the silver to be discarded shall have been replaced by gold from the mines and enough additional added to keep pace with population and business.

"Mr Preston, it is true, says that the output of gold is increasing. He says that the world's product this year will be $[illegible]0,000,000. If this were true, and we wish it were, it would not alter the case. There never has been one year in the world's history when $240,000,000 of gold were produced. About $160,000,000 was the maximum in the palmy days of California and Australia, and the like of which we shall probably never see again. But suppose that $[illegible],000,000 per annum of gold could be produced, more than half of that will be consumed in the arts. If a hundred millions of new gold could go into circulation it would be a condition unparalleled in the history of the world, and a result entirely improbable. But if a hundred millions a year could be produced, it would take forty years to supply the place of the silver coin now doing duty, which the director of the mint says is to be immediately discarded.

"He refers to the Klondike mines of Alaska as a source from which this enormous supply is about to come. There may have been two or three millions produced in Alaska, but whatever it has been, or can be, produced from that region will not be a drop in the bucket compared with the demand if silver is discarded. If both silver and gold are used the supply will not be great. The only danger is it will be deficient. If to the eight hundred millions of gold and silver in existence there could be added two hundred millions of new gold and silver, the downward tendency of prices would probably be checked, but there would be no inflation.

"Mr Preston says that Mexico would come into line he predicts the consequences would be more cruel and disastrous to Mexico than the conquest by the Spaniards 400 years ago. Mexico is enjoying to-day a degree of prosperity never before known in her history. Her manufacturing establishments are increasing every day, her coffee and sugar plantations are yielding every year. Her mines of gold, silver, copper, and iron are being rapidly developed. It is crossing for the Mexicans to send products on account of the scarcity of exchange, and they are apparently compelled to do their own work, and they are doing it, as the growth of her agricultural, manufacturing and mining pursuits must amply warrant.

"The intimation that Mexico cannot pay the interest on her foreign debt while she keeps free coinage is an intimation that she cannot pay that interest. Mexico pays the interest on her foreign debt with her products. Her institutions are stimulated by free silver. Her minerals, her sugar, her tobacco and her coffee will buy as much gold to pay interest on her foreign debt as if she were on a gold basis. On the silver basis she can produce but on the gold basis she could not produce enough and would retrograde into barbarism and repudiate her foreign debt.

"The suspension of coinage in Mexico would, in effect, be a repetition of the suspension of coinage in India, and India, while her mints were open, paid eighty millions of gold interest on her foreign debt and increased in prosperity at home without increasing taxation. Since she suspended free coinage she has been compelled to increase her foreign debt at least fifty millions a year, and her people are starving. Eight millions have already died of starvation. Twenty millions are the sad estimate that must die during the present famine, by reason of the fact that the seventeen hundred millions of treasure which they had in the form of silver has been repudiated, and cannot be coined into rupees with which to buy bread.

"The paltry contributions of England to the vast millions of India is a mockery. The Indians could take care of themselves if Great Britain would not rob them; and the director of the United States mint, a paid official of this government, proposes that Mexico shall share the same fate of India. The starving millions of India do not deter him, because he is well fed and in a good place. Why he and others who are paid by the government should be preaching such heresy as is contained in his interview is hard to imagine.

"If he would proclaim the truth; if he had reason on his side; if he was not a co-worker with an English syndicate which has impoverished and enslaved India; which is whipping Egyptians on the bare back to extort from them enough labor to pay the gold interest to the English syndicate; if he was not in their employ while paid by the United States, some attention might be paid to his interview.

"I pronounce any man in the employ of the United States who will proclaim that silver is to be entirely destroyed, notwithstanding the platform of the Republican party that it should be restored by international bimetallism, notwithstanding the fact that this country depends upon it, recreant to his duty and an enemy of his country. What reliance can be placed on the statistics of a man who can talk as Mr. Preston does in his interview? A man who will talk such heresy as he does against the professions of all parties in this country cannot be relied upon to state facts with regard to the production of either metal, and I fear that he is as ignorant of this as he is of principle, of honesty, of decency and propriety in a public officer."

POINTS FROM THE PRESS.

The longer Wolcott et al. remain in Europe the more humiliating is the spectacle to Americans. As if the people of this nation must beg favors of England, and especially the favor of being allowed to do a manly act.—Boulder Herald.

Republicans have no other uses for the state than to have it act as a collection agency, and to keep on hand a well-drilled and ever-ready posse to carefully and promptly "protect" corporations in their raids on the people. Pittsburg Kansan.

We must either decentralize the wealth of the country out of the hands of monopolists, by class legislation which will offset the class legislation producing the monopolists, or change the constitution of the country so that the natural resources of wealth cannot be monopolized. This is no dream.—Omaha Labor Bulletin.

Of course, times are hard, but it cannot be said that good Mother Earth is not kind to the whole human race. If the millions of children of men are in want, they have only themselves to blame, to the extent at least that they meekly submit to the rule of monopoly; to the gormands who appropriate the generous gifts of nature and from the pulpit and press have it preached that divine Providence is responsible for our poverty.—Johnstown Daily Democrat.

Direct legislation and effective voting would make boodle legislatures and corrupt courts impossible.—Pittsburg Kansan.

"They" tell the masses to "economize." Economy will starve the butcher, the baker and the candlestick-maker, but it may prolong the lives of the "they"; namely, those who essay to furnish us our religion, politics, and bill of fare ready-made to our hands, and call us "anarchists" and "paid agitators" if we don't swallow the whole dose at a gulp and say "thank you."—Bige Eddy, in Seattle Populist.

Just how a country can be in an ideal condition for prosperity in all industries and yet be restricted by gross errors in its financial policies is being illustrated in the United States at the present time. With splendid crops, and unlimited demand by reason of the failure of foreign crops, times continue hard. This education of the people will not be without permanent effects.—Boulder Camera.

Speaking about the sale of poisons used for suicide, a Washington druggist says: "We are now compelled to sell it merely on the representation of the buyer. Why? Because if one druggist declines to make a sale another one two squares off will do it. It may be a ghastly sort of competition, but the facts are as I have stated."—Washington Star.

A dispatch from Washington on Monday reported the amount paid to depositors by the receivers of defunct national banks, the figures running from five to twenty-five per cent. Most of these depositors are people who have only a small amount of money and that saved only by the strictest economy. There can be but few blacker crimes than swindling these people out of their earnings, yet it is done every week, yes, every day of the week; and then just to hear the politicians declare, "It's the best banking system in the world."—Chicago Express.

IS NOT YET TOO LATE.

BUT THE RAILROADS ARE TIGHTENING THEIR GRASP.

Let the Government Take Charge of and Operate the Union Pacific and the Monopoly of Carrying Will Be Destroyed.

I want to call special attention to this statement—that if ever the United States buy in and operate the U. P., the whole monopoly of carrying will step by step be destroyed. But under present control of our government this can never be done. If ever done it will show that the combines have given up their hold of power. Whoever talks of such a thing as at all probable now, knows nothing of the condition of our affairs. Were the government to go at it and build one great railway, to be operated by the government entirely independent of all outside control, it would compel all the other roads to compete with it. They would soon be using all their influence either to have the government buy or sell. But it is altogether probable that they would manage to buy the government roads. There is not one person in a thousand who understands the enormous power of the railway combine. All the other trusts and combines owe their origin and standing to this one. Our government is now a railway empire. Congress and every State Legislature and Supreme Court are controlled by it. For this reason I deem every attempt at reform as useless as that of the Prohibitionists' until this despotism has been destroyed. The people must grow poorer under its rule, because it gathers up, as net profits, all the surplus made by labor and never redistributes a dollar in the regions where the wealth is created. Moreover, it takes advantage of any rise of price in Europe of our agricultural products, by keeping us in ignorance through its control of the telegraph and thus secures to itself all the advantage. This was seen during the late rise in wheat owing to the Indian famine. The whole exportable crop of the Dakotas and other regions was secured by the railroad manipulators before the news of the famine was let out. The real profits of the roads themselves are hidden from the world by various devices, such as the express, fast freights, Pullman sleepers, patents of various kinds, supply companies—all devices to absorb the profits of the roads and throw them into receivers' hands. While the road is in a receiver's hands the express, fast freight, Pullman sleeper, patentee and supply business all are paying big profits to the combine. Enormous fees are divided between receivers and the combine. The very rails and cars are supplied by one hand while the other smites and destroys, and taxes the public to repair and renew. I say, not one man in ten thousand has the slightest idea of the power and cunning of this railway empire under which we groan. All the other evils we complain of are either consequences of this one or as a drop in the bucket. Imagine now that we gained free silver, the referendum and every other good thing, yet have left this one monster to stand untouched—what better off are we, the people? In this, amid such vast confusion, I feel like one standing alone. Mark the prediction: to this one thing we shall come at last, and come by force, unless we are wise in time. By combining all together and demanding that Government shall build two great trans-continental roads, East and West, North and South, issuing small shares and legal tender treasury certificates, the whole can be done without debt. Government roads to be operated as the postoffice is. This done, all else will follow. The very keystone to the railroad empire will be broken. Every dollar issued will be returned in payment for services long before the roads are finished, and all this trouble about labor and money will cease in six months from the start. In this way the English country people built railroads costing several billion dollars, and never used a cent of money. Surely this people can do the same, under the plan here proposed, and not use half the effort.

You are not aroused by this proposition. It does not cause you to feel the least excitement. You think it might do for one plank in the next platform of our party if there are enough of us to care about it. But just try it once. Let it be made the one plank with a support formidable enough to cause the real rulers of these States the least fear of its ultimate success, and then you shall witness such a stirring among the dry bones as never was. Then indeed shall the enemy show you that you have planted a fatal blow at their power. Every argument and device will be resorted to. Your dangerous leaders will be bought off or destroyed in some way, as were the leaders in the war against the Standard Oil Company. Poison or the dagger may be used finally, if the multitude of crimes against the United States do not afford opportunity enough for putting them hors de combat. But all the argument will be in our favor. Is it socialistic? Behold, it has been employed by the most anti-social of Governments. Is it anti-Republican? The most Republican Governments have adopted it. Is it a risk? It is proven to be most successful. Everything pleads for it, yea, demands it. We are alone of all civilized nations behind in this, as we were on slavery. And shall we hug this great abuse to our bosoms as we did that until the very stars cried out in mutiny?

Our long platforms amount to nothing. They even direct us from the main point. Many of them are devised by the enemy to amuse us. Even if we succeed at elections they will outwit us in the scramble over so many questions, and long years will pass and civil war will finally come out of the despair of the masses. Something must be done. Make the building of these great roads by the government, as proposed herein, the one grand and immediate object. The combine will say as did Hannibal under a like desperate circumstance, "Now, indeed, do I feel the fate of Carthage."

CLARKE IRVINE.

SILVER AND WHEAT.

Gold Monometallists Are Off in Their Reckonings.

Because silver has been falling in bullion value of late and wheat rising gold monometallists are jubilant and think that they have an unescapable answer to the bimetallist contention of a correspondence between the general fall of wheat and silver prices during the past twenty years, as indicated by the index numbers of Soetbeer and other ecenomists.

The truth is in a nutshell. One of the chief reasons for the decline in market value of American wheat has been the competition of silver-using countries like India and Argentina. While the wheat production of both for years has been advancing with rapid strides, and the exchange value of silver in London has been dropping continually, the silver value of agricultural labor and products in those countries has been stationary. In India and Argentina an ounce of silver would buy a bushel of wheat in 1895, when an ounce of silver was worth, say, 50 cents, exactly as it would be in 1885, when it was worth a dollar in gold.

Here is where the British commercial shrewdness came in to crush the American agricultural interest and make it the toiling, payless slave of English markets. As soon as Great Britain succeeded in destroying the parity of American silver with gold London began to buy our depreciated bullion and exchange it for East Indian and South American wheat. Every cent that American silver fell per ounce was a cent saved on the purchasing price of wheat. But the demand for our silver for this purpose of exchange served to keep it at a higher value compared with the price of wheat at Liverpool as long as that demand lasted. Naturally, when the crop failures occurred in India, and the comparative shortage of recent time in Argentina, the demand fell off and silver became further depressed, while necessary resort to the wheat production of the United States to make good the shortages and failures of wheat elsewhere in the world, enhanced the price of that commodity compared with silver bullion.

It is to the advantage of the American farmer that cosmic crop conditions are likely to preserve, perhaps to increase, that disparity for another year to come. At the same time it is not well that he, or the rest of us, should allow himself to be confused or deluded by specious arguments of the gold interest. When, in the course of nature's providence, normal conditions return, and the competitive power of other wheat-producing countries is at work again, we shall see the same old state of things. England will bear our silver and buy it to exchange for the wheat of silver countries, and so recommence the former operation of destroying our farmers.

The illustration presented in the current and doubtless temporary rise of wheat and fall of silver is one of the strongest arguments for remonetization that well could be conceived.—National Democrat.

We Could Do Without Them.

After a long list of good things, in the way of machinery locomotion, etc., that we didn't have eighty years ago, The Rajah, in the Cincinnati Chronicle, specifies quite a number of bad things we didn't have, as follows:

No trusts.

No laws against trusts to make law ridiculous because of non-enforcement.

No mills and factories standing idle that trusts might fatten.

No laws against tramps and no tramps.

No Pullman employes starving while the stock paid 12 per cent dividends, and no Pullman's daughter to get $10,000 a year for putting names on cars that no one can pronounce.

No thirty-story buildings, and no asylums for the insane that it would tire you to walk around.

No man worth $200,000,000, and no newspapers recording suicides under one-line headings.

No paresis and no appendicitis, and no gold standard.

But there were men who had the backbone to declare and reiterate their independence of any other nation on earth.

Enough for All.

The social regeneration of the masses by the wholesale process will be found, I believe, to be easier than by the usual retail methods. It will also be more economical, and will furnish to the world an imposing object lesson in "pauperology," if I may be permitted to coin the expression. It will thus be possible, if I mistake not, to prove to the most Malthusian mind that, after all, God is not mistaken in allowing the existence of so many human beings, that Mother Earth is still big enough and fertile enough to provide food and work for many times over her existing family, and that the worst form of folly and extravagance in that which treats as waste and superfluous matter the glorious crowning-piece of creation which bears the impress and the image of its Master Mind.—Booth Tucker in Forum.

CONFIDENCE IN WEYLER.

Senor Sagasta, the Liberal Leader, Says the Situation Is Growing Worse in Cuba, and Has Made a Fresh Declaration on the Political Situation.

Gen. Azcarragua, the Spanish premier, at the cabinet council, over which he presided Friday, declared that the government would follow in the footsteps of the late premier, Senor Canovas. Continuing, Gen. Azcarragua announced that the government had full confidence in General Weyler's political and military conduct of affairs in Cuba. Personally, the premier was aware that the insurrection in Cuba was approaching an end, and if the United States made any demand, which he hoped would not be the case, he said, Spain would do her duty.

Senor Sagasta, the liberal leader, has made a fresh declaration on the political situation. He says it is growing worse daily in Cuba and continues serious in the Philippine Islands. Senor Sagasta is ready to apply autonomy to Cuba and expresses the belief that the liberals will assume power earlier than was expected.

Referring to the probability of a rising in favor of Don Carlos, the pretender to the Spanish throne, Senor Sagasta asserts that the Carlists are already preparing for a rising, and are only awaiting a false step upon the part of the government or a favorable opportunity to take up arms.

BATTLE WITH DESPERADOES.

Sheriff Pritchard Meets Death in the Woods.

A special from Cloudland, N. C., says that Sheriff Pritchard, of Mitchell county, a brother of United States Senator Pritchard, was killed in a battle with desperadoes near there Friday.

Pritchard had a warrant for the arrest of George K. Garland and a fellow named Monroe, who are known as desperate characters.

He, Deputy Blalock and another officer went out to arrest the men. They ran upon them in the mountains five miles from Cloudland and there a desperate battle took place.

The officers called upon the men to surrender, but they doggedly refused. The party fired upon Pritchard and he fell from his horse mortally wounded with four shots in him. Deputy Blalock fired upon the party, desperately wounding Garland. A number of other shots were fired from behind nearby trees.

At last reports Pritchard was dying, and is doubtless dead.

Deputy Blalock was mortally wounded, and it is said cannot live.

Monroe and Garland are both wounded, the latter badly, but they are still at large.

CHASED BY DETECTIVES.

An Iowa Murderer Captured in the Klondyke Region.

The steamer Portland, due from St. Michaels, which arrived at Port Townsend Friday, has on board the murderer, William Smith, who was pursued over the continent to Juneau, to Dyea and across Chilkoot Pass, over the lakes and down the rivers, to the gold fields of the Klondyke, where he was taken into custody.

Smith was a storekeeper in a town near Cedar Rapids, Iowa. One night the store was burned, and in the ruins was found the charred body of a woman, who proved to be Smith's mother, who was burned to death in the fire. His mother was insured for $3,500, and a demand was made for the money. Investigation led to the belief that the fire was caused by Smith. Pinkerton men were put on the trail, and after the longest chase on record, they captured Smith at Dawson, July 23.

Newly Elected Grand Army Officers.

At the Grand Army encampment at Buffalo, N. Y., Cincinnati was chosen as the place for the next national encampment, and J. P. S. Gobin, of Lebanon, Pa., was chosen commander-in-chief.

Alfred Lyth, of Bardwell-Wilkinson post, Buffalo, was unanimously elected senior vice-commander.

Dr. David McKay, of Dallas, Tex., a veteran of the Seventy-ninth New Highlanders, was elected surgeon-general.

For junior vice-commander the adjutant-general was instructed to cast the vote of the encampment for Francis B. Allen, of Hartford, the candidate of the Naval Veterans' association.

Valuable Oil Discoveries in Texas

Another well has been successfully opened in the oil fields, near Corsicana, Tex., and is flowing at present about fifty barrels per day. The Oil City company, one of the largest organized companies, is preparing to let a contract for putting down fifty wells.

Alabama State Alliance.

The Twelfth Annual Session of the Farmer's Alliance of Alabama is hereby called to meet at Jemison, Chilton county, Ala., on Wednesday and Thursday, September 22 and 23, 1897.

J. O. PINCKARD, President.

Jemison is on the Louisville & Nashville railroad 45 miles south of Birmingham, and 53 miles north of Montgomery

Papers friendly to the Alliance please copy.

You need your county paper, and Ten Dollars will come in handy for new years. So subscribe for THE BANNER and make your guess.

ANOTHER week has elapsed and still no report on the books and accounts of our county officers has been made public. That report seems to require a lot of cooking to make it palatable.

THE through freights from Clanton on cotton are now such as to give our cotton buyers every facility for handling the cotton of this section in competition with other markets. Consequently prices in Clanton will compare very favorably with other markets.

THE Atlanta Constitution is responsible for the story that Tom Watson will sell the People's Party Paper, and quitting a political life will devote his time to his law business. The Constitution is not a reliable paper in anything connected with Populism, and this tale requires confirmation before credence can be given to it.

EDITORS come and editors go in Chilton county, but THE BANNER goes steadily on, growing more in favor with the people every day. Our Republican contemporary at Thorsby, the Call, has called off Editor Taylor, and we have the pleasure of introducing Editor H. W. Ryding, who says:

"The Chilton County Call has changed hands during the week. The present management is not responsible for any possible outstanding liabilities of the former management of the Call." Next!

TAX COLLECTOR Lott of Mobile is having a lot of trouble. The special state examiners have been down there in strong force and report him to be $26,000 short. Governor Johnston has suspended Mr. Lott and ordered impeachment proceedings taken against him. He has been tax-collector of Mobile county for over thirty years and this is a deplorable ending of his career.

THE cotton season has opened, the first bale being brought to Clanton last Friday by Mr. Wm. Wagner. It was classed as low middling and was bought by Mr W. L. Sampey for 7¼ cents per pound. The second bale was brought in by Mr. J. M. Daniels and was purchased by Mr. W. I. Mullins for 8 cents per pound. The market is so uncertain at present that prices may go either up or down any day. In Clanton this morning 7 and 7½ cents was the ruling figure.

PRESIDENT Mitchell, of the Atlanta and Selma Air-Line Railroad Company, has made a proposition to the citizens of Selma which insures the immediate construction of the line from Selma to a point on the Savannah and Western railway. Selma has subscribed $50,000 to the enterprise; $50,000 more is asked, one-fourth payable when grading commences, one-fourth when twenty-five miles is graded north from Selma, one-fourth when fifty miles is graded and the remainder when trains are running from Selma to a point on the Savannah and Western. Work will begin within thirty days of the time the money is subscribed. There is little or no doubt about the money being subscribed promptly.

$1 Wheat.

What the farmers of the United States have for many years been wishing has been $1.00 wheat. Wheat at $1.00 makes the farmer almost as well off as his hired man, but the way that the prices have been running for a number of years back wheat has been raised at a loss to the American farmer. The short crops in India and Russia and the Argentine has thrown the supply of food cereals very largely upon the United States, and the deficiency in Europe must be supplied by the surplus in America. This means to the United States prosperity, for the advancement of wheat causes a sympathetic advance in the price of corn and rye, and in a certain degree of oats. When the farmer is prosperous, all classes are so.

The Cotton Crop.

Unless present indications fail, the cotton crop which is now maturing in the south, will closely approximate 10,000 000 bales.

Mr. H. R. Neill, one of the leading statisticians of the country on the subject of cotton, is authority for this statement. In 1894 Mr. Neill made a forecast of that year's cotton crop which closely approximated the actual figures and since that time his estimates have been relied upon to a very great extent by the cotton dealers.

In a circular, bearing upon this year's cotton crop, issued within the last few days, Mr. Neill says:

At this moment the promise is equal to any previous year in every state but Texas, and on the present acreage, even allowing that Texas should fall short of her maximum production by 1,000,000 the outlook now is for a crop of at least 9,750,000, with 500,000 to 1,900,000 more within the rate of possibilities. This figure of 9,750,000 is really very conservative, for a product per acre outside of Texas equal to 1894-95 would give 7,350,000 bales and a maximum for Texas would be 3,950,000 bales, from which, allowing 1,000,000 off, you would have a crop of 10,300,000 bales.

The crop is now so far advanced from recent rains and heat that it will reach maturity and be independent of frost at an unusually early date, and should we soon have good rains in Texas, her crop also would be near perfection, and the possibilities for the total crop would then be something enormous.

In view of the prospective size of this year's cotton crop our farmers should not commit the mistake of holding on to their cotton in the hope that better prices will be offered later in the season. Instead of rising, prices may decline as the season advances; and, in that event, serious loss will be entailed upon all who have not disposed of their cotton early in the season. Our farmers should bear this in mind and carry their cotton to market as soon as they can get it ready. In this way they will not only avoid possible loss later on, but materially aid in bringing about better conditions in the south.—Constitution.

Political Points.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 1, 1897.

The middle-of-the-road faction in Iowa has placed a full state ticket in the field. Ex-Senator Peffer, of Kansas, was the principal speaker at their convention.

In the September number of the "New Time" Hon. Jerry Simpson has an article on "Despotism in the House," in which the Czar like methods of Speaker Reed and their far-reaching results are well shown up.

The Canadian government is preparing to build at an early date a telegraph line direct to the Klondike region. This line is not only to be owned and operated by the government, which insures a reasonable rate, but is to be supplimented by supply stations forty miles apart, between which dog trains will first be operated, to be succeeded as soon as possible by other and better means of transportation. Government ownership is gaining ground, "populist vagary" or no populist vagary.

Daily perusal of the Metropolitan republican and gold democrat press shows an amount of editorial space devoted to the commendation of the middle-of the road populists which indicate their satisfaction with the extreme course pursued by that element. Straws show which way the wind blows.

Re-organiztion and activity is the rule among the populists of the north west.

A general revival of interest in the Farmers Alliance seems to be sweeping over the Southern States.

The Executive Committee of the People's Party of North Carolina has formulated an address to the people and active work is being carried on throughout that State. Senator Butler, although in need of rest, is out making a series of political speeches.

President McKinley's Monetary Commission, which has already cost the tax payers of this country $100,000, is being severely criticised and ridiculed by the English press.

The Texas State Grange accomplished much good work at its recent session. The plan previously referred to in these columns, of urging the building of a North and South railroad by the State was fully exploited. The proposition is for the State to use a portion of the school fund and employ convict labor to build such a road. It is to be owned and operated by the State and rates are to be so low as to relieve the farmers from the present shipping rate which they regard as ruinous. The grangers charge the Railroad Commissioners with having defrauded the tax payers out of $250,000 during the current year. River improvement by the State was also urged by one speaker at the grange meeting.

The Farmers Alliance of North Carolina has decided to open up a shoe factory at Hillsborough, in that State.

At the recent Bankers' Convention held in Detroit, Michigan, the President made the paradoxical assertion that those having done their duty in voting to put their country on a safe financial basis could confidently expect the blessing of heaven. Save the mark!

Kansas populists are discussing the propriety of making the abolition of the Federal Courts the main issue in the next compaign. A minority favor such a step.

The Nebraska People's Party Press Association has succeeded in getting out an excellent "patent inside" for populist papers which is furnished very cheap to those who desire to use it.

Dr. C. F. Taylor, of Philadelphia, Editor of the Medical World, was nominated for Auditor by the recent People's Party Convention at Altoona, Pa., and his letter of acceptance shows him to be a diplomat and a politician of the best sort.

At the conference between the miners officials and the mine operators at Pittsburg, Pa. August 23, Col. Rend, who earned some notoriety by his violent attack on De-Armitt, became abusive of Ratchford, calling him "a villain" a traitor and an anarchist and reminded him of the hanging of seven anarchist in Chicago. Editor BANNER: Very dry hot weather stays with us.

Our esteemed neighbor, Mr. P. C. Wilson, is quite sick having relapsed.

We wish to tell all the BANNER sisters to not fail to dry all the okra they can for winter soup. Cut it up like you would to make soup to-day. Dry it like fruit, it is much easier dried than fruit. I am roasting ears to put in my winter soup. Am also putting up tomatoes with the fruit powders. Am making tomato wine. Have been using it several years, and find it more excellent than any wine we make. It seems to be more of a tonic than stimulant, it is choice for nausea. May we suggest to the farmer to sow rye, barley etc., early. Farmer or not if you own one acre and a cow, by all means sow a rich spot in rye or barley. Thus, with sweet hay and good winter quarters your cow, which is the best property owned, will be cared for cheaply. All good Alliance people study these blessings. When we again see the Alliance ship sailing above the waves, then we may say prosperity is returning and at last confidence restored.

Catarrh Poisons.

Catarrh is capable of changing all the life-giving secretion of the body into scalding fluids, which destroy and inflame every part they come in contact with. Applications to the places affected by catarrh can do little good save to soothe or quiet disagreeable symptoms. Hence it is that gargles, sprays, autimizers and inhalants only serve as temporary relief. Any medicine to effect a cure must be taken into the system.

So long as the irritating secretions of catarrh continue to be formed so long will the membranes continue to be inflamed, no matter what treatment is used. There is but one remedy that has this most desirable effect, and that remedy is Pe-ru-na. This remedy strikes at once to the root of the catarrh by restoring to the capillary vessels their healthy elasticity. Pe-ru-na is not a temporary palliative, but a radical cure. HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, CATARRH, ASTHMA, HEADACHE and their marvelous cure. Science of the 19th Century looks on with amazement at the most remarkable record of cures ever known in the World's history.

Hundreds of thousands of Sufferers cured without a single failure by "FIVE DROPS."

Though so universally used and tested did you ever hear anyone speak ill of this great remedy? No, you never did and never will, for if taken as directed and in the proper quantity "5 Drops" cannot fail to cure any of the diseases for which it is recommended. What it has already done to relieve the suffering is told in thousands of letters of grateful praise.

Mr. J. P. Limeburner, widely known for many years as the special representative of the Populists and Free Silver Press of the United States, has kindly forwarded the following letter for publication. Jan. 25, 1897.

DEAR SIRS—I am anxious for the sake of the suffering and out of gratitude to you to give my personal endorsement of your wonderful remedy. On the 9th of January 1897, I was in Washington and was suddenly seized with an aggravated case of inflammatory rheumatism; so severe and painful was the attack that within 24 hours my left arm was paralyzed and I was only able to dress with assistance. I secured a bottle of 5 DROPS and took a dose that night, rubbing some on externally as directed. The following morning I was surprised to find myself immensely relieved, and continuing treatment woke the second morning cured. My arm was absolutely free from pain, and all swelling and stiffness had disappeared. The quickness and completeness of my cure was remarkable. I have known for over a year of the great curative properties of your medicine and have several friends who have been cured by it of Neuralgia, Catarrh and Asthma. Wishing you every success and trusting that those similarly afflicted will at least give this remedy a trial. Sincerely yours J. P. LIMEBURNER

Bureau of Populist and Reform Papers, Old Stock Exchange Building, Chicago, Ill.

CURES THE INCURABLE.

DEAR SIRS:—I would like to thank you for your great remedy, "5 DROPS," and tell you what it has done for me. I had Rheumatism in every joint and in the heart, and had Catarrh of the head for 30 years. I was so poorly that I lost the use of my legs and arms and could not move without pain. I was so crippled, that I had done but little work for seven years, and our family physician, a good doctor, told me that my Rheumatism and Catarrh were incurable, and I believed him. But now, after using "5 DROPS" only two months, I can truly say I have not felt so well for seven years. This medicine does more than is claimed for it. At this time my Catarrh is much better, and I have scarcely any Rheumatism at all and the heart weakness and pain are gone. My hearing is now good and my eyesight is much better. I have gained more than 10 pounds of flesh and can do a full day's work. It is the best medicine I ever saw to give a mother who has a young child, for it has the same effect on the child as on the mother. It wards off Croup and cures the hives of the child and causes sweet and refreshing sleep to both young and old.

Yours respectfully, WM. M. KELLEMS.
Siberia, Perry Co., Ind.

Jan. 29, 1896.

We received the following letter from Mr. J. J. Wilson of Omaha, Ill. Mr. Wilson has been for many years an invalid, and reading the above letter which was published weekly, Mr. Kellems asking of his endorsement was genuine, and received this reply, which he forwarded us.

MR. J. J. WILSON.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of recent date at hand, the testimonial you speak of is genuine. The company who manufactures and sells "5 Drops" published my testimonial just as I gave it to them and every word of it is true, and I could swear to it and prove it by many witnesses. The company did not ask me for this letter. I sent it to them last January for publication in order that poor sufferers, incurable as I once was, and as you are, might be cured. Get "5 Drops" and use it and it will cure you as it has cured me. I have received many letters like yours, and it is a pleasure to me to answer all who write. Tell all your neighbors what I have written about "5 Drops." I know how to sympathize with those who are afflicted, for I suffered so long. It is now 8 months since I have felt any pain. Dr. W. Kellems, my brother, uses "5 Drops" in his practice, and joins me in endorsing this great remedy. He says for a case like yours it is a positive cure.

MR. W. M. AND DR. S. W. KELLEMS
Sept. 21, 1896.

If you have not sufficient confidence after reading these letters to send for a large bottle, send for a sample bottle, which contains sufficient medicine to convince you of its merit. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief and is a permanent cure for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Backache, Asthma, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, "La Grippe," Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and Kindred Diseases.

Miraculous Benefit

RECEIVED FROM

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

ELI P. BABCOCK, of Avoca, N. Y., a veteran of the 3rd N. Y. Artillery and for thirty years of the Babcock & Munsel Carriage Co., of Auburn, says: "I write to express my gratitude for the miraculous benefit received from Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I suffered for years, as result of army life, from sciatica which affected my heart in the worst form, my limbs swelled from the ankles up. I bloated until I was unable to button my clothing; had sharp pains about the heart, smothering spells and shortness of breath. For three months I was unable to lie down, and all the sleep I got was in an arm chair. I was treated by the best doctors but gradually grew worse. About a year ago I commenced taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and it saved my life as if by a miracle."

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address,

Turn-Round Topics.

Last week sunshine prevailed, and a great deal of fodder was pulled and saved without damage. Owing to the dry summer, cotton, corn, gardens and most everything is not much good this year. Cotton is opening very rapidly and is being picked. Sweet potatoes are doing well as a general rule, but there are some patches which did not get the necessary rains at the time of setting out and have made little progress. Watermelons are about gone. The pear crop is very good in this section. Some farmers have been sowing turnip seed, and some have good stands. Cane is still backward, but has improved and pinders are improving very much and a fairly good yield is expected.

THE NEW WAY.

WOMEN used to think "female diseases" could only be treated after "local examinations" by physicians. Dread of such treatment kept thousands of modest women silent about their suffering. The introduction of Wine of Cardul has now demonstrated that nine-tenths of all the cases of menstrual disorders do not require a physician's attention at all. The simple, pure taken in the privacy of a woman's own home insures quick relief and speedy cure. Women need not hesitate now. Wine of Cardul requires no humiliating examinations for its adoption. It cures any disease that comes under the head of "female troubles"—disordered menses, falling of the womb, "whites," change of life. It makes women beautiful by making them well. It keeps them young by keeping them healthy. $1.00 at the drug store.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

A REMARKABLE MEMORY

Was That Displayed by the Vice President of the Confederacy.

Alexander H. Stephens, vice president of the Confederacy and Governor of Georgia, had a remarkable memory, says Col. C. W. Seidell, who was for a long time his private secretary. Once, says the Colonel, when we were in Washington, a big delegation visited the city to urge Dakota's claims to Statehood.

The delegates sent word to the distinguished Georgian that they would call on him at his hotel, and at the appointed time they filed into his parlor and were introduced.

As Mr. Stephens was at that time disabled by a fall he sat in his rolling chair in the middle of the room and held a running conversation with his visitors. There were about a hundred Dakotans present, stalwart, handsome men, representing the best type of Western manhood.

After they had sampled some fine old Georgia corn whisky their host discussed the matters in which they were most interested, and occasionally addressed one of the strangers personally, naming him as he spoke.

During the evening he singled out in this way at least twenty of his guests, and astonished us all by his ready recollection of names and faces. Every man in the crowd got the idea into his head that something striking or attractive in his personality had favorably impressed the little man in the rolling chair, and I could see that the delegates were delighted with their reception.

Whey they had bowed themselves out I asked Mr. Stephens how he managed to hold so many names and faces in his memory.

"Oh it is a mere trick," he replied. "I simply concentrated my attention upon about twenty names and faces and as they were scattered around the room it naturally surprised my visitors when I turned to them and addressed them by name. Of course, it caused every man to believe that he had deeply impressed me."

Never deem it a light or unimportant matter to cultivate in the young that internal sense and appreciation of beauty which gladly respond to all real beauty, whether in nature, in art, in life, or in character, for you are thus planting seeds which may grow and develop into a richness of flower and fullness of fruit little dreamed of.

IMPROVING

Is the General Trade Situation as Reported by Bradstreet's.

IRON AND COTTON ADVANCING

Wheat and Corn for Export in Great Demand—Indications for Good Cotton Crop—All Leading Staples Continue to Rise—The Outlook Bright.

Bradstreet's in his trade review says: The general trade situation continues to improve and aside from the unnecessarily prolonged strike of safe coal miners there is little in sight to crowd the outlook. The features of the week are the advance in price of almost all leading staples, beginning with an upward movement all along the line in iron and steel. Steel billets are now $1.50 above lowest figures, and bars $1.50, rods $3 and plates $1. Bessemer pig iron is up 25 cents, and foundry a like amount. Southern iron is very strong on a continued active export movement. Where wire mills have not advanced prices they have withdrawn quotations. Some western steel mills are sold up to January 1, which, with the demand for early deliveries from furnaces that has been arranged for, are quite significant. Lead, too, and soft coal are higher, as is wheat, notwithstanding one or two reactions.

Bradstreet's points out that the statistical position of wheat is the strongest known since the United States became a considerable exporter, and that its price, as well as that for bread, is likely to materially exceed the present week's advances. Following that for wheat prices are higher for wheat flour, corn, oats, lard, potatoes, butter, eggs, beans, cheese, leaf tobacco, wool and live stocks. Advices for leather, hides, lumber and linseed oil are also reported.

Cotton, which is up 3-16 cents, reports the smallest world's stock for seven years past at this period, an improved tone and higher prices for the manufactured products. In spite of crop damages the tendency of estimates is towards the largest yield on record, but with probabilities favoring much better prices than those obtained for the crop of 1894-95, the outturn of which was 9,873,000 bales.

Advices are being also asked for reorders of woolen goods, at mills, but print cloths, petroleum and sugar are unchanged for the week, while pork is slightly lower than a week ago. No such general or pronounced upward movement of prices of nearly all leading staples has been witnessed within a week for many years.

Wheat exports are of large volume, aggregating (wheat flour as wheat included) 5,149,653 bushels for the week, as against 5,313,803 bushels last week, 3,281,854 bushels last year, 1,871,928 bushels in this week two years ago, 3,032,000 bushels in 1895, and 5,092,500 bushels in the corresponding week of 1893. With the exception of last week this week's shipments are the largest since the third week of September, 1893.

Corn exports show a considerable falling off, being 2,682,412 bushels against 2,327,085 bushels last week, 2,610,809 bushels a year ago, 1,124,532 bushels in 1895, 1,119,000 bushels in 1894 and 1,163,300 bushels in 1893.

There were 210 business failures reported throughout the United States this week against 221 last week, 320 a year ago and 290 two yeass ago, 192 three years ago and 369 in the like week in 1893.

MORMON ELDERS.

Will Go Through Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina.

Twenty-four Mormon Elders arrived at Chattanooga last week from Utah and registered at headquarters in that city. They are to be distributed at once throughout Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina. There have been more than 200 of these elders sent South this year so far. They say that they are being received with better grace than they used to be, and that the faith is growing in the territory mentioned.

Secretary Wilson Coming South.

Many invitations addressed to Secretary Wilson to visit the state and county fairs during the approaching autumn are being received at the Agricultural department, a large number of them being from the Southern states. The invitations from that section express a desire to have the Secretary inspect the agricultural conditions and to have the benefit of his advice as a practical farmer after such inspection. As the Secretary is absent from the city, no definite reply can be made, but it is known that he expects to go to Nashville during the fall, and it is considered probable that he may so time his visit there as to take in the fairs in the neighboring states.

Charleston to the Klondike.

A syndicate of Charleston, S. C., capitalists, headed by A. S. Emerson, have chartered a steamship and will run it from Charleston to Klondike. She will sail from here February 15, going to St. Michaels by way of Cape Horn. The passengers will be transferred to smaller boats and towed up the river to Dawson City. Each passenger will be allowed to carry 1,000 pounds of freight, and tickets will cost $500. It is expected that the trip will require seventy days.

Penal Island Plan.

At Rome, Ga., much interest is manifested in the penal island plan to dispose of Georgia convicts when the lease expires. Sea island cotton and big crops raised by a criminal colony on one of these fertile islands off Georgia's coast would be more than self-supporting. Of all the islands mentioned Ossabaw island seems to have advantages not possessed by Catherine or Sapelo islands because of its accessibility and nearness to Savannah harbor. North Georgia favors the penal island plan.

STATE TOPICS.

Late News Items of General Interest to Alabamians.

St. Florian's New Mill.

T. J. Rasch, of Florence, has been in Nashville inspecting flour mill machinery with a view of constructing a mill at St. Florian. Work will begin on the mill in a short time. St. Florian, the location of the mill, is a German settlement about six miles from Florence.

Lithographic Stone Quarry.

Operations at the lithographic stone quarry at Section, in Jackson county, have been suspended for several days, to await the arrival of improved machinery. The stone has to be sawed out, as the least jar from a hammer or an explosion shivers it to atoms.

Coal Land Assessments to Stand.

The proposed increase of $2,225,000 of the tax assessment on the Tennessee Coal, & Iron company's property in Alabama, was heard by the commissioners' court last week. The court declined to raise the assessment. It will be taxed as heretofore.

Temporarily Appointed.

Wm. H. Tisdall, whose term of office as United States Marshal for the Middle District of Alabama has expired, has been temporarily appointed to act until his successor is appointed. The marshals for the other districts of Alabama whose terms have expired have also been temporarily reappointed.

Equipping With Electricity.

Under the direction of Chief Electrical Engineer Harris, ten large cars are being wired and equipped for electricity, for use on the Enley line, which will be operated by the silent rent after September 1. Poles and feeders are up and the stringing of trolley wires begun. Of these ten cars, five are new, the others comparatively new. From a standpoint of beauty there will be none to put them to shame.

Pig Iron for England.

The railroads in the Birmingham district are doing a bigger freight business now than for several years past. This is particularly true as to the Louisville & Nashville railroad, which, among other freight, recently forwarded there solid train loads of pig iron to New Orleans to be shipped to England. All the railroad shops here are preparing to work longer hours in order to keep up with the repairs necessary.

Two Freight Trains Collide.

A head-end collision took place on the Southern railway, three miles west of Eden, which is thirty miles east of Birmingham, between train No. 45, freight, going to Birmingham, and an extra freight train going east. The collision was a complete one. Both engines were wrecked and ten dump cars demolished. The track was torn up for some distance. Several people were seriously and one fatally injured. Engineer John A. Cheaves was so badly mangled that he died shortly after the accident.

Franklin Gold Mines.

T. H. Aldrich, of Birmingham, has bought a controlling interest in the Franklin gold mines in Clay county. These mines have been worked in a crude way for some time, and have made such an excellent showing that machinery will be introduced to more fully develop them. The West mines, in the same county, are being extensively developed by C. S. West and associates. Some specimens have analyzed over $50 per ton. Machinery has been ordered to work those mines also. A great deal of capital has lately gone into the mining business is North Alabama, especially in Clay and Cleburne counties.

Co-Education at the University

Young women of 18 years may have all the advantages of young gentlemen. Such may enter any class in the Institution for which they are prepared. Up to this time a few have taken one or two departments, but not one has entered on a regular course or taken a degree. It will be gratifying to the friends of co-education to know that the next session may break the record in this matter, that several young ladies have expressed a purpose to take one of the regular courses, and thus demonstrate their ability to come up to any standard set for young men. It is understood that President Powers believes they can do this and hopes to see his judgment vindicated. They must reside in private families, but rooms for study during the day are provided at the University.

Laden With Freight.

Thirty-three heavily laden freight trains passed through Birmingham one day last week, seventeen going South and sixteen North. This is the best record in the past three or four years. The southbound freights bore purchases of fall goods to Southern merchants, while Southern iron was largely the northbound cargo. A good deal of the iron was for export, that business having begun to show great liveliness of later The officials state that every single engine they have is needed to attend to the heavy traffic, while the office force is worked hard day and night. The shops at Decatur and Birmingham are working on full time and doing their utmost to keep cars and machinery in order. The same activity exists on the Central of Georgia, the Southern, Alabama Great Southern and Kansas City, Memphis & Birmingham railroads.

Thomas Hussey Dead.

Thomas Hussey, the wealthy old recluse of Montgomery, who was found upon the steps of a Wall street bank one night last week with $33,000 in his clothes, died in Brooklyn, N. Y., Friday at the home of his niece, No. 8 Pine street, where he was taken after his discharge from the Tombs, where he had been locked up over night as a vagrant. Mrs. Harriet Mitchell, a great niece, and one Gray, a great nephew, both residents of Brooklyn, will inherit the old man's wealth, which is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Pardons Granted.

The governor has acted upon the following applications for pardon:

Fred Warner, colored, Bullock county, assault to murder; the injury was slight, the party injured, the solicitor, nearly all the white people of the beat, and Dr. Cunningham join in the petition. The convict has consumption. Pardon granted.

Joe Fleming, Montgomery county, colored. This convict is serving a sentence for stealing gloves from a store. His pardon is asked by President Trapp and Solicitor Lomax, and is recommended by the physician inspector, because the convict has consumption and will die if confinement is continued. Pardon granted.

Wesley Cox, colored, Barbour county. The convict is incurably ill with dropsy, and his pardon is recommended by the physician inspector and the probate judge.

Raspe Flowers, colored, Coffee county. The convict has organic disease of the heart, is unable to labor and his pardon is recommended by Judge Carmicheal and Solicitor Smith. Pardoned.

"Rufus Sanders" Assassinated.

Francis Bartow Lloyd, aged 36 years, better known to the reading public as Rufus Sanders, a writer of quaint Alabama dialect miscellany, was assassinated at 6 o'clock last Wednesday near Greenville by John A. Gafford. Lloyd was found lying in the road with two gaping wounds in his body. Gafford had evidently used a double barreled shotgun and discharged both barrels. It is said that the deed was the outcome of Lloyd having improper relations with one of Gafford's sisters. Lloyd leaves a widow and three children. He was a native of Butler county, and served as a representative in the last legislature from that county. He represented Montgomery county in the General Assembly in 1894. In the last legislature he vigorously opposed the constitutional convention measure and the measure permitting women practicing law. He moved to Butler county later and began to publish a series of humorous letters in the Sunday newspapers. He was contemplating issuing them in book form. The deceased had considerable ability as a lecturer, and was known in Texas. Lloyd was a candidate for Secretary of State in the last democratic state convention, and was going to run again the next campaign.

Later advices state that Gafford has voluntarily surrendered to the sheriff.

Increasing the State's Revenue.

Judge W. J. Wood, of Florence, State Back Tax Commissioner, stated to a Birmingham reporter last week that he expected the increased valuations of property for taxing purposes by dint of the work of the county back tax officials would amount to about $10,000,000 in the whole state, which which would increase the State's revenues by about $150,000.

Judge Wood's visit to Birmingham was coincident with Tax Commissioner Badham's failure to get the Jefferson county commissioners to sustain his claim for a large increase of the tax valuation of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, the Sloss Iron & Steel Company, the Thomas Furnace Company, Woodward Furnace Company and other leading industrial companies of the Birmingham district. Mr. Badham made claim for a total increase of about $4,500,000 and was allowed $100,000. He will appeal to the circuit court.

His failure was a terrific blow to the new tax law, it being supposed that the big mining and furnace companies would be made to contribute a very large additional revenue. The increase in tax valuations in Jefferson county, the largest in the state, which was first figured at $5,000,000, has been rudely reduced to $1,300,000, of which $1,000,000 was voluntary handed in and $200,000 obtained by agreement between the tax commissioner and tax payers.

Briefly Noted.

Will Burke, a 7-year convict, escaped from Pratt mines Friday.

The postoffice at Gurley was broken into Friday night and robbed of $72.47.

Birmingham is to have a galvanized iron mill, which will employ 100 skilled men.

Buck Finch was overcome by gas in a well at Opelika, and died in an hour after being brought out.

It is estimated that the tax raise in Cherokee county will range anywhere from $200,000 to $300,000.

Mayor Folmar, of Troy, says the Pike county cotton crop is short 25 per cent as a result of the recent rains.

The first bale of Madison county cotton was brought to Huntsville Friday by Sam Latham and sold for 11½ cents.

The Madison county commissioners will advertise for bids for the construction of a $30,000 jail next February.

The grand jury of Randolph county returned thirty-one true bills. It also recommended the building of a new court house.

George Carter, a well known citizen, was accidentally shot and killed by a neighbor, Bob Matthews, last week, while hunting cattle ten miles east of Tuscumbia.

The Governor has appointed M. V. Capps, of Abbeville, to fill the vacancy on the board of the Abbeville Agricultural school caused by the resignation of S. B. Woods.

The Governor has appointed A. C. Chisholm tax collector of Lauderdale county, to succeed W. T. Mitchell, who died on Tuesday. Mr. Chisholm was a gallant Confederate soldier, and is a citizen of high character.

Joe Noel, of Marshall county, last week cut a tree off his farm and had it made into boards. The tree turned out 7,330 boards and four cords of wood. The boards sold for $14.70 and the wood for $2, making the one tree net $16.70.

Jack Pharr, a negro convict, working on a farm near Claiborne, Monroe county, murderously assaulted a clerk in a store on the place. He was arrested, but while being taken to jail a mob interfered and the negro was taken to a tree and hanged.

PEARL DIGGING.

Some Are Found That Sell Readily for Twenty-Five Dollars.

If one were to descend White river from a point a few miles above Devall's Bluff, Ark., not knowing the pursuit of the many men and boys lining the banks on either side, his first impulse would be that he had found a land of sun worshipers. These men and boys, in strange attire, sometimes nude, clasp their hands above their head for a moment as uttering an incantation, then a leap head first and a pair of confident feet impart the last good-bye to a frowning world as they pass down the bed of the river. Maybe the stranger will begin to bubble out inquiries as the bubbles begin to mark the place where the worshiper last saw the light, but soon the surface waters are again in turmoil and two hands hold high the treasures found on his aqueous excursion. This is getting to be quite an industry, as it is so newly discovered, that so many valuable pearls are stored in the shells of the silent little fish which are found in numerous beds all around the river. "Pearl divers" bring in some beautiful specimens, and we know there is something made from them from the increasing rate of hunters. Some are found that sell ready for $5, $10 and up to $25. Some more valuable ones have been found, and many have been sent to eastern markets, where it is expected they will go at a much higher figure. Wherever the fruits of labor ripen into ready money, capital always follows, so we observe syndicates are being formed to buy up some of the waters and put to flight the humble men who expect to get the full value of their own labor. Not every mussel has a pearl, nor does every pearl bring a price, but all are after that "pearl of great price."

THE AMERICAN PARTY.

Launched at St. Louis by Forty Delegates, Representing Nine States.

The new American party was launched at St. Louis last week by a committee of between thirty and forty delegates. They represent nine states and one territory and are said to have backing in a large number of other states. A national committee was elected of ten members, with Col. E. H. Sellers, of Detroit, as chairman. The committee was empowered to enlarge itself. A platform of declarations was adopted and Detroit was selected for the headquarters for the ensuing year.

The platform is a lengthy one, and declares for a number of alleged needed reforms. On the financial question the platform has this to say:

"Since nearly or quite 99 per cent of business transactions of the country are accepted with the use of specie, we favor the demonetization of both gold and silver, the prohibition for payment in coin in either metal, and substitution of metallic tokens for our present minor coins."

SOUTHERN IRRIGATION CONGRESS.

Governor Taylor Has Named the East Tennessee Delegates.

The Southern Irrigation Congress will meet in Nashville for a three days' session on Sept. 13. In accordance with a request from the president of the congress, Gov. Taylor has named the following delegates to represent Tennessee in the convention, from East Tennessee:

First Congressional District—Adam Boman, Johnson City, and Andrew Moore, of Newport.

Second District—D. K. Young, Clinton, and Jacob Borches, Knoxville.

Third District—William Cleveland, Sweetwater, and C. Marchbanks, Chattanooga.

Fourth District—J. L. McPherson, Spring City, and S. G. Stratton, Lebanon.

Fifth District—James Aydelott, Tullahoma, and W. D. Fox, Murfreesboro.

Foreign Steamship Line.

It has been definitely settled that the Diedrichsen line will run regular steamers between Galveston, Tex., and Hamburg, Anthwerp and Amsterdam this season, with sailings from each side every three weeks. The line will be composed of the steamships Olindo (now en route from Hamburg to Galveston), Luenberg and Curitzba.

Texan's Long Fast.

At Waco, Tex., J. S. Cannaday, a professional lecturer, is engaged in a fasting experiment which he says he will protract for 120 days. He has not partaken of nourishment for ten days. He chews tobacco and drinks water, but says he will quit both at the end of sixty days, and thereafter allow nothing to enter his mouth until the expiration of the full period of his fast. The purpose, he explains, is to afford a demonstration of the power of will over the flesh. Mr. Cannaday came to Waco from Virginia four years ago, and completed his education here. He is quite weak, and appears much emaciated, but declares he has no craving for nourishment.

Bailey Not a Candidate.

J. W. Bailey, congressman from the Fifth district, has authorized the announcement that he will not become a candidate for a seat in the senate to succeed Senator Mills. He has been advised to take this step and to again stand for re-election to the lower house and lead the democratic forces again. His friends over the state believe, if the congress is democratic, he will be the next speaker, an honor Texas would like to see one of her sons receive.

Cotton Shipped to Spain.

A cotton firm at Bryan, Tex., purchased 235 bales of Brazos bottom cotton a few days since and shipped some to Barcelona, Spain, the first shipment to that country ever made direct from Texas.

Fatally Crushed.

James Alston, a farmer, was fatally crushed while loading logs at Denmark, Miss. One of the logs rolled upon him, crushing three ribs into his lung and otherwise injuring him.

Her Bier a Piano.

The latest thing in biers is a piano, and the credit for introducing the novelty belong to Jessie E. Clinton, a Kentucky music teacher. She had been a pianist and until her health failed a few months ago was a teacher in the Sumerset (Ky.) schools. She was compelled to resign and go to her mother's home in Louisville to die.

While she was able to be up she played daily at her piano, a large square model. When she became too weak to play she had some of her friends play on the instrument.

Just before her death she told her mother that she did not wish to be laid out in a coffin, but upon the piano, which she had owned for ten years. In compliance with her dying wish the body was laid out upon the piano, which was draped in white. There it remained until the funeral services were ended two days later, when the remains were transferred to a casket and buried.

Curious Dinner at Jericho.

An American traveling in Jerusalem describes an interesting dinner he ate recently at a hotel in Jericho. "We sat on the porch of the hotel at Jericho," he wrote, "after a dinner at which we were served with butter from Norway, cheese from Switzerland, marmalade from London, wine from Jerusalem diluted with water from the well of Elisha, raisins from Ramoth Gilead, oranges from Jericho (in no respect inferior to those from Jaffa or the Indian river, Florida), smoking Turkish tobacco, which, like the Turkish empire, is inferior to its reputation, and a cup of coffee from—the corner grocery of Jericho."

ALABAMA LADIES DON'T DIE

Mrs. W. A. Gavett

Oak Lowery, Ala., writes: Have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine in my family for 10 years, with good results. I think it is stronger than "Zeilin's" or "Black Draught."

Cramps

Are caused by an irritation of the nerves. They are local spasms, frequently the result of uterine disease. There are sharp, cramping, gnawing and contractive pains in the region of the stomach, extending to the back and chest. They are often the result or symptom and effect of indigestion. Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine should be used to regulate the digestive organs and Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine to give immediate relief and permanent cure.

After the old proprietors of the article now called "Black Draught" were by the United States Court enjoined from using the words constituting our trade name, it does not surely require that I should use their own trade name and mention "Black" their article, and not seek to deceive the trade for our article, which is well known as Dr. Simmons Liver Medicine, by publishing the picture of another Dr. Simmons on their wrapper and false advertising that their article "Black Draught" was established in 1840, that being the year in which our article was established, while no one ever heard of "Black Draught" before 1858. Why do they advertise this falsehood and associate their article with ours (having the picture of Dr. M. A. Simmons on it) by their publication of the picture of another Dr. Simmons, if not desire to unfairly appropriate our trade? Is not the motive apparent?

Pro. T. E. Riles

San Antonio, Tex., writes: My wife has used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine many years for Sick Headache and never fails to buy a package when she expects to travel. It saves one from taking injurious drugs. For 15 years it has been a necessary medicine in my house.

Caution. Don't be fooled into taking cheap worthless stuff. If the merchant tells you "it is just the same" as M. A. S. L. M., you may know that he is trying to sell you cheap stuff to make a big profit by palming off on you a wholly different article.

VOL. V. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1897. NO. 46

FACTS WORTH NOTING

PUBLIC OR PRIVATE RAILROAD OWNERSHIP.

Private Ownership a Tremendous Burden Upon the Backs of the People and the Source of Great Political Corruption.

In 1895, according to Prof. Frank [illegible] the people paid the railroads, in round numbers, $1,200,000,000; the same [illegible] service would have cost them [illegible] $540,000,000—less than half [illegible] had owned the roads free [illegible] and under good management. During the period of transition from private to public ownership, the [illegible] of the railways to the people [illegible] of course, be more than [illegible] upon the plan of purchase [illegible] favorable to the people, the expense of running the roads under [illegible] public management together with interest and dividends would be $770,000,000 a year, falling towards $540,000,000 as the stocks and bonds were paid off and interest and dividends ceased; that is, the savings of the people by public ownership would run from $[illegible]00,000 to $660,000,000 a year, according to the plan of purchase adopted.

This would enable the nation to reduce rates to one-half their present figures and still realize a profit. Even a greater reduction then might be made for the lowering of rates would be followed by a rapid increase of passenger [illegible] that would materially increase the revenue of the roads. It costs little more to run full trains than trains half-full. In this fact lies the possibility that, under public ownership, fares might be reduced in this country in a few years, not merely one-half, but to one-quarter or even one-tenth or to one twentieth of the present rates, if the benefits of the increased traffic is given mainly to the passenger [illegible]

In 1889 the government roads of Austro Hungary reduced fares in many cases to one-half and in some cases to one-sixth of former rates, the average reduction being more than 40 per cent on the whole system, yet the traffic increased so much that the total receipts were $432,000 more than the year before.

The cost of carrying a passenger in the United States is set down by the railroads at about 2 cents a mile. This, however, is clearly too high, even under our clumsy and wasteful system. Worsey's "English and American Railways" puts the average cost per mile at 1.14 cents in England and 1.2 cents for the whole United States. The German railways charge, on an average, a little over a cent a mile, and they clear over 50 per cent profit on their passenger service. The London and Northwestern company carried passengers first-class on trains from London to Manchester and back at one-half cent a mile and made a profit of 200 per cent on the transaction, showing that the cost was about one-sixth of a cent a mile. Many of our American roads sell season tickets at a little more than one-half a cent a mile. They would not do this if they did not know that one-half a cent more than covers the cost. The Pennsylvania, Reading and others sell season tickets at seven-eighths of a cent a mile. I am sure, says Prof. Parsons, that these roads never figure on less than 50 per cent profit on their passenger traffic, even on their commutation rates. According to Dorsey, it costs the Pennsylvania and similar roads about one-half cent to move a passenger one mile, and in well-settled districts the cost is much less.

In discussing bribery in legislatives bodies, the Medical World asks: Who bribes legislators? Who buys congressmen? Who buys city councilmen? The answer will apply to all these questions. That answer is, powerful corporations. What are these powerful corporations? Chiefly our railroad, express and telegraph companies. It is well known here in Pennsylvania that the legislature of Pennsylvania is dominated by the Pennsylvania R. R. Is it not the same to a greater or less degree in every state? Who can remember the credit mobilier days of the early '70's? It corrupted congress almost through and through. Was a railroad "job." What do the passes given to legislators and judges and congressmen all over the country mean? We have frequently spoken of the telegraph franks given freely to congressmen. But that is only a beginning. Suppose there were a serious danger of legislation affecting the principal telegraph company. Their lobby, with abundant money, would soon be on hand in Washington, and every available congressman and senator would soon be reached as special "counsel," and every kind of effort, both fair and unfair, would be made to defeat the proposition, however much the people might desire it. The same applies to legislation concerning express companies.

Do you not see that the source of corruption in our politics, perhaps nine-tenths, comes from the sources mentioned? Remove the source and the stream will dry up. Fortunes are not made and lost in the postal service. Corruption does not come from the postal service. The postal service serves the citizens of the country more cheaply, more impartially and more faithfully than any other service we have. It has no stocks and bonds to be speculated in on Wall street, but the people have the service. Prompt, faithful service at cost is what we want, and we want to put an end to speculation and corruption. As speculation corruption and bad public service come from public utilities (railroad, telegraph and express) being owned and operated by private parties, and cheap and satisfactory service with no corruption nor speculation result from the mail service being owned and operated by the government, is it not a logical conclusion that the best way to get rid of speculation and corruption and to secure satisfactory and uniform service from the railroads, telegraph and express is to place them also under government ownership and operation?

THE POPULIST VIEW.

Old Solon Chase of Maine declares that the money question is now ripe, and will be settled by the people before any other issue is seriously dealt with. "The free coinage of silver," says Solon Chase, "is not all of the money question by any means, but is as much as the people are ready for. The great conservative multitude don't bite off justice in great large junks. The silver question is the weak spot in the bondholders ramparts, and is the spot where the break must be made. After free coinage of silver the logic of events will mark out the way."

It takes more than a good temporary price for wheat to restore good times. Next year the goldbugs will have to go to the arbitrament of the ballot box confronting 40 cent wheat, for with a large wheat acreage and yield the gold standard range of prices will reassert itself with renewed vigor. What will the plutocratic press then find to say to the farmers?

In the meantime city workingmen are unable to find the whereabouts of the general prosperity whose presence in our midst is advertised by the daily press. Wages are not rising, and employment is hard to get.

Here is an illustration from the Tacoma Sun: "The Ledger yesterday gave an account of a Mr. and Mrs. White who went from Seattle to Portland in search of work. Failing to find any they had to tramp back to Seattle. When it is remembered that the Ledger is the chief prosperity howler in the state it will be easily understood that it has forgotten to lie in this one instance."

And the following from an Eastern labor paper tells the same story: "Cases of starvation are becoming so common that they hardly attract attention any more. The once proud Americans are sinking into helpless, hopeless condition that travelers tell us in Italy, Spain and other despotisms. Men and women tramp the streets and highways of their native land in a vain endeavor to find some one who will give them food for their labor. In the last week several gruesome cases have come to light that ought to bring the blush of shame to any American. How long this thing is to be allowed to continue is a serious question, but there is no doubt that the public is becoming restless under it, and that the pent up fires of indignation are gathering force and cannot always be smothered. The people have made enough wealth, but they are not allowed to consume it. It is consumed—wasted—by those who in nowise aided in its production. And the world moves to higher planes by apparently contradictory methods."

The money power cannot hypnotize the people with their tales of a prosperity which the people know reaches only as far as the bank accounts of the plutocrats.

A Bootless Errand.

The American bimetallic commissioners have received a flattering welcome to France; but we must not count too much on that, for the French are nothing if not hospitable; and authorized representatives of this republic, no matter what their mission, would receive nothing but courteous attention and their mission thoughtful consideration at their hands. Yet M. Meline, premier and minister of agriculture, made it clear in one of his addresses that if only France had to be consulted international bimetallism would quickly be realized. He declared that France would put no obstacle in the way of rehabilitating silver with its old-time functions as standard money. But there's the rub—England, the money-lender, and Germany, committed to a gold policy, it is not believed will give a second thought to the subject. Much as the three commissioners may enjoy the splendid junket, they are doomed to bring back only disappointment to those who have pinned their hopes to a possible international agreement. And the sooner they retun and cut off the expense entailed in this bootless task, the better.—Farmers' Voice.

Dingleyism at Work.

The receipts of customs during the first four days of the Wilson law in 1894 were $3,250,000. The receipts for the first four days of the Dingley law brought in $1,621,500, or almost precisely one half. The first month under the Dingley starts out with a deficiency of $11,073,544, although the month had the benefit of five-sixths of its time under the Wilson law, with large importations to avoid the increased taxes. The one sixth of the month under the Dingley law increased the deficiency $600,000 beyond the amount where the Wilson law left it. The Wilson law closed its first month with a substantial surplus.

THE WAY THEY ARGUE

WEAKNESS OF THE GOLD STANDARD CAUSE.

Goldites Batter Away at a Straw Dummy Instead of Attacking Real Free Silver Arguments—A Dollar Always a Dollar.

A friend in Kentucky sends the Ogdensburg (Wis.) Epoch the following statement made by the Somerset Paragon of the former state:

"Should this country alone attempt free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, it would thereby give notice that that we are ready to exchange for all comers a quantity of gold which is valued at $1 in every civilized country for a quantity of silver which represents in the markets of the world about 50 cents. In a very short time all gold would disappear. It would be hoarded to await a premium or shipped to countries where it is more appreciated. Only silver would remain our circulating medium. We would be on a silver basis. Our standard would be a dollar worth little more than fifty cents in every country but our own. All values would quickly adjust themselves to this depreciated dollar, and would flucuate with its changing value in international exchange."

Our friends should not be too severe on the men who make these statements. The poor fellows are doing the best they can. Not having a single fact to bring against the free coinage of silver, they are compelled to bring lies. If they did not found their arguments on lies, they would have nothing whatever to found them on.

Everybody who knows anything whatever on the money question knows that under free coinage of silver this country would not give a dollar's worth of gold for fifty cents' worth of silver, or any other amount of gold for any other amount of silver. That would not be free coinage at all. It would not bear the slightest resemblance to free coinage. It would be the purchase of silver.

Free coinage of silver means that any person owning silver bullion shall have the privilege of taking that bullion to the mint and having it coined into silver dollars, which silver dollars will be handed back to the person bringing the bullion. There will be no gold in the transaction. Free coinage of silver means the coinage of silver not the purchase of silver with gold.

There could not be a clearer evidence of the weakness of the cause of the gold standard men. Instead of attacking the thing which the silver men want, they get up a man of straw, which bears not the slightest resemblance to the real thing, and valorously knock it over.

The talk about gold disappearing under free coinage is pure theory. In fact, it could not disappear very much more than it has already done. None is in practical use as a circulating medium. But why should it be sent to other countries, and what other countries would there be which would appreciate it any better? Our coinage valuation of gold is about the same as the coinage valuation placed on it by other nations, and would be just the same under free coinage of silver. Gold (nine-tenths fine) brings $18.60 an ounce at the United States mint now. It would bring $18.60 an ounce if we had free coinage of silver. It don't bring any more than that in other nations. Why would gold be sent to other nations if we had free coinage of silver? The gentlemen who say it would should present some evidence or at least some reasons why it would be probable. Their unsupported assertion is not sufficient.

This able writer declares that under free coinage our standard dollar would be worth but little more than fifty cents in any country but our own.

Why?

Let him give a reason.

Tell us why our silver dolars would be worth any less in foreign nations under free coinage than they are now. They are worth a dollar in other nations now, less the freight. Why would they be worth any less under free coinage?

We have had enough of these bald assertions. Let the men who make them furnish some evidence.

And suppose—just suppose—that our standard dollars under free coinage would be worth only fifty cents in foreign nations, suppose they would be worth only five cents, suppose they would be worth nothing at all, suppose anything you please about their value, what difference will it make to John Jones, the farmer, and Sam Smith, the laborer, and Henry Hudson, the school teacher, and Ben Benton, the storekeeper, who never were in Europe and never expect to be?

Must we regulate our whole financial system to accommodate that insignificant portion of the people which spends its summers in Europe?

Must the farmer have his farm sold under mortgage, and the laborer be kept idle nine months in the year, and the storekeeper be forced to the wall, and the school teacher get a reduced salary, in order that the very few of our people who are able to spend their summers abroad may have a dollar that is "good in Europe?"

Away with such unpatriotic and undemocratic nonsense. Let the American people adopt a system of finance to suit themselves, a system which will give the farmer a chance to pay his mortgage, the working man a chance to find employment, the business man a chance to conduct a successful business, without asking the permission of any of the crowned heads of Europe or the American nabobs who are after them.

It takes no brains to be a grumbler.

THE UNIVERSAL TRUST.

The Signs of the Times Herald Its Coming.

The report that the Standard Oil Trust has obtained, or is about to obtain complete control of the lead, leather, tobacco and whisky interests of the country, together with a combination of gas interests, including Chicago Gas, may have been premature, but there is every reason to suppose that such a consummation will be reached before long. The Standard Oil magnates already control the business of the country in oil, iron, ore and sugar; they are on the point of conquering the steel and coffee industries; they own much of the shipping of the lakes and most of the great tourist hotels in Florida; they are directly interested in several lines of railroad, and they can dictate terms in the matter of freight rates to the entire transportation system of the union. They have to find investments every year for about $50,000,000 of surplus profits, and with that amount and their skill in manipulation it would be a simple matter to obtain control of two or three new trusts annually. Of course, every new enterprise absorbed by Mr. Rockefeller and his associates adds to the income to be invested the next year.

It is hard to see any end to this process short of the absorption of the entire wealth of the country by a little group of capitalists. It seems clearly to be a process that must go on with accelerating velocity. Most people of the poor, the comfortable and the moderately well-to-do classes live up to their incomes, and have nothing to invest. Many even of the very rich do the same thing. When we find a few men acting together, who are at once prudent and enormously rich, whose living expenses absorb no appreciable proportion of their incomes, who have practically the whole of a stupendous surplus available every year for investment, and who have the most perfect inside knowledge of the best opportunity for profit and the shrewdest faculty for taking advantage of them, it is hard to avoid the conclusion that those men, if they live long enough and hang together, must eventually become practically the sole proprietors of the nation's industries. There is every reason to believe that unless we have some radical change in political conditions the next thirty years will see the entire industrial activity of the United States regulated by a single trust, of which the bulk of the American people will be the employes. What will happen then will depend upon the degree of virility still left in the population. It will be an epoch from which the union may date an advance to a higher social state than anything previously known, or a plunge into complete and permanent industrial slavery.—New York Daily Journal.

THE GOVERNMENT FIAT.

It May Be Made to Work Two Ways.

Those who claim there is nothing in a piece of paper and that the government could not make it perform the functions of money for the lack of power to do so, if they only notice, they will find that a piece of paper can be made a powerful instrument and is so made every day, says the Tacoma Sun. If it is issued by a federal officer, called a judge, and is named an injunction, it will accomplish wonders because backed by the government; this fiat of an officer will call out the army and navy of the United States if necessary. It can override the constitutional guarantee of free speech and the right of peaceful assembly; it can force a man to work even if does not want to, and do away with writ of habeas corpus. This governmental "fiat" is yet in its infancy. There is no telling how far reaching it will become when it is fully developed. It has become the oppressor of millions—and a greater tyrant never lived—it can always be found doing the dirty work of plutocracy and crushing the poor. If all this can be accomplished by an ordinary piece of paper, it seems strange to us that some can doubt the power of the government to make a piece of paper full legal tender when backed by the same power that an injunction is.

Some People Don't Understand.

Some people do not understand that the men who favor the free coinage of silver are also just as much in favor of the free coinage of gold as they who style themselves exclusively gold men.

People prior to 1873 could take either their gold or silver to the U. S. mints and have it made into dollars. Now they can take only their gold. The consequence is that there are fewer dollars being made, and whenever any body wants one he must give more for it than he used to. Men who have wheat, cotton, dry goods, real estate, labor or anything else must give much more of them than right to buy a dollar when they want one. To the property of those people who own money this increase in the value of the dollar amounts to an absolute confiscation.—Ex.

ANNEXATION

Of the Hawaiian Islands to the United States

WILL BE RUSHED THROUGH.

The Lawmakers of the Islands Will be Asked to Ratify the Annexation Treaty Recently Signed in Washington.—Extra Session Called for Sept mber 6th.

The steamer Australia, from Honolulu direct, arrived at San Francisco Wednesday with the following Hawaiian advices:

Francis M. Hatch, minister to Washington, arrived August 20 with special information which will require the attention of both government and senate, and a secret notice has already been issued to the members of the latter body calling upon them to meet in extra session September 6 to consider the question. Meanwhile Minister Hatch is in almost constant consultation with President Dole and his cabinet.

The lawmakers will be asked to ratify the annexation treaty recently signed in Washington, and as a majority of the members favor annexation, the matter will be rushed through. The reason for the extra session of the senate is a matter of conjecture, and much curiosity is evinced.

A senator is authority for the statement that Minister Hatch brought word from President McKinley that he had resolved to call congress two months earlier than usual for the purpose of disposing of the treaty before the regular session, and this theory appears to find favor with other senators.

Another matter to be considered by the Hawaiian senate is that of rendering assistance to the executive in unraveling the Japanese muddle, as it is said that Japan's acceptance of the offer of arbitration is so vague that the President and his cabinet are in a quandary. There are rumors of a split in the cabinet over the question, and it is said that the intervention of the senate is required to prevent an open rupture.

The Hawaiian Star created a sensation by the publication of a scheme, alleged to have been backed by the sugar trust, to block annexation.

It is said that a call has been made for a mammoth demonstration September 14 against closer political union with the United States. Senators Morgan and Quay are expected to arrive from the United States that day, and the object o fthe anti-annexationists is to impress them with the feeling upon the island.

MEANS A GOLD STANDARD

For India is the General Belief at Washington.

Secretary Gage said last Friday that it would be a hard matter to draw an inference from the suspension of the sale of bills of exchange by the Bank of England on Indian cities, and said there might be many reasons for this. Until he could hear more of the matter he preferred not to discuss the question.

Director of the Mint Preston and other officials who keep up with the situation in India preferred not to discuss the question at this time. They, too, thought many reasons might be at the bottom of the suspension. One reason advanced by several treasury officials is that the suspension might have been ordered to avoid the threatened export of gold from London to India. There was a general belief, however, that India will not be long in going to the gold standard. She is virtually on a gold standard now, it is said.

Will Have Trolley Cars.

The electrician representing the chasers of the street car line at Pensacola, Fla., has arrived from Philadelphia, and will at once begin the work of converting the present horse car system into a modern trolley system. Five miles of new track will be added on the streets and when completed the system will be almost a belt line.

Japan's Latest Scheme.

A correspondent at Washington writes: According to semi-official advices just received here from Nicaragua, the Japanese government is secretly negotiating with the diet of the Greater Republic of Central America, which recently met in Salvador, for the construction of the Nicaragua canal, independent and in defiance of the interests and influence of the United States or other nations.

That the administration will resent any interference with the Nicaragua canal project, as it did in the case of the Hawaiian annexation treaty goes without saying.

Sick Soldiers Sent Home.

The last two steamers that have sailed for Spain from Havana carried 1,600 sick and disabled soldiers. The Twelfth Annual Session of the Farmer's Alliance of Alabama is hereby called to meet at Jemison, Chilton county, Ala., on Wednesday and Thursday, September 22 and 23, 1897.

Jemison is on the Louisville & Nashville railroad 45 miles south of Birmingham, and 53 miles north of Montgomery.

Clanton Alliance No. 1.

A special meeting of the Clanton Alliance is hereby called to meet on Saturday September 18th at 2:30 o'clock. MASS MEETING.

A meeting of the citizens of Clanton and all others interested, is hereby called to meet at the court house on Tuesday, the 14th day of September, 1897, at 4 p.m. for the purpose of making an effort to bring the Atlanta and Alabama Railroad by Clanton.

DOLLAR wheat and five cent cotton don't go well together.

A PERPETUAL gallows cannot be said to be a thing of beauty and joy forever. For nearly four years the hideous structure in the jailyard has been an eyesore to every passer by. It is to be hoped a gallows will never be needed here, and we would suggest that the sheriff remove this one. If at any time it is necessary to erect a gallows the county can better afford to build one than to be perpetually reminded of this sometime grim necessity of the law. Take it down, Mr. Sheriff, please.

THE project of the Atlanta and Selma railroad passing through Clanton is assuming definite shape. The citizens of Clanton are unanimously in favor of it and no doubt the mass meeting called for next Tuesday will be well attended. We should like to see some of our farmer friends also at this meeting. This is not a local matter, it concerns the whole county. The entire county will be directly benefited by the road; it will increase the value of every foot of land in the county, and will materially increase the county revenue. Mr. W. H. Merritt says he will give the road a free right of way across his property, a distance of four or five miles, and will give other aid, and other land owners will do likewise. Col. Tisdale, vice-president of the road, who passed through town this morning, stated he would be pleased to do all in his power to have the crossing at Clanton. The meeting on Tuesday will probably arrive at some mode of proceedure, possibly the organization of a railroad society; then a preliminary survey will be made, and an offer to the company. We wish the undertaking every success.

SPECIAL State Examiner Cowan after studying the matter over for a couple of weeks, filed his report on the Clerk of the Circuit Court's accounts last Thursday. Either the Examiner or Age-Herald or the State Auditor is in a "mass of tangled confusion" or there's something rotten in the State of Denmark. The Age-Herald published a detailed statement from the report to the Governor showing Mr. VanDerveer was $81.36 short. The State Auditor sends Mr. VanDerveer a statement claiming only $45.54. We do not suppose that either statement is correct, and would suggest the Governor appoint another special State Examiner to find out where they are at.

THE State Weekly Crop Bulletin reports: Warm weather and ample sunshine prevailed over this entire section during the first half of the week ending Sept. 6, followed by cool and cloudy weather with brisk easterly winds during the last three days; showers were light and widely scattered and rain is needed for the crops, but as a whole all crops have done and promise well, except cotton, which has steadily deteriorated, with rust, blight and shedding, spreading to northern counties and general over the entire southern half of the State; upland cotton seems to be suffering mostly while many correspondents report the bottom land crop as still in fair condition, the top crop is generally poor and conditions now point to a yield decidedly below the average; considerable picking was done during the week and much has been ginned and marketed. Fodder pulling still progresses and some late corn is being harvested in good condition and satisfactory yield; sorghum is being made into syrup and is of good flavor and yield; sugar cane continues very promising, and a very large hay crop has been made, rain is neded for sweet potatoes and turnips and while the second crop of irish potatoes is generally good, they have rotted badly in Gulf counties, where a third planting has been made by some farmers. Grapes are making a splendid yield and pears are yielding better than was anticipated.

RESOURCE, Screven Co., Ga.—I have been subject to attacks of bilious colic for several years. Chamberlains Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is the only sure relief. It acts like a charm. One dose of it gives relief when all other medicines fail.—G. D. Sharp. For sale by Dr. J. S. Johnson, Jr.

In addition to the many attractions arranged for Nashville Day, September 11, at the Centennial Exposition, special musical and fire works programmes have been prepared for the evening, and to give the thousands who expect to be on the ground that night some idea of the indescribable grandeur and beauty of these special works, the management have appropriated $1500 for fire-works alone. It is unnecessary to say that the A. L. Due Co., who with so much smaller sums of money, have given such gorgeous entertainments, will open the occasion in the presence of that mighty throng of humanity, give one of the largest and grandest pyrotechnic displays ever seen in the South. There will be many set pieces, some of which will be the portraits of the Mayor of Nashville, the Board of Public Works in one group, and Judge Bell; and the great wheel of fire.

Wasted Lives.

Some people use their energies in a way that wastes the greater part of them. Hurry, worry, irritation, vexation, determination, and foolish anxiety keeps them constantly wasting precious vitality. This is foolishness. People do not want irritation or stimulation. When anyone is tired he wants rest not stimulants. When any one's energies begin to flag recuperation, not irritation, is wanted.

"All tired out," some people say "I need a stimulant." A very mistaken idea. No doubt such a one is in need of invigoration, recuperation, but not stimulants. Stimulants draw upon the vigor which one already possesses; they produce no vigor. When one is tired out, nervous, weak and despondent Pe-ru-na is what is needed in the system. Pe-ru-na invigorates, recuperates, builds up, vitalizes, enriches, re-inforces. Unlike so many other remedies, it does not simply irritate and stimulate. Pe-ru-na is an invigorator to nerve and blood. Send for a copy of Dr. Hartman's latest book. Address The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Literary Note.

As the result of the development of our public school system and the cheapening of books, there has grown up a large class of men and women who seek broader education, or desire to extend their knowledge along special lines. Their duties in life, or lack of means, exclude them from the university. The Cosmopolitan Magazine has undertaken the task of bringing liberal education, in its broadest sense, within the reach of those who have the aspiration, but are deprived of the opportunity. Doctor Andrews, late of Brown University, has undertaken the Presidency of The Cosmopolitan's educational movement. The work, thus begun, is not intended to take the place of regular university work, but to supply a gap in existing educational facilities. Those who are really in search of knowledge will find direction and aid. It can do nothing for those who have not the desire to study. An intending student sends to the Cosmopolitan, New York, his name, occupation, previous courses of study, studies desired to be pursued, objects and purpose for which course is designed, and the number of hours', daily or weekly, study which can be given. No charges of any kind will be made to students.

Political Points.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis. Mo., Sept. 8, 1897.

The commission appointed four years ago to investigate and report to the British Parliament the cause of the wide spread depression among English farmers has ready a communication which will make interesting reading if it is ever published. Ten of the sixteen commissioners concur in saying that "some general cause may be found in the great monetary changes which were made in certain countries in Europe and the United States in 1873 and 1874." It is further suggested that some "international arrangement be made for the reversal of the monetary policy of 1873." "Such action would in the opinion of the commission, check the constant and progressive fall of prices." Tariff on farm products was not considered any cure for the farmer's woes. Thus whenever men of learning study the question and render an honest verdict, they decide that the gold standard is the ruin of agriculture.

The Mayor of Prescott, Arizona, who is an enthusiastic single-taxer, has succeeded in getting a sort of single-tax ordinance passed in his town, although the council was made up of streight republicans and democrats. A tax of $2.00 is imposed on every town lot, whether occupied by a building or not, and this money is to be devoted to building and operating water and lighting plants.

The recent bankers' convention at Detroit, Michigan, passed a resolution urging that at the next session of Congress a currency commission be appointed "in order that proper financial legislation may be at once secured."

It is claimed that in ninety-six out of one hundred and five counties in Kansas arrangemens for fusion between Populists, Silver Democrats and Silver Republicans are so perfect as to insure success in the next election.

If the State of Pennsylvania is representative, the people of this country are in a fair way to be legislated to death. Governor Hastings, of that State, made free use of his veto power, but still four hundred and eight entirley new laws have gone on the statute books.

It has been given out in a semi official manner that the tactics of the administration will bring the Cuban rebellion to a close within the next sixty days. Secretary of State Sherman is at present in Washington, D. C., having cut short his vacation to return and attend to business pertaining to the Spanish-Cuban trouble.

Grand Master Workman Sovereign spoke at Houston Texas, on Labor day, to a large and enthusiastic crowd.

Attorney General Boyle and Labor Commissioner Johnson, of Kansas, both good populists, are about to begin prosecution of such coal operations of that state as have violated the anti-scrip law.

The great triangular silver convention of Populists, Democrats and Republicans, at Lincoln, Nebraska, September 1st and 2d, was attended by twenty seven hundred delegates and fifteen thousand visitors, and was in every respect the most enthusiastic convention ever held in that State. The same condidates were nominated and the same platform adopted by each convention.

The trustees of Brown University have asked President Andrews to withdraw his resignation.

The conference of Labor Leaders held at St. Louis last week, did little more that pass resolutions of sympathy for the striking miners and censure the judiciary, for "government by injunction." It was decided that in case the miners strike was not settled by September 20th that a general convention of Labor representatives should be called at Chicago on the 27th, for the purpose of considering further measures in the interest of the striking miners.

Great progress of the Socialist Labor Party in Kansas is reported by Kansas City gold-bug sheets exclusivly. Reliable parties on the ground assert that this is but another Republican strike to divide the Populists. No such growth and organization as reported exists. A. R.

The True Remedy.

W. M. Repine, editor of Tiskilwa Ill., "Chief," says: "We won't keep house without Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Cough and Colds. Experimented with many others, but never got the true remedy until we used Dr. King's New Discovery. No other remedy can take its place in our home, as in it we have a certain and sure cure for Colds, Whooping Cough, etc." It is idle to experiment with other remedies, even if they are urged on you as just as good as Dr. King's New Discovery. They are not as good, because this remedy has a record of cures and besides is guaranteed. It never fails to satisfy. Trial bottle free at Dr. J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

Death of D. J. Waterswortb.

Our community was saddened on the 3rd inst. by the death of D. J. Wathersworth. We have suffered an irreparable loss. "An honest man is the noblest work of God," and this could be truly said of our friend and neighbor. His was a noble nature that ever labored with energy for the good of his fellow creatures and was often troubled that he could not do more in his Master's vineyard; he was ever a friend to the widow and orphan and in trouble and sickness was ever the most foremost. He came to this country about thirty-five years ago from England, being well-bred and of pleasing address. He married a woman with considerable fortune which she most generously gave him to do good work. Though a foreigner none did the good he did. His was a romantic life but in all his wanderings he was ever generous and unselfish. He was reared in the church of England but not being convenient here he joined the Methodist and built a beautiful church. Then he gave much assistance in building an Episcopal church he joined near him but was ever generous to the Methodist church. Our deepest sympathy is extended his family whose grief is not as those without hope meeting in that better land where parting is no more.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, CATARRH, ASTHMA, HEADACHE

and their marvelous cure. Science of the 19th Century looks on with amazement at the most remarkable record of cures ever known in the World's history.

Hundreds of thousands of Sufferers cured without a single failure by "FIVE DROPS."

Though so universally used and tested did you ever hear anyone speak ill of this great remedy? No you never did and never will, for if taken as directed and in the proper quantity 5 Drops cannot fail to cure any of the diseases for which it is recommended. What it has already done to relieve the suffering is told in thousands of letters of grateful praise.

Mr. J. P. Limeburner, widely known for many years as the special representative of the Populists and Free Silver Press of the United States, was kindly forwarded the following letter for publication:

Jan. 25, 1897.

DEAR SIRS:—I am anxious for the sake of the suffering and out of gratitude to you to give my personal endorsement of your wonderful remedy. On the 4th of January last, I was in Washington and was suddenly seized with an agonizing attack of inflammatory rheumatism so severe and painful in its character that I secured a bottle of 5 Drops, partially relieved and I was only able to drive with assistance. I followed using the remedy and took a dose that night, rubbing some on externally as directed. The following morning I was surprised to find myself in a measure relieved, and continuing treatment more than pleased with the result. My arm was absolutely free from pain, and all swelling and stiffness had disappeared. The quickness and complete success of your medicine was the second morning cured. My case was one of long standing and had resisted the curative properties of your medicine and staff of life for over a year of the most excruciating character. I have known for over a year of the great curative properties of 5 Drops in Neuralgia, Church and Asthma, and have several friends who have been cured by it of Neuralgia, Church and Asthma, and have several friends who have been cured by it that those similarly afflicted will at least wishing you every success, and believing that those similarly afflicted will at least give this remedy a trial. Sincerely yours, J. P. LIMEBURNER.

Bureau of Populist and Reform Papers, Old Sick Exchange Building, Chicago, Ill.

CURES THE INCURABLE.

DR. KELLEMS:—I would like to thank you for your great remedy, "5 DROPS," and tell you what it has done for me. I had Rheumatism in every joint in my body, my heart was affected, had constant pain in the region of my heart, and at times had to quit work for days at a time. I had doctored but little for it, but had concluded that it was incurable, as I was completely crippled up with it, and could not move without pain. I was recommended to try your remedy, and was told by a good doctor, that my Rheumatism was incurable. But now, after using "5 Drops" only two months, I can truly say I have not felt so well for seven years. This seems the more than I claimed for it. At this time my health is much better and I have entirely any Rheumatism at all and the heart trouble is gone. My nerves are good and my strength is much better. I have gained in flesh and can do a good day's work. It is the best medicine I ever saw to give a sound and sound sleep to both young and old. It has the same effect on the child as on the mother. It is a great Cough and cures the life of the child and causes a sound and refreshing sleep to both young and old.

Yours respectfully, W. M. KELLEMS, Atlanta, Perry Co., Ind.

Jan. 29, 1896.

We received the following letter from Mr. T. S. Wilson of Omaha, Ill. Mr. Wilson has been for many years an invalid and a sufferer from Kidney Disease. Mr. Wilson is well known in Kellems, Perry Co., Ind. and we feel he is a reliable man.

MR. J. A. WILSON.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of recent date at hand, the testimonial you speak of is genuine. I have it to them and every word of it is true and I could swear to it and prove it by many witnesses. The company did not ask me for this letter. I sent it to them last January for publication in order that your sufferers, incurables as I thought, and as you say, might be cured. Get "5 Drops" and use it and it will cure you as it has cured me. I have received many letters like yours, and it is a pleasure to me to be able to answer all who write. Tell all your neighbors what I have written about "5 Drops." I know how to sympathize with those who are afflicted for though I suffered so long it is now 8 months since I have felt any pain. Dr. W. Kellems is my brother, uses "5 Drops" in his practice, and joins me in endorsing this great remedy. He says for a case like yours it is a positive cure.

Sept. 21, 1896. MR. W. M. AND DR. S. W. KELLEMS.

If you have not sufficient confidence after reading these letters to send for a large bottle, send for a sample bottle, which contains sufficient medicine to convince you of its merit. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief and is a permanent cure for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Backache, Asthma, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, "La Grippe," Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and Kindred Diseases.

"FIVE DROPS" is the name and dose. Large bottles (100 doses), $1.00. Six bottles for $5.00. Sample bottle prepaid by mail 25c. Not sold by druggists, but only by us and our agents. Agents appointed in new territory.

Three years ago my condition was alarming; the least noise would startle and unnerve me. I was unable to sleep, had a number of sinking spells and slowly grew worse. I began using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills. At first the medicine seemed to have no effect, but after taking a few bottles I began to notice a change; I rested better at night, my appetite began to improve and I rapidly grew better, until now I am as nearly restored to health as one of my age may expect. Turn-Round Topics.

Mr. William M. Pyron, one of the Turn-Round's oldest and most prominent citizens died at his residence recently. Mr. Pyron took to his bed on the evening of July 4 and was up and down until a few days before he died. He was born in North Carolina in 1821, raised in Georgia and moved to this county about 27 years ago. He has been a member of the Baptist church for sixty years and was a Christian gentleman of spotless character, loved and respected as such by all who knew him.

Tuesday night, August 24th, at 10 o'clock he breathed his last. "I care for nothing in this world, all that I want is a home in heaven." These were about the last words; he fell asleep, out of which he passed quietly and without pain into sleep eternal. The remains were carried to Deatsville the next day for interment, Rev. Mr. Colwell conducting the funeral services. Mr. Pyron leaves an aged widow and five children at home to mourn his death. The bereaved family have our most sincere and heartfelt sympathies.

A series of meetings are in progress this week at Corinth. There will also be a series of meetings at Canaan next week commencing Saturday night.

Miss Vena Pyron, a beautiful and most accomplished young lady who has been very sick, we are glad to say is now convalescent.

Miss Ada Johnson, a charming young lady of Birmingham, and brother, Bud Law, are visiting friends here.

Mr. Hawes visited Montgomery last week.

MONTHLY SUFFERING.

Thousands of women are troubled at monthly intervals with pains in the head, back, breasts, shoulders, sides hips and limbs. But they need not suffer.

These pains are symptoms of dangerous derangements that can be corrected. The menstrual function should operate painlessly.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

makes menstruation painless, and regular. It puts the delicate menstrual organs in condition to do their work properly. And that stops all this pain. Why will any woman suffer month after month when Wine of Cardui will relieve her? It costs $1.00 at the drug store. Why don't you get a bottle to-day?

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. ROZENA LEWIS, of Gonsville, Texas, says: "I was troubled at monthly intervals with terrible pains in my head and back, but have been entirely relieved by Wine of Cardui."

The celebrated Code of Blue Laws, so frequently alluded to in American histories, were enacted in 1660 by the legislators of Connecticut. Brewer says: "It is almost verbally copied from the Mosaic law. After the restoration of Charles II., 'Presbyterian true blue' became a term of derision applied to anything which smattered of Puritanism, and 'blue laws' simply meant puritanical laws, or laws with a blue tinge. These laws inflicted the penalty of death for worshiping any god but the God of the Bible; for speaking disrespectfully of the Bible, Christ or the Holy Ghost; for witchcraft, theft, false swearing and disobedience to parents."

What Ailed Him.

"I don't think you ought to be so bitter against the president of the Busstupp bank," said the pastor. "Remember, brother, that he lost all of his own money, as well as some of yours." "That is jist what riles me," said the brother with the long upper lip and the mouth that looked as if it had been made with an ax. "To think of losin' my money to a blame fool!"—Indianapolis Journal.

Those trainloads of Greeks who left this country for the sake of fighting the tyrant Turk ought to be given rain checks good for the next war.

An ideal is not a mere imagination of what is or what may be; it is a conception of what should be—of something nobler than we have yet seen and better than we have done; and, when this conception takes form in the mind, though no external law may prescribe it, though no public opinion may espouse it, it speedily involves what may be a social law in the future, and what must be a private law for ourselves.

Actors like to play Hamlet, for then the ghost walks every night.

Where All the Trouble Started.

She—Do you think, at the rate woman is progressing, that the time will ever come when she will treat the man, instead of the man treating her?

He—I hope not. That was what got the whole human race into trouble, Eve's setting up the apples to Adam.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Lafayette's Grant of Land.

No man was ever more highly honored in this country than Lafayette during his second visit. In 1825 he came as the guest of the nation, remained over a year, and during that time visited every one of the twenty-four States which then composed the Union, and was everywhere received with popular enthusiasm. In consideration of his services during the revolutionary war Congress voted him a grant of $200,000, and in addition to that 24,000 acres of land, to be located by him anywhere among the unappropriated lands belonging to the national government. His 68th birthday was spent at the White House. After his visit he sailed for France in the Brandywine and in 1834 died in Paris.

Miss Sibyl Sanderson.

This is the singer whom Antonio Terry, the wealthy Cuban, has frequently announced his intention to marry as soon as the divorce court released him from Mrs. Terry. As this event has come to pass in the shape of a decree issued by the French courts no legal barrier now stands in the way. Miss Sanderson has won distinction on the operatic stage, and is at present singing in St. Petersburg, where rumor says she is receiving much attention from the Czar. When she becomes Mrs. Terry she will not need to sing, as her husband to be is reputed to be worth between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000.

Unnecessary Generosity.

Jose Maria, a Spanish brigand who had received pardon of the government on condition that he renounced his exciting and unlawful profession, used to tell most entertaining stories of his past. On one occasion he said he had robbed an English gentleman and his servant of their horses and everything they possessed, save their clothes.

The Englishman was a pleasant, attractive youth, and submitted to the robbery with great good humor. This appealed to Jose Maria, and as they were forty miles from Seville, whither the traveler was going, he determined that he should not walk that distance and gave him back his servant's horse and a doubloon—sixteen dollars—out of the two hundred he had taken.

The youth thanked the robber warmly, and added that he had still a great favor to ask.

"Will you not return me my watch?" he said. "It was the parting gift of my dear father."

"Is your father alive," asked Jose Maria, "and does he love you very much?"

"Oh yes," said the youth, "he lives and loves me."

"Then," said Jose Maria, "I shall keep the watch, for if your father loves you so dearly, he is sure to give you another."

The Blue and the Gray.

Both men and women are apt to feel a little blue, when the gray hairs begin to show. It's a very natural feeling. In the normal condition of things gray hairs belong to advanced age. They have no business whitening the head of man or woman, who has not begun to go down the slope of life. As a matter of fact, the hair turns gray regardless of age, or of life's seasons; sometimes it is whitened by sickness, but more often from lack of care. When the hair fades or turns gray there's no need to resort to hair dyes. The normal color of the hair is restored and retained by the use of Lumber Plant Burned.

The plant of the Vine Hill Lumber Company at Vine Hill, Autauga county, was burned last Friday. All adjoining buildings and a large lot of lumber were burned. Loss, $25,000. Insurance unknown.

Engineer and Fireman Killed.

Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railway Company engine No. 14, pulling a coal train, was wrecked Tuesday afternoon about 5 o'clock at Pratt City. Engineer Ed Searson was instantly killed, and his fireman, Emanuel Wilson, received injuries from which he died shortly after aid reached him.

To Develop Kaolin Deposits.

Maj. C. O. Godfrey of Fort Payne has secured a settlement of the litigation over the old kaolin mine at Eureka, and, backed by New York capitalists, will develop the kaolin deposits therein on an extensive scale. A large force of men is at work in the old mine. This is said to be the richest and most extensive kaolin deposit in the State.

Governor's Appointments.

The Governor has appointed William K. Campbell notary public and ex-officio J. P., Jones' Switch, Dallas county.

N. H. Robeson, constable, at Russellville, Franklin county.

John A. Fulford, constable, Point Clear, Baldwin county.

John P. Melton, justice of the peace, Dallaston, Dallas county.

W. D. Thomas, justice of the peace at Blocton.

Birmingham's Cotton Receipts.

Birmingham's cotton receipts for the new cotton year will reach 100,000 bales. Five years ago Birmingham marketed but 20,000 bales of cotton. During the cotton year just closed the total receipts were 80,000. This city has one cotton factory and another large one in course of construction, which increases its importance as a cotton center. Two large cotton compresses will also be operated this season.

Rust in Cotton.

Reports have been received at the office of Commissioner of Agriculture Culver from fifty-four of the sixty-six counties in this State as to the condition of cotton. The output for the State will not exceed 70 per cent of last year's crop. There has been heavy losses during the last two weeks on account of rust. The railroad commissioners, who have been over every railroad in the State, recently estimated the crop even lower than the above.

Colored School at Normal.

There are fewer better up-to-date schools in the South than the Agricultural and Mechanical College for negroes at Normal, near Huntsville, over which President W. H. Councill presides. They have recently added to their well equipped school a large printing outfit, including a Campbell cylinder press, a large steam engine and sawmill equipments. The industrial display at the Tennessee Exposition made by this school is the subject of much favorable comment.

A Big Pacing Horse.

George M. Garth, of Courtland, Ala., the trainer of several fine pacing horses, has sold Big Ike to a Boston man for $600. His new owners had advertised him as the biggest pacing horse in the world. He is over seventeen hands high, and is 4 years old. Garth says he is a little clumsy for track service now, but when he matures more he will make a record. He was trained by Garth on his stock farm two miles from Courtland.

Lott Suspended.

Governor Johnston has suspended from office E. B. Lott, tax collector of Mobile county, because of his failure to promptly settle up with the State. It is given out at the Governor's office that Lott is at least $26,000 behind with the State, and his shortage may go to $40,000, so it is stated. The suspension is the result of the examination of Lott's books, which has been in progress under the personal direction of State Examiner Purifoy for the past two weeks. It is understood that Examiner Purifoy has not yet completed his work, but he has been reporting the progress, and the figures quoted above are taken from these reports. Tax Collector Lott was one of the oldest county officials in Alabama, having occupied the office of tax collector of Mobile county for more than twenty-five years past.

County Officers' Books.

State Examiner Cowan has handed in his report of the examination of the offices of the tax collector and the circuit clerk of Chilton county. The accounts and the methods of J. T. Hubbard were found in the main correct, his whole indebtedness to the State being only $28. Circuit Clerk Vandiver's office affairs, however, abounded in inaccuracies and improper methods. Referring to the examination of his individual fee book, Mr. Cowan says: "In nearly every case is shown some irregularity. In some instances he charges for services not rendered, allows the Sheriff credit for executing papers not served, charges up witnesses for the defendant against the State, allows witnesses too much for attendance, and various other irregularities appear." The examiner, however, found only $81 worth of errors against the clerk.

Receivers Appointed.

In New York Thursday William C. Lane and Flavel McGee were appointed receivers of the United States Car Company, which has large car building plants at Urbana, O., Hegewisch, Ill., and Decatur and Anniston, this State. This action is believed to be a friendly one in the interest of the reorganization of the company, which has been in progress for some time, as the company had no indebtedness.

Steps will now be taken towards reorganizing the company upon a basis which will permit it to meet its fixed charges and current expenses.

If this can be done the works of this company will probably resume operations. This would mean the employment of at least 1,500 men. The plant at Anniston employs 1,000 men and the Decatur works about 500. Both plants have been idle for several years, the plant at Anniston never having been operated only for a short period.

State Normal College, Troy, Alabama.

Governor Johnston has recently appointed six new Directors for the State Normal College, at Troy, Alabama, in place of six whose times have expired. The new members are as follows, to-wit: Hon. C. A. Scott (ex-M. C. from California), Mt. Pleasant, Monroe Co.; Hon. A. A. Evans, Clayton, Barbour Co.; Senator D. C. Bethune, Union Springs, Bullock Co.; Hon. C. P. Rogers, Representative from (Letohatchie) Lowndes Co.; Hon. J. E. Cobb (ex-M. C. 5th Ala. Dist.), Tuskegee, Macon, Co.; and Hon. A. O. Lane, Birmingham, Jefferson Co.

These, with Hons. Chas. Henderson, O. C. Wiley and J. B. Knox, and Governor Johnston, State Supt. of Ed. Dr. J. O. Turner, and President E. B. Eldridge of the College, ex-officio members, constitute the Board. A called meeting for Sept. 10, to take action on important measures to be submitted by the Executive Committee and Faculty, looking toward the College's extension in various ways, will be held, and everything done that can be to make the session to open Sept. 21st, for forty weeks, better than all preceding it.

Some great advances are hoped for along several lines, of which due announcement will be made. Miss Willie McMillan, sister to Congressman Benton McMillan, of Tennessee, has been selected, recently, as Art Teacher, and she comes from the best masters, according to her testimonials.

Many school officers are receiving aid in the selection of teachers for common and high schools.

THE UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA.

Foot Ball and Base Ball on the Campus Only.

The ruling to this effect made by the Board of Trustees last year is still in force. Hence students will not travel over the state and country playing ball.

Some young men would prefer to have it otherwise. But it is thought that this course will meet the approbation of parents for many reasons. They believe that it will be more conducive to study, the real purpose for which they send their boys to college. Furthermore, College Athletics cost money. It is believed that confining the young men to their own campus will be in the interest of economy. These reasons will commend themselves to persons who do not object on the grounds of abuses that are likely to follow in the train.

Selma's New Railroad.

Selma is somewhat enthused over the prospects of the immediate construction of eighty miles of the Atlanta and Alabama railroad running out from Selma. Colonel Mitchell has made the following proposition to the citizens, provided they subscribe $100,000 to the capital stock: Item first provides that the company shall commence grading first at Selma, and designates the date when active construction will begin, otherwise the new subscription will not be binding.

Item second provides that the subscribers to the capital stock pay subscription as follows: Twenty-five per cent when grading commences, twenty-five per cent when twenty-five miles of road is graded, measuring from Selma in a northeasterly direction; twenty-five per cent when fifty miles of road is graded, and twenty-five per cent when the road is graded, track laid and trains running between Selma and a point on the Savannah and Western railroad.

The University of Alabama.

It will be gratifying to the friends of this institution to know that when it opens October 6th it is likely to have the largest number of new students in its history. It has been well advertised, and we all know the power of the press in such matters. It is seriously doubted if a paper in the state has failed to note in some way the signs of progress there.

Charged With Counterfeiting.

John Murphy and Clayton Milo, of Unionsport, Randolph county, Ind., were arrested in Richmoad, Ind., Saturday, charged with counterfeiting. They had purchased a forge, crucible and metals for their work. Milo confessed and told of attempts to make dollars from molds in the woods near Unionsport. Murphy is an ex-convict.

THE END IN SIGHT.

A 6s-Cent Rate Will be Agreed Upon Until the End of the Year.

The end of the great miners' strike is in sight. Friday afternoon the national executive board of the United Mine Workers agreed to recommend to the miners a proposition from the Pittsburg operators for a straight price of 65 cents a ton, to continue in force until the end of the year. A delegate convention of all miners who have suspended work has been called to meet in Columbus September 8, at 10 a. m., to act upon the recommendation. President Ratchford and members of the board say there is not the slightest doubt but the miners will approve the recommendation. The proposition does not involve arbitration and in effect provides for an immediate settlement of the strike. President Ratchford said that there were special reasons for the board recommending the proposition. In the first place, it concedes the miners a material advance. Had a 69-cent scale been secured he was confident it could not have been maintained for more than seventy days. As soon as the miners ratify the proposition work will be resumed in all the mines. In the second place, the proposition provides for a revival of the joint conference for the adjustment of prices. The operators are pledged to meet with the miners prior to the termination of the agreement and determine the rate for mining for the next year. Both the miners' executive board and the operators' committee are pleased over the outcome of the conference and feel that public sentiment will sustain their action.

SKIRMISHES IN CUBA

Several Small Battles Fought, the Spaniards Claiming Victories.

It was officially announced Thursday that a force of 2,000 Spaniards, commanded by Captain Cesperado Ponto at Serezo, surprised an insurgent force encamped on the heights of Joro, province of Pinar del Rio, killing twenty-six of the enemy and wounding several others. The Spaniards captured several prisoners, among them being Colonel Jose Paces, who was wounded. Thirty firearms and a medicine chest also fell into the hands of the government troops.

Another Spanish column, while reconnoitering on the hills of Rubi and Lagnau, province of Pinar del Rio, killed twenty-three insurgents, the official report says. Among the killed, it is further reported, were three insurgent officers.

The Canarais battalion, on Friday last, it is just announced, surprised an insurgent camp at Rognman, the enemy leaving thirteen killed, twenty wounded and a quantity of arms and ammunition on the field. The loss of the Spanish is alleged to have been insignificant.

Money to Move Farm Products.

A canvass of the leading banks of New York shows that large sums of money are being shipped daily to help move the crops. One of the deposit institutions has sent $100,000 since the middle of last week, and orders are still coming in. The sub-treasury at New York has not had as many currency orders as usual, but this is ascribed to the lateness of crops in the Southwest.

Altogether it is estimated that fully $5,000,000 of crop money has been shipped during the past fortnight. The Southern creditors are in better shape just now than they have been in several years, and the general outlook in this section and the Southwest is unusually bright.

Capers of a Chair.

A Methodist campmeeting at Donaldsonville, Ga., was electrified one night last week by the capers of a chair. Rev. Robert Kerr had just arisen to begin his sermon when the chair upon which he had been sitting rose to a height above the heads of those present and moved slowly around in zig zag fashion, finally returning to its place. The reverend gentleman paused in his remarks to witness the unusual sight, and E. C. Mosely, one of the pillars of the church, arose and declared that this was one of the signs foretold which indicated the coming of the judgment. Other preachers have been sent for to keep up the revival.

Mail Route to the Klondyke.

The first letter by mail to be dispatched from this country to the Klondike region under the new reciprocal arrangement with Canada, effected by establishing an international exchange between Dyea and Dawson City, will be forwarded from Skaguay by a steamer leaving there on September 15. From that time forward letter mail will go over the route regularly once a month. The last opportunity to send newspapers and reading material generally into the gold region until next spring will be afforded by the "paper mail," the last of the season, which will be forwarded by steamer leaving San Francisco September 5.

Howell Cobb Killed.

Howell Cobb, son of Capt. John A. Cobb, of Americus, Ga., and grandson of General Howell Cobb, at one time Speaker of the House of Representatives and Secretary of the Treasury in Buchanan's cabinet, was instantly killed Thursday by the explosion of an engine on his plantation near Americus, Ga.

He was 27 years old, and leaves a wife and two children.

Bailey Not a Candidate.

J. W. Bailey, congressman from the Fifth district, has authorized the announcement that he will not become a candidate for a seat in the senate to succeed Senator Mills. He has been advised to take this step and to again stand for re-election to the lower house and lead the democratic forces again. His friends over the state believe, if the congress is democratic, he will be the next speaker, as honor Texas would like to see one of her sons receive.

INCURABLE DISEASES.

THE LIST DECREASES AS THE KNOWLEDGE OF SCIENCE INCREASES.

Story of a Man Who Was Given Up to Die by Seven Physicians—He Follows the Advice of a Friend and is Now a Well Man —A Wonderful Story.

From the Leader, Morrisville, N. Y.

"Yonder is a man," said the farmer to a reporter, "who is the talk of this community."

"He is Mr. William Woodman, of South Hamilton, Madison Co., N. Y.," a well-to-do farmer, who is well known and stands high for honesty and thrift in this neighborhood.

On the following day the newspaper man called on Mr. Woodman in his comfortable, old-fashioned farm house.

"I have had serious thoughts of writing an account for the newspapers myself," said Mr. Woodman, "but as I am not accustomed to such work, I have never attempted it. Sit down and I will tell you all about it.

"I am fifty-nine years old. I contracted rheumatism when only fourteen years of age, then a severe cold from over exertion and from becoming over heated. My father was a farmer and insisted that the only way to make me strong was to do plenty of hard work. When, however, he saw me helpless in bed for six long months without being able to move except with help, he changed his mind, and forever after believed that children should not be made to do men's work. My growth was stopped by suffering, and I do not think I am an inch taller than that day, forty-five years ago. During the forty years ensuing after my misfortune, I was attended by seven doctors. I received temporary relief at times, from new forms of treatment, but always relapsed into a worse and more aggravated condition. The conclusion of all these gentlemen was that I was incurable, and all they could do was to ease my condition. After I grew to manhood I married and have been blessed with a family. My dear wife has had all the drudgery of nursing and waiting upon me, and the burden has been indeed hard to bear.

"Without hope from physicians I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which was highly recommended by my friends. I took them and within one week began to feel better than I had since I was first afflicted. I took these pills according to directions, and when the box was nearly gone I went over to Brookfield to an old friend who was in the drug business, named Dr. Aurelius Fitch, who likewise was a great sufferer from rheumatism. The doctor and I ordered several boxes of Pink Pills in partnership, he from that time keeping them on sale. Well, I continued to take them according to directions for the next three years and steadily improved, gaining flesh and strength, until two years ago I was able to discontinue them, and now am as able bodied a man of my years as you will find. I ought to tell you that after I ordered the first box of pills the physician who was then attending me came in and I told him what I was doing. He said I was very foolish, that they would surely injure me, and it was his duty to tell me so. I told the doctor that I might as well die as to drag out a miserable existence, and so, notwithstanding his warnings, continued to take the pills. Thank God the doctor was not able to dissuade me, for to them I now ascribe all the comfort and happiness I have in this world. I have recommended them to hundreds of people since I was cured, and in every case they have been effective, not only in rheumatism but in numerous other disorders, especially impoverishment of the blood, heart trouble and kidney disease.

"I certify the above statement to be true, and if necessary will swear to the same before a Notary Public."

WILLIAM WOODMAN.

When Mr. Woodman had signed and delivered the above paper to the reporter, he said: "If I were you I would go and call on Mr. Amos Jaquays, at Columbus Centre, to whom I recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for aggravated kidney disease. He is now in perfect health. I have no doubt he will be glad to testify to the efficacy of the remedy that cured him."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

Some idea of what it costs Great Britain to keep up some of its colonies may be had from the report on Bermuda. Bermuda contains only about 10,000 acres, and but one-quarter of this is under cultivation. It is used principally as a coaling and naval station. It has a public debt of $230,000. Its revenue was in 1896 but $150,000 and the expenses exceeded this by several thousand dollars. This was not counting the naval appropriation, amounting to $500,000. This is paying pretty dear for the honor of ruling the wave.

THE FRAUD ENJOINED.

Report of Decree—The Famous $50,000 Trade-mark Case Decided—C. P. Simmons Medicine Company, St. Louis, Defeats J. H. Zeilin & Co., Philadelphia.

[From St. Louis Republic, July 4, 1897.]

The Supreme Court of Tennessee on June 30 decided the most important trade-mark case that has ever been tried in that State and one of the largest ever tried in the Union, affirming and enlarging the opinion of the court below. The court held:

1. That Dr. M. A. Simmons, the predecessor of complainant, by extensive advertising of his celebrated remedy known as "Simmons Liver Medicine," made it a standard remedy for liver disease long prior to the acquisition by J. H. Zeilin & Co. of any rights.

2. That the assignor of J. H. Zeilin & Co., through whom they claimed the right to make the frauds put up in packages enjoined, never derived any title from A. Q. Simmons to make the medicine or to use his name or picture, and that such use by Zeilin & Co. is a fraud upon the public, and is therefore enjoined.

3. That Zeilin & Co. purposely, fraudulently labeled their medicine in imitation of complainant's medicine to unfairly appropriate the trade of the Simmons Medicine Company, and the execution of this fraudulent purpose and act is enjoined.

4. Enjoined Zeilin & Co. from using their competitor's trade-name, trade-marks, or symbols, or any imitations thereof, to deceive the public and unfairly appropriate to themselves the trade of the C. P. Simmons Medicine Co.

5. Enjoined Zeilin & Co., from deceiving and practicing a fraud upon the public by the sale of packages thus falsely labeled, either upon orders or calls for the genuine "Simmons Liver Medicine" of complainant, or in any package thus falsely labeled.

6. The court stated that it was the purpose of the court to entirely destroy the fraudulently labeled packages above described, and cause their removal from the market, and ordered Zeilin & Co. to deliver to the clerk to be destroyed, all cuts, dies, electrotypes, engravings and other paraphernalia used in impressing either of the above names or the picture of A. Q. Simmons.

9. Decreed that Zeilin & Co. pay all the damages which have accrued to complainant by the sale of these fraudulently labeled packages. The damages claimed by complainant were $60,000.

10. Decreed that Zeilin & Co. pay all the costs, which amount to several thousand dollars, the record being one of the largest ever filed in the Supreme Court."

Cheap Medicine.

As a rule, "cheap medicine" is inert, worthless, or dangerous. In Zeilin & Co.'s answer to our bill they said the packages enjoined were designed as "cheap negro medicine for the negroes of the Mississippi Valley." Now, as Zeilin & Co.'s advertisements say, and their manager swore, that all the liver medicine which they make is made by the same formula, it is not conclusive evidence from their sworn testimony and advertisements, that all the liver medicine emanating from them is "Cheap Negro Medicine?" Question: Do the sick of America despite "Cheap Negro Medicine?" Let the sufficient answer be by their future purchases. Dr. M. A. Simmons' Liver Medicine, established in 1840, is not "cheap medicine." It is "no cure all," and is only recommended for those indisposition one caused by inactivity of the liver.

NO. 47.

VOL. V. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1897.

The New York Herald has been furnished with further data concerning the tablets said to have been found at Nineveh under the ruins of the great palace of Sennacherib by Professor Smith, the distinguished English Assyriologist. These discoveries, we are told, confirm rather than contradict the statement of the Bible, and do not shake the historical foundation of the Book of Genesis. Dr. Hilprecht, of the University of Pennsylvania, who is credited with being the greatest cuneiform scholar of the day, says that no discovery has yet been made that shook his faith in any historical statement in the Bible.

Many inquiries are being made as to the possibility of getting into the Klondike country during the coming fall and winter, states the New York Tribune. The answer may be unhesitatingly given. It would be folly to attempt to get in at such times. Those who are now on their way may get in, though it is believed that not more than half of them will. To attempt the trip after this month would be almost as hazardous as a journey to the North Pole.

Bicycles are not yet very common in Spain. The authors of "Sketches Awheel in Modern Iberia" were constantly frightening animals and angering their owners; in one case a murderous assault by a drunken driver was narrowly averted. The writers comment on the noisiness of Spanish towns, the badness of country roads, the beauties of the scenery, and so forth. Postal affairs do not seem to improve at all. The writers mailed from Granada seven small articles to the post in other countries, and only one of them reached its destination, and this was but a sample of their experiences.

The New York Herald remarks: Science is at work on some difficult pattern, and up to date it has made a good record as a miracle worker. We are living in an exceptional epoch and the word impossible will very soon be expunged from the dictionary. Tesla tells us that he can telegraph without wires. He has been at work on the problem for a long while and has at last solved it. We are on the threshold of great changes, and every man who didn't die fifty years ago ought to shake hands with himself. There are two puzzles which remain. Somebody must discover the secret of the fish's sail, which puts our best propeller to shame as a sort of stage coach affair, and then we shall have rapid transit across the ocean with a vengeance. Some one else must find the secret of the bird's wing, and then we shall have airships for passengers and merchandise. When we have made these two discoveries and applied them we shall look for the millennium.

David R. Brackett, who recently returned to his old home in Portland, Me., after a residence of many years in Alaska, claims that he is the man who found the first nugget of gold in what is now known all over the world as the Klondike region. Brackett went to Alaska in 1877, and for a long time divided his energies between running a sawmill at Sitka and buying furs of the Indians. To carry on the latter industry he made long trips into the interior on foot, and in the course of them he kept open an attentive but not very hopeful eye for signs of gold. It was while on one of these journeys in 1879," he says, "that I found the nugget. I had crossed the great backbone of the Alaskan mountain range and traversed the valley where Circle City, Fort Cudahy, Dawson City and Klondike have since been built. Today I camped on the ledges above what I am sure is now called Bonanza Creek. Two of my Indian guides came with furs at 10 o'clock that night, and I traded with them. Then, as it was still light, I walked down to the mouth of the creek, and there picked up a stone which had gold in it. I looked around for more, but, not finding any, I put the stone in my pouch and did not think much more about the matter. Later, at Sitka, I showed the nugget to an old miner, who offered me $75 for it. I took the money, but wouldn't tell where I found the gold. I went up the Yukon in 1881 and tried to locate my creek again, but failed. Clarence Berry, of Fresno, Cal., went up the river in 1890, and, I suppose, located near Klondike and Bonanza Creek. He and Frank Phiscator, but I have always claimed that I picked up the first nugget on Bonanza Creek." Brackett declares that the mountains on the American side of the line are the real backbone of the range, and that all the creeks and tributaries of the Yukon River are full of gold. There, he thinks, is the real source of the gold streak that reaches down through California.

BUSINESS INTERESTS.

SHRINKING PRICES THE RUIN OF TRADE.

The Gold Standard Destroys the Average Business Man as Well as the Farmer—Free Silver Would Benefit the Vast Majority.

The greatest mystery of the age is why business men, not gold gamblers or railroad wreckers and reorganizers, desire to limit the standard money of the country to the shrinking volume of gold. All intelligent men understand that the money in circulation and the property for sale are reciprocally the supply and demand for each other, and that general prices rise or fall with the increase or decrease of the money in circulation as compared with population and business. Theoretically, everybody understands that a shrinking volume of circulating medium produces falling prices; and, in addition to the recognized theory, the practical effect of cutting off one of the money metals, and confining the print or stamp of the government to gold alone, has more than doubled the purchasing power of money and diminished general prices more than one-half.

Every merchant and business man who buys commodities to sell again is compelled to sustain a loss in the shrinkage of value or market price of his goods while on hand. More than one-half of the value of goods generally has disappeared in the last twenty years, and every man who had commodities in his possession during that time was compelled to sustain his share of the loss, says the Silver Knight-Watchman. The effect of falling prices embarrasses the business man in many ways. It destroys the capacity of his customers to buy and pay cash, and makes the extension of credit extra hazardous on account of the difficulty men have in disposing of their property or services to obtain money with which to pay their debts. The business men of the United States who have accumulated property by honest industry have been harassed, impoverished, and many of them thrown into bankruptcy, by falling prices occasioned by scarcity of money.

If the business men, who are the greatest sufferers on account of the difficulty of contending against falling prices, would examine the question of enlarging the volume of circulation by returning to the usages of all the ages previous to 1873, and unite in an effort to obtain relief, prosperity would surely follow. It is through the service which gold gamblers, bondholders, stock jobbers and railroad wreckers obtain from business men that the gold standard has been fastened upon this country. We realize how difficult it is for men engaged in enterprise of any kind to differ with the banking institutions with which they do business. They do not realize that those institutions which are not in the hands of the wreckers and extortionists, float along with or follow the bank syndicates of New York and London, which are engaged in purely speculative or wrecking operations.

Legitimate banking cannot thrive while the people suffer from falling prices. Falling prices make it unprofitable to borrow money at any rate of interest, because falling prices destroy the profits of business. Falling prices also destroy securities and make the loaning of money extra hazardous. If the legitimate bankers of the United States would rid themselves of the paramount influence of the great banking syndicate who make money by speculation and not by legitimate banking, they would find it to their interest to advocate a sufficient volume of money to enable the community in general to prosper. The banks are engaged in the loaning of money, and the loanable value of money must necessarily fall with the price of other property. In ordinarily good times the people will borrow all the money the banks have, at from six to eight per cent interest, and use the same to accumulate wealth. At the present time no man can use money to create wealth, because he must first invest in property, and the fall in the price of property will destroy all his gains; consequently the rate of interest has fallen about one-half. Choice loans on gilt-edge securities are in demand at from two and a half to four per cent, and even what is called gilt-edge security today is liable to go to the bad next year.

No legitimate bankers are as much interested in restoring the volume of money, so as to secure stability of prices and prosperity, as the balance of the community. The number of persons really interested in falling prices and wrecking fortunes is comparatively small, perhaps not one-half of one per cent of the population of the country. Take, for example, people engaged in reorganizing railroad companies, which is confiscation of property rights by railroad wrecking. A railroad is allowed by the management to become indebted for current expenses. Suit is brought, a receiver appointed, and the road sold under the order of the court requiring that the current expenses shall be first paid. This requires a lump sum of money, sometimes not very large, but large enough to make it impossible for any body outside of the pool to pay them off and get possession of the road. The pool furnishes the ready cash, pays the judgment and such of the indebtedness as is held by the pool for their friends. Outsiders, whether holding stocks or bonds, are ruled out. The reorganization committee, as it is generally called, take a commission of several millions for the reorganization, and then issue to themselves and their associates new stocks and bonds which are said to be on bed rock. The stocks and bonds are sold, and when the community has bought and paid for them the road is ready for a new reorganization.

They have reorganized out of the railroad companies in the last five years a vast amount of stocks and bonds, variously estimated at from two to four thousand millions of dollars. These stocks and bonds, thus repudiated, belonged to honest investors, many of them calling themselves business men. What interest had they in a system which contracted the volume of money, and produced the falling prices which caused the wreck of the railroads in which they were interested, and confiscated their holdings? We are aware that the trembling and terror-stricken debtors who are compelled by the great wrecking, banking syndicates, to assist in making money scarce and dear against their own interests, are not, strictly speaking, free agents. They are not responsible for the wrongs they are compelled to commit upon themselves. They are similarly situated to a convicted gentleman Japanese in former times who was given the option to commit hari kari by disemboweling himself or to be ignominiously slaughtered and his property confiscated.

But there are a vast number of bankers and business men who are not really dependent upon the smiles of these great money gambling syndicates, and who could unite with the great mass of the people, restore the money of the constitution, and secure happiness and prosperity for the American people. We appeal to them to study the question of a shrinking volume of money and falling prices; study it theoretically and study it practically. The object lessons of the results of contraction are everywhere visible, and everyone who will reflect will realize that it is not twenty years of profound peace and abundant harvests, but contraction of the money volume, which has produced universal distress.

THE POPULIST FIELD.

Congressman Sulzer, of New York, who is the only representative the real people have from the far East, introduced, during the last session of Congress, a bill for the foreclosure of the Pacific Railroad mortgages and the operation of said roads by the government. This would be a terrific blow at the railroad trust, and when Congress convenes in December the popular demand for the passage of the Sulzer bill ought to be demonstrated by long petitions.

There is an editor up in the country, says the Grand Rapids Workman, who flaunts before his readers a prosperity sheet, by the way, a species of literary production which has had a great run since Hanna took charge of the trusts and the country. This editor is owing a number of bills payable in this city, which has been the cause of much anxiety on the part of his creditors. The letters that he has written to his creditors and the slop he has been giving his readers are as far apart as the two poles. He tells them in his letters that business is simply rotten; that there is no business and no sign of any, no money moving, not a dollar in sight, and that the country has gone to ruin, but in his paper—oh, my, what a sweet song he gives them! Just for all the world, like the Herald and Press and the rest of the jabber-wobber sheets.

The fact is, this newly restored prosperity reaches only the wealth-appropriators and fails to benefit the wealth-producers. The Chicago Express says: "The press is filled with wonderful stories of Western prosperity and reports of mortgages paid off and canceled in the States of South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas. There is no doubt some truth in the fact that people are working hard to get out of debt, but the thousands of people who have been crushed by the grinding processes of contraction are not taken into account in these reports. Of the millions of indebtedness canceled, most of it was done by the sheriff and the land is now occupied by tenants.

That eighty cents for wheat is made payable in gold, too.—Pioneer Press. Aber nit. The farmers will never get one-tenth of one per cent. of it in gold. —Journal of the Knights of Labor.

And where is the farmer who is getting 80 cents per bushel (even in "40-cent" silver dollars) for his wheat? The farmer has to pay the freight, remember.

Ignatius Donnelly used to tell a story, on the stump, about the farmer who was stopped on his way home by a highwayman, who clapped a pistol to his head and took every cent he had. As the robber was stowing away the money in his pocket he asked the farmer:

"How did you get this money?"

"I sold a load of wheat," replied the agriculturist.

"Then, my friend," replied the highwayman, "I would advise you to diversify your industry. Raise hogs. There's money in hogs."

But what assurance had the farmer that the robber would not despoil him of the money he got for his hogs?

Theft on a Large Scale.

There is today an element of theft on a gigantic scale prevalent everywhere among men, honored by the world and sanctioned by the church. This theft is the act of depriving men of the free blessings of nature. It is theft, robbery and gambling all in one. —Rev. J. S. David.

The best strength of a man is shown in his intellectual work, as that of a woman in her daily deed and character.

TELEGRAPH RATES.

ACTION ALONG STATE LINES IS ADVISABLE.

How to Reach the Oppressive Telegraph Monopoly—Work for the Establishment of a Public Postal Telegraph.

The Times-Democrat of New Orleans of recent date says: The good work has begun. The North Carolina Railroad Commission last week reduced the rates on telegraphic messages within the state to fifteen cents for ten words, the reduction to take effect September 1st. That is, a telegram can be sent, after September 1st from any point in North Carolina to any other point in the state for fifteen cents, a reduction of from 40 to 70 per cent on the present rates.

This is on the line suggested some time ago, that the best way to deal with this monopoly is to attack it through the undoubted right of the states to fix telegraph tolls within their limits. When the power of the company has thus been crippled, and its exorbitant profits cut down, it will be an easy matter to secure an act from congress providing for the Federal control of the telegraph. It was in this way that we secured the interstate commerce law. Congress would never have passed that law had not the states taken the initiative, created railroad commissions and proved that state regulation was in the interest of the public and necessary for its protection from extortion, oppression and favoritism on the part of the railroad companies. By the by, the railroad owners shouted "Populism" then as the Western Union's friends are doing to-day.

When it is shown that the states can control the telegraph and fix the rates of the telegraph tolls, and that it is to the public advantage for them to do so, preventing gross spoliation and robbery, there will be little difficulty in getting favorable action from congress, either in fixing rates, or, better still, in establishing a postal telegraph; for while a reduction in rates is one of the improvements we need in the telegraph, it is not the only one.

The action of the North Carolina Commission in reducing the telegraphic tolls in that state is all the more gratifying for the reason that the Western Union made a fight against it; but as we have frequently shown, whenever this question is brought up for discussion and action, the inevitable conclusion is reached that the present service is poor, and the rates charged exorbitant. This is why the Western Union is afraid to have the matter discussed, for the discussion always results to its disadvantage.

In the North Carolina legislature a bill was introduced at the last session fixing the telegraph rate at fifteen cents between any two points in the state. The Western Union sent its lobby down to Raleigh to watch the work, and the bill was beaten by exactly one vote, so closely did the lobby calculate its strength and use its victory. But it was a barren victory, for the State Railroad Commission has the right to fix telegraph rates, and it did so last week, making the tolls exactly what the legislature had proposed. The Western Union could not get in its work this time.

Although the reduction in the telegraph rate in North Carolina is very encouraging, being a cut of 40 to 70 per cent on existing rates, it is not oppressive; the Railroad Commission has left a very handsome margin of profit, as the following table of charges in other countries for telegrams show:

	Telegraph rate Cents.
Great Britain	12
France	10
Germany	12
Belgium	10
Switzerland	12
Austria	11

The Western Union can afford to send a telegram in North Carolina cheaper than the government can do in any of these countries. The state (North Carolina) has a much smaller area than the several European countries, save Switzerland and Belgium. It is only one-fifth the size of France, where the toll is only ten cents for all parts of the country. When we consider, further, that railroad and all similar rates are cheaper in this country per mile than in Europe, the natural conclusion is reached that the Western Union can operate its lines more cheaply here. Thus the North Carolina Commission would not have been guilty of any hardship had it fixed the rate at ten cents instead of fifteen, but in giving the latter rate it probably wished to prevent the telegraph company from having an excuse for the wretched starvation wages it pays its employes—not its favored employes, like its president, who gets $100,000 a year, twice as much as the President of the United States, but its unfortunate operators, whom it had so ground down since the failure of the big strike a few years ago.

The action of the North Carolina Commission is the beginning of the good work that will restore this government function to the Postoffice Department, enable the people to utilize it, and to get the same rapid postal facilities for electric mail through the telegraph which the people of every country in the world enjoy.

Roaring Gently.

The cry of some of the New York papers against the "silver craze" is less like the roar of a lion than it was a year ago.—Silver Knight-Watchman.

POINTS FROM THE PRESS.

Our short-sighted financiers have been contributing to England's hoarding by the demonetization of silver in 1873. During the twenty-four years of silver's degradation John Bull has added millions to his wealth, while the United States has been forced to vote bonds to keep her head above water. It is to be hoped that the people will come to their senses sufficiently in 1900 to vote silver back to its lawful position as a basic money.—Fort Collins Argus.

Let the law call it what it may, the forfeiture by the Pennsylvania coal companies of the earned but unpaid wages of the striking miners is a species of theft in comparison with which the holding up of railroad trains is high-grade industry, and the men who do it are thieves with whom a sneak thief should be ashamed to associate.—Cleveland Recorder.

Don't say it is human nature to monopolize land while thousands are denied the right of homes. There is nothing human about it; it is inhuman. It is hog nature, not yet civilized or Christianized out of humanity or its laws and institutions.—New Dispensation.

Prosperity which is haunted by the ghosts of starved millions in other lands is not the kind of prosperity that the American people desire. Moreover, such prosperity is bound to be temporary, for even a gold champion, great though he be in promising, can scarcely give us the assurance that there will always be general crop failures in India and Argentine and short crops in Europe. But, even now, with famine abroad and plenty of tariff at home, we have nothing like genuine prosperity. Merely a temporary rise of wheat and a flurry of speculation in Wall street.—National Bimetallist, Washington, D. C.

There was a time when they (gold standard papers) fiercely contended that the value of gold was invariable, or, as they choose to put it, "a gold dollar is always worth a gold dollar," but some day it will dawn upon them that a gold dollar which will only purchase a bushel of wheat is not so near valuable as a gold dollar which will purchase two bushels. In short, when they admit that the Klondyke finds may have an effect on prices they abandon the contention that gold has fixity of value and accept the quantitative theory to which all the great economists have adhered.—Mendocino Beacon.

Poverty is a curse which aggravates every affliction which visits mankind. In sickness, its presence makes a home a den of wretchedness; in death, a chamber of ghastly horror; in sorrow, a waste of utter desolation. It robs love of its sweetness, and tears asunder the dearest ties of humanity. It blights warm, young, joyous life, withers youth and mocks old age. In storm and cold, in heat and draught, they with whom poverty dwells must suffer a hundred-fold. When a torrid flood poured over the land, it was the children of the poor who gasped away their lives in agony, the mothers who faltered and fell at their duties, the fathers who went mad and died, all were victims of poverty. Yet it is so useless, so unnecessary. The bounteous earth never bade it come; it is but a hideous specture, conjured up by a man's inhumanity to man.—Industrial Advocate.

A railroad detective who travels almost constantly between Chicago and Cleveland reports that the number of tramps now on the road exceeds anything he has ever seen. He says that it is not fair to call them tramps, for they appear to be mechanics and laborers out of employment. The detective in question makes the almost incredible statement that he counted 197 tramps on one freight train as it left Grand Crossing last Tuesday night.—Pueblo Courier.

The Omaha Labor Bulletin has some valuable figures as to the vast commercial mortality of business men by comparing the directories of that city for 1887 and 1897. In 1887 there were 569 business firms in operation in eighteen lines of business, of which 446 went out of business in the ten years. Yet it is "business men" who, for supposed business reasons, are the main props of commercial and financial systems which force them by wholesale into chronic bankruptcy.—San Francisco Star.

Legislation Unnecessary.

It's getting to be government by injunction. Might as well do away with all forms of legislation and allow those occupying judicial positions to make the laws, as many of them appear to be usurping this authority at the present time.—Durango Herald.

Only he who lives a life of his own can help the lives of the other men.

JUDICIAL DESPOTISM.

A FIGHT MUST BE MADE AGAINST IT.

Government by Injunction Has Superseded Government by the People Because the People Neglected Their Interests.

It is reported that in Kansas the People's party is to make the encroachments of the judiciary upon the liberties of the people a leading issue in future campaigns. At present the judges are chiefly of plutocratic extraction, and, naturally decide cases in the interest of those of their own class.

This is not the fault of the judges; it is the fault of the people who vote for them. Our party judges would not institute a tyranny by injunction, and this fact it will certainly do well to explain to the present and future sufferers from judge-made law.

The Twentieth Century says that the labor leaders also have reached the conclusion that government by injunction ought to be made an issue in the congressional elections of next year. In this decision they display great wisdom. If there is any political question that is vital to the welfare of labor on the American continent, and it may be said without exaggeration to the welfare of the human race, it is this one of government by injunction. The federal judiciary have, since the gigantic strike of 1894, completely changed the nature of our institutions by their usurpation of power. The most eminent heritage of the Anglo-Saxon race, that of freedom of speech and assemblage, has been reduced to a mere nullity. In no other country on the globe has liberty been converted into so monstrous a sham. It is to John P. Altgeld that we owe the first intimation of the danger we incur in this regard, and the events of the last few months have vindicated the justice of his position. The laboring classes of the country owe it to themselves to take up this question and push it to a final settlement. Until this is done it is useless to expect any true freedom for the masses.

The plans of the labor leaders have not been made public in full as yet, says the Twentieth century, but they are known to comprise an appeal to the country against the policy of the judges in uniting to break up every strike in which a great corporation is involved. The scenes and incidents, connected with the present coal mine strike, are in themselves a sufficient argument for the men. The sympathies of the people have been aroused as they never were before, and it is safe to say that government by injunction would be abolished tomorrow if the people had a voice with reference to it. The congressional elections are the proper occasion to make the sentiment against judicial corruption felt.

Every candidate for congress should be sounded on this issue, and if he fails to explain himself satisfactorily he ought not to get the vote of any workingman. It is true that the lower branch of congress can not do anything of any great matter. If it passes a law against government by injunction and it goes through the senate and is signed by the president, the judges can declare it null and void, and since it concerns themselves they probably will. Or the house of representatives may impeach the more grossly corrupt of the federal judiciary, but the senate is so capitalistic and monopoly ridden that it would be impossible to get the necessary two-thirds vote to convict them. Here we have another evidence of the manner in which our constitution works. Its mechanism is such that abuses cannot be corrected if they operate in favor of the rich and powerful. But, in spite of these drawbacks, a vigorous assertion in congress of the rights of the Anglo-Saxon race to freedom of speech will do much to check the usurpations of the judges.

But the way to get at the root of the trouble is to carry the fight into every judicial election, and get the state judges on the side of the people; then elect a president who will appoint real Americans to the federal judgeships.

Elevation of Gold.

There are reports of gold strikes and discoveries all over the world. This is but the natural outcome of the policy that has prevailed during the past decade, says the Silver Knight-Watchman. The price of the great product gold, has been so advanced that brain and labor is seeking it all over the world. It will continue to be so sought as long as the return is proportionately greater in mining gold than iron, lead, coal, silver, or the raising of wheat or other produce. This is the fact. Gold is being enhanced in price by law above all other things, while the price of all other things is being reduced. All the labor and all the productions of man and the earth are being depreciated in order to elevate the commodity, gold, which commodity is owned and controlled by a few bankers and stock jobbers.

Public Spirit Waning.

Land grants which would disgrace a nation of tigers, and land laws hardly worthy of hell, put in the hands of the Northern Pacific landlords the whip to drive out several hundred settlers in Oregon, who have made extensive improvements. Public spirit has waned too much to permit of resistance to these bandits.—San Francisco Star.

ELEVATING THE MASSES.

Why the Universal Trust Will Not Be Advertised.

"We have met this evening," remarked the princely J. Pierpont Morgan, as he stretched himself out upon a divan in the luxurious cabin of the yacht Corsair, "in order to discuss measures for the uplifting of the masses."

"I am very glad to hear it," remarked John D. Rockefeller, "for the uplifting of the masses has been the aspiration of my youth and is the hope of my declining years."

"But how are we going to uplift the masses?" inquired Cornelius Vanderbilt. "They seem to think we are their natural enemies, and to look upon our colossal fortunes as a monstrous evil."

"You have touched upon the vital feature of the whole matter," said Colonel John Jacob Astor. "The masses can never be lifted up until they are taught to believe that men like ourselves can alone lift them up."

"The very thing I was going to say myself," declared George J. Gould, "and hence I have caused to be prepared a pamphlet setting forth the great advantages to the people from the present management of the Western Union Telegraph Company."

"How great minds do run in the same channel!" exclaimed John D. Rockefeller. "I have had a pamphlet prepared in which the blessings conferred upon the country by the Standard Oil Company are made as plain as day."

"Excellent!" said Cauncey M. Depew, "and I shall do the same thing with reference to the Vanderbilt railroads. I shudder to think of the awful consequences that might have ensued had not the Vanderbilt railroads been under their present management during the past two generations."

"The whole point of this matter," said the princely J. Pierpont Morgan, "is that the poor do not trust the rich."

"We'll soon be rid of that difficulty," remarked John Jacob Astor. "Thank God, there are enough Senators and Governors left to teach the people that great corporations and vast combinations of wealth are enormous advantages to the poor."

"Efforts must be made," put in John D. Rockefeller, "to create a popular demand in favor of one grand trust that shall own and operate everything."

"Good!" exclaimed Chauncey M. Depew. "How happy the masses would be if a single trust controlled all the railroads, all the oil, all the sugar, all the tobacco—in a word, the whole country."

"I would suggest," said Cornelius Vanderbilt, "that we proceed to the formation of such a trust right away."

"But who shall be members of that trust?" inquired the princely J. Pierpont Morgan.

"Ourselves!" said William C. Whitney.

"Hold on a minute," interjected the princely J. Pierpont Morgan. "Suppose we form this grand trust and try to uplift the masses by means of it. Don't you know that the blatherskites and demagogues will immediately say that all the people ought to have an equal interest in it? A movement will be started to let everybody in on the ground floor."

"That is simply horrible to think of!" said Colonel Astor.

"We can get out of that difficulty very easily," observed Doctor Depew.

"How?" asked William C. Whitney.

"We can organize the grand trust," replied Doctor Depew, "and say nothing about it."

"Just so," said John D. Rockefeller.

"Count me in," declared George J. Gould. "I am a friend of the masses, and I am for anything that will lift them up."

"Hurrah for the masses!" shouted the princely J. Pierpont Morgan.

There was a unanimous outburst of cheers and hand-clappings and the gentlemen present were so profoundly moved that it took several cases of champagne to do justice to their feelings.—Twentieth Century.

Gen. John A. Logan's Prophecy.

I, for one, can see benefit only to the money holder and those who receive interest and have fixed incomes. I can see, as a result of this legislation, our business operation crippled and wages for labor reduced to a mere pittance. I can see the beautiful prairies of my own state and of the great west, which are blooming as gardens, with cheerful homes rising like white towers along the pathway of improvement, again sinking back to idleness. I can see mortgage fiends at their hellish work. I can see the hopes of the industrious farmers blasted as they burn corn for fuel because its price will not pay the cost of transportation and dividends on millions of dollars of fictitious railway stocks and bonds. I can see our people of the west groaning and burdened under taxation to pay debts of states, counties and cities incurred when money was more abundant and bright hopes of the future were held out to lead them on. I can see the people of our western states, who are producers, reduced to the condition of serfs to pay interest on public and private debts to the money sharks of Wall street, New York, and of Threadneedle street, in London.—From a speech in the senate on withdrawal of treasury notes.

THE BANNER.

Let the people rule

NO. 47.

VOL. V. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1897.

The New York Herald has been furnished with further data concerning the tablets said to have been found at Nineveh, under the ruins of the great palace of Sennacherib by Professor Smith, the distinguished English Assyriologist. These discoveries, we are told, confirm rather than contradict the statement of the Bible, and do not shake the historical foundation of the Book of Genesis. Dr. Hilprecht, of the University of Pennsylvania, who is credited with being the greatest cuneiform scholar of the day, says that no discovery has yet been made that shook his faith in any historical statement in the Bible.

Many inquiries are being made as to the possibility of getting into the Klondike country during the coming fall and winter, states the New York Tribune. The answer may be unhesitatingly given: It would be folly to attempt to get in at such times. Those who are now on their way may get in, though it is believed that not more than half of them will. To attempt the trip after this month would be almost as hazardous as a journey to the North Pole.

Bicycles are not yet very common in Spain. The authors of "Sketches Afoot in Modern Iberia" were constantly frightening animals and angering their owners; in one case a murderous assault by a drunken driver was narrowly averted. The writers comment on the noisiness of Spanish towns, the badness of country roads, the beauties of the scenery, and so forth. Postal affairs do not seem to improve at all. The writers mailed from Granada seven small articles to the post in other countries, and only one of them reached its destination, and this was but a sample of their experiences.

The New York Herald remarks: Science is at work on some difficult matters, and up to date it has made a good record as a miracle worker. We are living in an exceptional epoch and the word impossible will very soon be expunged from the dictionary. Tesla tells us that he can telegraph without wires. He has been at work on the problem for a long while and has at last solved it. We are on the threshold of great changes, and every man who didn't die fifty years ago ought to shake hands with himself. There are no puzzles which remain. Somebody must discover the secret of the fish's tail, which puts our best propeller to shame as a sort of stage coach affair, and then we shall have rapid transit across the ocean with a vengeance. Some one else must find the secret of the bird's wing, and then we shall have airships for passengers and merchandise. When we have made these two discoveries and applied them we shall look for the millennium.

David R. Brackett, who recently returned to his old home in Portland, Me., after a residence of many years in Alaska, claims that he is the man who found the first nugget of gold in what is now known all over the world as the Klondike region. Brackett went to Alaska in 1877, and for a long time divided his energies between running a sawmill at Sitka and buying furs of the Indians. To carry on the latter industry he made long trips into the interior on foot, and in the course of them he kept open an attentive but not very hopeful eye for signs of gold. "It was while on one of these journeys in 1879," he says, "that I found the nugget. I had crossed the great backbone of the Alaskan mountain range and traversed the valley where Circle City, Fort Cudahy, Dawson City and Fort Reliance have since been built. One day I camped on the ledges above what I am sure is now called Bonanza Creek. Two of my Indian guides came in with furs at 10 o'clock that night, and I traded with them. Then, as it was still light, I walked down to the mouth of the creek, and there picked up a stone which had gold in it. I looked around for more, but, not finding any, I put the stone in my pouch and did not think much more about the matter. Later, at Sitka, I showed the nugget to an old miner, who offered me $75 for it. I took the money, but wouldn't tell where I found the gold. I went up the Yukon in 1881 and tried to locate my creek again, but failed. Clarence Berry, of Fresno, Cal., went up the river in 1890, and, I suppose, located near Klondike and Bonanza Creek. He and Frank Phiscator, but I have always claimed that I picked up the first nugget on Bonanza Creek." Brackett declares that the mountains on the American side of the line are the real backbone of the range, and that all the creeks and tributaries of the Yukon River are full of gold. There, he thinks, is the real source of the gold streak that reaches down through California.

BUSINESS INTERESTS.

SHRINKING PRICES THE RUIN OF TRADE.

The Gold Standard Destroys the Average Business Man as Well as the Farmer—Free Silver Would Benefit the Vast Majority.

The greatest mystery of the age is why business men, not gold gamblers or railroad wreckers and reorganizers, desire to limit the standard money of the country to the shrinking volume of gold. All intelligent men understand that the money in circulation and the property for sale are reciprocally the supply and demand for each other, and that general prices rise or fall with the increase or decrease of the money in circulation as compared with population and business. Theoretically, everybody understands that a shrinking volume of circulating medium produces falling prices; and, in addition to the recognized theory, the practical effect of cutting off one of the money metals, and confining the print or stamp of the government to gold alone, has more than doubled the purchasing power of money and diminished general prices more than one-half.

Every merchant and business man who buys commodities to sell again is compelled to sustain a loss in the shrinkage of value or market price of his goods while on hand. More than one-half of the value of goods generally has disappeared in the last twenty years, and every man who had commodities in his possession during that time was compelled to sustain his share of the loss, says the Silver Knight-Watchman. The effect of falling prices embarrasses the business man in many ways. It destroys the capacity of his customers to buy and pay cash, and makes the extension of credit extra hazardous on account of the difficulty men have in disposing of their property or services to obtain money with which to pay their debts. The business men of the United States who have accumulated property by honest industry have been harassed, impoverished, and many of them thrown into bankruptcy, by falling prices occasioned by scarcity of money.

If the business men, who are the greatest sufferers on account of the difficulty of contending against falling prices, would examine the question of enlarging the volume of circulation by returning to the usages of all the ages previous to 1873, and unite in an effort to obtain relief, prosperity would surely follow. It is through the service which gold gamblers, bondholders, stock jobbers and railroad wreckers obtain from business men that the gold standard has been fastened upon this country. We realize how difficult it is for men engaged in enterprise of any kind to differ with the banking institutions with which they do business. They do not realize that those institutions which are not in the hands of the wreckers and extortionists, float along with or follow the bank syndicates of New York and London, which are engaged in purely speculative or wrecking operations.

Legitimate banking cannot thrive while the people suffer from falling prices. Falling prices make it unprofitable to borrow money at any rate of interest, because falling prices destroy the profits of business. Falling prices also destroy securities and make the loaning of money extra hazardous. If the legitimate bankers of the United States could rid themselves of the paramount influence of the great banking syndicate who make money by speculation and not by legitimate banking, they would find it to their interest to advocate a sufficient volume of money to enable the community in general to prosper. The banks are engaged in the loaning of money, and the loanable value of money must necessarily fall with the price of other property. In ordinarily good times the people will borrow all the money the banks have, at from six to eight per cent interest, and use the same to accumulate wealth. At the present time no man can use money to create wealth, because he must first invest in property, and the fall in the price of property will destroy all his gains; consequently the rate of interest has fallen about one-half. Choice loans on gilt-edge securities are in demand at from two and a half to four per cent, and even what is called gilt-edge security today is liable to go to the bad next year.

No legitimate bankers are as much interested in restoring the volume of money, so as to secure stability of prices and prosperity, as the balance of the community. The number of persons really interested in falling prices and wrecking fortunes is comparatively small, perhaps not one-half of one per cent of the population of the country. Take, for example, people engaged in reorganizing railroad companies, which is confiscation of property rights by railroad wrecking. A railroad is allowed by the management to become indebted for current expenses. Suit is brought, a receiver appointed, and the road sold under the order of the court requiring that the current expenses shall be first paid. This requires a lump sum of money, sometimes not very large, but large enough to make it impossible for anybody outside of the pool to pay them off and get possession of the road. The pool furnishes the ready cash, pays the judgment and such of the indebtedness as is held by the pool for their friends. Outsiders, whether holding stocks or bonds, are ruled out. The reorganization committee, as it is generally called, take a commission of several millions for the reorganization, and then issue to themselves and their associates new stocks and bonds which are said to be on bed rock. The stocks and bonds are sold, and when the community has bought and paid for them the road is ready for a new reorganization.

They have reorganized out of the railroad companies in the last five years a vast amount of stocks and bonds, variously estimated at from two to four thousand millions of dollars. These stocks and bonds, thus repudiated, belonged to honest investors, many of them calling themselves business men. What interest had they in a system which contracted the volume of money, and produced the falling prices which caused the wreck of the railroads in which they were interested, and confiscated their holdings? We are aware that the trembling and terror-stricken debtors who are compelled by the great wrecking, banking syndicates, to assist in making money scarce and dear against their own interests, are not, strictly speaking, free agents. They are not responsible for the wrongs they are compelled to commit upon themselves. They are similarly situated to a convicted gentleman Japanese in former times who was given the option to commit hari kari by disemboweling himself or to be ignominiously slaughtered and his property confiscated.

But there are a vast number of bankers and business men who are not really dependent upon the smiles of these great money gambling syndicates, and who could unite with the great mass of the people, restore the money of the constitution, and secure happiness and prosperity for the American people. We appeal to them to study the question of a shrinking volume of money and falling prices; study it theoretically and study it practically. The object lessons of the results of contraction are everywhere visible, and everyone who will reflect will realize that it is not twenty years of profound peace and abundant harvests, but contraction of the money volume, which has produced universal distress.

THE POPULIST FIELD.

Congressman Sulzer, of New York, who is the only representative the real people have from the far East, introduced, during the last session of Congress, a bill for the foreclosure of the Pacific Railroad mortgages and the operation of said roads by the government. This would be a terrific blow at the railroad trust, and when Congress convenes in December the popular demand for the passage of the Sulzer bill ought to be demonstrated by long petitions.

There is an editor up in the country, says the Grand Rapids Workman, who flaunts before his readers a prosperity sheet, by the way, a species of literary production which has had a great run since Hanna took charge of the trusts and the country. This editor is owing a number of bills payable in this city, which has been the cause of much anxiety on the part of his creditors. The letters that he has written to his creditors and the slop he has been giving his readers are as far apart as the two poles. He tells them in his letters that business is simply rotten; that there is no business and no sign of any, no money moving, not a dollar in sight, and that the country has gone to ruin, but in his paper—oh, my, what a sweet song he gives them! Just for all the world, like the Herald and Press and the rest of the jabber-wobber sheets.

The fact is, this newly restored prosperity reaches only the wealth-appropriators and fails to benefit the wealth-producers. The Chicago Express says: "The press is filled with wonderful stories of Western prosperity and reports of mortgages paid off and canceled in the States of South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas. There is no doubt some truth in the fact that people are working hard to get out of debt, but the thousands of people who have been crushed by the grinding processes of contraction are not taken into account in these reports. Of the millions of indebtedness canceled, most of it was done by the sheriff and the land is now occupied by tenants.

That eighty cents for wheat is made payable in gold, too.—Pioneer Press. Aber nit. The farmers will never get one-tenth of one per cent. of it in gold. —Journal of the Knights of Labor.

And where is the farmer who is getting 80 cents per bushel (even in "40-cent" silver dollars) for his wheat? The farmer has to pay the freight, remember.

Ignatius Donnelly used to tell a story, on the stump, about the farmer who was stopped on his way home by a highwayman, who clapped a pistol to his head and took every cent he had. As the robber was stowing away the money in his pocket he asked the farmer:

"How did you get this money?"

"I sold a load of wheat," replied the agriculturist.

"Then, my friend," replied the highwayman, "I would advise you to diversify your industry. Raise hogs. There's money in hogs."

But what assurance had the farmer that the robber would not despoil him of the money he got for his hogs?

Theft on a Large Scale.

There is today an element of theft on a gigantic scale prevalent everywhere among men, honored by the world and sanctioned by the church. This theft is the act of depriving men of the free blessings of nature. It is theft, robbery and gambling all in one. —Rev. J. S. David.

The best strength of a man is shown in his intellectual work, as that of a woman in her daily deed and character.

TELEGRAPH RATES.

ACTION ALONG STATE LINES IS ADVISABLE.

How to Reach the Oppressive Telegraph Monopoly—Work for the Establishment of a Public Postal Telegraph.

The Times-Democrat of New Orleans of recent date says: The good work has begun. The North Carolina Railroad Commission last week reduced the rates on telegraphic messages within the state to fifteen cents for ten words, the reduction to take effect September 1st. That is, a telegram can be sent, after September 1st from any point in North Carolina to any other point in the state for fifteen cents, a reduction of from 40 to 70 per cent on the present rates.

This is on the line suggested some time ago, that the best way to deal with this monopoly is to attack it through the undoubted right of the states to fix telegraph tolls within their limits. When the power of the company has thus been crippled, and its exorbitant profits cut down, it will be an easy matter to secure an act from congress providing for the Federal control of the telegraph. It was in this way that we secured the interstate commerce law. Congress would never have passed that law had not the states taken the initiative, created railroad commissions and proved that state regulation was in the interest of the public and necessary for its protection from extortion, oppression and favoritism on the part of the railroad companies. By the by, the railroad owners shouted "Populism" then as the Western Union's friends are doing to-day.

When it is shown that the states can control the telegraph and fix the rates of the telegraph tolls, and that it is to the public advantage for them to do so, preventing gross spoliation and robbery, there will be little difficulty in getting favorable action from congress, either in fixing rates, or, better still, in establishing a postal telegraph; for while a reduction in rates is one of the improvements we need in the telegraph, it is not the only one.

The action of the North Carolina Commission in reducing the telegraphic tolls in that state is all the more gratifying for the reason that the Western Union made a fight against it; but as we have frequently shown, whenever this question is brought up for discussion and action, the inevitable conclusion is reached that the present service is poor, and the rates charged exorbitant. This is why the Western Union is afraid to have the matter discussed, for the discussion always results to its disadvantage.

In the North Carolina legislature a bill was introduced at the last session fixing the telegraph rate at fifteen cents between any two points in the state. The Western Union sent its lobby down to Raleigh to watch the work, and the bill was beaten by exactly one vote, so closely did the lobby calculate its strength and use its victory. But it was a barren victory, for the State Railroad Commission has the right to fix telegraph rates, and it did so last week, making the tolls exactly what the legislature had proposed. The Western Union could not get in its work this time.

Although the reduction in the telegraph rate in North Carolina is very encouraging, being a cut of 40 to 70 per cent on existing rates, it is not oppressive; the Railroad Commission has left a very handsome margin of profit, as the following table of charges in other countries for telegrams show:

	Telegraph rate Cents.
Great Britain	12
France	10
Germany	12
Belgium	10
Switzerland	12
Austria	11

The Western Union can afford to send a telegram in North Carolina cheaper than the government can do in any of these countries. The state (North Carolina) has a much smaller area than the several European countries, save Switzerland and Belgium. It is only one-fifth the size of France, where the toll is only ten cents for all parts of the country. When we consider, further, that railroad and all similar rates are cheaper in this country per mile than in Europe, the natural conclusion is reached that the Western Union can operate its lines more cheaply here. Thus the North Carolina Commission would not have been guilty of any hardship had it fixed the rate at ten cents instead of fifteen, but in giving the latter rate it probably wished to prevent the telegraph company from having an excuse for the wretched starvation wages it pays its employes—not its favored employes, like its president, who gets $100,000 a year, twice as much as the President of the United States, but its unfortunate operators, whom it had so ground down since the failure of the big strike a few years ago.

The action of the North Carolina Commission is the beginning of the good work that will restore this government function to the Postoffice Department, enable the people to utilize it, and to get the same rapid postal facilities for electric mail through the telegraph which the people of every country in the world enjoy.

Roasting Gently.

The cry of some of the New York papers against the "silver craze" is less like the roar of a lion than it was a year ago.—Silver Knight-Watchman.

POINTS FROM THE PRESS.

Our short-sighted financiers have been contributing to England's hoarding by the demonetization of silver in 1873. During the twenty-four years of silver's degradation John Bull has added millions to his wealth, while the United States has been forced to vote bonds to keep her head above water. It is to be hoped that the people will come to their senses sufficiently in 1900 to vote silver back to its lawful position as a basic money.—Fort Collins Argus.

Let the law call it what it may, the forfeiture by the Pennsylvania coal companies of the earned but unpaid wages of the striking miners is a species of theft in comparison with which the holding up of railroad trains is high-grade industry, and the men who do it are thieves with whom a sneak thief should be ashamed to associate.—Cleveland Recorder.

Don't say it is human nature to monopolize land while thousands are denied the right of homes. There is nothing human about it; it is inhuman. It is hog nature, not yet civilized or Christianized out of humanity or its laws and institutions.—New Dispensation.

Prosperity which is haunted by the ghosts of starved millions in other lands is not the kind of prosperity that the American people desire. Moreover, such prosperity is bound to be temporary, for even a gold champion, great though he be in promising, can scarcely give us the assurance that there will always be general crop failures in India and Argentine and short crops in Europe. But, even now, with famine abroad and plenty of tariff at home, we have nothing like genuine prosperity. Merely a temporary rise of wheat and a flurry of speculation in Wall street.—National Bimetallist, Washington, D. C.

Direct legislation is the only hope of escape from legislation that is as objectionable as a monarchy.—Chicago Express.

The finding of so much gold in Alaska will have the effect of loosening the grip of the Money Devil, but if the people support a continuance of the system of mortgaging and bonding the soil it will tighten again.—East Oregonian.

"All men are equal in the sight of the law," used to be at least an ordinarily respected maxim. To-day it is a barefaced falsehood.—Duluth Labor World.

There was a time when they (gold standard papers) fiercely contended that the value of gold was invariable, or, as they choose to put it, "a gold dollar is always worth a gold dollar," but some day it will dawn upon them that a gold dollar which will only purchase a bushel of wheat is not so near valuable as a gold dollar which will purchase two bushels. In short, when they admit that the Klondyke finds may have an effect on prices they abandon the contention that gold has fixity of value and accept the quantitative theory to which all the great economists have adhered.—Mendocino Beacon.

Poverty is a curse which aggravates every affliction which visits mankind. In sickness, its presence makes a home a den of wretchedness; in death, a chamber of ghastly horror; in sorrow, a waste of utter desolation. It robs love of its sweetness, and tears asunder the dearest ties of humanity. It blights warm, young, joyous life, withers youth and mocks old age. In storm and cold, in heat and draught, they with whom poverty dwells must suffer a hundred-fold. When a torrid flood poured over the land, it was the children of the poor who gasped away their lives in agony, the mothers who faltered and fell at their duties, the fathers who went mad and died, all were victims of poverty. Yet it is so useless, so unnecessary. The bounteous earth never bade it come; it is but a hideous spectre, conjured up by a man's inhumanity to man.—Industrial Advocate.

A railroad detective who travels almost constantly between Chicago and Cleveland reports that the number of tramps now on the road exceeds anything he has ever seen. He says that it is not fair to call them tramps, for they appear to be mechanics and laborers out of employment. The detective in question makes the almost incredible statement that he counted 197 tramps on one freight train as it left Grand Crossing last Tuesday night.—Pueblo Courier.

The Omaha Labor Bulletin has some valuable figures as to the vast commercial mortality of business men by comparing the directories of that city for 1887 and 1897. In 1887 there were 569 business firms in operation in eighteen lines of business, of which 446 went out of business in the ten years. Yet it is "business men" who, for supposed business reasons, are the main props of commercial and financial systems which force them by wholesale into chronic bankruptcy.—San Francisco Star.

Legislation Unnecessary.

It's getting to be government by injunction. Might as well do away with all forms of legislation and allow those occupying judicial positions to make the laws, as many of them appear to be usurping this authority at the present time.—Durango Herald.

Only he who lives a life of his own can help the lives of the other men.

JUDICIAL DESPOTISM.

A FIGHT MUST BE MADE AGAINST IT.

Government by Injunction Has Superseded Government by the People Because the People Neglected Their Interests.

It is reported that in Kansas the People's party is to make the encroachments of the judiciary upon the liberties of the people a leading issue in future campaigns. At present the judges are chiefly of plutocratic extraction, and, naturally decide cases in the interest of those of their own class.

This is not the fault of the judges; it is the fault of the people who vote for them. Our party judges would not institute a tyranny by injunction, and this fact it will certainly be well to explain to the present and future sufferers from judge-made law.

The Twentieth Century says that the labor leaders also have reached the conclusion that government by injunction ought to be made an issue in the congressional elections of next year. In this decision they display great wisdom. If there is any political question that is vital to the welfare of labor on the American continent, and it may be said without exaggeration to the welfare of the human race, it is this one of government by injunction. The federal judiciary have, since the gigantic strike of 1894, completely changed the nature of our institutions by their usurpation of power. The most eminent heritage of the Anglo-Saxon race, that of freedom of speech and assemblage, has been reduced to a mere nullity. In no other country on the globe has liberty been converted into so monstrous a sham. It is to John P. Altgeld that we owe the first intimation of the danger we incur in this regard, and the events of the last few months have vindicated the justice of his position. The laboring classes of the country owe it to themselves to take up this question and push it to a final settlement. Until this is done it is useless to expect any true freedom for the masses.

The plans of the labor leaders have not been made public in full as yet, says the Twentieth century, but they are known to comprise an appeal to the country against the policy of the judges in uniting to break up every strike in which a great corporation is involved. The scenes and incidents connected with the present coal mine strike, are in themselves a sufficient argument for the men. The sympathies of the people have been aroused as they never were before, and it is safe to say that government by injunction would be abolished tomorrow if the people had a voice with reference to it. The congressional elections are the proper occasion to make the sentiment against judicial corruption felt.

Every candidate for congress should be sounded on this issue, and if he fails to explain himself satisfactorily he ought not to get the vote of any workingman. It is true that the lower branch of congress can not do anything of any great matter. If it passes a law against government by injunction and it goes through the senate and is signed by the president, the judges can declare it null and void, and since it concerns themselves they probably will. Or the house of representatives may impeach the more grossly corrupt of the federal judiciary, but the senate is so capitalistic and monopoly ridden that it would be impossible to get the necessary two-thirds vote to convict them. Here we have another evidence of the manner in which our constitution works. Its mechanism is such that abuses cannot be corrected if they operate in favor of the rich and powerful. But, in spite of these drawbacks, a vigorous assertion in congress of the rights of the Anglo-Saxon race to freedom of speech will do much to check the usurpations of the judges.

But the way to get at the root of the trouble is to carry the fight into every judicial election, and get the state judges on the side of the people; then elect a president who will appoint real Americans to the federal judgeships.

Elevation of Gold.

There are reports of gold strikes and discoveries all over the world. This is but the natural outcome of the policy that has prevailed during the past decade, says the Silver Knight-Watchman. The price of the great product gold, has been so advanced that brain and labor is seeking it all over the world. It will continue to be so sought as long as the return is proportionately greater in mining gold than iron, lead, coal, silver, or the raising of wheat or other produce. This is the fact. Gold is being enhanced in price by law above all other things, while the price of all other things is being reduced. All the labor and all the productions of man and the earth are being depreciated in order to elevate the commodity, gold, which commodity is owned and controlled by a few bankers and stock jobbers.

Public Spirit Waning.

Land grants which would disgrace a nation of tigers, and land laws hardly worthy of hell, put in the hands of the Northern Pacific landlords the whip to drive out several hundred settlers in Oregon, who have made extensive improvements. Public spirit has waned too much to permit of resistance to these bandits.—San Francisco Star.

ELEVATING THE MASSES.

Why the Universal Trust Will Not Be Advertised.

"We have met this evening," remarked the princely J. Pierpont Morgan, as he stretched himself out upon a divan in the luxurious cabin of the yacht Corsair, "in order to discuss measures for the uplifting of the masses."

"I am very glad to hear it," remarked John D. Rockefeller, "for the uplifting of the masses has been the aspiration of my youth and is the hope of my declining years."

"But how are we going to uplift the masses?" inquired Cornelius Vanderbilt. "They seem to think we are their natural enemies, and to look upon our colossal fortunes as a monstrous evil."

"You have touched upon the vital feature of the whole matter," said Colonel John Jacob Astor. "The masses can never be lifted up until they are taught to believe that men like ourselves can alone lift them up."

"The very thing I was going to say myself," declared George J. Gould, "and hence I have caused to be prepared a pamphlet setting forth the great advantages to the people from the present management of the Western Union Telegraph Company."

"How great minds do run in the same channel!" exclaimed John D. Rockefeller. "I have had a pamphlet prepared in which the blessings conferred upon the country by the Standard Oil Company are made as plain as day."

"Excellent!" said Cauncey M. Depew, "and I shall do the same thing with reference to the Vanderbilt railroads. I shudder to think of the awful consequences that might have ensued had not the Vanderbilt railroads been under their present management during the past two generations."

"The whole point of this matter," said the princely J. Pierpont Morgan, "is that the poor do not trust the rich."

"We'll soon be rid of that difficulty," remarked John Jacob Astor. "Thank God, there are enough Senators and Governors left to teach the people that great corporations and vast combinations of wealth are enormous advantages to the poor."

"Efforts must be made," put in John D. Rockefeller, "to create a popular demand in favor of one grand trust that shall own and operate everything."

"Good!" exclaimed Chauncey M. Depew. "How happy the masses would be if a single trust controlled all the railroads, all the oil, all the sugar, all the tobacco—in a word, the whole country."

"I would suggest," said Cornelius Vanderbilt, "that we proceed to the formation of such a trust right away."

"But who shall be members of that trust?" inquired the princely J. Pierpont Morgan.

"Ourselves!" said William C. Whitney.

"Hold on a minute," interjected the princely J. Pierpont Morgan. "Suppose we form this grand trust and try to uplift the masses by means of it. Don't you know that the blatherskites and demagogues will immediately say that all the people ought to have an equal interest in it? A movement will be started to let everybody in on the ground floor."

"That is simply horrible to think of!" said Colonel Astor.

"We can get out of that difficulty very easily," observed Doctor Depew.

"How?" asked William C. Whitney.

"We can organize the grand trust," replied Doctor Depew, "and say nothing about it."

"Just so," said John D. Rockefeller.

"Count me in," declared George J. Gould. "I am a friend of the masses, and I am for anything that will lift them up."

"Hurrah for the masses!" shouted the princely J. Pierpont Morgan.

There was a unanimous outburst of cheers and hand-clappings and the gentlemen present were so profoundly moved that it took several cases of champagne to do justice to their feelings.—Twentieth Century.

Gen. John A. Logan's Prophecy.

I, for one, can see benefit only to the money holder and those who receive interest and have fixed incomes. I can see, as a result of this legislation, our business operation crippled and wages for labor reduced to a mere pittance. I can see the beautiful prairies of my own state and of the great west, which are blooming as gardens, with cheerful homes rising like white towers along the pathway of improvement, again sinking back to idleness. I can see mortgage fiends at their hellish work. I can see the hopes of the industrious farmers blasted as they burn corn for fuel because its price will not pay the cost of transportation and dividends on millions of dollars of fictitious railway stocks and bonds. I can see our people of the west groaning and burdened under taxation to pay debts of states, counties and cities incurred when money was more abundant and bright hopes of the future were held out to lead them on. I can see the people of our western states, who are producers, reduced to the condition of serfs to pay interest on public and private debts to the money sharks of Wall street, New York, and of Threadneedle street, in London.—From a speech in the senate on withdrawal of treasury notes.

Not He!

Do you see him shaking hands with a smile as broad as the open half of a watermelon? He is a politician, he wants your vote. Will he know you after election as he knows you now? Not he! Nit!—Grand Junction Sentinel.

NOT a vacant house in Clanton. Two are in course of erection, and tenants waiting to go into them; while, to our knowledge, three other responsible families are vainly seeking houses to rent. Who will build a few dwelling houses in Clanton?

THE low price of cotton at the present time seems scarcely to be justified, if the latest reports concerning the crop are correct. From all sections of the cotton belt the crop now is reported not nearly so good as was anticipated a short time ago, and the indications are for certainly not more than a nine million bale crop. With no old cotton in stock we are of the opinion the price should certainly be higher, but the manipulations of the cotton market are such as not to warrant anyone venturing to predict an advance.

WHILE the Republican paper at Thorsby, The Call, last week was expatiating upon its knowledge of "business law," a representative of a printers' supply warehouse was at Thorsby boxing up, to return to the warehouse, a press, &c., which had been bought but not paid for. For the benefit of the Call, which seems to be enjoying McKinley prosperity, we give the information that the elementary principle of "business law" is to pay for what you buy. When the Call has learned this its opinions on "business law" may be of greater value.

THE Farmers' Alliance of Alabama, which meets at Jemison in its twelfth annual session next Wednesday and Thursday, deserves more from our farmers than any other organization. Although during the last year or two interest in the Alliance appeared to be on the wane, it now looks as if the principles of the order were too deeply imbedded in the hearts of the people to allow of its dissolution—the interest was not dead, only dormant. A considerable revival of Alliance affairs has been steadily going on for some time, and the meeting at Jemison promises to be replete with enthusiasm. The citizens of Jemison are determined that nothing shall be wanting on their part to make the visiting brethren comfortable during their stay and take away with them a kindly remembrance of the twelfth annual session. Hon. M. W. Howard has promised to deliver an address, and those of our home people who have previously heard this distinguished speaker are anxious to hear him again. Every Allianceman in the county should not miss this meeting, and from all we can learn there will be a good crowd in attendance. We extend a cordial welcome to the delegates and hope for the meeting the greatest success.

"And Freedom shrieked when Kosciusko fell."

AND again Freedom shrieked last Friday when in free America a number of men peaceably marching along the public highway, unarmed, and attending to their own business, were ruthlessly shot down by a band of deputy sheriffs acting under the orders of Sheriff Martin at Latimer, Pennsylvania. The great strike of the coal miners in the North for living wages has been marked throughout by two conspicuous features—forbearance, and keeping strictly within their legal rights, on the part of the men; and provocation, by the prostitution of legal injunctions, etc., on the part of their employers. Every lawful effort of the men to improve their position has been met by the operators with a construction of the law favorable to their ends. Injunction after injunction has been granted, forbidding the strikers to assemble to discuss in a peaceable, law abiding manner their own affairs; their own speakers were prohibited from addressing them; they were not even allowed the use of the public roads. And as a climax last Friday when a body of about one hundred and fifty men were marching along the road they were met by a band of one hundred and two deputy sheriffs who almost immediately began firing into them. Twenty-one of the strikers were killed and about forty wounded. Not a solitary deputy sheriff was hurt. No weapons were found on the bodies of the dead miners, excepting one small pistol. Warrants have been issued for the arrest of Sheriff Martin and his deputies, but have not been executed. The military are called out, and the situation is critical. It is to be hoped after the excitement has calmed down that the sheriff and his deputies will be put on trial, but whatever punishment, if any, is meted out to them will not be any compensation to the relatives and friends of the murdered miners.

No sooner was the small-pox scare beginning to subside than a visitation of the dreaded yellow fever comes upon us. Apparently it has been prevalent at Ocean Springs, Miss., for several weeks, but it was not publicly made known A number of cases are under treatment at New Orleans and in various town in Mississippi. At Mobile there are four cases. Quarantine is being rigidly enforced against all infected places and every precaution taken. In this section there is no cause for alarm, but it will be advisable for everyone to attend to the sanitation of their premises.

UPON the authority of two such prominent Democrats as W. H. Merritt and John Garner we are proud to be able to say Chilton county is one of the most prosperous and progressive counties in the State. We have long been of this opinion, but are glad to have it confirmed by our Democratic friends. In all parts of the county we see improvement is the order of the day, and at the same time the vacant places are rapidly filling up. The most notable case is that of Thorsby, the colony of immigrants from the North-west. But there are other movements tending to increase our population. We understand Mr. Merritt, who has plenty of land to dispose of, has recently sold several tracts to parties from Chambers and other counties in this State. We cordially welcome all thrifty newcomers and will gladly aid in helping them to find happy homes here. But, referring to a communication from Mrs. Ira Campbell, published a few weeks ago in THE BANNER, advising our home folks to secure homes of their own, we would like to see every Chiltonian owner of his own place. And now is the time to purchase land in this county before it is all settled and the price advanced, as it naturally soon will be. Every man of family owes it to himself and his dependants to become the possessor of a home for himself and a heritage for his children.

WE attribute the chief cause of Chilton's prosperity to the fact of its being a Populist county. Our county officers, elected by the people, have diligently looked after their constituents interests. Under their administration the county is free from debt, taxation has been reduced, an elegant new court house built, crime is at a minimum, and everyone happy and prosperous. Let the good work go on. Long live the Populists!

Political Points.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 15, 1897.

The observance of Labor Day, September 6, by parades, picnics and speech-making was widespread. The parades showed a large number of men who were willing to sacrifice an infrequent holiday to walking over miles of hot street pavements in order to demonstrate their allegiance and attract attention to the Labor Union as a means of bettering the condition of the workingman. The picnics were attended by unprecedented crowds who in almost every instance listened to lengthy orations along economic lines. The suffering miners were not forgotten; a per cent of the receipts from sale of tickets, Labor Day buttons or badges and in many instances direct collections were devoted to helping them. Ex-Governor Altgeld spoke to a tremendous crowd at Philadelphia. His subject was "Municipal and Government ownership and Government by injunction." He strongly favored the first, considering it the best way to bring relief to the American people. He advocated impeachment of such members of the judiciary as have shown by their decisions that they are under the control of the money power. He referred to the government ownership of mines, as the cure for coal strikes.

W. J. Bryan spoke to a vast assembly composed chiefly of working men, at St. Louis on Labor Day and was tendered a reception by the Jefferson Club at night which called together a tremendous and enthusiastic crowd. Mr. Bryan will speak at Sedalia, Mo., September 17.

The last and most startling injunction has been issued by Federal Judge J. M. Hagan at Morganstown, West Va., enjoining Rev. J. W. Wiley from preaching to the strikers. It is asserted by those whose veracity cannot be doubted that the minister who had preached to the idle miners in the open air, while sympathizing with the strikers always urged peaceable and law abiding methods.

Non-partisan Tax Societies, which are made up chiefly of Populists, Single Taxers and Socialists are attracting attention to the tremendous amount of tax dodging going on among the very rich. George W. Pullman, of Chicago, is at present under heavy fire, having reported his entire property at a valuation of $1,500,000 which is about 6 per cent of its real value.

Hon. David Overmeyer, of Kansas, in a recent article in the Arena, answers David B. Hill's previously published article on the Democracy, in a masterly manner. Mr. Hill's fallacies and rash assertions are proven to be such, and Mr. Overmeyer draws the lines of Jeffersonian Democracy so as to exclude all gold democrats and include all believers in free speech, a free press and a rational money system. He outlines for his regenerate party a policy of taxation "not only of income but of undue accumulations and amendment of the constitution if necessary." It must make railways, public highways in fact, as they are in name." So mote it be.

The strikers continue to hold out and in spite of serious aggravation in many cases, have so far all remained peaceable and law abiding. The operators begin to talk settlement but it is thought no terms will be made until after the Labor Conference called to meet at Chicago, September 27.

Samuel P. Gompers, President of the Federation of Labor is under fire from those who censure him for not having taken part in the recent St. Louis Labor meeting. Mr. Gompers gives as his reason for not having done so, the irregularity of the call and the fact that persons in no way connected with organized labor could take part in the deliberations of that body and commit blunders for which labor must suffer.

Fred White, fusion candidate for Governor in Iowa, is going into the campaign with a fire and vigor that presages victory. The Republicans, fearing discussion of state politics, are deferring the operation of their campaign and instructing speakers to stick to National issues. A. R.

Turn-Round Topics.

The series of meetings at Corinth closed Friday with eleven accessions, two by letter, nine by experience; they were baptised during the week.

Owing to the busy time with the farmers here, the expected week's meeting at Canaan was put off until the second Sunday in October, when, as Rev. Mr. Colwell says, "every body is invited to come."

Mr. Bud Hawes, of Deatsville, came up Sunday to see his sister, Mrs. W. H. Johnson, who is down on a visit from Birmingham.

Miss Vena Pyron, we are glad to say, is up, and spent Sunday with Miss Annie Pinson, of Mountain Creek.

Six bales of cotton have already been ginned at Pattillo's gin—but a big run is expected this week.

We had a nice little shower here Monday evening and cotton haulers got their cotton sprinkled.

Something to Depend On.

Mr. James Jones, of the drug firm of Jones & Son, Cowden, Ill., in speaking of Dr. King's New Discovery says, that last winter his wife was attacked with La Grippe and her case grew so serious that physicians at Cowden and Pana could do nothing for her. It seemed to develop into Hasty Consumption. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in store, and selling lots of it, he took a bottle home, and to the surprise of all she began to get better from first dose, and half dozen dollar bottles cured her sound and well. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is guaranteed to do this good work. Try it. Free trial bottle at Dr. J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

Gold Versus Life.

Men are at present risking their lives for gold. There is a stampede of eager, willing martyrs to the inhospitable country of the Klonkyke. Many will perish from cold and hunger. Not one quarter of the people who go there will ever return. Not one half of those who do return will return any richer than they went. They will not only endanger their health, but their lives, for sake of gold. And yet everybody says that health is more precious than gold. The thing, therefore, that restores health is more precious than gold. Pe-ru-na restores health, cures all forms of weakness, all forms and stages of catarrh, builds up broken down constitutions, brings new life back to all those who have become prematurely old. The latest and best book ever written on the subject of female diseases will be sent free, to women only, for a time. Address The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Alabama Day at the Nashville Exposition.

Inasmuch as the management of the Tennessee Centennial and International Exposition has complimented Alabama by setting apart September 29th as Alabama Day, the ex-Alabamians residents in Nashville, actuated by a pardonable pride in the honor and glory of their natal state, desire to see Alabama Day crowned with a success greater than has attended or may attend any other state occasion.

Interesting and representative exhibits are displayed in the minerals and forestry, agricultural, transportation, terminal, and negro buildings, and a delightfully cozy State Building, emblazoned with "Here We Rest," is situated at the head of Capitol Avenue, on the borders of Lake Watauga, and near to the center of the White City. The State Building is all the motto of the state, in its literal sense, implies. A more delightfully refreshing place in which to rest is not to be found on the grounds.

In the times that tried men's souls and put to the severest test the devotion of women, Alabama never faltered. When a changed condition confronted them they proved themselves worthy scions of noble progenitors, and reared for themselves and their posterity enduring monuments by the development of latent resources which have crowned Alabama the most progressive in material development and the richest of Southern States.

Alabama will be the observed of all observers on the 29th of September, and the crown of glory to which we believe her to be entitled can easily be secured by the proper co-operation of her gallant sons and fair daughters. Gov. Johnston will be present with his staff, and pride of State should fill the great Auditorium to overflowing with Alabamians.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

THE CROSS AND CROWN

is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Patillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole, when complete, will make a book of nearly 300 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents should speedily exhaust the first edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. MR. R. C. PHELPS, the leading pension attorney of Belfast, N. Y., writes: "I was discharged from the army on account of ill health, and suffered from heart trouble ever since. I frequently had fainting and smothering spells. My form was bent as a man of 80. I constantly wore an overcoat, even in summer, for fear of taking cold. I could not attend to my business. My rest was broken by severe pains about the heart and left shoulder. Three years ago I commenced using Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, notwithstanding I had used so much patent medicine and taken drugs from doctors for years without being helped. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure restored me to health. It is truly a wonderful medicine and it affords me much pleasure to recommend this remedy to everyone."

Executor's Notice to Creditors

In the matter of the will and estate of K. Wells, deceased.

In Probate Court of Chilton County.

Notice is hereby given to all whom it may concern, that letters testamentary upon the estate and will of the said K. Wells were granted to the undersigned on the 1st day of September, 1897, out of the said court by the Hon. R. M. W. L. WELLS, Executor.
MARY ANN MULLINS, Executrix.

The Weekly Crop Bulletin says: Warm dry winds were the prevailing conditions over this entire section, during the week ending September 13th, except fairly well distributed rains during last two days, which is injurious to open cotton. Nearly all the fodder has been saved in good condition and late corn is ready to be housed, though nearly all the labor is being worked in picking cotton, which is opening very fast and being picked rapidly, and promises to be an early crop; it is grading rather low and reports of rust and rot are still very general; it is being damaged by white mould in Barbour county; it is now estimated that two-thirds of the cotton is open in southern and middle counties and about one half of it open in northern counties; the prospect for a top crop of any importance is poor, and some correspondents report that cotton has stopped making fruit; the yield is now very generally estimated as far below an average one. Cain is maturing nicely and promises a fairly good yield and considerable hay is still being made; sorghum has turned out good; field peas are ripening and being gathered with good yield; sweet potatoes are doing well, but late irish potatoes are not so good as at last report. Turnips are promising and the woods are full of acorns and nuts. Grapes have yielded well.

5 DROPS — 49 YEARS OF SUFFERING FROM RHEUMATISM.

Read carefully this testimonial found below, also letters from those who have been cured of other diseases, and remember that "5 Drops" has and can never fail to quickly relieve and permanently cure. Book, 9, free.

DEAR SIR:—Your bottle of "5 Drops" received. It was for an old friend, Mr. Wm. Edwards, of Martinstown Wis. He has had Neuralgia in his chest, suffering a great deal of pain, so much so that it affected his heart and he could not sleep on account of a smothered feeling. He has been under the care of the most eminent physicians, but found no relief until I gave him a dose of "5 Drops." The very first night he rested well, and has ever since, and is gaining daily. I myself am 67 years old and began taking your medicine last April for Rheumatism, which I have had for 49 years, also for a weak heart. Since taking "5 Drops" the Rheumatism has all disappeared, the stiffness is gone from my joints, and my heart never misses a beat. I am to-day a well, strong woman, and I owe it to "5 Drops." I only wish I could sound my bugle of praise loud enough to be heard all over the world, and could convince every one that "5 Drops" is all you claim it to be and more.

Mrs. D. T. Carver, Winslow, Stevenson Co., Ill.

JANUARY 2, 1897.

DEAR SIR:— Over 34 years ago, I had Typhoid Fever, and barely escaped with my life. It left my system so shattered that I have had ever since, Rheumatism and Throat Trouble, which gave me a terrible Cough. I had been unable to find any relief for these diseases, until I learned of your "5 DROPS", which I commenced taking only two months ago, and my cure has been indeed WONDERFUL. Already my cough has entirely disappeared, and the Rheumatism which for a few years past has threatened to make a cripple of me, is cured, and I am free from pain. This is the most wonderful and the cheapest remedy ever discovered. I am more thankful to you than words can tell and I want everybody to know what "5 DROPS" has done for me. Although I am over 70 years old, I am feeling better than I have in years.

I shall be glad to answer any questions regarding my case from anyone enclosing a two cent stamp. Gratefully yours,

MRS. SAMUEL RIBLET, Litchfield, Mich.

CATARRH AND HAY FEVER.

I find the bottle of "5 DROPS" to be very good and just what you claim. My wife has been suffering with Catarrh and Hay Fever over 16 years. She has tried everything and doctored much, but no cure until she tried "5 DROPS" which completely cured her.

Yours truly REV. L. VON WALD,
March 31, 1896. Milbank, S. D.

NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA.

For twenty long years my wife suffered untold tortures from Sciatica and Neuralgia, and I thank God for the day that your benevolent remedy fell into my hands, for it completely cured her. I am a minister of the Gospel, and when I find any who suffer, cannot help but recommend "5 DROPS", for I know it will do more than you claim for it.

REV. P. M. COOPER, Washington Center, Mo.

PARALYSIS AND RHEUMATISM

NOVEMBER 5, 1896.

DEAR SIRS: It is with pleasure I speak of your priceless remedy and of the good it has done me. For the last eight years I have been an incurable cripple from paralysis and rheumatism. Just think, for eight years a total cripple not able to earn a penny nor able to walk or step on the ground without the aid of something to lean on. Heaven bless the man who discovered this remedy, say I. Thanks to him and to God, I am able to walk and able to work. I have only taken two-thirds of a bottle, but have not had any pain in my back since I took the first dose, and after the second I walked across the floor, which I have not done in years. I have thrown away my cane and shall never need it again. To any one sending me a two-cent stamp I will send my affidavit. I have another bottle of "5 DROPS" and value it at $1.00 per drop.

Thankfully yours, EDWARD CASTLE,
1005 Wall Street. Sioux City, Iowa.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM

DEAR SIRS: Savannah, Ga., 1896.

I wish to tell you and suffering humanity how much good "5 DROPS" has done me. On the beginning of this year I took down bedfast with Inflammatory Rheumatism, and I was doctored by as good physicians as this country has, but they could not cure me. On August 4, I began to take "5 DROPS." At that time every joint in my body and my limbs were stiff, so that I could not be moved. Even my tongue was getting so that I could hardly speak so any one could understand me, but to-day, only seven weeks from that time, I am absolutely cured, and thank you and God for my recovery.

Gratefully yours,

HORACE F. ANDERSON, McCracken, Kans.

If you have not sufficient confidence after reading these letters to send for a large bottle, send for a sample bottle, which contains sufficient medicine to convince you of its merit. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief, and is a permanent cure for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Catarrh, Asthma, Dyspepsia, Backache, Hay Fever, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, "La Grippe," Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and kindred diseases.

"FIVE DROPS" is the name and dose. Large bottles (300 doses), $1.00. Six bottles for $5.00. Sample bottle, prepaid by mail, 25c. Not sold by druggists, but only by us and our agents. Agents appointed in new territory.

Camphor Industry.

Secretary Wilson of the agricultural department says that arrangements will be made by the department for the thorough introduction of the camphor tree in Florida. He added that there was no doubt that the tree would be a success there, as it had already passed the experimental stage.

The department will give all possible encouragement in the way of supplying seed and young trees, and Mr. Wilson predicts that the country will soon be producing a sufficient supply of camphor for its own needs. He also announced his purpose to adopt a policy for the encouragement of the growth of the English walnut, which, he thinks, will do well anywhere south of Washington.

Postponed to September 28.

For several reasons that indicated best, the State Normal College at Troy, Ala., has postponed its opening to September 28. This will suit many students who could not enter at an earlier date. Troy is a remarkably healthy place, being 600 feet above the gulf, and no such thing as yellow fever has ever been known there. The college authorities anticipate a grand year's work.

The Emporia (Kan.) Republican threatens an erring contemporary right: "We deny the allegation made by an envious exchange that the Emporia fire department was burned out while the firemen were playing 'seven-up.' The game was 'high-five.'" Let the truth of history be preserved.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

GENERAL LEE RETURNS.

No Business Improvement in Cuba Until the War Is Ended.

Consul-General Fitzhugh Lee arrived from Havana on board the Seguranca Tuesday. When asked as to whether he would return to Cuba or not, the general shook his head and said:

"I cannot answer that, and I would rather not talk on Cuban affairs until I make my report in Washington."

In speaking of the case of Evangelina Cosslo Cisneros, the general said:

"The young woman is now confined in Casa Recohidas. She has never been tried, and I do not think it was ever intended that she should be banished. The stories of her ill treatment are very much exaggerated, and were it not for the hubbub which has been raised about her, the girl would probably have been released long ago. In fact, I was given to understand that her name was on the pardon list. She has comfortable quarters, and is treated as well as possible under the conditions. There is a good deal of suffering in Cuba, but the Americans, numbering about 1,400, are being cared for from the fund of $50,000 which was appropriated for that purpose. They receive relief daily and up to the present time about $15,000 has been expended."

"Is there any sign of business improving or a change for the better in Cuba?" asked the reporter.

"No, I'm sorry to say that there is not," replied the general, "and there will not be any improvement until the war is ended."

"When will that be, general?"

To this last question General Lee replied in Spanish, a free translation of which is: "That is too much for me; I can't say."

Gen. Lee's Intentions.

Speaking of the report that Gen. Fitz Lee might be coming to Virginia to look after his interests in the contest for Senator Martin's seat or to confer with the members of the board of visitors of the university with reference to accepting the presidency of that institution, a gentleman said there was no doubt that Lee was written to and urged to return to Virginia for conference with his friends regarding both of these matters. As a rule, it is those who are Lee's warmest supporters for the senatorship who are desirous of seeing him made president of the university. They wish to talk the situation over with him, persuade him, if possible, to take the presidency, and failing in that, they will go to work for him for the senatorship.

Monetary Commissioners.

H. H. Hanna, chairman of the executive committee of the monetary convention that met in Indianapolis in January last, announces that nine of the eleven members of the monetary commission that were to be chosen have accepted, and authorize the publication of their names. The following are the names of those who have accepted:

George F. Edmunds, Vermont; Chas. S. Fairchild, New York; Stewart Patterson, Pennsylvania; T. G. Bush, Alabama; J. W. Fries, North Carolina; W. B. Dean, Minnesota; George E. Leighton, Missouri; Robert S. Taylor, Another Railway Scheme.

Judge J. W. Eldridge of Memphis has been in Humboldt for some days working up a railroad from New Madrid, Mo., via Dyersburg and New Berne, Wells and Humboldt and Florence, Ala. The proposed new road is styled "Tennessee and Alabama Air Line Railway," and if built will traverse the finest agricultural and timber lands in the State, running by Gibson Wells, the health resort of West Tennessee. Some of the rich men are joining in the enterprise.

An Englishman's Optimism.

A. J. R. Landauer of the big Liverpool cotton importing house, who is making a trip of inspection over the cotton states, returned to Dallas Saturday. He is optimistic on the conditions, not only in Texas, but in the entire country. He declared it to be his opinion that the Texas crop will reach 3,000,000 bales of excellent quality. The crop in the country at large he estimates at from 9,500,000 to 10,000,000 bales.

STATE TOPICS.

Late News Items of General Interest to Alabamians.

Coal Output.

The coal output in the Birmingham district is now 25,000 tons per diem. That means, reckoning six days a week as the working time, a monthly output of about 650,000 tons, a yearly output of over 7,000,000.

Sworn in as State Troops.

Col. James M. Cox, of Mobile, administered the oath of allegiance to the sixty-two members of the Eufaula Rifles the past week. The measures for their uniforms have been taken, and they will soon receive them. J. R. Barr was elected captain, and Hamiter Graves first lieutenant.

Praising Alabama Wheat.

The operators of the Boyd flouring mill in Huntsville, in an interview, state that Madison county wheat is superior to wheat raised in Tennessee and Kentucky, and equal to that of Indiana and other wheat-growing States. Previous to this year the farmers of the county have planted very little wheat, having doubts of its quality. However, this year the grain forms a great part of the farmers' product.

Dummy Line Sold.

The Birmingham Railway and Electric Company have bought the Powderly dummy line. The arrangements are complete, but there are a few minor details in regard to the transaction yet to be arranged. It is said that the Birmingham Railway and Electric Company will equip the road with electricity and make a loop over its present division and the Powderly line.

Lands for Settlement.

Uncle Sam's lands, the titles to which have recently been perfected in the Perdido decision, are being rapidly disposed of under the settlement laws at the land office. These lands were claimed by the Perdido Land Company, but in view of an adverse decision of the government recently, the lands became a part of the public domain, and are being disposed of to settlers. The lands are located in Baldwin and Monroe counties, and are worth something over two hundred thousand dollars.

Committee to Go to Washington.

It is probable that the special committee appointed by the Birmingham Commercial Club to look after the matter of endeavoring to secure the government armor plate plant for Birmingham will visit Washington in a few days for the purpose of appearing before the special naval Board that have the matter in hand and urging them to visit this city and investigate its claims. Congressman Underwood of this city, Congressman Gaines of Tennessee and Congressman Livingston of Georgia are expected to accompany the committee to Washington. The committee will meet Monday to take steps on the subject.

Big Deal in Coal Lands.

A big deal in coal lands has just been consummated. The parties were L. B. Musgrove and Maj. G. D. Fitzhugh and associates on one side, and wealthy New York parties on the other. The New Yorkers have bought fifteen thousand acres of coal lands in northwest Walker and Marion counties. Mr. Musgrove put in about eight thousand acres and Fitzhugh and associates the rest.

The purchasers will at once set to work to develop the lands by opening up large mines. Another town will spring up in the corner of Walker county and another field of development be opened.

Two Important Raids.

The revenue officers in Northern Alabama have made two important raids this week. At Rockway, in Limestone county, Deputy Collector Logwood and Deputy Marshal Charles Logwood captured and destroyed a 250-gallon copper still, together with all appurtenances, and 2,000 gallons of beer. The still was owned and operated by W. T. Harrison and James Robinson, who were arrested and carried to Huntsville.

Near Milan, in Jackson county, Deputy Marshals Skelton and Arnold captured and destroyed a moonshine establishment that has been running for several years past. It consisted of a fine copper still with a capacity of 120 gallons and a copper worm. This was owned by Walker Matthews, one of the wealthiest men in Paint Rock valley, who has made whisky for two years past in open defiance of the revenue men, who have never been able to locate his place of business.

Surveying the Warrior Canal.

United States Engineer Joseph Ripley, accompanied by Assistants Barnes and Swift, left Birmingham with a corps of men on the official survey of the proposed Warrior river canal. The surveyors will probably set stakes at a convenient point and work both ways. Mr. Ripley has spent the greater part of the past week on the route, with City Engineer Kendrick, and has his plans mapped out for the work. The route of the proposed canal is as follows: Beginning on Five Mile creek, about eight miles above Birmingham, it will pass through North Birmingham, thence to Bessemer and Valley Creek, continue along Valley Creek to Lock No. 3, on the Warrior river, thence to Tuskaloosa. From there the route extends along to the Tombigbee river, thence to Mobile along the Alabama and Mobile rivers. Valley creek will have to be locked, dammed and considerably deepened at points, and it is estimated that eight locks will have to be erected along the Warrior river between the mouth of Valley Creek and Tuskaloosa.

State Treasury Statement.

The fiscal year with the Alabama State Treasury concludes on September 30, but it is already evident that the receipts for this year will be between $50,000 and $60,000 in excess of those of last year, whereas the increase in the disbursements will reach probably $200,000.

This increase in disbursements is due to the expense of the last legislature, which cost the State $53,000; an additional interest of $70,000 on the bonded indebtedness of the State, by reason of the increase of the contract rate on the graduated bonds; an additional appropriation of $15,000 by the last legislature to the Girls' Industrial School at Montevallo; an increase in the appropriation to the Deaf, Dumb and Blind Institute at Talladega of $11,000, and an increase in payments from the school fund of $33,000 for public school purposes; the appropriation for codifying the laws, $12,000.

These several appropriations consumed $194,000 of the increase in disbursements and the balance represents the increase that is natural in the expense account of a growing State. Had it been possible to avoid these several extraordinary expenses, and had it not been for the Lott shortage, the treasury would have shown a profit this year of considerably over $60,000.

MISERY AND DEATH.

Gloomy Outlook for People Who Have Rushed to Alaska.

The steamer Cleveland has arrived from St. Michael's, bringing with her from the Yukon gold fields a story of distress and disaster.

The miners she has on board and officers in charge of the ship tell the story of the sufferings at Dawson. The winter has set in at the mining city of the frozen North and two great stores of the place have closed their doors, for they have nothing to sell. Those who have been seeking gold now must seek food or starve.

While there may be a tendency to exaggerate the actual condition of affairs, there can be no question that famine threatens the adventurous men and women who made their way to the Klondyke. Hundreds of unruly spirits are flocking to Dawson. Threats of violence are being made on every side. The first signs of winter are apparent on the River Yukon, which is beginning to freeze and in a few weeks will be closed. Enormous prices are now being paid for food at Dawson, and it is impossible that more than seven vessels with provisions can reach Dawson before the river is a mass of ice.

Drunkenness, gambling and disorder were rampant, and conservative observers predict the most serious consequences. There is gold everywhere, but the people of Dawson want food more than they want gold now.

Negress Lawyer.

Lottie Lyle, a 23-year-old negress, has pressed her claims for the privilege of practicing law in the courts of Tennessee. She was admitted to the bar without a question. She is the first representative of her sex of any color to be admitted to the bar of Tennessee. She is the only colored woman in the South licensed to practice law, and it is said she is the only colored woman in the United States who is a member of the bar.

ARKANSAS LADIES DON'T LIE.

Mrs Martha A Johnson

Malvern, Ark., says: Have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine 10 years and find it a great deal better than "Zeilin's Regulator" and "Black Draught." It has been of great benefit to my daughter and Niece during their monthly troubles for Obstructed Menstruation. There should be no home without it.

The Turn of Life.

The cessation of the menses usually occurs between the ages of forty and fifty. Great irregularity takes place in the periodic discharges for some time before the final cessation, the female usually experiencing sudden flashes of heat, fullness in the head, headache and other evidences of considerable disturbance. The nervous system sympathetically responds, and there is great irritability and melancholy, the patient is discouraged and has a sense of fullness or suffocation.

At no time in her life does a woman need more constant care and watchful tenderness, nor has more need for a remedy to invigorate and strengthen her. The bowels should be kept regular with Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, and if Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine is used during the period of this critical period, it will invigorate and enrich her blood, soothe and strengthen her nerves and thus relieve the suffering and enable her to pass safely through the dangers, prolong her life and afford her strength and joy in her declining years.

A. P. Ewton

Pine Bluff, Ark., writes: Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine has been a good send to myself and family for 20 years. It cures Chills and Fevers, Bilious Fevers, Sick Headache. I think there is no comparison between it and "Black Draught," and "Zeilin's Liver Regulator."

Fullness of Blood in Head.

Where there is great determination of blood to the head, the blood-vessels of the brain become greatly congested, and there exists flushed face, giddiness, especially on stooping, and throbbing pain in the head increased by movement. It may be caused by living too freely; too late rising in the morning, combined with an inactive life. Menstrual derangements in females will often occasion it. Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine is especially made for this, and it cures.

A feud of long standing between James Reeves and Lawrence Austin, brothers-in-law, had a bloody termination near Roby, Chester county, Tenn. The two men met in the public road and Reeves shot Austin in the head with a double-barreled shotgun. Austin died, and Reeves escaped. Both are well-known planters.

Frank Short, a well known country merchant, a few miles south of Abingdon, Va., was killed in a runaway late Tuesday evening while on his way home from Abingdon in a cart. A peculiar feature which connects itself with his death is the fact that his lifeless body was picked up on the very spot where some three years ago his brother, Burt Short, shot and killed two men, Lee Simmons and Henderson Dinkens.

JUDGE KILGORE DEAD.

The Well-Known Ex-Congressman From Texas Passes Away.

Judge Kilgore, ex Congressman from Texas, died at Ardmore, I. T., Thursday.

As a member of Congress from Texas, Judge Kilgore was one of the best known men in public life. He was called "Buck" by his intimate friends, and attracted wide public attention in the Fifty-first Congress by kicking in a green baize door which had been locked by order of Speaker Reed during one of the filibustering scenes that made the first "quorum counting" Congress memorable. He supported President Cleveland ardently, and after he was retired from congress the President appointed him one of the judges of the Indian Territory.

Mr. Kilgore was born in Newnan, Ga., February 20, 1835. In 1846 he removed with his parents to Rusk county, Texas, where he received a common school education. He served in the Confederate army, first as private and by successive promotions reached the grade of adjutant general, serving as such in Ector's brigade, Army of the Tennessee. He was wounded at Chickamauga and in 1864 was confined as a prisoner in Fort Delaware. He was admitted to the bar after the war and in 1875 was a member of the Texas constitutional convention. He was a presidential elector in 1880 on the Hancock and English ticket and in 1884 was elected to the State Senate for four years and in the following year was chosen president of that body for two years. He was elected to the Fiftieth, Fifty-first and Fifty second Congresses as a Democrat.

BANISH A KING.

Drunami, of Benin, Sent to a Penal Settlement.

Lagos, West Coast of Africa.—Drunami, the king of Benin, who has been on trial at Benin City since August last, with a number of his leading chiefs, charged with being concerned with the massacre of the unarmed expedition under British Consul Phillips, has been condemned to be transported to Calabar, a slave settlement of British West Africa. Three of the king's chiefs were previously sentenced. Two of them were shot and their bodies displayed hanging in the streets for twenty four hours. The third of these chiefs escaped a similar fate by committing suicide.

FATAL MINE EXPLOSION.

Several Miners Were Killed and Others Entombed.

An explosion, terrible in its effects occurred in the Williamson Company's coal mine, three miles north of Marion, Ill. Fifteen wounded miners, two of whom have since died, have been rescued, one was found dead when the rescuing party went down the shaft. Several are severely crushed, and may die. They say there are five or six miners imprisoned in the burning mine, but they cannot be reached on account of smoke and fire. These men are no doubt killed. The explosion was caused by natural gas.

BIG SHIPMENT OF SPONGES.

W. P. K. Decker, the leading sponge dealer of Anclote, Fla., has shipped all the sponge he had ready to Philadelphia, in response to an urgent telegram. The value of the three hundred bales he sent there is estimated at $5000.

DON CARLOS ONCE MORE.

Says 100,000 Volunteers Are Ready to Back Him.

Don Carlos, the pretender, has written a letter denying emphatically that he has abandoned his claim to the throne of Spain. He declares after the sacrifice which has been made in his behalf he would be a coward to renounce his rights.

He says 100,000 volunteers are ready to take up arms in his cause.

He says Spain must abandon Cuba, and the loss of that island will emphasize the existing deep discontent. It is expected that the pretender will shortly issue a manifesto.

DAMAGE IS GREAT.

Later reports from Kentucky indicate that the damage done tobacco by the recent frosts was not in the least overestimated. There will not be half a crop, but prices will undoubtedly rule high. The loss is heaviest, and will be more keenly felt by the poor tenants and croppers, many of whom lost their entire crop by the frost. Farmers are very blue over their misfortune, but are making the best of it.

SURPRISED.

United States' Attitude Causes a Sensation in Madrid.

OVER-CONFIDENCE IN WEYLER

The General Impression at Madrid is That the Spanish Government Will Try to Drag Negotiations Along, Unless It Rejects Uncle Sam's Good Offices.

The attitude of the United States has caused a great sensation at Madrid because opinion has been lured on by the optimistic communications of the Spanish minister at Washington upon the character and duration of the correct attitude of the United States government, and that, too, despite several warnings from Mr. Olney and Mr. Cleveland's message.

The official bulletins of Captain General Weyler have also received too much confidence, when the United States every month was receiving from its consuls and special envoys totally different news.

The general impression at San Sebastian and Madrid is that the Spanish government will try to drag negotiations along, unless it rejects purely and simply the good offices of the United States, on the ground of public opinion and on the further ground that the opposition would not permit it to tolerate foreign intervention, even though amicable.

The government organs roundly deny that Minister Woodford has mentioned an ultimatum, but the public mind is not altogether relieved thereby. The policy of the government in denying and suppressing news and directly denying the truth of almost everything in any way unpalatable must always tend to increase public uneasiness.

The use of the word ultimatum is exaggerated. General Woodford doubtless expressed himself energetically, but between this and fixing a period of six weeks to end a widespread insurrection under pain of taking up the cause of the insurgents against a friendly power, there is a very wide distinction, and more especially so in the present political situation, when a change of government more or less radical cannot be distant.

YELLOW FEVER SITUATION.

Grows More Alarming at Infected Points as the Days Go By.

New Orleans.—Eminent physicians believe that the work of the Board of Health is productive of good results, and that the fever is not spreading, but on the contrary, is being confined to localities. Up to Friday there have been a few less than 100 cases and fifteen deaths. The death rate is in the neighborhood of 15 per cent. It was in 1878 16 per cent, so that up to the present time the disease is about as virulent as it was in the last great epidemic that visited New Orleans.

Mobile.—Up to and including Friday there have been forty-one cases, six deaths, nineteen discharged and sixteen under treatment. With one or two exceptions, the sick are doing well. The board have still the satisfaction of reporting very slow progress of the fever toward an epidemic visitation. Much active work of a sanitary nature is being done by the city authorities, and new methods of quarantine and disinfection are about to be put in practice under the advice of the board.

At Edwards, Miss., the situation is still growing worse. There have been 133 cases reported up to Friday, with only four deaths; 44 are convalescent and 85 under treatment.

At Biloxi the spread of the fever is not so rapid, though there are new cases reported daily. There have been fifty-eight cases to date.

The situation in other infected towns along the coast remains unchanged, with a small number of cases developing daily.

The second case of yellow fever to develop in Louisville, Ky., was announced by Health Officer White last Thursday. The first case was that of Frank DeRumsey, who died in an infirmary in that city on August 16.

ALASKA APPOINTMENTS.

Three Men Are Now Inspectors—Assistant Surgeon at Mobile.

The secretary of the treasury has appointed Thomas S. Luke, T. A. Marquam, Emanuel Herrmann and Charles I. Roth as customs inspectors at Sitka, Alaska, at $5 per day. These appointments were made necessary by the exodus to the Klondyke region. The secretary also has appointed Ira W. Porter as assistant surgeon of the Marine Hospital service at Mobile, Ala., to assist in the care of yellow fever.

APPLIED THE TORCH.

A Mob Fires a Proposed Yellow Fever Hospital.

The Beauregard school building, which it was proposed to use as a fever hospital, and which a mob threatened to burn down, was destroyed by fire Thursday night, although it was guarded by police. It was formerly a fine residence, occupying a square of ground out on Canal street near the cemeteries.

THE CUBAN LEAGUE.

President Allen Sees Freedom for the Cuban Patriots.

President Ethan Allen, of the Cuban League of the United States, on Thursday issued the following address to the membership of the League:

A year of patriotic work is about to end in grandest results. Last spring nearly every governor of this republic, at our request, backed by the legislature of his State, spoke for Cuban independence. Many hundreds of thousands of citizens, responding to the appeal of this League, have made it manifest that public opinion is on the side of the Cuban insurgents and hostile to their oppressors. Now the hour of emancipation for Cuba is at hand. The commanding voice of the nation has at last reached the executive. Though the delay has been much too long, still the retribution at hand will excuse past delinquencies. Our minister in Spain, with a patriotic president behind him, will do that which shall end the murder, plunder and medieval tyranny in Cuba, allowing its entry into sovereign states. The nation is ready with guns, if necessary. Every member of this League should be alert to uphold the president in such policy. Let all, when the moment comes, say to him: "All divisions end at the water's edge."

WHAT WAR COSTS SPAIN.

Statement of Number of Men and Munitions of War Furnished.

An official statement has been issued showing the number of men and the quantities of the munitions of war sent to Cuba and the Philippine islands during the insurrections now in progress in those quarters.

Between November, 1895, and May, 1897, the Spanish government sent to Cuba 181,738 soldiers, 6,261 officers, of whom forty were generals, 212,542 guns, 320,406 kilograms of powder, 92,088,670 cartridges, 160,712 swords, 91 cannons, 12 mitrailleuses and 29,500 shells.

Since the outbreak of the present revolution in the Philippines the government has sent 27,706 soldiers, 881 officers, of whom nine were generals, 43,100 guns, 24 cannons, 24,910 kilograms of powder, 21,726,585 cartridges and 30,604 shells.

ELECTION IN CUBA.

Bartolome Masso Vice President of the Republic.

According to advices from Puerto Principe, Senor Bartolome Masso has been elected vice president of the Cuban republic, Gen. Maximo Gomez has been appointed minister of war and Calixto Garcia major general, General Gomez remaining commander-in-chief of the Army of Liberation.

Word comes from Santa Clara that General Gomez has ordered a new invasion of Western Cuba, with a view of profiting by the rainy season.

It may be safely estimated that more than 150,000 native Cubans have disappeared from various causes. In certain towns entire families have been wiped out. Sickness continues at a high rate among the troops, probably about 37,000 soldiers being on the sick list, most of them victims of fever.

TERRIBLE CYCLONE.

A cyclone swept over Sava, Oria and Latiano, all in the province of Lecce, in Italy, Wednesday evening. Forty persons were killed, seventy people were wounded and twenty houses were destroyed and telegraphic communication with the scene of the disaster was cut off.

At Oriakora the railway depot was demolished, and all the railway men engaged there were killed. Two chateaux and thirty houses were destroyed in a neighboring village, where [illegible] were killed and 24 injured. At Mesagne, a province of Lecce, fifteen were killed and five injured. A great tract of country has been devastated by the hurricane.

GOLD COMING.

La Touraine, of the French steamship line, which sails from Havre on Saturday next, will bring to New York port $1,000,000 in gold consigned to the Hanover National Bank of New York.

WOMEN TURN GOLD HUNTERS.

Six Oakland women have returned from a search for gold mines in the mountains of Shasta county, California. For two weeks they tramped in bloomers over hills, through canons, fording creeks and braving all the hardships incidental to a prospector's life. They are back with a record of seven placer and quartz mines located.

They left Oakland, each one fully equipped with a miner's outfit. They returned with hundreds of pounds of ore samples and gold they had panned from placer claims.

AN ENTIRE SQUARE BURNED.

An entire square in the village of Bainbridge, O., containing most of the business houses, several handsome residences and the Methodist church, was entirely destroyed by fire last Thursday afternoon, and two prominent business men lost their lives in an explosion that occurred in a drug store. The bodies of T. H. Higgins and W. P. Beardsley were burned to death. The loss is estimated to be $50,000.

TRADE CHECKED.

The Demand for Staples is Noticeably Decreasing.

SHARP ADVANCE IN IRON.

The Yellow Fever Quarantine, Which Extends from Texas to Georgia, has Brought Wholesale Trade to a Standstill in the Gulf States.

Bradstreet's review of trade for the past week says:

There is a check to the sweeping demand in staples noticeable throughout the country for the past six weeks. The yellow fever quarantine, which extends from Texas to Georgia, has brought wholesale business to a practical standstill throughout the greater portion of the region embraced by the Gulf States. At centers of distribution in Eastern, Middle and Central Western States the recent activity in dry goods, hats and hardware has fallen off, but at the Northwest and on the Pacific coast buying by interior merchants and the free distribution of merchandise continue to be features. Demand for heavy textile fabrics has been stimulated by colder weather, and St. Louis merchants say the yellow fever scare will have no effect upon trade at that city, as Southern merchants had supplied themselves there before the quarantine was enforced. The outlook for business in parts of Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee and Georgia is for a much duller season than had been expected.

Favorable features of the week are found in sharp advances in prices for iron and steel, heavy sales of Bessemer pig iron, steel billets and rails and a prospect that iron and steel prices will go higher in the near future. Wool is also higher and woolen goods for 1898 delivery are up 10 to 15 per cent, with the outlook favoring a further advance. The increased volume of general trade is also stimulated by the continued heavy movement of cereals to tide water, the almost unprecedently large quantities exported each week and the increased number of people finding employment in industrial and commercial lines as compared with a year ago, together with the tendency of gold to come here from abroad.

Exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States and from Montreal this week amount to 9,623,493 bushels, compared with 6,269,948 bushels last week, 3,930,000 bushels in the week a year ago, 3,151,000 bushels two years ago, 2,562,000 bushels three years ago, and as compared with 3,490,000 bushels in the corresponding week of 1893.

Exports of Indian corn aggregated 4,027,142 in the week one year ago, 1,360,000 bushels two years ago, 1,040,000 bushels three years ago and as contrasted with 813,000 bushels in the like week of 1893.

There are 237 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, compared with 280 last week, 321 in the third week in September, 1896, 198 in 1895, 204 in the like week in 1894, and as contrasted with 232 in the corresponding period in 1893.

There are 35 business failures reported throughout the Canadian Dominion this week, against 36 last week, 34 in the week a year ago and 35 in the corresponding week of 1895.

UNION WITH UNCLE SAM.

The Hawaiian Senate Ratifies the American Treaty.

The Hawaiian Senate, in session on September 8, adopted the following resolution by unanimous vote:

"Be it resolved by the Senate of the Republic of Hawaii, That the Senate hereby ratifies and advises and consents to the ratification by the President of the treaty between the Republic of Hawaii and the United States of America on the subject of the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands to the United States of America, concluded in Washington, June 16, 1897, which treaty is word for word as follows:"

The text of the treaty then follows.

DEATH IN A WRECK.

John D. Young met his death in a head-end collision on the Georgia and Alabama road Tuesday morning. The colored fireman, whose name has not been ascertained, was also killed. Conductor R. G. Boyd was dangerously wounded, and may also die. The occasion was the attempt of an extra freight, laden with cotton, to make one more station before the westbound local freight train was due.

Owing to the heavy freight, it failed to make the time, and at 4:20 a. m. came in collision. The two engines were a total wreck, together with twelve box cars.

THREE KILLED, TEN INJURED.

Terrible Result of the Explosion of a Saw Mill Boiler.

The saw mill boiler of E. G. Dox, three miles from Livermore, Ky., blew up Thursday morning. Three men were killed and ten injured. Cold water run into the boiler caused the accident. John Goodwin and Henry Sales are the names of two of the men killed, but the other names could not be learned.

NEARING COMPLETION.

The M. & O. Railroad Extension Will Take on Finishing Touches.

A big lot of contracts will be let in the city of Tuskaloosa on Thursday, October 7, by the Hanover Construction Company. Following is an outline of contracts to be let:

At Tuskaloosa one passenger depot building, one freight depot building, one sand house, one oil house, one coal bin, one engine house.

At Montgomery one freight depot, one engine house, one sand house, one oil house.

There is also to be built one shop building, which is scheduled for Montgomery, but may be transferred to Tuskaloosa.

There will also be let the contract for sixteen depot buildings at way stations, also contracts for twenty sets of section houses with tool houses for each and the placing of nine water tanks, consisting of tanks with pumping engines and boilers, etc.

This means that the Mobile & Ohio railroad is nearing the point, when trains will be operating between Montgomery and Columbus, Miss., via Tuskaloosa. The grading has been going on for months and track laying has been completed over a large portion of the extension. Trains will probably be operating early next year, if not in December. The management of the work can be well understood when it is known that $4,000,000 of bonds were floated by the Mobile & Ohio for that purpose.

LATEST FEVER REPORTS.

Following shows the yellow fever situation at infected points up to Monday night:

At Edwards 11 new cases; total cases to date, 168; deaths, 6.

Mobile reports 3 new cases for Monday and 2 deaths. Total cases to date, 54; total deaths, 8.

At New Orleans there were 22 cases Saturday, 17 Sunday and 22 Monday, with 5 deaths for the three days. Total cases, 158; deaths, 19.

Private advices say that the situation in New Orleans is considerably worse than the dispatches sent out would indicate. They are face to face with an epidemic, and it gets worse and worse every day.

One new case is reported at Ocean Springs.

At Biloxi 10 new cases are reported and 1 death. Total cases to date 97, total deaths, 4.

A case has developed at California, La.

SAVED THE WOMAN.

At Bertig, a little station on the Paragould Southeastern railroad, nine miles east of Paragould, Ark., W. R. Worthy shot and instantly killed A. C. Hopkins, a prominent citizen of that place. Hopkins and his wife recently separated. Hopkins returned and assaulted his wife with a knife. Worthy interfered to save the woman's life, and drawing a pistol shot Hopkins as he was about to plunge the knife into his wife's body.

SHOT WITH A WINCHESTER.

Joe Hughes shot and instantly killed Will Henderson Monday near Morris, Ala. Hughes took a Winchester rifle and went to Henderson's farm, several miles east of Morris station. Henderson was picking cotton in his field when Hughes came upon him. The slayer fired one shot at his enemy from the rifle. Henderson sank to the ground and died in a short time. The ball struck him in the left side, passing through his abdomen and came out on the rear right side. Both parties were white and well known at Morris. Hughes is still at large.

FELL FIFTY FEET.

Walter Cox, an old and respected resident of Pickensville, Ala., went to Vienna, Ala., last Friday night to transact some business. While there he met some friends. They had a few drinks together. Cox left his friends early in the night, however, and went to the country tavern and retired. At a late hour he awoke and arose from the bed, and, being very thirsty, went in search of a drink of water. Instead of going into the hall as he intended doing, he stepped out of the window and fell fifty feet to the ground. One side of his body was crushed into a pulp. He died within fifteen minutes after the fall.

RECOVERING THE BODIES.

Three bodies have been taken from Slope No. 2 at Belle Ellen, Ala., which caught fire last week. The bodies were those of Hubbard Foley and Herman Kramer, white, and Henry Reeves, colored. It was thought two or three other bodies would be taken out later. The fire is not out, but it is believed that it is under control.

SPANISH VICTORY REPORTED.

The declaration is made and is being generally circulated that the Spanish troops in Cuba have recaptured Victoria de las Tunas, which was taken by the insurgents under Calixto Garcia and Jesus Rabi on September 5.

WEYLER WANTS MORE HELP.

Captain-General Weyler has cabled a request to the government to send 115 additional administrative officials to Cuba.

HANGED.

A Negro Rape Fiend Meets Death at the Hands of a Mob

IN THE BROAD DAYLIGHT.

The Citizens of Pawsville, Ky., Rise Up and Deal Summary Punishment to the Perpetrator of a Heinous Crime—The Mob Did Its Work on Sunday.

At Hawesville, Ky., in the broad opening glare of a Sunday sun, in the midst of a protracted revival, not a mask to be seen, and in the presence of 800 infuriated people, Raymond Bushred, at 5 o'clock last Sunday was made to pay the penalty of an assault on the person of 14-year-old Maggie Roberts. He was swung from a limb in the court house yard.

The story of the crime is as follows: Three miles below town, near Petri Station, he encountered Maggie Roberts, daughter of Ben Roberts, a prominent farmer. He ran her down, assaulted her, and accomplished his sensual purpose.

In addition to this, he beat and bruised her with an iron coupling pin and left her to die.

The news of the outrage spread and searching parties were sent in every direction, and he was captured in hiding at Falcon, a mining town four miles below the scene of the crime.

EMBARGO MODIFIED.

The State Board of Health Takes Action on Freight Traffic.

The embargo on passenger travel from Atlanta and the restrictions on freight traffic from all yellow fever infected points has been greatly modified by the State Committee of Health's suggestions, approved by the Governor. The Committee of Health, at their meeting in Montgomery Saturday afternoon, presented to the Governor the following recommendations:

Passengers from points beyond Atlanta will be permitted to come into this state, if, upon arrival at Atlanta, between sunrise and sunset, they are required to remain in the car, or are immediately transferred to another car, and not permitted to remain in the station more than fifteen minutes, nor outside the car; but no passenger car from Atlanta will be permitted to enter the state.

We make the following recommendations as to freights:

The following goods may be shipped from infected places in cars that have been thoroughly disinfected, under supervision of the officials of the Marine Hospital Service, at these places, and certified by said officials:

Class 1. New machinery, brick, bar and sheet iron, tin, steel, agricultural implements, iron ties, wagons, hardware without packing, lime and cement.

Class 2. All goods in original wooden or metal packages, not packed or broken in infected cities, shall be disinfected without breaking package.

Class 3. Goods packed in textile material, and kept perfectly dry, shall be disinfected without breaking package.

All meats, whether packed or unpacked, except in tin, are excluded.

WILL USE SOUTHERN COAL.

Big Mississippi Packet Company Contracts for Alabama Fuel.

The West Alabama Coal association, composed of the leading coal mining companies in Walker county, Alabama, has begun to encroach upon the business of the Pittsburg operators on the Mississippi river. Within the past few days this association has closed a contract with the Memphis, New Orleans & Cincinnati Packet company to supply the company with all the coal it uses between November of this year and January 1899, amounting to about 20,000 tons per year. It is reliably stated that the same association will very soon close similar contracts with the Anchor line of steamers on the Mississippi and the St. Louis and Mississippi River Transportation company. The aggregate of these contracts will be in the neighborhood of 100,000 tons a year. These companies have heretofore secured their coal in the North. The Alabama coal will be delivered to them at Greenville, Miss.

TIRED OF LIFE.

The dead body of Charles J. Floyd was found in the edge of a branch near his house, about twelve miles from Elba, Ala. Floyd was a man of family and some means, and was for a long time prior to his death in ill-health; He had often times said to his friends and family that he intended killing himself. He left his house a few nights ago, and his whereabouts remained a mystery until a searching party discovered his remains in the mud and water, and it appeared that he had been dead for a day or more. From the statements of the dead man while in life it seems that there is no doubt that he committed suicide.

TEN YEARS IN THE PEN.

Thomas N. Lowe, one of the parties who robbed the Southern Express Company's train near Calera, Ala., and who was recently captured in Indiana, was sentenced at Columbiana Monday to ten years in the penitentiary.

ALABAMA Day at the Tennessee Centennial Exposition has been changed from September 29th to October 22nd. Nashville has now no quarantine in force against any section.

YELLOW fever continues to spread in New Orleans, and is also reported in Houston, Texas. Mobile is making a gallant fight against the plague, and so far as Alabama is concerned the fever is confined to that city. Nothing would be more welcome to the fever-stricken towns than a visit from Jack Frost.

A CHANGE of government in Spain possibly means the end of the Cuban trouble. The new premier, Senor Sagasta, is believed to favor superceding Gen. Weyler and granting autonomy to Cuba. As President McKinley is also bestirring himself there is good reason to hope the Cubans are approaching the goal of their patriotic desires—freedom.

THE public school teachers who expect to draw their pay on Oct. 1 will be disappointed. On account of a lack of available cash the pay day has been postponed until Nov. 1. For years past the teachers have been forced to wait for their fall quarter salaries. Last year they were not paid until the middle of December. They will all be paid, however, within the month of October, the Governor states, and the payments for the succeeding quarters of the fiscal year will be met promptly.

WITHOUT any wish to precipitate a discussion on next year's campaign we think it advisable to say to any and all prospective candidates that it will be essential for every aspirant to definitely state his position, both as to his standing in the party and his intentions for the future. A growing sentiment in favor of every candidate pledging himself absolutely to whatever cause he purposes to follow, is steadily making itself felt, and no half-hearted declarations or prevarications will be tolerated by the people. "He who is not for us is against us" about sizes up the position of candidates in next year's campaign.

A READING of the brief of the contestant in the Aldrich vs. Plowman case is highly interesting and impresses the reader with the certainty of Mr. Aldrich taking the seat in Congress to which he was elected. That result is alright and proper in its way, but this constituency has been deprived of the services of its representative in congress and the country put to the expense of paying a salary to a man who had no right to the seat he unlawfully occupied. It would seem to the ordinary mind that the first thing congress should do would be to ascertain who are its duly elected members, and not wait the greater part of a session before "turning the rascals out."

COTTON AND WHEAT.

The cotton situation is hardly less remarkable than the wheat situation in the earlier months of 1897. July 1, this year, the world's available supplies of wheat were the smallest in eight year; the world's available supplies of cotton, September 1, were the smallest since 1890. The visible supply of wheat on July 1, here and abroad was 30 per cent. below the aggregate twelve months before; today's visible home and foreign stock of cotton is less by 23 per cent. than in September, 1896. As in wheat, so in cotton. It is the American supply in storehouse which has been most heavily reduced. At the opening of July, wheat in sight in the United States was only 17,583,000 bushels, against 47,198,000 in July, 1896; cotton left over in this country at the end of August is only 77,105 bales, against 242,678 a year before. This is a rather curious analogy. It does not prove that cotton will rise as violently as wheat has risen; the two markets differ radically in that foreign consumers must have wheat and must, on occurance of a foreign shortage, have it immediately, to avert the possibility of a famine. Foreign demand for cotton on the other hand, can often wait; it sometimes happens that when supplies of raw cotton are deficient, the stock of unsold manufactured goods is ample. Our own conntry shows the truth of this supposition; which, perhaps, sufficiently explains the fact that spot cotton sells to-day in the face of a short supply, one cent a pound under a year ago. Nevertheless, the situation is extremely interesting; not less so because of the lateness of this season's cotton crop, and the existing doubt over its prospects.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS.

In establishing postal savings banks a nation carries its people forward a step in civilization, inasmuch as it is giving to them an additional security against misfortune. A person who puts his savings into the postoffice bank will know that when hardship and want overtake him, whether because of misfortune or declining years, his money will be forthcoming. The fact that there is such a safe place of deposit provided will induce many to make provision against future want who otherwise would permit themselves to become charges upon society when misfortune overtakes them or when old age finds them unprepared to earn a support by their labor. To the persons for whom the postal savings bank is intended the rate of interest paid on deposits is of minor importance. What such persons want above everything else is absolute security against loss. They want to eliminate from life the danger that in their declining years they may find themselves without the means of sustaining existence. Congress should establish a system of postal savings banks for the people of the United States without further unnecessary delay—Chicago Record.

A WOMAN'S LETTER

Concerning Dr. Hartman's Free Treatment for Women.

I received your book on Gynæcology and commenced the use of your medicine at once. I took five bottles of Pe-ru-na and two of Ma-na-lin. I feel like a new woman. When I commenced taking Pe-ru-na I could hardly walk across my room; now I am doing my own work, can walk a mile and a half to church. I shall never cease to thank you for prescribing for me. I had been under the treatment of two doctors, but never received any benefit until I commenced taking your medicine. I am now well and doing my own work. I wish every woman who was suffering as I was would send for one of your books on Gynæcology. It is a God-send to suffering women. May God bless you and spare you many years to relieve women who are suffering as I was. I am anxious for every woman who is suffering as I was to know what your medicine did for me.

MRS. H. D. AMOSS,
Greenesboro, Ga.

A free book, written expressly for women by Dr. Hartman, will be sent to any address by The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Co., Columbus, Ohio.

The recent decision of Judge Foster, of the Federal Court, declaring the Kansas Live Stock Exchange, a trust, is a great surprise to the public, who had been led to believe that such concerns were not amenable to law. The decision will have a blighting affect on Boards of Trades and similar combinations, unless reversed.

The Chairman of the Kansas Populist State committee has requested each Populist State official to contribute an article on some live political question, for publication in the reform Press of the State, during the present campaign.

The Populists of Massachusetts held a State convention at Boston, September 19, with over sixty delegates in attendance. The convention re affirmed the St. Louis platform and condemed government by injunction.

Mr. B. H. Chesnutt this week removed his family to Birmingham.

Political Points.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 29, 1897.

The municipal campaign in Greater New York which is of surprising significance to the entire nation, presents an unusual spectacle. Two Republican and two Democratic candidates are in the field. All efforts to fight it out along the lines of the last campaign failed. Henry George is proposed as the silver candidate.

The Silver Republicans in Kansas have issued an address to the members of the party in that State which shows that they are not calculating on returning to the G. O. P. but are going to hold their organization and act in union with the other reform parties.

The Kansas farmers are being confronted by a hitherto forgotten clause in their mortgages which forbids the payment of said debt till a fixed time, or the borrowing of money from other sources to secure release.

Senators Dubois, Cannon and Pettigrew have arrived safely in Japan and secured the promise of a speedy interview with the emperor and his minister of finance in regard to silver.

The message sent to President Diaz, of Mexico, to the recently assembled congress shows that country to be in a most prosperous condition. Money seeking investment has never flowed so freely into that region as during the last year.

Charles W. Bryan, brother of W. J. Bryan, has been appointed to a position on the staff of Gov. Holcomb, of Nebraska.

One million of silver dollars were turned out by the United States Mint during this month. The secretary of the Treasury admits that they are badly needed in the west and south.

A street railway strike is eminent in Cleveland, Ohio, and since such an event would militate against the interest of the Hanna campaign the Republican papers are denouncing it as a populist scheme.

Wharton Barker, of Philadelphia, is spoken of by many Populist papers, as the man to unify the voters who will in the next campaign demand something more than the silver question.

Glass, zinc and malt are the latest trusts to be formed.

Eugene V. Debs has expressed himself as opposed to the incendiary utterance of many of his followers.

The Dingley Bill has been in froce two months and still we have a deficit of $28,000,000.

Broker shops and banking establishments on Wall street are reported as working a double force of clerks, so great is the volume of business that the recently awakened mania for speculation has brought about.

On "Simpson Day" at the fair at Sedalia, Mo., the Kansas Congressman predicted that within six months this country would see the greatest panic ever yet experienced.

The price of silver bullion is on the rise, owing to English purchases and the rumor in London that coinage will soon be reasumed in India.

Banker Henry Crews announces great activity in Wall street. Prosperity for that gamblers' roost usually means poverty and destitution elsewhere.

Ex-Lieutenant Governor Percy Daniels, of Kansas, proposes a scheme to tap the Missouri river in Montana and run its waters into a canal, to empty into the Red river of Texas, as a means of irrigation and to prevent overflows. The cost is estimated at $350,000,000.

The official records in the Coroners office, of Cook county, Illinois, shows 257 suicides in the city of Chicago during the past eight months. The piercing times caused by the greed of the gold power has had much to do with this appalling record.

The great coal strike has ended practically in a "draw" and most of the men have returned to work with a slight increase in wages. The great lesson in the strike is that ballots are more potent than bullets in righting the wrongs of labor.

Nourish Him.

That's the whole secret in a word. We can cure no disease unless we can keep up the patient's strength. And there's only one way to do that—feed him. But if the system refuses food? Then use SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites. It goes STRAIGHT TO THE BLOOD, stops the wasting, rekindles the vital fire, makes new flesh and so renders a hopeful fight possible against ANY disease.

Especially is this so in bronchial and lung troubles, in the relief and cure of which Scott's Emulsion has won its reputation. Book about it free.

Scott's Emulsion is no mysterious mixture. It is palatable, non-nauseating and infinitely preferable to the plain oil. The genuine has our trademark on salmon-colored wrapper. Get the genuine.

Teachers' Institute.

Montevallo, Ala., Sept. 28, 1897

The final Institute for the teachers of Chilton county for the scholastic year ending Sept. 30, 1897, was held at Concord, Supt. J. W Moore presided. Twelve teachers registered during the two days. Very few teachers who had been given a place on the program attended. The teachers present discussed all of the subjects as published. Miss Kate Garner's essay, "Alabama in Literature," was very interesting, it showed time and thought in its preparation. Mr. J. F. M. Thomas discussed several subjects. His discussions were suggestive to young teachers and profitable to all.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. 50c and $100 per bottle

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

The Way To Weigh More

Good weight means good health. Good health means good blood. Good blood is at the bottom of it all. If a man or woman is losing flesh, chances are ten to one that the blood is impure and lifeless. Pure blood builds up good, firm flesh. It makes muscles that you can use. There is no fictitious fat about it. It gives you a balance in the bank of health that you can draw on without fear.

Sarsaparilla is Nature's remedy for impure or impoverished blood. It is just the sort of remedy that grandmother used to dig up in the garden. It is simple, pure, efficient. It puts the digestion into perfect order, stimulates the appetite, assists nutrition, cleanses and purifies the whole body.

The surest and purest and safest and best of all sarsaparillas is

THE NEW WAY.

WOMEN used to think "female diseases" could only be treated after "local examinations" by physicians. Dread of such treatment kept thousands of modest women silent about their suffering. The introduction of Wine of Cardui has now demonstrated that nine-tenths of all the cases of menstrual disorders do not require a physician's attention at all. The simple, pure taken in the privacy of a woman's own home insures quick relief and speedy cure. Women need not hesitate now. Wine of Cardui requires no humiliating examinations for its adoption. It cures any disease that comes under the head of "female troubles"—disordered menses, falling of the womb, "whites," change of life. It makes women beautiful by making them well. It keeps them young by keeping them healthy. $1.00 at the drug store.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

W. I. ADDISON, M.D., Cary, Miss., says: "I use wine of Cardui extensively in my practice and find it an excellent preparation for female troubles."

The Weekly Crop Bulletin says: The week ending September 27, was a generally favorable one for maturing and harvesting of crops, though high may temperatures caused continued premature opening of cotton; there was practically no rain over this section during the week; light frost (the first of the season) reported on low lands of Cullman county on the 22nd; and the temperature was as low as 40 in Jackson county on 22nd and 23rd. Late crops are suffering for moisture and in northern and western counties water for stock is scarce.

Cotton is opening very rapidly; our correspondent in Greene county reports bolls the size of hickory-nuts popping open and that there will not be 25 pounds to the acre left in field in that section by October 1st; rust and shedding have decreased decidedly and while a few correspondents anticipate nearly an average yield, they are in localities which have had especially favorable conditions, and former estimates of a decidedly short and early crop are confirmed by recent reports; about three-fourths of the cotton is open and the bulk of the crop will certainly be gathered by middle of October. Corn continues to be housed in good condition, but confirms former estimates of light yield; field peas and peanuts show a fairly good yield, but potatoes, both irish and sweet, will be light; much pea vine hay being saved; sugar cane falling short for want of rain; pasturage good; grapes excellent.

Stands at the Head.

Aug. J. Bogel, the leading druggist of Shreveport, La., says: "Dr. King's New Discovery is the only thing that cured my cough, and it is the best seller I have." J. F. Campbell, merchant of Safford, Ariz., writes: "Dr. King's New Discovery is all that is claimed for it; it never fails, and is a sure cure for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I can not say enough for its merits." Dr. Kings New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is not an experiment. It has been tried for a quarter of a century, and to-day stands at the head. It never disappoints. Free trial bottle at Dr. J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete, will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents should speedily exhaust the first edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

5 DROPS — 49 YEARS OF SUFFERING FROM RHEUMATISM.

Read carefully this testimonial found below, also letters from those who have been cured of other diseases and remember that "5 Drops" has and can never fail to quickly relieve and permanently cure.

Sept. 9, 1896.

DEAR SIR:—Your bottle of "5 Drops" received. It was for an old friend, Mr. Wm. Edwards, of Martinstown Wis. He has had Neuralgia in his chest, suffering a great deal of pain, so much so that it affected his heart and he could not sleep on account of a smothered feeling. He has been under the care of the most eminent physicians, but found no relief until I gave him a dose of "5 Drops." The very first night he rested well, and has ever since, and is gaining daily. I myself am 67 years old and began taking your medicine last April for Rheumatism, which I have had for 49 years, also for a weak heart. Since taking "5 Drops" the Rheumatism has all disappeared, the stiffness is gone from my joints, and my heart never misses a beat. I am to-day a well, strong woman, and I owe it to "5 Drops." I only wish I could sound my bugle of praise loud enough to be heard all over the world, and could convince every one that "5 Drops" is all you claim it to be and more.
Mrs. D. T. Carver, Winslow, Stevenson Co., Ill.

34 YEARS OF SUFFERING.

DEAR SIR:— JANUARY 2, 1897.

Over 34 years ago, I had Typhoid Fever, and barely escaped with my life. It left my system so shattered that I have had ever since, Rheumatism and Throat Trouble, which gave me a terrible Cough. I had been unable to find any relief for these diseases, until I learned of your "5 DROPS", which I commenced taking only two months ago, and my cure has been indeed WONDERFUL. Already my cough has entirely disappeared, and the Rheumatism which for a few years past has threatened to make a cripple of me, is cured, and I am free from pain. This is the most wonderful and the cheapest remedy ever discovered. I am more thankful to you than words can tell and I want everybody to know what "5 DROPS" has done for me. Although I am OVER 70 YEARS old, I am feeling better than I have in years.

I shall be glad to answer any questions regarding my case from anyone enclosing a two cent stamp. Gratefully yours,
MRS. SAMUEL RIBLET, Litchfield, Mich.

CATARRH AND HAY FEVER.

I find the bottle of "5 DROPS" to be very good and just what you claim. My wife has been suffering with Catarrh and Hay Fever over 16 years, she has tried everything and doctored much, but no cure until she tried "5 DROPS" which completely cured her.
Yours truly REV. L. VON WALD,
March 31, 1896. Milbank, S. D.

NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA.

For twenty long years my wife suffered untold tortures from Sciatica and Neuralgia, and I thank God for the day that your heaven-sent remedy fell into my hands, for it completely cured her. I am a minister of the Gospel, and when I find any who suffer, cannot help but recommend "5 DROPS", for I know it will do more then you claim for it.
REV. F. M. COOPER, Washington Center, Mo.

DEAR SIRS: NOVEMBER 9, 1896.

It is with pleasure I speak of your priceless remedy and of the good it has done me. For the last eight years I have been an incurable cripple from paralysis and rheumatism, just think, for eight years a total cripple not able to earn a penny not able to walk or step on the ground without the aid of something to lean on. Heaven bless the man who discovered this remedy, for, thanks to him and to God, I am able to walk and able to work. I have only taken two-thirds of a bottle, but have not had any pain in my back since I took the first dose, and after the second I walked across the floor, which I have not done in years. I have thrown away my cane and shall never need it again. To any one sending me a two-cent stamp I will send my affidavit. I have another bottle of "5 DROPS" and value it at $10 per drop.
Thankfully yours, EDWARD CASTLE,
1005 Wall Street. Sioux City, Iowa.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

DEAR SIR: SEPTEMBER 24, 1896.

I wish to tell you and suffering humanity how much good "5 DROPS" has done me. On the beginning of this year I took down lastfast with inflammatory rheumatism, and I was doctored by as good physicians as this country has, but they could not cure me. On August 4, I began to take "5 DROPS." At that time every joint in my body and my limbs were stiff, so that I could not be moved. Even my tongue was getting so that I could hardly speak so any one could understand me, but to-day, only seven weeks from that time, I am absolutely cured, and thank you and God for my recovery.
Gratefully yours,
HORACE F. ANDERSON, McCracken, Kans.

Giving Away Brides.

Among the novel means by which some people of London subsist is that of giving away brides at the altar. The custom has grown to considerable proportions of late, and a member of a firm of fashionable costumers, in speaking of it recently, said: "You, of course, recognize the fact that in this great city are scores of hard-working girls who are miles away from their relations and who have always been too busy to cultivate many friends. Well, when these girls are about to marry young fellows who are similarly circumstanced the question arises as to who shall give away the bride.

"I can answer that question for them at once, for I have connected with my business an ex-major in the army, a member of an ancient family and a man, too, of unimpeachable character. He is poor, but he dresses well, has beautiful white hair and looks the kindly father to perfection. I introduce him to the bride and bridegroom, and he, for a moderate fee, gives the former away. Sometimes he takes the whole arrangements of a breakfast and so on upon himself, and he is a fine speaker on occasion. He is always a welcome guest with these people afterward."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

STATE TOPICS.

Late News Items of General Interest to Alabamians.

RECOMMEND IMPEACHMENT.

At Florence the grand jury rendered a sensational report Friday evening, recommending the impeachment of Sheriff Carson for drunkenness in office, and giving a gentle warning to the road commissioners for several beats that the roads must be worked better.

BIG FIRE AT EAST LAKE.

College Station, near East Lake, is in ashes. The entire business portion was destroyed by fire Thursday afternoon. Twenty-one frame buildings went up in the flames in the remarkably short time of a few minutes. The total loss is estimated at more than $20,000, largely covered by insurance.

PUT UP THE BARS.

The existence of a case of yellow fever in Atlanta caused Captain M. H. Amerine, State quarantine officer, to institute a rigid quarantine against that city Friday. The order went into effect at sunrise, and the regulations are the same as those applied to New Orleans and other infected districts.

IN SEARCH OF GOLD.

Col. I. B. Stone, Greer Mason, John Freeman, Schuyler Harris, J. F. Walker, P. B. Laldlow and George Ragsdale compose a party that has left Athens for Arizona, where they will seek gold. The party had made considerable preparation for the trip, and has ample equipments for prospecting.

ROASTED.

A negro woman named Duncan locked her three small children in her dwelling near Coosada last Friday night and went to a party. Fire broke out at midnight and burned the house to the ground. The children were roasted under the bed, where they had crawled, seeking protection. The woman is guilty of murder under the law of Alabama.

SHORTAGE PROMPTLY PAID.

In the examination of Commissioner Culver's books last week a shortage of $5,000 was discovered, which was promptly paid by Mr. Culver. The commissioner explains that the shortage was due to errors appearing in his vouchers, caused by the continued illness of his chief clerk, Donald Sessions, who died last month, his assistant not being able to keep up with all the work.

PRESIDENTIAL APPOINTMENTS.

The presilent has made the following appointments for this State:

Leander Bryson, marshal for the Middle district of Alabama; James C. Leftwitch, colored, receiver of public money at Montgomery; Robert Barbour, register of the land office at Montgomery; Judge Steele, register at Huntsville, and H. V. Cashin, colored, receiver of public money at Huntsville.

DEMAND FOR PIG IRON.

It is given out that Alabama furnaces have sold pig iron up to January 1 next year.

As a result a number of orders are being accepted for delivery after that date. Such conditions have not prevailed in this section in many months, and the activity of the pig iron market is the subject of much comment.

Fifteen furnaces are in blast in the Birmingham district, and two others are ready for the torch. Heavy shipments of pig iron are reported.

TAX ASSESSOR SHORT.

Assistant Examiner Foster has found another former tax assessor almost $3,400 short in his settlements with the State and county. Mr. Hugh J. Stephenson, of Colbert, is the unfortunate, but, according to the special report, his delinquency appears to be the result of an accident rather than of a deliberate intention to wrong the State. He is now arranging to pay the State the full amount he is due. It will take his home and all that he possesses to pay up, it is stated, but he promises that the State shall not lose a cent by him.

FIVE MINERS ENTOMBED.

Slope No. 2 of the mines at Belle Ellen is on fire, and considerable damage has already been done. Five men are beyond the flames, and are thought to be dead. They are miners who were cut off by the flames before they could be rescued. They are: Hubbard Foley and Herman Garner, white; Frank James, Henry Reeves and William Fairfax, colored. There may be others, but these are known to be cut off. The men are undoubtedly dead, as the fire has been raging some time. One of the State mine inspectors went to the scene, and at his advice the entrance was closed to prevent the ingress of air to feed the flames. It is the intention of the fire fighters to pump water into the slope.

NEW COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS.

Hon. John O. Turner, State Superintendent of Education, has officially announced the following appointments of county superintendents, which will take effect on December 1:

Barbour county, Charles S. McDowell, Jr., Clayton; Chambers county, W. G. Jarrel, LaFayette; Choctaw county, O. L. Gray, Butler; Greene county, John G. Apsey, Eutaw; Hale county, J. A. Ellerbee, Greensboro; Jefferson county, I. W. McAdory, Birmingham; Macon county, A. B. Paine, Tuskegee; Madison county, J. D. Humphrey, Huntsville; Montgomery county, John J. Hunter, Montgomery; Perry county, J. D. Cross, Marion; Pickens county, O. A. Chappell, Dillburg; Talladega county, J. B. Graham, Talladega; Washington county, T. G. Bowline, Leroy.

A CONTRACTOR KILLED.

J. G. Lallande was shot and killed by A. Stoneking at Tuskaloosa Friday. The cause of the shooting seems to have been over a very trivial matter, the two men having had a quarrel over treating a crowd to cigars. There was nothing thought of the matter until shortly afterwards, when they met again in a saloon and Stoneking offered to treat to drinks. Lallande refused, saying he would not drink with one who was not a gentleman. Stoneking then left the bar and went to a hardware store, where he purchased a 38-calibre Colt's pistol. Returning in a short time and entering the front door of the saloon, he saw Lallande standing at the cigar case. Stoneking began cursing and abusing Lallande, and as Lallande turned to face him Stoneking drew his pistol and fired once, the ball striking Lallande in the abdomen, who immediately sank to the floor in a dying condition. Stoneking was immediately arrested and taken to jail. Lallande was junior member of the contracting firm of Dunn & Lallande of Birmingham, who are grading the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. Stoneking was also a contractor.

QUARANTINE ROLL.

The following places are now being strictly quarantined against by Alabama in general and Birmingham in particular:

Atlanta, Ga., Cairo, Ill., Jackson, Miss., Vicksburg, Miss., New Orleans, La., Mobile, Ala., Edwards, Miss., Scranton, Moss Point, Perkiston, Barclay, Brantley, Mississippi City, Ocean Springs, West Pascagoula, Beauvoir, Chef Mentor, Lookout, Rigolets, Waverly, Pontchartrain Junction, Michaud, Pass Christian and other places.

There is a strict quarantine on each and every place, Atlanta not excepted. No passengers are allowed to come from any of the places except they have been absent from said places more than ten days.

No baggage, mail or express matter, or freight, is allowed to enter the State in general and Birmingham in particular, except they have been subjected to a thorough fumigation.

The officers in and around Birmingham have received instructions not to relax efforts in stopping people from Atlanta from entering the State. The newspapers of Atlanta will not be allowed to enter Birmingham without first having been well fumigated.

The prisoners in the Colbert county jail had almost sawed their way to liberty last Monday morning when discovered by Ed Grisham, the son of the sheriff. Two of the iron bars were nearly severed. The instrument used was a small steel spring used in the bottom of shoes.

J. J. Motley, tax commissioner for Lee county, has found that the Eagle and Phenix factory owns thirty-seven houses and lots at Phenix City, in Lee county, that have escaped taxation entirely, not being on the books. The assessment on them amounts to $160,000 for six years, and the company will have it to pay.

WILL NOT INTERFERE.

Senator J. K. Jones of Arkansas, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, says that the national committee will not interfere in the coming mayoralty contest in New York. He says: "The Democratic party believes in local self-government, and that means also local party government. The national committee thinks the Democratic organization in New York knows best how to run the campaign in New York, and it will not presume to give any advice."

KNOCKED OUT

Is Section 22 of the New Tariff Law.

Attorney-General McKenna has announced his opinion in the matter of section 22 of the new tariff. He holds in effect that goods coming directly into the United States from foreign countries through Canadian ports are not subject to the discriminating duty of 10 per cent, and also holds that foreign goods shipped from countries other than the British possessions in British vessels are not subject to such a discriminating duty.

Letters of patent have just been issued covering the manufacture of yeast foam from Rocky mountain sage brush.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

According to the statistics of the United States Bureau of Labor, there are 27,000 married men in New York city who are supported by their wives.

To be "full of prunes" is an expression meant to convey reproach, but California owns up this year to thousands of tons of the crop, and doesn't care who knows it.

The Louisville Times reports that "a frog in Graves County has got into an ordinary jug and cannot be got out." Probably a closer examination will prove that that jug contains a snake instead of a frog.

Travelers in the wilds of Africa will do well to take a plentiful supply of umbrellas with them, according to Prof. Pechuel-Loesche, the German explorer. He says they are the best protection against the wild beasts—tigers and lions especially being afraid of them when suddenly opened.

A plan for connecting South and West Australia by railroad is under consideration. The distance between the ends of their railroad systems is only 553 miles, but the country to be traversed is an arid desert, and reservoirs must be built at twenty-five-mile intervals along the whole line. The cost will be about $10,000,000.

The Boyden Premium of the Franklin Institute, Philadelphia, is to be awarded at the beginning of next year. The premium is $1,000, and it will be given to "any resident of North America who shall determine by experiment whether all rays of light and other physical rays are or are not transmitted with the same velocity."

An English paper carries an advertisement reading: "We hereby publish our intention to repudiate any demands for payment of moneys obtained under any pretense whatsoever by any person whomsoever." Then follows the firm name and address. If debt-paying can be avoided in England by merely inserting an advertisement like that in a paper, conscienceless financiers ought to flourish over there.

The tide of immigration is now at the lowest point since 1882, when the General Government assumed control of the subject. The number of arrivals from all countries for the fiscal year was 230,832, a decrease of one-third from the previous year. Italy still furnishes the largest quota of immigrants, her contribution being over 54,000; Germany supplied 22,500; Austria, 33,000; England, 10,000; Ireland, 28,500; Cuba, 3,500; Armenia, 4,700.

For some years the Government has been bringing over to Alaska from Siberia reindeer for breeding purposes, the idea being to extensively introduce this useful animal throughout our northern territory, both for food and transportation purposes. The herds have thrived, and Commissioner of Education Harris, who has charge of the matter, reports that there should now be 500 deer trained to harness and ready for practical work. The purpose is to furnish the deer for transporting miners' supplies on the Yukon. A reindeer will go three times as far in a day as the mongrel dogs now in use, and they live easily on the moss that grows so abundantly in Alaska, whereas to find feed for the dogs or horses is in itself a serious problem.

There is general interest in the proposed sample road-building by the United States Government at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva. The sample road will be more than 7,000 feet long. About 800 feet will be macadamized in the centre to the width of eight feet, with rolled dirt on either side, this being designed as an improved country road. The remainder, something over a mile, will be macadamized in the centre fourteen feet, with dirt roads on either side. It is now proposed also to lay at least 200 feet of the steel track, which is now attracting so much attention as a possibly efficient and economical road, in sections where stone is scarce and costly. Visitors are cordially invited to witness the operations on Wednesday and Thursday of each week by Gen. Roy Stone, who is in charge.

The shortage this year in the European crop of rye, the cereal largely used abroad for bread and at home for whiskey, is estimated as 300,000,000 bushels, and there is already a considerable demand for American rye for export. Fortunately for American farmers, this year's rye crop is considerably in advance of what it has been, and the crop will exceed, it is computed, 30,000,000 bushels, breaking the record, which was 29,960,000 bushels in 1882. Rye is used extensively in many European countries, particularly in Russia, about half the total rye used in Europe and America being raised in Russia. An enormous quantity of rye, too, is raised in Germany, and a considerable, though smaller, amount in Hungary. Sweden and France are two other European countries which produce a considerable quantity of rye, it being used for bread more extensively there than in the United States.

While Peary, Nansen and Andree have been striving for laurels at the North, the South Pole is not being neglected. A large scientific expedition for the Antarctic Sea has been fitted out in Belgium. Lieut. De Gerlache is its commander. His vessel is a steam whaler, bark-rigged, named the Belgica. The Belgica is a small craft, registering 250 tons, and capable of making seven knots under steam alone. She does not go out for exploration purposes primarily; she is a whaler, and will attend to business as such; but she will convey the Antarctic expedition, land it, succor it if necessary, and bring it home—if all goes well. Her hull is sheathed with ironwood, and she carries a powerful steel ram, or spur, for cutting through ice-floes. The expedition will be provided with the choicest of modern scientific instruments, with suitable clothing, food, snow-shoes and other necessaries for extended journeys over the ice-clad Southern continent. The outfit is modest, but effective. Valuable geographical information concerning this unknown polar region is confidently expected.

Preparations for the exodus to the Klondike are being made by systematically organizing parties in many sections of the country. One of the most notable is a syndicate which has chartered a steamship to make the trip to the Yukon by way of Cape [illegible]. The fare for this route will cost [illegible], and each passenger can take 1,000 pounds of baggage. Three of the crew of the United States revenue cutter Perry, in Alaskan waters, deserted and started on the 700 mile journey by open sea to St. Michael's. The gold fever is attracting every one within reach of the Yukon country, and it is almost impossible to keep hold of enough men to conduct routine business. Skaguay, a few miles from Dye, is becoming the headquarters of the gold-seekers en route, instead of Dyea. The mountain route from Skaguay to the Upper Yukon is now impassable, but 1,000 men are working to open it. Small numbers of travelers continue to make their difficult way over the pass from Dyea. There are over 5,000 people at Skaguay and Dyea waiting for a chance to move, and there are 5,000 more on the way. Many are returning to Juneau to winter there, having given up getting to Dawson before things are frozen solid.

Eskimo Bows and Arrows.

As every one knows, the Eskimos, with very few exceptions, inhabit a region which is perfectly treeless, or, at any rate, where nothing grows but pines and spruces, whose soft inelastic wood is entirely useless for making bows. They have overcome this difficulty very effectively by fastening along the back of the bow twisted cords of reindeer sinew in such a way that each cord is stretched when the bowstring is released. As far as we know, no other race of savages makes use of this ingenious contrivance. Some tribes of Indians are in the habit of stiffening their bows by "backing" them with strips of sinew, glued on, but the Eskimo backing is made of cords and tied on. As old Martin Frobisher, the first Englishman who ever saw the Eskimos (in 1557), tells us, "Their bowes are of wood of a yard long, sinewed on the back with strong sinewes, not glued too, but fast girded and tyed on."

In some regions the Eskimos, when first visited by white men, were still using bows with a very simple backing, merely twenty or thirty strands of twine running from one end of the bow to the other, twisted together tightly from the middle and tied down to the bow in two or three places. My friends at Point Barrow and along the adjacent coast, however, had gone on improving the bow until it was the best made by Eskimos anywhere.—Appleton'sPopular Science Monthly.

Cold in Philadelphia.

The report says: "In order to calculate, with some accuracy, the value of this body of wealth, we cut out blocks of the clay and found, on an average, a cubic foot, as it lies in the ground, weighs 120 pounds, as near as may be. The assay gives seventenths grain, say three cents' worth, to the cubic foot. Assuming the data already given, we get four thousand one hundred and eighty million cubic feet of clay under our streets and houses, in which securely lie one hundred and twenty-six million dollars. And if, as is pretty certain, the corporate limits of the city would afford eight times this bulk of clay, we have more gold than has been brought, according to the statistics, from California and Australia."

Other calculations show that every time a load of clay is hauled out of a cellar enough gold goes with it to pay for the carting, and if the bricks which front our houses could have brought to their surface, in the form of gold leaf, the amount of gold which they contain, we should have a glittering show of two square inches on each brick. A single specimen of zinc proved to be absolutely free from gold.

These investigations proved that, while gold is justly considered one of the rarest metals, it is also one of the most widely diffused, and there are many philosophical reasons to be found in explanation of this apparent paradox.—Appleton's Popular Science Monthly.

A Few Facts About Garlic.

About three-quarters of the garlic used in this country is imported from Italy. It comes in hampers containing about 110 pounds each. Garlic is raised in this country in Connecticut, in Louisiana, in Texas and in New Mexico. All garlic, both imported and American, is put up in strings or bunches, something like the bunches in which onions were once commonly sold in this country, but much longer. American garlic is shipped in crates and barrels; some from the far Southwest comes in long cylindrical baskets.

Garlic is sold by the pound, or by the single bulb, which is sold for a penny. In its commercial form, whole or dry, garlic does not yield the strong smell for which it is famous. In a wholesale produce establishment, where garlic was stacked up in quantities, there was no noticeable odor from it. But if one of the several smaller bulbs of which each root is composed, and which are called cloves of garlic, be broken off and broken in two, the powerful odor becomes perceptible.

The aggregate consumption of garlic in this country is large, and our exports of it to South American countries, which include American garlic and imported garlic reshipped, amount to enough to be reckoned in tons.—New York Sun.

Peasants Broke a Drought.

In the village of Apraximo, in the Orel district of Russia, the peasants addressed the volost (the oldest land owner, who is made chief by reason of his age), asking what should be done to break the long spell of drought, no rain having fallen since the beginning of April. The volost called a meeting of all the peasants of the district and advised them in the meeting to resort to an old custom, dating back to the days of Czar Ivan the Terrible. This proposition was carried, and the next day all the women of the village were compelled to take a bath in the stream running by, while the men had to sing litanies to soften the heart of the deity. Curiously enough, rain set in on the following day, and the old custom will hereafter have a large number of believers.

Duck farming has increased greatly in the last few years because it is profitable.

SOUTH CAROLINA LADIES
DON'T LIE.
Mrs. C. M. Lowan
Inman, S. C., says: I have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine for years, with the best of results for Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Indigestion and Swollen Feet. It cured Miss S. Hammett of a complication of diseases; she says it saved her life. I think it far excels "Zeilin's" and the "Black Draught" medicine.

Falling of the Womb.
The cases of uterine displacement are very numerous and constitute a prolific cause of intense and wide-spread suffering. Its symptoms are bearing-down or dragging sensations, pain or weakness in the back, sometimes a sense of goneness at the pit of the stomach. It may result from too frequent childbearing, wearing garments that compress the waist and abdomen, overlifting, standing on the feet too long, and general debility.
We would strongly urge the use of Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine which will purify and vitalize the blood, give tone and strength to the muscles of the uterus, so that it will be kept in place. To facilitate a quick and complete recovery, we recommend as an injection our Mexican Female Remedy, which will produce the happiest results.

M. A. Rutherford
Walhalla, S. C., writes: I have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine more than 20 years, for Torpid Liver and Dizziness. I take a dose every two weeks and feel all right. I know it is far superior to "Zeilin's Regulator," in my case.

Womanhood.
The health and well-being of mankind depend upon the physical health and perfection of womanhood. Among the diseases which most impair the female constitution are leucorrhœa, irregular and painful menstruation, falling of the womb, chlorosis, scanty or too profuse menstruation. These diseases can be cured. Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine is a delightful remedy, to take, entirely harmless, free from narcotics, purely vegetable and produces no unpleasant after-results. It is unequalled as a uterine tonic and curative agent for all female diseases, as it is impossible for weakness of the uterus and generative organs to exist when it is faithfully and persistently used. Constipation is another bane of woman's life which can be cured by using Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine.

M. Wharton of Baltimore, who is conducting the revival.

CRUELTY TO WOMEN

And Outrage on Americans Charged Against Dictator Barrios.

The steamer San Blas arrived from Central American ports the past week with authentic details of the revolution in Guatemala: Barrios, needing money, applied to Don Juan Apricio, a well-known capitalist, through the medium of Gen. Roque Morales, who is noted for his cruelty. Knowing that the loan would mean his financial ruin, Apricio hesitated, and was taken promptly to the castle and strung up by the thumbs. Upon refusal to accede to the demands made upon him, Apricio was lashed until he fainted from the torture, and still being obdurate when he recovered from his lost senses, Morales cursed and shot him dead. His many friends, however, had their revenge shortly afterward, for when the city of Quegaltenago was taken General Morales was shot without the courtesy of a trial.

Grave accusations of cruelty to women, the wives and daughters of men who had joined the revolutionists, are made against Dictator Barrios.

The San Blas brought a party of fourteen Americans up from the scene of the revolution, all of whom say it will be a long time before peace is again restored. They state that Americans are thrown into jail on the very slightest provocation, upon the ground that they are plotting against Barrios. Even the stars and stripes were not allowed to float over their residences.

LEVYING TRIBUTE.

Wily Scheme of a Colored Preacher and Politician.

Felix R. Sims, a colored Baptist preacher and politician, postmaster at Thebes, Liberty county, Ga., was arrested the past week by Deputy Marshal White on a warrant sworn out before United States Commissioner J. F. Lewis, charging him with using the mails for fraudulent purposes.

Sims has been writing to a number of fourth-class postmasters in the First Congressional district, and as the representative of a certain republican committee, of which W. H. Styles, former representative from Liberty, and others, are members, has demanded tribute from them, in exchange for which the aforesaid postmasters were to receive the endorsement of this committee, which, it was said, would insure their appointments. Without this endorsement they were informed that they could not hold their jobs. These postmasters were assessed all the way from $10 to $75, one of them having bought the endorsement of the committee for the latter amount.

A LOCAL KLONDIKE.

Excitement continues to prevail in an acute degree near Purdam Springs, north of Little Rock, Ark., over the discovery of gold. Persons from Cincinnati and elsewhere have been buying up tracts of land in that vicinity in the past few weeks. They have gone about it quietly, and without manifesting a disposition to get their names into the papers, and this fact strengthens the belief in the merit of the developments so far. If the subdued excitement breaks forth in its fullness there promises to be a second Klondike epidemic.

CHECK TO THE BRITISHERS.

Reported That Russia and the United States Will Pull Together.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says the Afghan mission to Russia has returned home bearing the promise of Russian support in event of Great Britain encroaching upon the ameer's territory. Continuing, the dispatch says the negotiations between Russia and Abyssinia continue with the object of establishing a league to oppose the British advance in Africa, and it is added that Russia is about to reach an understanding with the United States with a view to arresting the extension of the British empire in the Pacific.

THE SCOURGE.

Yellow Fever Shows No Abatement in Stricken Cities.

LITTLE HOPE TILL FROST.

No Section of New Orleans is Free From the Infection, and an Increase in Number of Cases is Shown Daily—Edwards Continues Unfortunate.

NEW ORLEANS.

The situation Friday at New Orleans was again something of a record breaker in the matter of new cases. They cropped up in all directions, but up to 6 o'clock the death record was still low.

The fever is rapidly spreading in many directions, but the large majority of cases are proving to be of a harmless type.

The infectious character of the fever is, however, shown in the fact that there are again today numerous instances of new cases in houses where sickness has already existed. The weather is warm and the conditions excellent for new cases. But the death percentage has fallen considerably below the record of 1878.

The usual care is not now being taken in diagnosing cases, and it is quite probable that many of the cases that are reported as yellow fever are the result of hurried examinations by the physicians.

Twenty-seven new cases were reported Friday and three deaths.

MOBILE.

A crisis is approaching in Mobile. The fever has made unexpected leaps, and within two days has broken out in two totally unexpected quarters.

A police guard carried the infection into the northwest portion of the city and the center, which it was thought had been eradicated, has broken out afresh in two houses within a short distance of one another on Church street.

In the extreme southern part of the town a case has appeared, and a quarantine guard is placed outside the residence of a restaurant proprietor right in the center of the city, half a block from the principal business thoroughfare.

Friday seven new cases were reported, making eighty-one cases that have been officially reported, and twelve deaths, and there are now under treatment twenty-nine cases.

The board of health is making extraordinary efforts to stamp out the disease, and is being ably assisted by the sanitary authorities. Friday the United States marine hospital detention camp at Mt. Vernon got under way, and it will prove a God-send to many.

EDWARDS, MISS.

Nineteen new cases were reported Friday, of which eleven were white and eight colored, but no deaths.

Total deaths to date, 9; total number cases to date, 284; number convalescent and discharged, 151; number under treatment, 125; number very sick, 8; sick with black vomit, 2.

OCEAN SPRINGS.

A postal agent was taken off the train at Fontainbleau Friday night sick and placed in the camp hospital. Mr. Levy, from Biloxi, is sick at the same place. Dr. Kells, of Scranton, was taken sick Friday, and brought down to the camp hospital.

Two new cases of fever were reported at McHenry Friday.

The Marine Hospital service reports a grand total up to Friday night of 742 cases and 64 deaths in the entire country, a mortality of less than 9 per cent.

HELD UP PASSENGERS.

Rock Island passenger train No. 3 was held up Friday ten miles north of Chickasaw, I. T., by five masked robbers. They made two attempts to blow up the express safe, but were not successful. The robbers made the passengers get out, and secured $200 or $300 besides the registered mail. The United States marshal, with four deputies, is in hot pursuit.

TILLMAN'S BOOK IS ALL RIGHT.

It was said at the treasury department that J. Font Tillman's books would be allowed to be published; that a careful review was being made by the statistician of the department; and that there was no reason why it should be held up.

CHANCE FOR INVESTORS.

A circular has been issued by the postoffice department inviting persons who have new designs for cancelling postage stamps to submit them to the committee recently appointed for the purpose of devising means of securing better results in this branch of postoffice work.

SLIGHT EARTHQUAKE.

Paris mountain, seven miles from Greenville, S. C., a single spur rising to a point of 1,500 feet above the surrounding country, was shaken by an earthquake Thursday morning. Hotel Altamont, a summer resort, crowns the mountain, which rises to a peak. The guests were aroused by the rocking of the building. The building stood the strain, and but for falling plastering no damage was done.

SPANISH CABINET RESIGNS.

Withdrawal Accepted by the Queen, Who Will Summon Sagasta.

The Spanish cabinet has resigned. The queen has accepted the cabinet's resignation, but has asked General Azcarraga to continue in office until a solution of the crisis is found. Her majesty will summon the leaders of the various parties and the presidents of the chambers to consult as to the situation. Senor Sagasta has been telegraphed for, and it is believed that the liberal leader will be asked to form a cabinet.

The ministry whose resignation has just been announced was constituted as follows:

Prime minister and minister for war—General Marcelo de Azcarraga.

Minister for foreign affairs—The Duke of Tetuan.

Minister of marine—Rear Admiral Don Jose M. Beranger.

Minister of finance—Don Juan Navarro Reverter.

Minister of commerce and agriculture—Don Aurellano Linares Rives.

Minister for the colonies—Don Tomas Castellano.

Minister for the home department—Don Fernando Cos-Gayon.

SANGUILLY'S VIEWS.

Gen. Julio Sanguilly, who was arrested in Cuba, tried, convicted, pardoned and released at the request of the United States government, said a few days ago, discussing the Spanish crisis:

"I do not believe the formation by Sagasta of a liberal cabinet will have any effect on the Cuban insurgents. The Cubans have gone too far to accept autonomy. They are in a better condition now to fight to the end for absolute freedom than ever before. Why accept autonomy when freedom is at hand? Sagasta knows as well as anybody that the Cuban ultimatum on the offer of autonomy will be absolute and unconditional freedom. There will be no half-way measures. I thought President McKinley would do something for Cuba, and I still think he will do something for the struggling country. He has already caused much consternation among the conservatives, and whatever he has done in the matter of his communication given to Minister Woodford, it has certainly given an incentive towards the formation of a liberal ministry."

WEYLER HAS RESIGNED.

A dispatch to the New York Herald from Havana says: The Herald's correspondent is informed on the highest authority that Captain-General Weyler has sent his resignation to Madrid to take effect as soon as practicable. General Weyler's resignation is one of the results of the resignation of the Azcarraga ministry, and is due to his belief that a liberal cabinet will be placed in power in Spain.

ANXIETY IN HAVANA.

There is great anxiety in political and commercial circles in Havana to know what is to be the outcome of the cabinet crisis at Madrid. The general opinion is that the conservatives will be called upon to form a new cabinet.

GOLD STANDARD ADOPTED.

News has reached the state department that the merchants in Bluefields, Nicaragua, have adopted the gold standard. Prices will be given in silver for goods sold for cash, but in the case of credit transactions, every charge is to be in gold, and either gold or its equivalent will be exacted at the time of payment.

ATLANTA OBJECTS.

In view of the fact that the rigid quarantine being enforced against Atlanta by Alabama and Mississippi is proving a great hardship to the people of both those States, the Chamber of Commerce of Atlanta has adopted a resolution reciting the fact that Atlanta is a perfectly healthy city, and that no yellow fever exists here, and calling upon the city, State and national authority to use their influence in having the quarantine modified to reasonable requirements.

President Neal, of the Chamber of Commerce, has addressed a letter to Governor Johnston, of Alabama, inviting his co-operation in accomplishing this result.

SOUTH CAROLINA'S DISPENSARY LAW.

Notifications have been sent to each State constable conveying the intelligence of their decapitation, and ordering that they shall turn over to the State the arms which have in many cases done such deadly work. Governor Ellerbe said he had not notified the Charleston people of his action in removing the metropolitan police. All that the law required was that the proclamation be published at the State capital. That he had done. Dispensary Commissioner Vance declines to express an opinion as to what effect the removal of liquor constables will have on his business.

NAVAL AUTHORITIES WORRIED.

A special meeting of the naval dock board was held Thursday at the Brooklyn navy yard to consider the reports as to the disabled conditions of all the timber structures owned by the government. A complete examination by the engineers has revealed the above startling information. As the timber docks practically do all the work of the navy, the department regards the existing conditions with considerable apprehension.

TREND OF TRADE

Bradstreet's Shows Increased Activity in Many Lines.

STANDSTILL IN GULF STATES.

The Volume of Trade, as a Whole, Exceeds the Record of 1892—Wheat and Corn Decline Slightly in Price—Many Industries Increase Working Force.

Bradstreet's trade review for the past week says:

General trade is marked by increased activity in wool, hides, iron and steel and their manufactured products, but business in the quarantined districts remains at a standstill, and at all except a few northwestern distributing centers in spring wheat States, where business is relatively most active, there is a check to the demand for dry goods, hats and clothing. Favorable reports come from a section extending from Knoxville to St. Paul and from Omaha to Milwaukee. The tendency is to increase estimates for the wheat crop and increase the probable yield of cotton.

The price movement shows a long list of unchanged quotations this week, including iron and steel staples, wool, hides, print cloths, lumber, nails, copper, pork, beef, coffee and sugar. Increases are confined to a nominal advance for anthracite coal, 25 cents for Bessemer pig iron, fractional gains for leaf tobacco, naval stores, butter, lard and another advance for woolen goods. Potatoes have reacted from the extremely high prices at the west and cotton is off further. Lead is lower, as are corn, oats and flour, in sympathy with wheat, which dropped 2 cents on Bradstreet's reported increase of nearly 10,000,000 bushels in the world's visible stocks.

Wheat (flour included as wheat) exports from both coasts of the United States and Montreal this week slightly exceed those of last week, the total aggregates 5,924,246 bushels, against 5,808,825 bushels last week, 4,215,294 in the week a year ago, 2,613,866 bushels in 1895, 3,243,100 bushels in 1894, and 3,189,000 bushels in 1893.

Corn exports show a considerable falling off, the total being 3,108,601 bushels against 4,022,000 bushels last week, 3,165,000 bushels a year ago, 1,388,754 bushels in 1895, 98,000 bushels in 1894 and 642,000 bushels in 1893.

The total number of business failures in the United States for nine months reported by Bradstreet's is 9,833, a decrease of 13 per cent from the corresponding total last year, but 6 per cent more than in 1894 and 11 per cent fewer than in the corresponding period of 1893. This year's failing corporations, firms and individual report $118,684,000 liabilities, a total of 30 per cent smaller than one year ago, about 6 per cent larger than in nine months of 1895 and of 1894, and 6½ per cent less than in the corresponding period of 1893. The rate of failures in proportion to the number in business is decreasing. With reference to liabilities the falling off is noticeably rapid.

Business failures throughout the Dominion of Canada amounted to 1,501 for the past nine months, a falling off as compared with last year of 150, or less than 10 per cent. Total liabilities are $10,653,000 this year against $12,219,000 last year.

INLAND SEA.

The Largest and Deepest on the Continent May Be Forming.

A dispatch from Tucson, Ariz., says that passengers who came in on the belated California train state that the cause of the delay were floods in the Salton basin. It was the rumored belief that the waters of the Gulf of California had broken over the sandbar which separates the Gulf from the basin. If this should prove to be true Southern California will have the largest inland sea on the continent, some places more than 300 feet deep, and a rise would come up through the Gulf to a point opposite Yuma to a port of the inland sea. In the meantime many miles of the Southern Pacific would be submerged.

TAMMANY'S TICKET

The Democratic convention Thursday nominated the following candidates for offices in Greater New York:

Mayor—Robert A. Van Wyck of Manhattan.

Comptroller—Bird S. Coler of Brooklyn.

President of the council—Jacob Ruppert, Jr., of Manhattan.

The platform makes no reference to the Chicago platform, W. J. Bryan or free silver. It favors home rule and repeal of the Raines law and other restrictions on personal liberty and demands dollar gas and municipal ownership of franchises.

TRAGEDY OVER AN OLD DEBT.

Dr. Knotts Kills J. R. Leyath at Norths, S. C.

Dr. J. D. Knotts shot and killed J. R. Leyath at Norths, S. C., a town on the Florida Central and Peninsular road. Mr. Leyath is a prominent merchant of Norths, and Dr. Knotts lives near there on his farm. There was an old trouble existing between the two about a debt, which led to the killing.

STATE TOPICS.

Late News Items of General Interest to Alabamians.

EFFECT OF THE DROUTH.

The continued drouth is playing havoc with navigation on the Tennessee river. The river is lower now than for fifteen years, and no boats are running between Florence and Knoxville. Boats are tied up all along the river, and great quantities of merchandise lies at the various landings awaiting shipment.

A FATAL FALL.

While the residence of J. W. Echols, at Gurley, was burning Thursday morning, Dr. J. C. Flynt fell in a dry well twenty feet deep, and was probably fatally injured. The top of the well had burned, and Dr. Flynt fell through, carrying a mass of flames down with him. Dr. Flynt is a prominent physician and a distinguished Mason.

Washington is founder and principal, Wednesday, November 17, 1897, for the purpose of delivering an address at the formal opening of a new building to be devoted to training in agriculture, horticulture, dairying, etc. This is the first building in the negro schools to be devoted to agricultural purposes.

FIFTH BODY FOUND.

The body of Billy Fairfax, the fifth miner who perished in the fire in the Belle Ellen mines in Bibb county, was recovered Friday.

All the water has not been pumped out of the mines yet. The body was found just under the first sheet of water, and as quickly as possible it was carried to the outside and buried. There was no telling how Fairfax had died, whether from burns or from smothering. His body had been decomposed for some time.

DROPPED DEAD AT BIRMINGHAM.

Dr. P. K. McMiller, a justice of the peace and a well-known citizen of Birmingham, dropped dead in his office early Thursday morning of apoplexy. He had been in good health apparently, and had just come down for his day's business when the fatal stroke occurred. Dr. McMiller was nearly 60 years old, and had resided in Birmingham for about fifteen years. He was secretary of the local camp of Confederate Veterans for many years.

SHORTAGE IN LANE'S ACCOUNTS

State Examiner Cowan reported to the Governor Thursday the result of his investigation of the books and accounts of the department of agriculture during the term of office of ex-Commissioner Hector D. Lane. The sum of the report is that Mr. Lane's chief clerk, Mr. Leslie A. Smith, of Limestone, has been found to be due the State $2,750. The amount will be made good in a few days, as Mr. Smith has means sufficient to protect the State from loss, and his bondsmen are worth many times the amount.

POLITICS IN JEFFERSON.

A call has been issued for a meeting of the county democratic executive committee for October 9 to receive the resignation of Hon. John H. Miller, county chairman, and elect his successor. Mr. Miller is an avowed candidate for circuit judge of the Ninth judicial circuit, and desires to be released from the committee chairmanship in order to make his race unhampered. The two leading candidates for chairman are Alderman Henry B. Gray and Dr. J. S. Gillespy, the former a gold man and the latter a free silverite.

MATTHEWS COTTON MILL SOLD.

The Matthews cotton mill at Selma, Ala., a plant which cost $350,000, and which has been closed for several months on account of foreclosure proceedings necessitated by the failure of the Commercial bank January last, was sold Friday to Dr. O. F. Cawthon, of Mobile; Dr. A. W. Cawthorn and O. H. Cawthorn, of Selma, for $70,200.

The Cawthorns are largely interested in cotton mills at Stonewall, Miss., and other places. They announced that the mill will be started up in thirty days, and will be run to their full capacity. It requires 350 hands to man the plant.

STATE FINANCES.

The cash in the State strong box was counted by the Governor and Secretary of State Thursday, the last day of the fiscal year. The amount on hand exactly balanced with Treasurer Ellis' statement.

The following was shown as the condition of the treasury:

Balance September 30, 1896, $58,319.40; receipts from October 1, 1896, to September 30, 1897, $2,174,644.37. Total, $2,232,963.77.

Disbursements from October 1, 1896, to September 30, 1897, $2,191,963.56. Balance in treasury September 30, 1897, $40,960.21.

A BRAND NEW TOWN.

A new town, which the projectors hope to make a city, is to be started in Tuskaloosa county by the Alabama City Land and Improvement Company, of which Col. Newton N. Clements, of Tuskaloosa, is president, and Col. W. J. Plowa, of New York, vice-president. There is already a postoffice in Alabama named Alabama City, but that does not bother the two colonels and their partners. The new town is to be located sixteen miles east of Tuskaloosa on the line of the Mobile and Ohio railroad. Oil mills, lumber mills, cotton factories and other industries are proposed to be established. The company claims to have plenty of financial backing.

BRIEFLY NOTED.

J. M. Hardy, of Limestone county, was arrested by revenue officers on Thursday on the charge of counterfeiting, and was committed to jail. He had in his possession a mould for counterfeiting nickels.

The merchants and farmers of Camden and vicinity are suffering serious inconvenience for lack of facilities for shipping cotton. It has been eighteen days since a boat left any wharf in that part of the river on the way to any market.

Wednesday morning Dick Bynum, a negro well digger, was overcome by damp air in an old well near Courtland, which he attempted to clean out. He fell from the bucket while being hauled up and died before he could be brought to the surface.

The governor and commissioner of agriculture Thursday, according to law, burned all the fertilizer tags remaining in the hands of the commissioner. The law requires that on the last day of the fiscal year all of the unsold tags shall be burned.

Three Alabama women obtained the highest mark possible upon examination at the National Conservatory of Music at New York recently. The ladies were Mrs. H. H. Slaughe, of Birmingham; Miss Carrie Bridewell, of Birmingham, and Miss Nellie Knight, of Anniston. They were put to a severe test, and each one came out with "A A" to their credit, showing them to be vocalists of rare power and cultivation. The award for such an excellent showing is a free scholarship in the institution.

KILLED HIS FRIEND.

Details of a Foul Crime Unearthed in Montgomery.

A murder case rivaling in horrible details the Guldensuppe tragedy has developed at Montgomery.

Oscar Gillis, porter for Marks & Kohn, grocers, and John Glover, butler for Henry Weil, roomed together in an outhouse on Mr. Weil's fashionable residence premises on Perry street, four blocks from the business center.

Two weeks ago Gillis disappeared, and the following day some unknown person telephoned his employers that the porter had gone to visit friends in South Alabama.

Last week Glover left the city without notice.

Friends of Gillis suspected something was wrong, and told the police their suspicions, but the officers, knowing the sensational disposition of the negro, ignored the matter. Some local reporters, however, made a story out of the rumors for the afternoon paper in Montgomery recently. This stirred up interest in the case, and that night reporters and some of Gillis' friends commenced a careful investigation.

It was learned that there had been gambling in Glover and Gillis' room one night about two weeks ago; that Gillis had won, and had several hundred dollars; that Gillis had disappeared; that a negro who had seen Glover several days afterwards digging a deep trench in Weil's garden, was told by Glover that it was intended to bury some weeds and trash; that the negro cook, who occupied a room adjoining Glover's, had seen him lift Gillis' body over the brick division wall one night about a week afterwards, and was told that Gillis had been sick and was being taken to the train.

The investigating party found that the garden had been recently worked and sowed in turnips, but by candle light and with the aid of a fence paling the location of the alleged trash pit was discovered by the looseness of the earth above it.

After industrious digging, Gillis' badly decomposed body was found shortly before 1 o'clock Saturday morning, wrapped in quilts and bound with cord like an Egyptian mummy.

Evidence since obtained indicates that after the card players had gone Glovers crushed his roommate's skull with a bed slat and then cut his throat with a razor. That he then wrapped the body in a quilt and kept it in his room about a week, then dug the hole in the garden, buried it in the dead of night, sowed the ground above it in turnips and left the city for Atlanta.

The police are trying industriously to capture him.

The best acquaintance a man has is the stranger who knows neither good nor bad of him.

THE old county jail at Opelika was burned yesterday and two negro prisoners were cremated. What a pity our old gallows was not down there.

On Monday at noon fire was discovered in the stove room at the residence of Mr. I. F. McKee, but the application of a few buckets of water was sufficient to prevent what otherwise would have proved a disastrous conflagration.

The Weekly Crop Bulletin reports cotton very nearly all open; picking has been vigorously pushed during the week and is well advanced in most backward portions of the State; it is practically finished in several southern counties, and the entire crop will be gathered during the current month; there is no improvement in the prospective yield, which is less than anticipated in some localities where an average crop was expected; the yield for the State will undoubtedly fall decidedly short of an average one. Corn is harvesting a lighter yield than anticipated and will fall short of an average and will not be enough for home use in manly localities. The fodder crop this year is an unusually large and good one, and a large crop of hay has been made.

Wreck at Montgomery.

The northbound L. & N. train which leaves Montgomery at 8:30 was Monday morning wrecked at the old fair grounds, resulting in the death of Augustus Boyd, the fireman, and the serious injury of Engineer Brown and postal clerk Glasscock. The engine ran into a half-open switch of the old siding at the fair grounds and was almost demolished. The tender stopped crossways the track. The mail car followed the siding, as did the baggage car, which was next behind. Engineer James Brown stuck to his post as long as he could be of any service. He saw that something was wrong with the switch and attempted to stop the train, but the airbrakes refused to work and his efforts were fruitless. At the time of the accident the train was moving at the rate of about 15 miles an hour. Had it been going twenty miles an hour the loss of life would have been terrible. The engineer was cut in the lip and his legs badly scalded. Postal clerk Glasscock was in his car distributing mail when a broken rail came through the floor and struck him in the back, knocking him against the mail sacks. He endeavored to dodge the rail, but was unsuccessful. Others were badly shaken up and considerably frightened. The cause of the accident cannot be explained at present, but is supposed to have resulted from someone's negligence.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizingit as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many recommendations included therein, we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results, is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to everyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. Some Faults in our National Character

As for the question of lynching, the provocations in the South are far greater than in any other part of the country. Yet the Southern States are very earnestly endeavoring to find a way to rid themselves of so harmful and disgraceful an expedient as the execution of offenders by mob violence without trial. It has been seriously suggested in some parts of the South that in cases of violent assault against women—such as negro tramps have perpetrated so frequently—it might be possible to lodge a summary jurisdiction in the hands of every local justice of the peace, so that the unquestioned will of the community might be almost instantly carried out under the forms of law, rather than in defiance of law. A sweeping reform in our methods of criminal justice would undoubtedly do a great deal to prevent lynching. Unfortunately, however, the lax administration of justice, like the lynchings themselves, is only another evidence of those serious faults in our national character and civilization—which express themselves also in many other ways—to the remedy of which we should apply ourselves with due earnestness and humility. Our restless expansion as a nation has bred in us some of the defects that would be less likely to appear in communities of slower movement and change. An unusual development of individuality has given us in America our strength as a nation; but it has also made difficult a calm and social order. We have no cause to be dejected or pessimistic about our national conditions. On the contrary, nearly all of the deeply significant signs are full of hope and encouragement. We should have faith enough in ourselves and deal honestly enough with ourselves to face our defects with a purpose to remedy them.—From "The Progress of the World," in American Monthly Reviews of Reviews for October.

CATARRH AND MALARIA.

People who are or have been affected by catarrh are most subject to chronic malaria. The explanation is this: Malaria is a germ disease. Germs find their way into the blood through the mucous membranes. If the mucous membranes are healthy the germs can not enter the blood. This is why some people do not get malaria. But if the membranes are affected by catarrh, even slightly, the malaria germs find easy access into the blood.

Pe-ru-na is the remedy. It not only destroys malaria germs, but so restores the mucous membranes to health, that no more germs can find entrance. Pe-ru-na is the most reliable remedy for chronic malaria. It cures by eradicating the germs from the system.

The Grandest Remedy.

Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilhowie, Va., certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief, spent many nights sitting up in a chair; was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and was cured by the use of two bottles. For past three years has been attending to business, and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. South Chilton Notes.

The death angel visited our community last Saturday and carried away one of our prosperous citizens, Mr. Claud Faulkner, his spirit took its flight to the celestial world as the clock bells were ringing eleven. He leaves a wife and two little infants, with many friends to mourn his loss. He has lived an upright life, and died as he lived a devoted Christian and a good citizen. His remains was interred at the family cemetery; the burial services were conducted by Rev. G. W. Hinton and many of his friends paid the last tribute of respect to our dear brother.

We are glad to say our community sent three of her charming girls to the Industrial school of Montevallo on Monday last, Misses Clara Wilkes, Ellen and Fannie Hinton. They were accompanied by Prof. W. W. Hinton. We wish them much success in life, they have taken the right step to a prosperous life.

The M. T. M. railroad is being rapidly built.

The Robinson Bros. are doing good work with their gin; they will soon have them a saw mill in connection with their gin.

Political Points.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 6, 1897.

Secretary of the Treasury Gage has expressed himself as thinking but poorly of the Bank of England for proposing to keep part of its reserve in silver.

Friends of Senator Teller in Colorado are greatly disappointed to have him endorse Judge Hoyt, who is the McKinley nominee for the supreme bench.

It has been announced in a semi official manner that the mortgage on the U. P. Ry., will soon be foreclosed and it will then be turned over to a syndicate of eastern men for $28,000,000 and they will immediately capitalize it at $250,000,000. President McKinley is reported to regard the holding of it by the government as "impractical and unsafe" The clean loss to the government by this deal exceeds $20,000,000 and it will further enrich those men who have stood in with Huntington in his wrecking schemes by which many millions have been wrung from the tax payers.

The Iowa state election board has decided that the middle-of-the-road populists who bolted the Des Moines convention, have alone the right to use the name People's Party on their ballot. Thus is the fact established that collusion exists between these alleged populists and the gold-bug party or else they are being used as cat's paws.

Hon. Hamilton Armstrong, State Chairman of the populist central committee of Colorado has resigned. This does not come as a surprise to those familiar with the political situation in that state.

Kansas papers are giving out this rather embarrassing bit of authentic news; State Treasurer Bidder (pop) turned over to his republican successor $589,503 who in turn only turned over to his successor $99,700. What became of the $490,000? No answers are yet received.

The people of Nebraska have lost $1,433,554 during the last six years through republican office holders The list is made up of state auditors, treasurers, coal oil inspectors, and heads of several state institutions and various officials in thirty-seven counties.

President McKinley has pardoned Francis A. Coffin of Indiana, who was sentenced to eight years confinment in the state prison at Michigan City for wrecking the Indianapolis National bank. The pardon was unconditional and was telegraphed.

Gopernor Horace Boies recently refused to attend a meeting where W. J. Bryan was to speak, giving as his excuse that he was too busy threshing.

Terms of fusion between the populists and Democrats in Massachusetts have been effected. Separate organizations are to be maintained but the ticket is to be divided.

A letter purporting to be from W. J. Bryan to Wm. J. Brown, of New York City, has created consernation in Tammany. The writer, among other things says:

"A triumph of the Democracy of Greater New York, except under the auspices of the issue that animates the party, will have the same moral effect as a renewed and affirmed triumph of the agencies led by Senator Hanna.

"When parties cease to represent certain fixed principles, the supreme prerogative of the ballot becomes prostituted to a contest between organization for the spoils of office.

"The great cities are part of the State and country; therefore, it is unnatural and artificial to avoid responsibility to national issues and political cowardice and political crime."

The letter is pronounced a forgery by Mr. Bryan's friends, but it contains sound political sense, nevertheless.

The joint session of political reform and economic societies of Illinois has selected November 18 as the day for holding a convention to lay plans for the advancement of the Initiative and Referendum. Ex-Governor Altgeld, Captain W. P. Black, and Ex-Congressman Follette will address the meeting.

Something to Know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centres in the stomach gently stimulates the Liver and Kidneys and aids these organs in throwing off impurites in the blood. Electric Bitters improves the appetite, aids digestion, and is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. Sold for 50c or $1.00 per bottle.

Turn-Round Topics.

Mrs. L. Alexander, of Montgomery, is visiting home-folks here.

We are sorry to note so much sickness in our community at present; among whom are both M. C. Williams and wife, the little infant child of B. J. and Mrs. Goss, Mrs. H. Kendrick and E. L. Jones' wife. Rev. J. H. Thomas filled his appointment here Saturday and Sunday "The attributes of the divine Deity" was the foundation of his remarks Saturday night, and he in his inimitable style explained it in its every phase, using its five parts, viz. power, wisdom, justice, mercy and love. The little son of I. J. Dennis fell from a fence recently, and its little arm was dislocated.

The series of meetings at Canaan will commence next Saturday, and will probably continue one week. Let whosoever come that will and be with us. Owing to the pear and sugarcane treat, the young ladies say Mr. Walter Kendrick is quite liberal and accommodating.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

Chronic Dyspepsia Cured.

AFTER suffering for nearly thirty years from dyspepsia, Mrs. H. E. Dugdale, wife of a prominent business man of Warsaw, N. Y., writes: "For 28 years, I was a constant sufferer from dyspepsia and a weak stomach. The lightest food produced distress, causing severe pain and the formation of gas. No matter how careful of my diet I suffered agonizing pain after eating. I was treated by many physicians and tried numerous remedies without permanent help. Two years ago I began taking Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and Nervine. Within a week I commenced improving, and persisting in the treatment I was soon able to eat what I liked, with no evil effects I keep them at hand and a single dose dispels any old symptoms."

MONTHLY SUFFERING.

Thousands of women are troubled at monthly intervals with pains in the head, back, breasts, shoulders, sides hips and limbs. But they need not suffer.

These pains are symptoms of dangerous derangements that can be corrected. The menstrual function should operate painlessly.

Mc ELREE'S Wine of Cardui

makes menstruation painless, and regular. It puts the delicate menstrual organs in condition to do their work properly. And that stops all this pain. Why will any woman suffer month after month when Wine of Cardui will relieve her? It costs $1.00 at the drug store. Why don't you get a bottle to-day?

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. ROZENA LEWIS, of Ozarville, Texas, says: "I was troubled at monthly intervals with terrible pains in my head and back, but have been entirely relieved by Wine of Cardui."

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete, will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents should speedily exhaust the first edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

5 DROPS

Hundreds of thousands of Sufferers cured without a single failure by "FIVE DROPS."

Though so universally used and tested did you ever hear anyone speak ill of this great remedy? No, you never did and never will, for it takes no argument in the proper quantity "5 Drops" cannot fail to cure any of the diseases for which it is recommended. What it has already done to relieve the suffering is told in thousands of letters of grateful praise.

Mr. T. P. Limburner, widely known for many years as the special representative of the Populists and free Silver Press of the United States, has kindly forwarded the following letter for publication:

Jan 25, 1897.

DEAR SIRS—I am anxious for the sake of the suffering and afflicted to give my personal endorsement of your wonderful remedy. On the 8th of January last, I was in Washington and was suddenly seized with an aggravated case of inflammatory rheumatism; so severe and painful was the attack that within 24 hours my left arm was paralyzed and I was only able to dress with assistance. I secured a bottle of "5 DROPS" and took a dose that night, rubbing some on externally as directed. The following morning I was surprised to find myself immensely relieved, and continuing treatment woke the second morning cured. My arm was absolutely free from pain, and all swelling and stiffness had disappeared. The quickness and completeness of my cure was remarkable. I have known for over a year of the great curative properties of your medicine and have several friends who have been cured by it of Neuralgia, Catarrh and Asthma. Wishing you every success and trusting that those suffering will at least give this remedy a trial. Sincerely yours, T. P. LIMBURNER.

CURES THE INCURABLE.

DEAR SIRS:—I would like to thank you for your great remedy, "5 DROPS," and tell you what it has done for me. I had Rheumatism in every joint and in the heart, and had Catarrh of the head for 20 years. I was so poorly that I lost the use of my legs and arms and could not move without pain. I was so crippled that I had done but little work for two years, and our family physician, a good doctor, told me that my Rheumatism and Catarrh were incurable, and I believed him. But now, after using "5 DROPS" only two months, I can truly say I have not felt so well for seven years. I can hear as well as ever in my left ear, and the heart weakness and pain are gone. My hearing is now good and my eyesight is much better. I have gained more than 10 pounds of flesh and can do a full day's work. It is the best medicine I ever saw to give to another who has a young child for it has the same effect on the child as on the mother. It wards off Croup and cures the hives of the child and causes sweet and refreshing sleep to both young and old.

Jan. 29, 1896.

We received the following letter from Mr. T. J. Walker of Omaha, Ill. Mr. Walker has been for many years an invalid, and reading the wonderful testimonial which he forwarded to Mr. Kellems, asking of his endorsement was genuine, and receiving this reply, which he forwarded us.

MR. J. J. WILSON.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of recent date at hand, the testimonial you speak of is genuine. I gave it to them and every word of it is true, and I could swear to it and prove it by many witnesses. The company did not ask me for this letter. I sent it to them just January for publication in order that poor sufferers, upon whom all else had failed, might be cured. Get "5 Drops" and use it and it will cure you as it has cured me. I have received many letters like yours, and it is a pleasure to me to answer all who write. Tell your neighbors what I have written about "5 Drops." I know how to sympathize with those who are afflicted, for though I suffered so long, it is now 8 months since I have felt any pain. Dr. W. Kellems, my brother, uses "5 Drops" in his practice, and joins me in endorsing this great remedy. He says for a case like yours it is a positive cure.

The Conquest of Diphtheria.

In a treatise on diphtheria and its treatment by serotherapy, shortly to be published, Dr. Charles Richet, who was the first to apply the serum injections made famous by the work of Dr. Roux at the Pasteur Institute, Paris, gives some interesting statistics on the practical results attained since the discovery and application of the method. He goes back thirty years for statistics relative to the mortality caused by diphtheria.

In 1867, when the population of Paris was just half what it is now, there were 696 deaths from the scourge. From that year they increased gradually until 1872, when they attained the number of 1135, and did not fall again below 1000 until after the discovery of serotherapy. In 1876 diphtheria caused 1500 deaths, and in 1877, 2390. For three consecutive years then the average was over 2000. It fell a little afterward, but up to 1894 the annual average ranged between 1400 and 2000.

In September, 1894, the Roux method was applied, and at once became widely used. For the year 1894 (only four months of which should be counted) the deaths fell to 980. In 1895 there were but 440, and last year only 423. It would seem, then, that serotherapy has reduced the mortality in diphtheria to an average of less than one-third of that which was maintained for a quarter of a century.

If the statistics be examined, not year by year, but by periods of two weeks, the improvement is even more marked, not only in true diphtheria, but also in diphtheratic affections. In the years up to 1894, for instance, there were never less than forty deaths from croup in any fortnight; but since that year there have never been more than six for a like period. In short, since the introduction of serotherapy, even in the most unfavorable weeks, the mortality has been invariably less than half the average for the years 1867-94, and many times only one-tenth as great.—New York Sun.

Child Sent by Post.

A novel parcel for delivery by express post was recently handed in at a Birmingham (England) Postoffice. A workingman, who had been out of town with his three-year-old child, arrived at Birmingham in time to reach his place of business, but not in sufficient time to take his child home. He, therefore walked into the nearest postoffice and tendered the youngster as an express parcel. The authorities, under the rule regulating the delivery of live animals, accepted the child and delivered it at a charge of nine pence.—St. James's Gazette.

English Women Will Present it to the Queen.

At Bridgnorth, within a stone's throw of the home of Bishop Percy, whose "Reliques" have justified the preservation of his house, for nearly four months past women have been weaving with deft fingers the magnificent fabric which will be offered for Queen Victoria's acceptance. It is in keeping with the loyalty of the givers, says the London Chronicle, that the carpet should be manufactured in a town which claims as its civic motto, "Fideltas Urbis Salus Regis." That such a carpet was in course of manufacture was generally known, but no description of it has been made public.

In fact few, except the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge, and the Duchess of Teck—in whose mind originated the form which the gift was to take—have had an opportunity of inspecting the designs. When finished it will measure 18 feet by 16, and, although of unusually fine texture, is upward of an inch in thickness.

It was originally intended that the material should be mohair, but on subsequent consideration the finest worsted yarn was used, inasmuch as this gives the firmest and most durable service. The coloring is regal in its richness, the whole being conceived with a view to harmonizing with the surroundings of the throne room, where it will be used on state occasions.

The centre, which is in two shades of crimson damask, contains the monogram "V. R. I." in bold letters of gold, supported by the Tudor rose and the Star of India, the whole being inclosed in a garter bearing the motto, "Honi soit qui mal y pense," surmounted by the imperial crown entwined by a wreath of oak leaves, tied with a ribbon.

A marked feature is the border in which, on an ecru ground, and in proper colors, the rose, the shamrock, the thistle and the lotus flower (the latter emblematical of India) are continued until the corners are reached.

At the angles are animals allegorical of the colonies; the tiger representing India, the elephant Africa, the beaver Canada, and the kangaroo Australia. The whole of these animals are lifelike in coloring and attitude, and were specialy sketched at the Zoo for the purpose of the design. The extreme edge of the carpet has the conventional band, worked in soft gold.

The Midland looms have rarely produced anything so strikingly beautiful. Technically described, the carpet is what is known as royal Axminster, every one of the thousand cords being separately tied by skilled female hands. This fact lends additional interest to a gift offered by women to their queen.

The loom on which the carpet was produced consists mainly of two strong wooden beams, over each of which the work is stretched, and is in every way identical with those on which the oldest examples of Oriental carpets were made. Real Axminster is only produced by a very few firms in England at the present time, the exceedingly slow process necessary rendering it extremely costly, and consequently creating a somewhat exclusive demand.

Since the middle of February no fewer than twelve girls have been regularly employed on the carpet, the number of hands being limited by the size of the loom. All of them showed the greatest interest in the national gift, and individually endeavored to turn out an article which will not only be a credit to the firm by whom they are employed, but will be a singularly handsome example of the superiority of this branch of British industry.

A case composed of polished oak is being made for its reception, and as the latter is only to be used on state occasions, there is no reason why it should not remind many future sovereigns of the love and reverence in which Queen Victoria was held by the women of England throughout all the years of her record reign.

Photographer's Plan to Please.

An upper West Side photographer has discovered a "Klondyke" right here in town, and he is working it for all it's worth. He has hit upon a plan to please his patrons, and, incidentally, to fill his coffers with rich-pay gold, or its equivalent. In his studio he has a stuffed horse posed in gallop attitude. The animal is affixed to a platform, the surface of which is nicely concreted. A Central Park scene is in the background. Young and old women, but particularly the former, who are anxious to give their distant friends the impression that they are well up in equestrianism, come to the studio in battalions and have themselves photographed in the act of taking their morning or afternoon canter through the park. The artist has all sizes of habits on hand to accommodate his patrons. For those less ambitious, he places a wheel in position, instead of the horse, and, with biking suits to match, the fair visitor may be depicted scorching along the park drive.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

WHY WHEAT IS NOT $2

RELATION OF SILVER TO CEREAL IN INDIA.

How the Gold Standard Holds Down the Price Clearly Explained by General Warner—A Clear Exposition of the Subject.

By A. J. Warner, next Senator from Ohio.

In 1891, at a convention of the American Bimetallic League, held at Washington, Moreton Frewin, the distinguished English bimetallist, called attention to the close relations between silver and wheat in India, and its effect on the price of American wheat. He showed that for a long time an ounce of silver in India, converted into rupees, had been the equivalent of a bushel of wheat, including transportation to European markets, and especially had this been the case since the opening of the Suez canal. He showed also that, under conditions then existing, as the gold price of bullion silver went down in the American market, the gold price of wheat would go down in India, and consequently in the European markets, necessarily carrying down with it the price of wheat in this country. This was then strictly true and easily explained.

If an ounce of silver would pay for a bushel of wheat in India and lay it down in Liverpool, it is plain that if the ounce of silver could be bought in America for 60 cents in gold, then 60 cents in gold would pay for the bushel of wheat in India, including its transportation to Europe, which would mean 40 to 50 cent wheat in this country as long as India had wheat to export. Nothing could be plainer than that. Bimetallists, therefore, called the attention of the American farmer to this fact and showed him the consequences of Indian competition under such conditions.

But it must be remembered that two things were necessary to produce this result.

First, the purchaser of wheat in India must be able to convert bullion silver at will into rupees with which to pay for wheat. This was the condition then, and continued so till June, 1893.

Second, India must have wheat to export. This India had for many years in succession, and will doubtless have again. But for two years past her crop of wheat, on account of drouth, has been short.

Bimetallists, therefore, were on strictly scientific ground in claiming that as long as the mints of silver-using countries were opened to the unrestricted coinage of silver that the products of these countries, such as wheat, cotton and other things coming in competition with the products of Western nations, would rise and fall with the gold price of silver, and that the premium on gold operated as a bounty to them in stimulating exports. But when the mints of India and other silver-using countries were closed, this tie between silver and their products was broken. Reopen the mints of India, Japan and other heretofore silver countries to the free coinage of silver and the same results will again follow. In other words, restore the conditions that prevailed prior to 1893 and the old relation of wheat to bullion silver will be restored.

Bimetallists have never claimed since the tie of open mints was broken that wheat and silver were any longer necessarily held together. This change was the result of legislation and nothing else. That is all there is to that side of the question.

Now, what has caused the sudden rise in wheat? A short crop for the world and nothing else. It has been ascertained that at this time the surplus from last year's crop still on hand scarcely exceeds seventy-five million bushels. As the bread-eating population of the world requires from 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 bushels a day, this is barely a half month's supply. The world is then made to depend on the crop of this year already harvested, and that which will come later from India and the Argentine country. Of the crop already harvested, Europe is short of an average crop by some 250,000,000 bushels and short enough for consumption by 350,000,000 bushels. The United States, which is the only large wheat producing country with a full crop this year, will be able to supply Europe 150,000,000 bushels, and with Canada, perhaps, 200,000,000 bushels in all. Where is the rest to come from is the burning question for Europe. Just what the crop of India and the Argentine country will be when harvested can not, of course, now be told, but enough is known of the crop conditions in these countries in advance to know that the surplus for export can not be large.

Hence Europe sees almost famine conditions ahead, which, of course, puts wheat up toward famine prices—a condition that scarcely occurs five times in a century, and has not occurred since 1879, and not since 1848 with such intensity as now.

Under the gold standard, with ordinary crops for the world, the ruling price would probably run from 40c to to 60c; with famine prices, or price when famine conditions are being approached, as now, going up to a dollar.

Now, how would it likely be under bimetallism—with both gold and silver as the measure? The price under ordinary conditions of crops with bimetallic money, would doubtless run from 80 cents to $1, instead of from 40 to 50 or 60, as under the gold standard, and under such conditions as now exist, when a famine is threatened, the price should be $2 instead of $1, with common labor in all probability $2 a day instead of $1, as now.

The farmer then but for the demonetization of silver would be getting now $2 a bushel for his wheat instead of $1. A farmer who has raised 200 bushels of wheat. If silver had not been demonetized would now realize for his crop $400 to apply on his mortgage, instead of $200—a big difference to one having a mortgage to lift. Moreover, no small part of the rise to $1 has so far gone to the speculator instead of to the farmer; and speculators will continue to force the price up or down whenever they can profit by so doing.

Republicans talk as though McKinley with his tariff bill had brought about this change in wheat, but such talk is little less than an insult to ordinary intelligence.

There is, however, a side to this question for which the administration and the Dingley tariff is responsible, and that is the rise in the prices of certain other things which goes a long way to offset the gain to the farmers from the rise of wheat.

Left to the operation of the law of supply and demand under the increased production of beet sugar in France and Germany, the price of sugar would probably have tended downward instead of upward. But under the new tariff increasing the duties on both raw and refined sugars, the price of sugar has already gone up a cent a pound, a considerable fraction of this increase going not to the government as revenue, but directly to the sugar trust through the increase of the duty on refined sugar.

The gain to the sugar trust, which is wholly the result of favorable legislation, if it has not already done so, will amount to more than the value of the entire wheat crop of Ohio. Other things, such as clothing, boots and shoes, and other manufactured fabrics of various kinds, have also been taxed up by the Dingley bill, while, on the average, wages since the election of Mr. McKinley have been cut down 15 per cent.

Let us then be honest, and attribute to natural causes effects that result legitimately therefrom and to legislation effects which necessarily flow from changes in the laws.

Money Brought in by Immigrants.

The statistics of the treasury department relating to immigration do not give the per capita of money brought to this country by immigrants, but do give the total amount brought over by foreigners. The figures on this subject have not been prepared for the public, but they are of unusual interest. They show that the 230,832 immigrants who came over last year brought a total of $3,541,241 with them, an average of about $15 per head. This includes men, women and children. The Germans were more thrifty and possessed more money than the immigrants from other countries. They brought over with them about $38 a head. There were 22,533 immigrants from that country, and the total money brought with them was $858,128. The immigrants who make the next best showing are the English, with 9,974 persons landed, and possessing a total of $254,346, an average of about $25. The Irish, with 28,421 immigrants, and with $371,523, show an average per head of about $13. The Italians come to this country poorer than any other class of people. They land with little money, hundreds of them having no more than a few pennies in their pockets. The total immigration last year was 59,431, and they brought with them $516,284, an average of about $8.—Ex.

About Land Monopoly.

I heard a good story the other day, illustrative of a phase of the land question. Mr. C. approached Mr. D. and remarked, "D., I had a little spare money which I desired to invest safely, so I bought a quarter section of land; that was all right, wasn't it?" "Why, yes," answered D. "Well," said C., "I still had more money left, so I bought a section of land; that was all right, wasn't it; and you as a good citizen would help protect me in my enjoyment of that land?" "Yes," said D. "And," continued C., "having still a larger amount of money invested I bought a whole township; as a good citizen of Nebraska and a lover of American institutions and the sacred rights of property, you would help defend me in the enjoyment of that property?" "Well, yes," replied D., "I reckon so." "Well, D.," said C., "I hadn't invested a tithe of my spare money, and I wanted a safe investment, so I bought a whole state. You would help protect me in my poperty rights, wouldn't you?" D. did not answer, but stood scratching his head thoughtfully. "What do you say to that?" said C. After a lapse of three or four minutes, "By golly, I was just thinkin'," said D.

Important Facts for Wage Earners.

Whenever and wherever there is enough genuine money to do the business the people desire to transact, the demand for labor exceeds the supply, and, consequently, every man and woman that wishes work can secure constant employment at good wages.

As no exception to this statement can be found a surplus of labor demonstrates an insufficient supply of money.

Therefore, before and above everything else, wage earners should demand a rational money system and indignantly refuse to take "no," "wait awhile," nor any makeshift as an answer.—Topeka Independent.

Government Ownership of Railroads.

The men who now talk about government ownership of railroads as a delusion will by the next generation be classed with the men who wanted to burn old Capernicus for denying that the sun swings in a circle from east to west around the earth.—Augusta (Ga.) Daily Tribune.

There is a rumor in Canadian circles that the government of the United States has made overtures to the government of Denmark with the object of acquiring Greenland from the latter country. The report, however, is contradicted at Washington.

At the Carnival Association meeting at Macon, Ga., Friday, it was decided to invite President McKinley and his cabinet and Governor Atkinson and staff to attend the Carnival and Trades display October 11 and 12. Senator Daniel of Virginia will be invited to deliver an address.

MERIDIAN SHUT IN.

The municipal board last Thursday passed an ordinance quarantining against the world. They also passed an ordinance prohibiting trains from the Alabama and Vicksburg railroad entering the corporate limits of the city. These actions were considered necessary because of the rapid and dangerous spread of yellow fever elsewhere. These ordinances will not in any wise interfere with the mails, and mail, including newspapers, will be received from all points as usual.

JAPAN'S ENTERPRISE.

Money Appropriated to Teach Americans How to Make Tea.

Several months ago the Japanese Tea Guild sent to this country a special commission to investigate the condition of the Japanese tea trade in the United States and Canada, and to cooperate with its American representatives in giving publicity to the merits of Japanese teas and the best methods of preparing them.

Tea bazars are to be opened in many of the principal cities in the United States and Canada, where ladies can enjoy a cup of fine Japanese tea made by experts, and at the same time receive instructions which will enable them to make it equally well at home. More than half the tea consumed in the United States and Canada is of Japanese growth, yet those Americans apparently do not understand how to prepare it so as to develop its delicious qualities. The Japanese government has appropriated a large fund to aid in prosecuting this educational work. The Japanese Tea Guild has issued this official recipe for making Japanese tea.

1. Use a small, dry and thoroughly clean porcelain teapot.

2. Put in one teaspoonful of tea leaves for each cup of tea desired.

3. When using Japanese teas, pour on the required quantity of fresh boiled water, and let stand with closed lid from two to three minutes. Never boil the leaves. In order to retain the natural flavor, Japanese tea leaves should be kept in tight can or jar free from moisture.

Note.—To thoroughly enjoy the natural, delicate and sweet flavor, neither sugar nor cream should be used, a little deficient in fact is no attempted.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

Tennessee's Anti-Cigarette Law Nullified by the United States Court.

The sale of the deadly cigarette will begin in Tennessee after being under the ban of the law for a brief period. Judge Lurton the past week at Nashville rendered a decision that makes the law passed by the last Legislature absolutely nugatory.

In the habeas corpus proceedings brought before United States Circuit Judge Lurton by W. S. Sawrie, arrested under the State anti-cigarette law charged with violating its provisions, Judge Lurton holds in his decision that the anti-cigarette law is unconstitutional in that it conflicts with the commercial clause of the constitution of the United States, and holding the action of the State court to be illegal and ordering the petitioner to be set at liberty.

The meat of the whole opinion, of approximately five thousand words, is covered in the concluding paragraphs, to-wit:

"But this Tennessee statute, in so far as it prevents importations and sales in original packages by importers, is not a quarantine or inspection statute, and is not based upon the statute or condition of cigarettes. The Tennessee statute is too broad, and is repugnant to the commercial clause of the constitution of the United States in so far as it inhibits importation of cigarettes from foreign nations or other States or their sale by importer in the form in which they were imported."

A WOMAN SELLS HER HUSBAND.

Mrs. Stephens Buys J. H. Trulitt From His Wife for $4,000.

According to the Post-Dispatch, John A. Trulitt, a conductor on the Northern Central electric street car line, was sold recently by his wife for $4,000 to a woman who declares that she loves the man more than his wife does.

The deal was the sequel to the following remarkable statement made to Mrs. Trulitt by a Mrs. Stephens, who lives in St. Louis with her father:

"Mrs. Trulitt, I love your husband and I want him. I have traveled the world over, and he is the first man I ever loved. I will give you $4,000 cash for him if you will give him up."

Trulitt, who is the father of four children, seems to agree to the deal.

GEORGIA LADIES

TELL THE TRUTH.

Mrs. Mayor Shinea

Bullards, Ga., writes: Eight years ago I had Slow Fever 8 months. Five Doctors attended me, but I continued to grow worse until I commenced taking Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine three times a day, and I was well before one Package was taken. Have taken a few doses "Black Draught," but did not think it cleansed my Liver as well as Dr. M. A. S. L. M.

Female Complaints.

There are two critical and even dangerous periods in female life, when the greatest care is necessary.

The first, when the girl passes from childhood to womanhood; if through ignorance or neglect this mysterious development is interfered with or thwarted, even in the smallest degree, they are liable to some malady frequently proving most serious, such as hysteria, fits or even consumption; while at the second period, called "change of life," there is often much distress and danger. At both these periods of life Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine is invaluable, and it is recommended that a dose of it be taken twice a week for some time, between and during the menstrual periods, and for strengthening the system we strongly urge the use of Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, a dose at bedtime.

R. J. Redseck

Seville, Ga., says: I have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine in my family for 20 years with success in many cases of Indigestion and Sour Stomach. I think it superior to "Thedford's Black Draught" and "Zeilin's Regulator," and I shall recommend Dr. M. A. S. L. M. as long as I live.

Hysteria

is caused by natural or acquired feebleness of constitution, mental suffering and, chiefly, derangements of the sexual system, such as menstrual irregularities, delayed development of the generative organs, or too strong sexual propensities. During a fit, the patient's clothes should be loosened; she should have an abundance of fresh air. The sudden, copious and continuous application of cold water to the head and face will cut the fit short. Between the paroxisms, Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine should be taken to correct torpidity of the bowels, and a course of treatment with Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine which is specially adapted to remove the uterine disorders.

VOL. V. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1897. NO. 51

Great Britain harbors about 1,200,000 more women than men.

Glasgow, Scotland, is a model city to which people are pointed for an illustration whenever municipal reforms are mentioned.

Lead is one of the few metals not yet found in Alaska, but that may be because the Coroner hasn't yet qualified, suggests the San Francisco Chronicle.

Prince Bismarck expressed admiration for the endeavors made by the Pope to solve the social question, adding: "Formerly the social question could be solved by the police, but now it requires the military."

Lieutenant Moss, of the regular army, has reported that he considers the bicycle a valuable means of transporting troops. Hereafter we may expect an army on bicycles, and it will be more imposing than an army with banners.

Says the Chicago Record: When the United States establishes postal savings banks the standing of its private banking institutions will be raised, and no portion of the population will be able to say that it is without safe banking facilities.

In Paris the water supply is becoming a serious question, especially in view of the coming exhibition. The consumption has been steadily increasing for some years, and the authorities are busily engaged in the consideration of schemes for securing an adequate supply in the future.

If you want to keep down the dust sprinkle it with naphtha. A single application is good for three months. It is reported that the Pennsylvania road will use naphtha along its tracks next year in the expectation that the nuisance of flying dust can be abated. No matter how high the wind may be, a country road well sprayed with naphtha will maintain a reasonably compact surface.

The Chicago Journal believes "the convict should be made to wish to escape. He should be so treated that he will want to get away and never come back, so treated that other men will have a horror of his fate. It may be a very pleasing thing for the sentimentalist to see a penitentiary run like a young ladies' boarding school, but crime is too serious a thing for treatment on a sentimental basis."

The modern tendency to regard any unusual crime as a symptom of insanity has received a blow in Germany, where the perpetrator of one of the most revolting acts of recent years has been declared perfectly sound and sane by the medical experts. Johann Bittner, the man in question, was not only a libertine and a murderer, but a cannibal. His outbreak of primitive savagery will undoubtedly be made to cost him his life.

It was decided to bring the body of Mr. Ogden Goelet, the New York multi-millionaire, to this country on his yacht Mayflower for burial. The name of his yacht will bring to mind, and in contrast, the landing of the other Mayflower at Plymouth Rock. What wonderful mutations of fortune are illustrated by comparison of the stern westward voyaging of the Pilgrims to the North American wilderness and sumptuous bringing home of the dead New Yorker!

The British Indian troops showed the stuff of which they are made in the battle of Maizar, in Tochi valley. Two native officers coolly attempted to bring in under heavy fire guns which had been abandoned because of the killing of the horses, and one actually packed into camp a gun weighing 200 pounds. Then he went out again and came back with his English lieutenant's body. Upon such men as these England should confer decorations, for though their skins are black they are the bravest of the brave.

In a recent article in Harper's Magazine Dr. Henry Smith Williams predicted that meteorology would be the science of the future. In view of that prophecy it is doubly interesting to learn that Professor Willis L. Moore, Chief of the United States Weather Bureau, has recommended to Secretary Wilson for adoption as a feature of the Federal exhibit at Paris in 1900 the issuance at the exposition of a daily weather chart of this country. The observations would be cabled over, thus proving a triumph for the American cable as well as American meteorology. According to Chief Moore, no other Government in the world has the facilities for making such a meteorological showing as has this Official reports from all points give accounts of many victories for Dictator Barrios' arms, and now it begins to look as if the tide of war had turned strongly against the rebels. The city of Quezaltenango, which has been held by the rebels for several days, was occupied by the Federal forces without firing a shot.

Bandits held up a Chicago and Alton express train Thursday night near Kansas City. After a fruitless attempt to blow open the two iron safes in the express car with dynamite, they abandoned the train and hurriedly left the place.

J. G. Green shot and killed William Adams about dark in Decatur county, Georgia, ten miles southeast of Pelham. They sold cotton there Thursday, and the killing is the result of a difficulty arising from a settlement between them on their way home.

BIG INCREASE IN EXPORTS.

Bureau of Statistics Issue Statement for August.

The bureau of statistics has issued tables showing the exports and imports for August, the first full month under the new tariff law. These figures show for that month the largest exports of domestic merchandise of any August in the history of the government. The exports were $79,490,264, against $66,680,981 for August, 1896.

For the first eight months of the year the exports were $61,810,000 in excess of the first eight months of 1896, so that the bureau officials believe that the exports this year will far exceed those of last year, which was itself a record-breaking year in the matter of exports.

The value of all imports, dutiable and free, for August was $39,848,312, of which $18,629,607 were free. These figures show a decrease of about $10,000,000 below those of 1896. The decrease was due to a heavy reduction in the importation of raw wool, which decreased from 4,651,000 in August last year to 2,877,877 last August, and manufactured wool from $3,079,000 to $639,000.

Wood and manufactures thereof, from $1,963,000 to $1,271,000; manufactures of cotton, from $2,253,000 to $1,623,000; manufactures of jute, flax, hemp, etc., from $2,221,000 to $999,289; iron and steel, from $1,166,067 to $887,344, and sugars from $5,340,000 to $2,956,000.

CRIME IN KENTUCKY.

Eleven White Men Assault a Young Woman—Lynching Narrowly Averted.

The news of a shocking assault by eleven men upon the young wife of a switchman, recently married, comes from Newport, Ky.

Thomas Gleason and his wife started out the Alexandria pike to visit a friend Thursday night, when two men with revolvers, and representing themselves to be officers, separated husband and wife and dragged the shrieking woman into a field, where eleven men assaulted her. The penalty for this crime in Kentucky is death.

The men were given a preliminary hearing before Judge Bennett, who held ten of them for the grand jury without bail. The eleventh has not yet been identified. Owing to the excited state of feeling and the insecurity of the Newport jail, the men were ordered to be taken to Maysville for safe keeping.

When the time came for the removal of the ten prisoners to the Chesapeake and Ohio depot to take the train for Maysville, there was such a menacing crowd around the jail that the sheriff called out the entire police force to preserve order. The train soon came, and the prisoners were safely embarked.

AN EDITOR ASSAULTED.

Brann, the Editor of the Iconoclast, Handled Roughly by Texans.

Waco, Tex.—Wednesday afternoon W. C. Brann, editor of the Iconoclast, was publicly beaten by Judge J. R. Scarborough, George Scarborough and R. H. Hamilton. The difficulty began in the Provident building, and was continued for a half block on the street until Brann fell in a hole on the street car track.

Brann was bleeding from a dozen savage cuts on the head and face.

Brann's assailants were arrested. Judge Scarborough is a trustee of Baylor University, and had a daughter in the university. He says Brann's recent attack in his paper on the university is what caused the trouble between them. Young Scarborough and Hamilton are students in the institution, and say that Brann's attack was beyond endurance.

After the affair Brann made this statement: "I was standing at the elevator when suddenly three pistols were stuck in my face. As I was descending the steps blows were rained on my head. In front of the building stood my carriage, and I was prevented from entering it. Finally I sank from exhaustion and loss of blood. As I was helped into my carriage I shouted, 'Truth will mount again!' or something like that."

CONFESSED TO EIGHTEEN MURDERS.

A man named Gustave Muller has surrendered to the city police of Rotterdam, confessing the murder of his wife and child. As proof of the truth of his confession he produced from his pocket four human ears. The police, on searching his house, found the two bodies. Subsequently he confessed that he had also killed his parents, and mutilated their remains in the same fashion. He also made the astonishing statement that he had similarly disposed of fourteen other wives whom he had married in various parts of the world.

CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH.

Pat and Mary Coleman, colored, who live on C. F. Adams' farm, near Covington, Ga., left their home to pick cotton about a quarter of a mile away. They locked their three children in the house, their ages being about 7, 5 and 2 years. Late in the afternoon the house was discovered to be on fire, but nothing could be done to save either the inmates or contents. The charred remains of all three bodies were found in one corner of a room.

CUBAN AFFAIRS.

Spanish Cabinet Council Grants Autonomy to the Island.

BLANCO SUCCEEDS WEYLER.

Evangelina Cisneros, the Young Cuban Patriot, Makes Her Escape From Prison. Probability That Annexation to the United States Will Be Demanded.

TO RECALL WEYLER.

It was semi-officially announced at Madrid Thursday that Captain-General Weyler will be recalled from Cuba this month, and that it is probable the cortes will be dissolved in December, and a new parliament convoked in March.

MAY YET ASK ANNEXATION.

Havana, via Key West.—A well-known American, who has long resided in the island, expressed the opinion that real differences exist among the resident Spaniards as to the desirability of autonomy. He believes it will not prove satisfactory to the radical element among the Spaniards in Cuba.

After autonomy has been granted and peace is proclaimed, he believes the radical element will probably try to promote another insurrection. In that event the conservative element and the producing body of the Spanish population would at once demand annexation to the United States.

This view is adhered to by many resident Spaniards of prominence.

AUTONOMY FOR CUBA.

A Spanish Cabinet Council Home Rule Was Given to the Cubans.

A special from Madrid says: At a cabinet council the government decided to grant autonomy to Cuba under the suzerainty of Spain, and to continue the campaign as long as may be necessary.

Senor Gullom, minister of foreign affairs, explained to the cabinet the position of the diplomatic negotiations with the United States.

Senor Sagasta, the premier, has received a cable message from Captain-General Weyler, who offers his services to the government, and says: "I shall not resign."

EVANGELINA CISNEROS,

The Young Cuban Patriot, Makes Her Escape From Prison.

Havana, Cuba.—The beautiful young Cuban patriot, Senorita Evangelina Cossio Y Cisneros, heroine of the sensational adventure with the Spanish governor of the Isle of Pines, has escaped from the Casa de Recogidas (House of Scrapings), where she had been confined several months on a charge of conspiracy against the crown of Spain and of an attempt upon the life of Gov. Berez, governor of the Isle of Pines.

According to the statements of the jailers or attendants, she made her escape some time last Thursday night. At the morning's roll call she was missing, and when search was made for her the attendants found that one of the iron bars of the room in which she had been confined had been bent outward. The bar could not have been moved except by a great outlay of strength, and all the circumstances go to prove the co-operation of outsiders in her escape.

The authorities have not yet secured any clue as to the whereabouts of Senorita Evangelina. Several of the employes of the establishment have been arrested.

GOLD RESERVE INCREASING.

Wednesday's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, $212,337,848; gold reserve, $148,699,176.

The sum of one hundred thousand pounds ($500,000) in gold coin of the United States was withdrawn from the Bank of England Wednesday for shipment to the United States.

WILL DIE IN MEXICO.

It is reported that Max Stewart, the American ex-Confederate soldier who shot and killed a policeman at Parral, State of Chihuahua, Mex., some time ago and was sentenced to death for the crime, will be shot within a few days.

The appeal from prominent officials of the United States has been in the hands of President Diaz several weeks, and it is stated that the latter has refused the condemned man clemency for the reason that the killing of the policeman was cold blooded murder.

INSPECT COTTON MILL CENTERS

The Southern Railway Company has extended an invitation to the New England Cotton Manufacturers' Association to visit the cotton mill centers of the South located along that system of railway, and it is expected that a large number will accept the invitation.

About 250 cotton mills are located on the line of the Southern Railway and the number is increasing.

THE RECORD GROWS WORSE.

At New Orleans the Yellow Fever is Approaching Epidemic Stage.

NEW ORLEANS.

Friday was a record breaker here. As early as 6 o'clock as many cases had been reported as on Wednesday when the fever had for the time reached high water mark—forty-six cases. At the same hour there had been some five deaths reported, with a couple of patients in a very critical condition.

The deaths are among those who have had little or no attention, and at least three of the fatalities are among the Italian population.

The following is the record of cases and deaths for Friday: Five deaths, 48 cases. Total cases to date, 505; total deaths to date, 50; recovered, 177; under treatment, 278.

There are no new cases of fever at Clinton, Miss.

IS IT YELLOW JACK?

An epidemic of fever six miles south of West Union, W. Va., is causing consternation among the inhabitants. Physicians differ in their opinion as to the kind of fever, some claiming it is typhoid, while two of the most prominent physicians in the State assert it is a mild type of yellow fever. Thirty-one deaths have occurred in the past eighteen days. The citizens of this towns are demanding that the board of health quarantine against it.

YELLOW FEVER AT ALCO.

Robert S. Rabb, who lives at Alco, near Brewton, and who has until a few days ago been employed as a quarantine officer, was taken sick last Monday, and it now develops that he has yellow fever. His physicians were in doubt for a time, but his symptoms are now clear as being those of the dreaded disease.

MOBILE'S RECORD.

There were six new cases of yellow fever at Mobile Friday. Total cases to date, 109; deaths, 17; recovered, 60; remaining under treatment, 33. There were two new localities of infection found. J. A. Wright, one of the new cases named, died Friday night.

Eleven new cases were reported at Scranton, Miss., Friday and eighteen the day previous.

BILOXI'S CONDITION.

The board of health report up to Friday is as follows:

Yellow fever under treatment, 103; suspicious cases, 3; other causes, 7; new cases, 10; deaths, 1; total yellow fever to date, 205; total deaths to date, 11.

EDWARDS, MISS.

Following is the status: Deaths today, 4; deaths to date, 19; Cases today, 13; total cases to date, 389; now under treatment, 165; convalescent, 130; discharged, 85; one case black vomit.

A FINAL REFUSAL.

England Withdraws From the Seal Conference.

The officials of the British foreign office have communicated to the United States ambassador, Col. John Hay, the final decision that the government of Great Britain must refuse to take part in any sealing conference with representatives of Russia and Japan. The British government, however, asserts its willingness to confer with the United States alone, but it insists that Russia and Japan are not interested in the Behring Sea seals to a degree entitling them to representation at the conference. The British government does not suggest any date for a conference with the United States, and it is thought probable in London that Great Britain's withdrawal will result in two meetings, one between the United States, Russia and Japan, and the other between the United States, Great Britain and Canada.

It cannot be too strongly reiterated that the withdrawal of Great Britain from the Washington conference is due to Canada's insistence, and that until the Canadian officials informed the foreign office here of Canada's objections to meeting Russia and Japan, out of fear of being outvoted, Great Britain fully intended to enter the conference with the three other governments.

SEVEN PERISHED.

The girls' cottage at the State Industrial School at Plankinton, S. D., burned last Wednesday at midnight, and seven girls perished in the building. Twenty-five escaped in their night clothes. The origin of the fire is unknown, but was probably caused by a lamp exploding.

The bodies of the seven burned to death have not all been taken out, but the position of those found indicates that they became bewildered and had rushed to the rear, where there was no available exit. The building was a new one, and the loss is $20,000, with no insurance.

SILVER GOES UP.

Silver scored a rise of 1 penny to 27d in London Friday and 2 cents to 69 in New York. Bullion dealers were unable to assign any other cause for the rise than the scarcity of supplies. The Indian demand of late has been heavy. The London price today is within one-fourth penny of the price of September 20, which was the high point of the rally on the news of the Bank of England's preparation to hold one-fifth of its reserve in silver.

TRADE REVIEW.

Bradstreet's Reports a Continuance of Upward Tendency.

FALLING OFF IN EXPORTS.

Only a Moderate Improvement in Southern Trade for the Week—Dry Weather a Retarding Feature in Nearly all Sections—Slight Advance in Cotton—Iron Firm.

Bradstreets report of trade conditions for the past week says:

Distribution of general merchandise in the Central West and Northwest is further checked owing to the prolonged drouth in Kentucky, Illinois, Kansas, portions of Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota and the Dakotas. Telegraphic advices to Bradstreets report serious damage in Kansas and parts of Nebraska and Iowa, where early planted wheat is up, budded out; that planted later is not likely to sprout. Fall plowing is now impossible. Six weeks without rain have dried up pastures and compelled farmers to feed stock. Manufacturing industries throughout the Central West, particularly iron and steel, continue active and there is an increasing tendency on the part of the interior merchants to remit promptly. While the volume of trade has decreased at Chicago, it is ahead of the like record in recent years. There is a moderate improvement in business in the South, Alabama having raised the quarantine restrictions against Georgia cities, and Central and Northern Texas points having resumed commercial relations with Galveston.

Planters continue to hold cotton, which delays collections.

Higher prices this week are reported for cotton, which has been declining for some time; coal and clothing in sympathy with wool, for naval stores under heavy purchases by large traders, wheat, flour and eggs. Products, lard, beef and sugar declined. Hides are weaker, lead is lower and Bessemer pig has sold off 50 cents a ton under heavy speculation, notwithstanding the iron and steel markets as a whole remain active and firm.

Exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States and Canada this week show a heavy falling off, aggregating only 4,835,641 bushels, against 5,834,000 bushels last week; but compared with 4,050,000 bushels in the week a year ago, 2,244,000 bushels in 1895, 3,317,000 bushels in 1894, and 2,862,000 bushels in 1893.

Corn exports also show a heavy decrease, aggregating only 2,109,000 bushels, against 3,108,000 bushels last week, 2,772,000 bushels in the week a year ago, 1,367,000 bushels in 1895, 184,000 bushels in 1894 and 1,089,000 bushels in 1894.

There are 237 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, compared with 189 last week, 219 in the week a year ago, 274 two years ago, 238 three years ago, and as compared with 406 in the first week of October, 1893.

STANDING OF A BIG CORPORATION.

Extracts From the Annual Report of the L. & N. Railroad.

The annual report of President Milton H. Smith shows that the general results from operations for the year were: Gross earnings, $20,372,307.65; operating expenses, 67.98 per cent, $13,849,218.04; net earnings from traffic, 32.02 per cent, $6,523,089.61; to which add income from rents and investments, $427,063.82, making a total income of $6,950,153.43. Taxes, interest and expenses for the year left net earnings of $979,180.09. The outstanding bonded debt, June 30, 1897, was $80,503,660.

The total mileage of the road is now 5,027.65. During the year there were 107.87 miles of track relaid with new steel rails, replacing old steel rails, at a cost of $212,993.76.

Boats Leaving St. Michaels Now Will Be Frozen Up.

The general impression is that boats that leave St. Michaels from this time on will not be able to get over 1,000 miles up the river before they will be frozen in.

In St. Michaels sugar is 25 cents per pound, shot cartridges are 25 cents each, bacon 33 cents a pound, blanket trousers $8, chocolate drops, three for 25 cents; 5-cent calico, 35 cents a yard; cotton bandannas, $1 each; flour, $8 a hundred-weight; canned goods, 35 cents a pound; small boxes of sardines, 50 cents.

MAMMOTH TRUST FORMED.

The Entire Industry of Glass Manufactures Represented.

The meeting of the glass manufacturers at Columbus, O., the past week resulted in the organization of one of the most gigantic associations that has ever come into existence. They represent practically the entire glass industry in the United States. The purpose was to bring under one head every glass manufactory in this country. In this respect the meeting was a great success.

WEYLER DEPOSED.

Capt.-Gen. Blanco Y. Arenas Appointed Governor General of the Island.

The Spanish cabinet has decided upon the immediate recall of Gen. Weyler from Cuba. A decree will be issued appointing Capt. Gen. Blanco Y. Arenas, Marquis of Plena Plata, governor general of the island. The queen regent signed the decree Saturday. According to El Herald, 20,000 reinforcements will accompany Gen. Blanco to Cuba.

In the course of the cable message sent by Captain General Weyler to Premier Sagasta, placing his post in Cuba at the disposal of the government, he said:

"If the functions with which the government had trusted me had been merely those of governor general of Cuba, I should have hastened to resign. But the two-fold character of my mission and my duty as commander in chief in the face of the enemy prevent my tendering a resignation.

"Nevertheless, although I can rely upon the absolute, unconditional support of the autonomist and constitutional parties, as well as upon public opinion, this would be insufficient without the confidence of the government, now more than ever necessary to me after the censure which I have been made the object by the members and journals of the liberal party and by public opinion in the United States, which latter is largely influenced by the former. This confidence would be necessary to enable me to put an end to the war which has already been virtually concluded from our lines at Jucaro to Cape Antonio."

Senor Sagasta replied:

"I thank you for your explanation and value your frankness. I wish to assure you that the government recognizes your services and values them as they deserve, but it thinks a change of policy, in order to succeed, requires that the authorities should be one with the ministry.

"This has nothing to do with the confidence felt in you by the government, for the liberals have always said that the responsibility for a given policy does not fall upon those who carry it out, but upon the government inspiring it. I shall communicate your decision to the government shortly."

NOT AN ULTIMATUM.

It is semi-officially announced at Madrid that the note which General Stewart L. Woodford, the United States minister, communicated to the Duke of Tetuan, the Spanish minister for foreign affairs, is no more an ultimatum than it is a commentary document. In spirit and text it is couched in friendly terms. It expresses a wish to know when Cuba can be pacified, and requests Spain to reply before October 30 in order that President McKinley may be able to incorporate Spain's answer in his message to congress.

Premier Sagasta, in agreement with Senor Gullon, the minister for foreign affairs, proposes to send a moderate reply, declaring that Spain will await events, and is taking such measures as consideration and prudence dictates until the change of policy in Cuba smooths the relations between the two governments.

The answer of Spain will not be drawn up until the programme for the reforms in Cuba has been published.

BRYAN AT THE CENTENNIAL.

The celebration of Nebraska day at the Exposition Friday was a notable success. Thousands of people were present, every regular and special train being crowded.

William Jennings Bryan, Governor Holcomb and staff, Governor Taylor and staff, prominent citizens of Nebraska, Tennessee and adjacent States, formed a procession and paraded to the exposition grounds. Among the features of the procession were detachments of the United States cavalry, Irish Lancers and German Cuirassiers from Buffalo Bill's Wild West show.

The exercises at the Auditorium consisted of addresses by James M. Head, Gov. Taylor, Col. A. S. Colyar, Gov. Holcombe, Hon. W. J. Bryan, Senator Allen and Hon. W. L. Stark.

A public reception was given the Nebraska visitors, followed by luncheon.

George Morgan was hanged Friday at Omaha, Neb., for the murder of Ida Gaskill in November, 1895. Morgan died protesting his innocence. His victim was but 11 years old, and had been assaulted and choked to death. Evidence against Morgan was mainly circumstantial, but was very conclusive.

Consul General Carrillo has received a dispatch to the effect that the revolution at Guatamala was at an end and that Barrios was again in complete control of the situation, which was confirmed later on by several private cables to prominent business men who have interests in Guatamala.

Jonathan Bennett, a young farmer of Yancy county, Tennessee, Friday, while at an apple paring bee, shot Nora Ray, a girl 17 years of age, with whom he was in love, killing her almost instantly. Bennett was drinking and tried several times to get on a seat by the girl, but each time she ran away from him. The last time he deliberately drew his revolver and shot her twice.

Sir John Gilbert, president of the Royal Society of Painters in Water Colors, is dead.

CUBA may not be acquiring her freedom so rapidly as many of us would wish, but every lover of liberty will rejoice at the escape of the fair Cuban, Senorita Cisneros, from the power of Spain.

Montgomery was considerably scared last Sunday, a case of yellow fever being reported in the city. However, the scare turned out to be all there was of it, as it was not a case of Yellow Jack at all, and a sigh of relief went up all round. The capitol city is making a hard fight to keep out the dread scourge and it is to be hoped their efforts will continue to be successful.

ALL old subscribers to THE BANNER who wish to make a guess in our cotton guessing contest, which closes November 1, need only to renew their subscription now to entitle them to a guess. In order that all may know the date their subscription is due we are putting the date under the name on each paper, and will be glad to have you renew and register your guess.

THE appointment of W. F. Foshee, chairman of the Republican party of Chilton county, to the postmastership at Maplesville is a direct repudiation by the Republicans at Washington of those who have hitherto posed as controllers of Republican patronage in Chilton We congratulate Mr. Foshee on his appointment, not because he is a Republican, but on account of the opposition he met with and has successfully overcome. The Republicans are so few in number in this county it is hardly worth considering, but are we to understand there are two Republican parties in Chilton? Are there two chairmen, or is one deposed?

"THE money power has the government by the leg" was an expression frequently used in the late campaign and greatly derided by the gold-bug press. But if the cotton planter by this time is not fully convinced that the "money power" has him by the throat and is choking him out of existance it's a wonder. It is also rather surprising, considering the reports of a ten million bale crop this season, that nothing is being heard of that old cry "over-production." From whatever point of view the planter may study the present situation it presents a most unfavorable aspect. If it is not the "money power" and not "over-production" that is keeping the price of cotton down at 5½ cents, the average planter would be glad to learn what it is. The estimate for this crop of ten million bales seems to be away above the mark. But assuming it to be correct, as there was no old stock on hand, it is only evuivalent to an eight million bale crop, and should bring at least 8 cents. Seemingly last season's crop was not sufficient for the demand,—as a number of mills had to close down in the summer on account of being unable to obtain cotton. But big crop or little crop, under-production or over-production, makes no difference to the unfortunate planter, who so long as he is willing to grow cotton under our existing monetary system will have to take whatever price the "money power" is willing to give him.

Clanton Post Office.

To-day Mr. John Garner has turned over the business of the Clanton post office to the new appointee Mr. L. B. Pounds. The post office is now located in the store of Sartor & Kicker. Mr Garner has made a good postmaster, his conduct of the office giving general satisfaction. Postmaster Pounds has fitted up a nice office for the transaction of the postal business of the town, and has secured the services of Mr. T. S. Phillips to assist him in the office. The business of the office is growing, and under the new administration we hope to see it flourish and prosper.

Atlanta and Selma Railroad.

The Selma correspondent of the Advertiser has the following to say of the A. & A. railroad: "The subscription to the Atlanta and Air Line Railroad has reaceed $81,000 leaving the sum of $19,000 to complete the amount asked for. Several large subscriptions have been promised, which will materially lessen the amount within the next few days. Col. Mitchell is still here and hopes to complete the subscription by the 10th, so that he can begin active work of grading by the 25th. Selma is at last awake to her interest, and will soon be on such a boom as never before known in the history of the city."

Postal Savings Banks.

No proposition that has come before the people of late years has received such general and hearty approval from the press of the entire country as the plan for the establishment of postal savings banks. Not only do the big dailies of the cities as a rule approve of the agitation, but the news papers in the smaller towns almost without exception commend the movement. While the comments in the newspapers of the north and west are most numerous, the press of the east and south is by no means backward in supporting the agitation. Occasionally an old-time democratic paper of the south opposes the plan on the ground that it is not the function of the government to do anything more than collect the revenues and protect life and property. These are the extreme representatives of the school which hold that that government is best which governs least. But for the most part the papers of the south support the movement for postal banks, and call attention to the special need for them in that section of the country, where banks of all kinds are scarce and where places of safe deposits for small savings are very far apart. In examining the many hundreds of exchanges that come into a city newspaper office from all parts of the country one cannot but be impressed with the attention given to the subject of postal banks and the generally favorable comment. This discussion of the subject in the press of the whole country must have the effect of preparing the minds of congressmen for speedy action as soon as they shall meet again in washington. The unanimity of the press is a sure indication that the people desire the establishment of postal savings banks.—Chicago Record.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizingit as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many recommendations included therein, we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results, is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to everyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. BUILDING NOTES.

The new resedence being built for Mr. W. I. Mullins is nearing completion; it would have been finished before now, but the contractor, Mr. Ben Teel, has been delayed waiting for material. The house is one of the most elegant in town.

Messrs. Marcus & Farley have nearly finished the new dwelling house they are erecting for Dr Matthews, and expect to complete it next week.

Mr. J. M. Potts, who can boast of the prettiest place in town, is adding some more improvements Mr. Potts is a progressive citizen and knows how to fix a place right

The railroad company is repairing the tank, by putting in a new foundation. They are also building a new tool house by the side of the tank.

Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 13, 1897.

W. J. Bryan continues speaking alm at daily at various points through Kansas, Missouri and Illinois. He has given seven speeches to the Iowa campaign, several to Nebraska and signified his willingness to give four days to the Kentucky campaign. That Mr. Bayan continues in robust health in spite of his wearing and incessant work is cause for much astonishment.

It is rumored that ex-president Cleveland will go to politics in New Jersey by becoming a candidate for the judgeship of the court of errors and appeals. The position is most unremunerative, paying about $800 a year. But its holding is sought by eminent jurists on account of the honor attached.

The government balance for September, in view of the much vaunted prosperity, of which most of us have seen very little, makes rather interesting reading. Although the expenditures were $1,210,720 less than in the corresponding month of '96, the deficit is $6,435,617. Also a loss of $3,400,000. No such distressing deficit is seen on the balance sheets of the trusts.

The already almost limited resources of Mark Hanna in the Ohio campaign have been further augmented by the establishment of an annex, and pensions for doubtful voters in that state are being granted with increases and back pay at such a rate as to require the services of twenty-two clerks Thus is the greatest monument to the courage and fidelity of the old soldier on the one hand and the gratitude of the American people on the other debased into a tool for the man who is unworthy of an honest man's vote.

The fight in the Mayoralty election in Greater New York continues to grow in interest. Tammany's refusal to endorse the Chicago platform has led to the nomination of Henry George, and the Tiger is said to be, as a result, in a somewhat perturbed state. Mr. Bryan has been appealed to by the Tammany leaders to come to their rescue, but his declination is a foregone conclusion. The platform on which the Alliance put Mr. George calls for municipal ownership, three cent car fare, dollar gas and opposes government by injunction. A wonderfully good Populist platform. The laboring man was recognised in the Greater New York platform by the demand for an eight hour day of work and the abolishment of the contract system.

The last issue of Chairman Marion Butler's paper, the Cancasian, is devoted largely to an expose of the Coxeyites in Ohio. The true Populists in the State expressed their indignation at the appearance of W. S. morgan and Abe Steinberger at the Ohio State Convention, and their interference their. As to the source of the money which enables these gentlemen to travel about, making speeches and controlling committees, there is but one opinion. No Populist within the State will admit to even inviting their invasion, much less furnishing the means for their coming. The much talked of Hugo Pryor check is explained away on the ground that he asked for it to see if such demands were being honored thereby found that they were.

A large co-operative manufacturing and agricultural company is about to begin operating at Bay City, Wis-consin.

The friends of Governor Pingree hopes that the story that he recently took an incog. trip to South America to grab a valuable railroad franchise is but a fabrication of his enemies.

The typeographical Union of Boston has sent committees to wait on representatives of both of the old political parties, urging that they include in their platforms the plank advocating the government control of telegraph and telephone systems.

The sugar trust is making a pretense of opposing the annexation of Hawaii to the United States, which is but the most pattent bluff.

What is Scott's Emulsion?

It is a strengthening food and tonic, remarkable in its flesh-forming properties. It contains Cod-Liver Oil emulsified or partially digested, combined with the well-known and highly prized Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, so that their potency is materially increased.

What Will It Do?

It will arrest loss of flesh and restore to a normal condition the infant, the child and the adult. It will enrich the blood of the anemic; will stop the cough, heal the irritation of the throat and lungs, and cure incipient consumption. We make this statement because the experience of twenty-five years has proven it in tens of thousands of cases. Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion. 50c. and $1.00, all druggists. SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

OPPORTUNITY OF POPULISM.

Such is the political situation. There is a vacant place. The people will turn from the Republican party for it will not bring prosperity; a great part of those opposed to the Republican party will not turn again to the Democratic party where they have turned before in vain; they will turn to a new party, insist on a party that will serve the people, upon leaders who will seek not primarily to advance their own ends but the ends of the people who honor them. The leaders who will not serve such ends must and will be thrust aside. The Populist party should be this party and find these leaders. But it cannot fill this place while rent with discord, while it is divided into factions bent on fighting one another not a common enemy. By healing its discords it can fill the place in the political situation that is vacant; it cannot fill this place until it does. Some party will be found to fill this vacant place, to make a common and effective rallying point for opposition to the moneyed oligarchy. The Democratic party cannot be this rallying point, for it cannot unite opposition. The Populist party can if it will; if it will not some other party untrammeled by prejudice and jealousies must. If the Populist party is to take this vacant place, it must show its fitness to take it by putting a stop to the waste of strength in party quarrels, by directing its whole force, for the advancement of common ends. If it cannot rise to the occasion this fact had better be known.—Philadelphia American.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. Miraculous Benefit RECEIVED FROM Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

ELI P. BABCOCK, of Avoca, N. Y., a veteran of the 3rd N. Y. Artillery and for thirty years of the Babcock & Munsel Carriage Co., of Auburn, says: "I write to express my gratitude for the miraculous benefit received from Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I suffered for years, as result of army life, from sciatica which affected my heart in the worst form, my limbs swelled from the ankles up. I bloated until I was unable to button my clothing; had sharp pains about the heart, smothering spells and shortness of breath. For three months I was unable to lie down, and all the sleep I got was in an arm chair. I was treated by the best doctors but gradually grew worse. About a year ago I commenced taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and it saved my life as if by a miracle."

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when completed will make a book of over 200 pages, to be bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the first edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

5 DROPS — 49 YEARS OF SUFFERING FROM RHEUMATISM.

Read carefully this testimonial found below, also letters from those who have been cured of other diseases, and remember that "5 Drops" has and can never fail to quickly relieve and permanently cure.

Sept. 9, 1895.
DEAR SIR:—Your bottle of "5 Drops" received. It was for an old friend, Mr. Wm. Edwards, of Martinstown Wis. He has had Neuralgia in his chest, suffering a great deal of pain, so much so that it affected his heart and he could not sleep on account of a smothered feeling. He has been under the care of the most eminent physicians, but found no relief until I gave him a dose of "5 Drops." The very first night he rested well, and has ever since, and is gaining daily. I myself am 67 years old and began taking your medicine last April for Rheumatism, which I have had for 49 years, also for a weak heart. Since taking "5 Drops" the Rheumatism has all disappeared, the stiffness is gone from my joints, and my heart never misses a beat. I am to day a well, strong woman, and I owe it to "5 Drops." I only wish I could sound my bugle of praise loud enough to be heard all over the world, and could convince every one that "5 Drops" is all you claim it to be and more.
Mrs. D. T. Carver, Winslow, Stevenson Co., Ill.

34 YEARS OF SUFFERING.
JANUARY 2, 1897.
DEAR SIR:—
Over 34 years ago, I had Typhoid Fever, and barely escaped with my life. It left my system so shattered that I have had, ever since, Rheumatism and Throat Trouble, which gave me a terrible Cough. I had been unable to find any relief for these diseases, until I learned of your "5 DROPS", which I commenced taking only two months ago, and my cure has been indeed wonderful. Already my cough has entirely disappeared, and the Rheumatism which for a few years past has threatened to make a cripple of me is cured, and I am free from pain. This is the most wonderful and the cheapest remedy ever discovered. I am more thankful to you than words can tell and I want everybody to know what "5 DROPS" has done for me. Although I am over 70 years old, I am feeling better than I have in years.
I shall be glad to answer any questions regarding my case from anyone enclosing a two cent stamp. Gratefully yours,
MRS. SAMUEL RIBLET, Litchfield, Mich.

CATARRH AND HAY FEVER.
I find the bottle of "5 DROPS" to be very good and just what you claim. My wife has been suffering with Catarrh and Hay Fever over 16 years, she has tried everything and doctored much, but no cure until she tried "5 DROPS" which completely cured her.
Yours truly REV. L. VON WALD,
March 31, 1896. Milbank, S. D.

NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA.
For twenty long years my wife suffered untold tortures from Sciatica and Neuralgia, and I thank God for the day that your heaven-sent remedy fell into my hands, for it completely cured her. I am a minister of the Gospel, and when I find any who suffer, cannot help but recommend "5 DROPS", for I know it will do more than you claim for it.
REV. F. M. COOPER, Washington Center, Mo.

PARALYSIS and RHEUMATISM
NOVEMBER 9, 1896.
DEAR SIR:
It is with pleasure I speak of your priceless remedy and of the good it has done me. For the last eight years I have been an incurable cripple from paralysis and rheumatism. Just think for eight years a total cripple not able to earn a penny not able to walk or step on the ground without the aid of something to lean on. Heaven bless the man who discovered this remedy, for, thanks to him and to God, I am able to walk and able to work. I have only taken two-thirds of a bottle, but have not had any pain in my back since I took the first dose, and after the second I walked across the floor, which I have not done in years. I have thrown away my cane and shall never need it again. To any one sending me a two-cent stamp I will send my affidavit. I have another bottle of "5 DROPS" and value it at $1.00 per drop.
Thankfully yours, EDWARD CASTLE.
1005 Wall Street. Sioux City, Iowa.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.
SEPTEMBER 24, 1896.
DEAR SIRS:
I wish to tell you and suffering humanity how much good "5 DROPS" has done me. On the beginning of this year I took down bedfast with inflammatory rheumatism, and I was doctored by as good physicians as this country has, but they could not cure me. On August 4, I began to take "5 DROPS." At that time every joint in my body and my limbs were stiff, so that I could not be moved. Even my tongue was getting so that I could hardly speak so any one could understand me, but to-day, only seven weeks from that time, I am absolutely cured, and thank you and God for my recovery.
Gratefully yours,
HORACE F. ANDERSON, McCracken, Kans.

If you have not sufficient confidence after reading these letters to send for a large bottle, send for a sample bottle, which contains sufficient medicine to convince you of its merit, and is a permanent cure for Rheumatism Neuralgia, Sciatica, Catarrh, Asthma, Dyspepsia, Backache, Hay Fever, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, "La Grippe," Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and kindred diseases.

There was a report not long ago that Mr. Gladstone was learning to ride the bicycle, and its contradiction is the signal for Mr. James Payn to drop into poetry:

Nor are we surprised it was not to his liking.

Florida's Haven for Criminals.

Tampa is entitled to the distinction of being the best place for criminals in the United States. The cause of this is the inefficiency of our courts of justice. Crimes are not punished. Bad men are imprisoned, but they live better in jail than outside. As birds in a cage sing and grow fat, so these men play the fiddle and chew tobacco, and have a good time at the people's expense.—Tampa News.

Sound Blindness.

We have all heard often enough of color blindness. Many people, although they possess perfect eyesight for reading or seeing long distances, yet can't for the life of them distinguish green and red, and many other pairs of colors. Lately it has been found that some suffer from an exactly similar affection of the hearing powers—that is, an inability to distinguish particular shades of sound arising from some obscure affection of the ear, yet quite distinct from deafness. One boy, in doing dictation, always spelt "very" "voght." He could not distinguish at all between the sounds of "very," "perry" and "polly," and yet he could hear at as great a distance as anybody. Another youngster would spell "different" "drifent." He said that was how it sounded. And several others ran the letters "r," "n" and "f" together in a hopeless way.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

H. A. BELL HAS A PLAN

PERPETUAL MONEY WOULD CREATE A KLONDIKE.

Prosperity Sure to Follow Its Adoption—No Bonds to Eat the Profit on the People's Labor—The Burden of Interest Explained.

Editor State Register (Springfield, Ill.):—We see the claim made that the Klondike country can, or will turn out in the next two years, one thousand tons of gold, at which rate in three years it could turn out one thousand million dollars' worth—about one-fourth as much gold money as is now supposed to be in the world. That sounds pretty large, but if we had the perpetual money and industrial system in force as proposed in The New Idea, we could beat that nearer home in both wealth and money by putting one million idle men at work at $2 per day for three years, or 900 days, which would give us eighteen hundred million dollars of actual wealth. Now, while you may not agree with me, or indorse the plan, I feel sure that many of your readers, after reading the work, will agree with me in the claim that the perpetual money proposed in The New Idea would be the best money the world ever saw, and that the system would give the best results to mankind of any system ever known to the world, from the fact as coined and issued wealth would be added to the country, and everybody would be employed in making a living.

As eighteen hundred million dollars would be issued, we would have that amount of additional government wealth in property serving us, and the additional eighteen hundred million dollars of absolute legal tender money in circulation without bond or mortgage; besides, we would have millions of private wealth added to our country, to the extent of homes and other improvements, from the earnings of the ones who worked and built the proposed government wealth.

Money so issued or coined would be many fold better for our country than like amount of dollars' worth of gold being found by a few persons, as only comparatively few would be employed in getting out the gold, and, except for the needs of the few owners, the gold would not get into circulation without government or corporation bonds or individual mortgages. If the owners of it should build railroads, they would issue stock and bonds to themselves, so as to draw dividends and interest, and hence we would still have bonds on transportation—bonds on all the people during all our lives and to be extended on to unborn generations—a crime which ought not to be tolerated. Under the perpetual money and industrial system proposed in the New Idea, we would have the wealth added to our country free from debts, mortgages and bonds forever.

If the people whom this most affects, regardless of party politics, would look into the proposed plan and study it for sixty days, they would likely have it in operation before five years. If said system had been in effect the nineteen years prior to 1896, there would have been saved to the people in railroad transportation alone on the same amount of business over five and a half billion dollars (more gold money than in the world); besides railway employes, except high salaried officials, would have received better pay, and every other class of labor would have been employed at good wages, all the while, adding millions more wealth to our country.

Each perpetual dollar coined or issued in payment for government property—wealth—would be a title in the hands of the persons receiving it for a dollar's worth of any commodity at market price or at the price offered for sale anywhere in the United States, and legal tender for services (taxes) debts or claims of any kind in our country.

This perpetual money would come from prosperity—from labor adding wealth to our country—wealth free from bonds. Prosperity coming from confidence money is only spasmodic to result in a panic each few years, or as soon as that confidence money eats up all its worth in interest and dividends, or when it wants an extension of interest-bearing bonds. If people could but comprehend the enormity of interest on perpetual bonds to be piled upon posterity, to say nothing of dividends, they would not suffer another bond to be issued under any circumstances.

Dr. C. F. Taylor, editor of The Medical World, Philadelphia, got Professor H. E. Whitaker of that city to calculate the interest on one dollar for 1896 years. Having no time to verify the figures before closing this article we will quote Dr. Taylor in The Medical World of February, 1897. "Had one dollar been loaned on the first day of January, A. D. 1, interest being allowed at the rate of 4 per cent per annum compounded quarterly, then 1896 years later—that is, on January 1, 1896, the amount due would be $593,333,360,819,160,830,000,000,000,000,000 (593 nonillion dollars). If it were desired to pay this in gold 23.22 grains to the dollar then taking spheres of pure gold the size of the earth, it would require 51,858.3 of them to pay the amount.

"A single sphere of gold to pay the debt would have a diameter of 294.957 miles. Just think of it. Over fifty thousand worlds all pure gold to pay for that dollar.

"Shall we now ask which is accounted the most important in our civilization, the man or the dollar? Here is the record of only one dollar, but it draws interest for a very long time. Now think of our national bonded indebtedness, which, it seems a certain class of people want to make perpetual.

"Further, our states, counties and municipalities have fallen into the bond habit. And still further our railroad bonds amount to more than all these combined, issued mostly on fictitious values, but the people have to pay interest on it all in the form of exorbitant and ruinous transportation rates. (Added to all the farmer buys and taken from the price of all he ships from his farm.)

"The attempt has been made, and will be made again, to make all these payable in gold. In the light of the above calculation, the 'goose that lays golden eggs' must retire to an insignificant place and God must come forward and change the planets into gold to pay these bonds. Let us place high upon our banner this motto: 'No More Bonds Forever.'"

Let us hope that Dr. Taylor and other able men as he will join in and get the people to make a start by adopting a perpetual money and industrial system as proposed in The New Idea. If once started, the people can soon release themselves from transportation bonds without wronging anyone of his rights and without the loss of one dollar's worth of property. In place of loss to any one they would add millions of real wealth to our country daily and everybody would have plenty to do at good pay.

Yes, in perpetual money so good that less than five dollars would pay for a ride to New York or San Francisco, and so plentiful that a section hand could pay for it with a couple of days' wages or less. Respectfully,

HENRY ALLEN BELL.

FRANCE AND SILVER.

French Premier, M. Meline, Suggests a Ratio of 15 1-2 to 1.

The London Times, in a special article dealing with the causes which led France to propose the free coinage of silver, says that the French ambassador proposed 15½ to 1 as the ratio at which France would open her mints, and then proceeds to review the bimetallic movement in France. It points out that in spite of protection the price of wheat continued to fall in France until M. Meline, in 1895, in view of the immense agricultural vote, changed front and decided that as protection had failed and a high price for wheat was necessary bimetallism must be tried. The Times continues:

"At the conference in May, in the presence of M. Loubet and of M. Magnin, he (M. Meline) said to Senator Wolcott: 'Our support will not be wanting.'

"It must be said then that what the Times hinted is absolutely correct. Politics is at the bottom of all this. It is stated in the city that France is not serious and that the governor of the bank is aware of this. Do not let us be too sure in questioning the statements and avowals of leading French statesmen, for we shall be neither courteous nor prudent in doing so and may even be mistaken in the facts in the case."

Inheritance Tax Decision.

The supreme court of California has decided that the inheritance tax law of that state, enacted in 1893, is constitutional and valid. This is a valuable contribution to the judicial decisions on the subject. The California law does not provide for a graded tax. But it has other features of discrimination which have caused similar legislation in several states to be assailed in the courts. The tax is levied only on collateral heirs and estates of small value are exempt. According to the statute of California inheritances descending to children and brothers and sisters are exempt from taxation. All inheritances of $500 or less, whether going to direct or collateral heirs, pay no tax. The tax is uniform on all estates of over $500 going to collateral heirs—that is, to relatives not of full blood like children or brothers and sisters of the deceased. There has been no judicial decision in any state declaring that discrimination against heirs on account of their degrees of consanguinity invalidates the tax on inheritances. Adverse decisions rested on the ground that estates were taxed according to graded values—large estates at a higher rate per cent than small estates. On this ground the act of Ohio was held to be void as destroying the uniformity of taxation. Governor Black of New York vetoed a bill of the last legislature of that state providing for a graded tax. The courts in other states including Illinois, have decided that a graded tax is constitutional—that it does not violate the rule of uniformity in taxation, because it is in the nature of a license to bequeath and inherit property—not a tax on the property. This is the more enlightened view of the question and probably will prevail in the final adjudication of the question.

Hanna's Doctrine.

Hanna starts out in his campaign in Ohio with the following taken from his first speech:

"Our country is the greatest wealth producing country on the earth, and you tillers of the soil are charged with the duty of protecting it."

But when it comes to appointing a currency commissioner the farmers are expected to attend to their potatoes while the bankers fix things.—Dakota Ruralist.

Learn to Labor and to Wait.

The greatest enemy of modern reform is politics, is the agitator who cannot labor as did Jacob. When he failed to get his wife at the end of seven years he labored another seven.—Southern Mercury.

Wednesday night, between 8 and 9 o'clock, fire was discovered in the plant of J. R. Ransom & Co.'s planing mills and box factory, on the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad, about a mile from Nashville. The plant and lumber yard covered about fifteen acres, and were almost totally swept by the flames. Loss, $100,000; insurance, about 80 per cent. The Globe Foundry Machine Works were also almost totally destroyed. Loss, $10,000.

HEAVY GOLD IMPORTS.

Gold to the amount of $1,300,000 has been engaged in London, $500,000 by Ladenburg, Thalman & Co. and $800,000 by Kuhn, Loeb & Co., which makes the total gold engagements for import since September 30, $5,100,000.

Later it was announced that Ladenburg, Thalman & Co. had engaged $250,000 additional gold in London for shipment to this city. This brings the total up to $5,350,000.

A YOUNG MAN SUICIDES.

Green Hutto, living two miles from Abbeville, committed suicide a few days ago. He got into some scrape with a Mr. Davis, being charged with taking some goods from him. He was arrested, and while under arrest took a great dose of morphine, which, in twenty-four hours, laid him out. The poor fellow had been drinking, and his arrest mortified him very greatly, and rather than live after it he chose to fly to the ills he knew not of.

FOR BETTER FIELDS.

Sixty-eight families of miners from the Jellico district have come to work in the mines at Corona. The miners of that district have been leaving for two months, and there are now only a few left of the 2,500 who went on a strike May 1, most of them having gone to Virginia and Alabama.

The men have given up all hope of settlement, and there is little prospect of much work being done in the Jellico district this winter.

ROASTED TO DEATH.

Two prisoners were roasted to death in the burning jail at Opelika Wednesday night. The jail was a dry pine building, and burned like tinder. Laura Bennett, for drunkenness, and Jim Ferguson, for street work due, were the only prisoners injured. They were shackled to the floor, hence could not help themselves, and were burned to crisps. When the fire company had reached the spot there was nothing to do, as the building was nearly a pile of ashes.

UNEARTHING A GRAVEYARD.

An uncanny state of affairs is reported about five miles from Montgomery on the Norman bridge wagon road. It seems that the county has men engaged in filling a ravine of some sort in or near the roadway, and in order to get earth for use in filling the laborers have resorted to a neighboring hillside, which was years ago used as a graveyard. According to reports, the men, with their big plows and scrapers, have dug into eight or ten graves and have distributed human bones all around. There is some talk of the county officials being prosecuted.

WON'T GIVE UP THE PROPERTY.

A special from Guntersville says that Maj. Hugh Carlisle is having great difficulty in taking possession of the 125,000 acres of railroad land he gained recently in a suit against the Tennessee and Coosa River Railroad Company.

The lands given Major Carlisle were in dispute over twenty years ago, and during this time a large number of settlers secured what they thought to be a clear title to various tracts and erected houses thereon. The majority of them refused to vacate when the Federal Court served a writ of ejectment upon them.

The offenders have been cited to appear before Judge Bruce at Birmingham next week and show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court.

MURDER AT A COUNTRY DANCE.

At a country dance given near Seenville Thursday night, Sid Duarf, a wealthy planter, was shot and instantly killed by a man named Ekaf, a Russian. The trouble arose over Duarf's partner in the dance, who is a sister of the planter's slayer.

Ekaf had heard some ugly talk concerning his sister. He thought that Duarf was the originator of it. When asked concerning it at the dance Duarf denied it, but Ekaf, becoming enraged, pulled his pistol and shot him. The murderer then turned to flee, and M. L. Hatton attempted to intercept him. Ekaf also shot him, producing wounds from which he died in a few hours.

THE WEEK'S CROP REPORT.

The following is the regular weekly crop and weather bulletin:

The week ending October 4 was a generally favorable harvesting week over the entire section, and while it was favorable for maturing crops, showers were so light and so widely scattered as to be of no material aid to late crops or fall plowing, and very little of the latter has been accomplished.

Cotton is very nearly all open; picking has been vigorously pushed during the week, and is well advanced in the most backward portions of the State; it is practically finished in several southern counties, and the entire crop will be gathered during the current month; there is no improvement in the prospective yield, which is less than anticipated in some localities where an average crop was expected; the yield for the State will undoubtedly fall decidedly short of an average one. Corn is harvesting a lighter yield than anticipated, and will fall short of an average, and will not be enough for home use in many localities. The fodder crop this year is an unusually large and good one, and a large crop of hay has been made.

Cane has been damaged by continued dry weather, and will be but a fair yield. Sorghum has yielded fairly well, but cow peas, potatoes and late vegetables are below an average; pastures are generally poor, and stock water is scarce.

MAMMOTH TRUST FORMED.

The Entire Industry of Glass Manufacturers Represented.

The meeting of the glass manufacturers at Columbus, O., the past week resulted in the organization of one of the most gigantic associations that has ever come into existence. They represent practically the entire glass industry in the United States. The purpose was to bring under one head every glass manufactory in this country. In this respect the meeting was a complete success.

Had No Use for Anthracite.

Edmund Carey, of Benton, is in this city this week attending court. He was one of the early residents of Wilkesbarre, and was born Aug. 12, 1822, on a farm at the lower end of town, now known as Carey avenue, which has been named after the family. His father, George Carey, was one of the settlers who had the handling of the first anthracite coal in Wyoming valley. He helped open a stripping in Pittston township, now known as Plains township, in 1815, and in the spring of that year loaded a raft with several others and took it down the Susquehanna to Harrisburg, where they sold the raftload of forty tons of anthracite for $10. They were discouraged at such remuneration and left the transportation of coal dormant until 1820, when they took another raftload down and failed to find a buyer. They were so discouraged that they dumped their load of black diamonds into the Susquehanna at Harrisburg, and as far as these early pioneer shippers were concerned, the opening up of a coal market was ended.—Wilkesbarre Record.

The Union Jack.

The origin of the word "Jack" is unknown. The meaning, as understood to-day, is "something shown," and in this sense the application of the word is now limited to the Union flag. Some have supposed it to be derived from the jack or jacque, the tunic worn in early time by men-at-arms, those of Englishmen being decorated with the cross of St. George; which jackets, when not in use, were hung in rows, side by side, thus displaying the blood-red cross, which was at once their banner and their shield. Others regard the name as coming from that of the sovereign James (Jacobus or Jacques), who was the first to hoist it as a national emblem.

How to Laundry Fancy Linen.

To wash embroidered linens so as not to fade the colors, fill a tub half full of warm water, to which add a little Ivory Soap. Wash each piece through the suds carefully, rinse in blue water, to which a little thin starch is added. Hang in the shade to dry. Iron on the wrong side, pressing down heavily to bring out the stitches, thus restoring their original beauty.

ELIZA R. PARKER.

The Extent of His Superstition.

To a little extent I am superstitious, says a Virginian. I moved into a new house a couple of years ago, and somehow things seemed to grow worse constantly. First it was one thing, and then it was another. I mentioned the matter to an old colored auntie, who did our laundry work, and she told me it was because there was no toad frog in the cellar. She said it was good luck for a new house to have a toad in the cellar and that many builders always left a frog in the cellar when they finished a house. As it was such a simple matter to set things right I caught a toad and put it in the cellar, and, strangely enough, things began running all right immediately. Since then my cellar has never been without a toad frog, and to that extent I am superstitious.

Paved with Grass.

It is proposed to pave London roads with compressed grass blocks. The claim is made that the pavement of these blocks is noiseless and elastic, resists wear well, and is impervious to heat and cold. Its manufacturers guarantee its life for five years.

Some things may be done better in Canada than in this country. For example, there is the gold commissioner. He sits on the case on the ground where the dispute arises, hears evidence while the witnesses are yet alive and available, uses his own common sense and good judgment and renders his decision in time for the legal owner to work his claim next day. The chances are ten to one that the gold commissioner gives better satisfaction generally in a mining camp than could any poking process of appeal.

When the Venezuelan cowboy wishes to catch a bull or cow for branding, or for any purpose, he rides alongside it and, with horse and bovine on the dead-run, stoops from his saddle, grasps the creature's tail, and, with a sharp, peculiar twist, sends the animal rolling on its back. From the force with which it falls, the creature's horns almost invariably pin its head to the ground, giving the vaquero time to dismount and sit on its head, holding the animal helpless to rise, while a companion ties its legs.

TEXAS LADIES
SPEAK THE TRUTH.

Mrs. Lucilia Scales

De Leon, Tex., writes: I am a widow, and can strongly recommend Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, as having Saved my Life 8 years ago, when I was down with Liver Complaint and Kidney Disease. I think it a far better medicine than that made by "Zellin" and "Black Draught."

Castation:

During the period of gestation the strain upon the muscles and ligaments of the womb is greatly increased and the blood vessels are taxed to their utmost. If there is any tendency to uneasiness or pain we recommend frequent warm injections of our Mexican Female Remedy and two or three doses, every day, of Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine. This treatment will strengthen the ligaments, will assist in holding the uterus in place, lessen pain, make the uterus more pliable and yielding and prepare the organs for the ordeal. It also lessens the danger of death to child and mother, and fortifies her against injury to convulsions, fainting and other nervous symptoms, and with ordinary precautions guarantees a rapid recovery.

J. W. Tolliver

Celeste, Tex., says: Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine is the best thing in the world for Biliousness, Indigestion and Torpid Liver. Have used it 10 years, and recommend it to my friends, and they all praise it. I think there is as much difference between it and "Zellin's" and "Thedford's" as between day and night.

Paleness.

Anæmia is a condition often called "poverty of blood" from deficiency of the red corpuscles which give to this fluid its characteristic color. It arises from insufficiency of assimilation of the proper materials of food to replenish the blood, as in chlorotic girls. It may occur in persons who have long suffered with hemorrhoids, or in women from repeated discharges of blood from the uterus. The lips and tongue lose their natural red color and become white and the face looks like wax.

The most efficient remedy for this condition is Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine. The improvement produced by its use is frequently almost magical; an enfeebled heart becomes strong and capable in its action, digestion improves, the lips and cheeks lose their pallor, and the eye becomes bright and the step elastic.

ROUGH TIMES IN TENNESSEE.

Negroes and White Caps Have a Pitched Battle.

Levans, Carroll county, Tenn., was the battleground last week for warring factions, and one dead and four probably fatally wounded is the result. A large party of whitecaps went to the home of Dot Prince, a negro, and riddles the doors and windows of his cabin with bullets, breaking his arm in the engagement. The negro, with his arm dangling by his side, reached the window and fired repeatedly into the gang, groans and yells testifying to his deadly aim.

The morning sun disclosed a horrible sight. William Sires, a respected white man, was lying dead in a pool of blood, surrounded by four companions dying from hideous wounds. Three of the wounded men will die.

Intense excitement prevails, and a race war is predicted, as the whitecaps are swearing vengeance on the negroes, who defiantly dare them to do their worst.

The negro Prince is fortified within his cabin and apparently proposes to defend his home to the death.

The whitecaps have notified the negroes to leave the county on several occasions and threats are made to exterminate them if they refuse to leave.

Sires was literally shot to pieces and died instantly.

Split in Two.

A terrible accident occurred at a saw mill, some fifteen or twenty miles from Sparta, Tenn., last Saturday, in which Bud Russell lost his life.

In getting out some heavy timber they were using trucks. It seems that Russell got caught on the carriage somehow, and was carried to the saw, which struck him on the left leg, splitting it, and extending up his body, cut his right breast in two and then crossed to the right side, coming out at the neck. The right and left sides were hurled some distance in opposite directions. The sawyer seemingly knew nothing of it until he saw the pieces flying through the air. Russell was about 30 years old and leaves a wife and one child.

An elegant dinner was served from 1 to 4 p. m., at which toasts with sparkling water were drank to Sam Jones as a preacher, as a humorist, as a newspaper man, as a lecturer and a friend.

Gold from Silver.

Gold from silver is not an impossibility, according to Edmund O'Neill, associate professor of chemists at the University of California. In a lecture delivered by the chemists of the University Science association on "The Transmutation of Metals," he declared the possibility of making gold from silver and declared that there was an excellent basis to support the claim for the union of metals and that the ultimate solution of the problem was an achievement science expects.

STEAMER SINKS.

Nearly 200 Lives Lost by the Fearful Disaster.

THE SHIP WAS OVERLOADED.

A Number of Spanish Soldiers and Several Civilians Among Those Who Perished—The Sinking Occurred About Eight Miles Off the Cuban Coast.

The coasting steamer Triton, from Havana to Bahia Honda, province of Pinar del Rio, has been wrecked between Dominica and Mariel, on the north coast of Havana province. The steamer went ashore Friday morning during heavy weather, grounding about eight miles from the coast. The purser and one of the passengers have arrived at Mariel. They say they have no knowledge regarding the fate of the captain, fifty passengers, soldiers and civilians, and the thirty members of the crew of the Triton. The missing passengers include several well-known merchants.

The Spanish gunboat Maria Cristina and the tug Louise have left Havana port for the scene of the wreck.

Later—It is now said that the Triton had on board over 200 passengers, soldiers and civilians, and it is feared that they have all perished, in addition to the thirty men composing the steamer's crew.

Owing to the heavy sea that was running the gunboat Christina found it impossible to reach the scene of the disaster until Friday night.

Only the purser of the ship and one passenger were saved.

Among those who were lost were two navy and two army officers, a commissary official and seventy-seven privates.

On board of the Triton was $31,600 in silver to be used for the payment of the Spanish military and naval forces.

The Triton, it is said, was overloaded. She carried a large quantity of ammunition and groceries, and had on board ninety-three rifles for the government troops.

DALTON IS EXCITED.

Prominent Merchants Alleged to Be Participants in Shady Work.

T. R. Ellison, a merchant of Whitfield county, Ga., and John H. Bender, formerly a merchant of Dalton, and son of a wealthy citizen of that city, were both found guilty of receiving stolen goods in the train-robbery cases now on trial at Dalton, Ga.

T. J. Peebles, at present the local agent of the Western & Atlantic railroad at Dalton, is on trial for the same offense. The greatest excitement exists in the little town, as the evidence is being slowly elicited, showing complicity of leading citizens, whether knowingly or not, in the extensive robberies that have been going on for years, and for which the Southern railroad has had to pay large sums to shippers and consignees.

Jesse Langston, convicted Thursday of receiving stolen goods, is a wealthy merchant of Whitfield county. He was fined $750 by the court and sentenced to one year in the penitentiary, conditioned on his paying the fine within the next ten days. His sentence has thrown consternation among the other accused business men, which was greatly emphasized when it was announced that Drew M. Peebles, a leading merchant, member of the city council and candidate for mayor, was found to be missing from the city, and bail forfeiture was taken in one case against him.

ENGLAND WILL CONFER.

Experts Start for America to Discuss the Seal Fisheries Question.

The British foreign office Friday intimated to the United States ambassador, Col. John Hay, that a meeting of seal experts of Great Britain, Canada and the United States will occur as agreed upon by the Marquis of Salisbury.

It is learned that Prof. Dancy Thompson, the seal expert of the British foreign office, starts for the United States immediately.

Weyler Not Perturbed.

Captain General Weyler's rule in Cuba ended with the past week. General Castellanos will act as captain general until General Blanco's arrival in Havana from Spain on Saturday next, when he will immediately take the oath of office. General Weyler, although expressing regret that he has been recalled before he had succeeded in crushing the rebellion, takes the matter philosophically, and is making preparations to sail October 20. In the meantime the rebels show no signs of willingness to negotiate for peace on the basis of autonomy.

Says Guiteras Spread a Libel.

Dr. Guiteras, the United States marine hospital service yellow fever expert who has been investigating yellow fever cases at Galveston and Houston and who has declared yellow fever to exist at both places, has left for his home in Philadelphia. Immediately after his departure the local boards of health of Houston, Galveston and other infected cities in the state held meetings and informed the governor that Guiteras had spread a libel by declaring yellow fever to be where

YELLOW FEVER SITUATION.

Making Its Appearance in Other Towns On and Near the Coast.

The yellow fever situation at New Orleans is still very critical. Friday the number of cases reported reached high water mark, 48 cases developing on that day, and 3 deaths occurring. Total cases of yellow fever to date, 774; total deaths from yellow fever to date, 84; total cases absolutely recovered, 351; total cases under treatment, 339.

Nineteen at Biloxi.

The board of health of Biloxi reports new cases 19, total cases 374, total deaths 14, now under treatment 89.

Scranton had 9 new cases Friday. No deaths.

McHenry reports 2 new cases.

No new cases have developed at Galveston, the four cases passed on by Dr. Guiteras having recovered.

The situation at Edwards, is growing more favorable, 8 cases having been reported for Friday.

Six suspicious cases at Cayuga have been reported for investigation.

Situation at Mobile.

Only 5 cases were reported at Mobile Friday. The official bulletin issued by the board of health shows that there have been a total of 152 cases in this city, with 21 deaths to date.

Eight cases have been reported at Flomaton, Ala., seventy miles north of Mobile, and 10 at Wager, with 1 death.

THREE KILLED.

Collapse of the Robinson Opera House in Cincinnati.

"The Dangers of a Great City," on the stage of Robinson's opera house, was cut short in its performance by a tragic realization of the actual dangers of a great city. The house was fairly well filled.

A little before 8:50 o'clock a lady in the audience says she heard a creeping noise, which continued for five minutes before the catastrophe.

Presently the plastering began to fall in small particles at first, but enough to alarm some of the timid or cautious, who retired. A little later the plastering began to shower down in great chunks.

Suddenly, and with a crash, the great central truss of the ceiling, eighty feet long and thirty feet wide, came plunging down. The ends of it struck on the two gallery wings and doubled it up in the center, sending it down into the parquet with a great scattering of joists and timbers. Nothing on the stage was harmed.

There were moans from the injured. The salvage corps with its wagon was first on the ground and it was followed by all the police patrol wagons, who carried the injured to the Cincinnati hospital.

The list at the hospital showed three dead, five dangerously, if not fatally wounded, and twenty six more or less seriously injured

This disaster recalls one which took place in the same building in February, 1876, when a score or more were killed in a rush to get out of the building on account of a false alarm of fire.

WILL STAND TOGETHER.

Five Brotherhoods Organized Into a Solid Compact.

At a meeting of the representatives of railroad workers at Peoria, Ill., Friday the International Federation of the standard railroad organizations was accomplished. After many years of failure to harmonize, the several orders have reached an agreement which amalgamates and unites them, and creates the greatest and strongest body of organized railroad labor men ever formed.

This task has just been performed by the conference of the grand officers and representatives of the several orders which have been in session in Peoria all this week. The conference was composed of committees representing the following organizations:

Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, Order of Railway Conductors, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Order of Railroad Telegraphers.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers will act on the question at their convention in St. Louis next May, and will at that time become a party to the federation.

Korea an Empire.

The Korean legation at Washington received an official cable stating:

"King proclaimed himself emperor from this date, Oct. 15, 1897."

The transition which Korea makes from a kingdom to an empire is felt to have considerable significance in Oriental affairs, although the cable to the legation gives no details of the change, and the officials here are without any information as to the causes leading up to it. It is understood, however, to be a part of the progressive policy on which Korea has embarked, following the lead of Japan and China.

The Competitor Case Revived.

The Spanish cabinet Friday discussed the case of the American schooner Competitor, which was captured in Cuban waters April 15, 1896, consideration of which, owing to the feeling which Premier Canovas del Castillo had of stirring up action upon the part of the congress of the United States, was postponed by the late government. The cabinet, endorsed the utterances of foreign affairs, the navy and the colonies in counsel, the decision in the case, with the view of the LONDON LENDLORDS.

MONEY-LENDING LONDON BARS THE WAY.

Bimetallism Impossible Unless the American People Assert their Right to Govern Themselves Regardless of Foreign Dictation.

It was money lending London that cajoled the debtor nations of the world into abandoning bimetallism and throwing themselves into hopeless financial bondage to the creditor classes of Great Britain, and having accomplished this, money lending London does not care to see severed those bonds of financial dependence. Cupidity draws on the money lenders of London to oppose the restoration of bimetallism, to oppose the undoing of the dear money system that they have yoked to the debtor nations of the world. The closing of the mints of the western world to free silver coinage and the tying down of the western nations to the coinage of gold for their supply of money made a greatly increased demand for gold, made gold dear and prices low, so that when debtors come to pay their debts they must give to their creditors more produce than they covenanted to pay or, what is the same thing, pay in gold that will buy more of the products of men's labor than the gold borrowed. And since 1873 gold has been doubled in value and prices cut in half, so that the creditor can exact on loans made prior to 1873 twice the value loaned, that is he can exact twice the value if such piling on of burdens has not bankrupted the debtor.

So it is that money lending London has grown in wealth and power with the closing of the mints of the western world to silver and the appreciation of gold. And at the prospect of losing this power to exact tribute from the rest of the world, the money lenders of London, clinging to this power, to the monetary system that has enabled them to rob their debtors, take alarm. Thus it is that most of them are gold monometallists, for they have profited from dear money and they cling to that which has enriched them by enabling them to subtly prey upon mankind, to exact from their debtors more than is due. But it is not so with all of them, for many have learned that cupidity carried too far defeats its own ends, that when with miserly greed gold is driven ever upwards and property down, the point must inevitably be reached when the creditor will find himself transformed into a property owner. And as soon as he who started as creditor finds himself a property owner his interest lies not in further enhancing gold and depreciating property, but in cheapening gold and enhancing the value of property. So all money lending London is not gold monometallic; a part, that part which has come into possession of much property through the bankruptcy of debtors and that part which fears a further appreciation of gold, knowing it means bankruptcy for their debtors and ownership of property for themselves, is bimetallic. Yet it is unquestionable that money lending London, revelling on the unearned profits coming from a monetary system that constrains debtors to pay more than they honestly owe, is preponderatingly monometallic.

WHARTON BARKER.

Ought to Be Distributed.

The address of Gov. Altgeld on Labor Day at Philadelphia is one of the most exhaustive reviews of the social situation in the United States that I ever read. After reviewing the conditions here and making comparisons with the conditions of other countries, giving the exact figures and facts, he comes to the conclusion that there is no way out of the evils that beset and oppress mankind but the ownership and operation by the public of all monopolies—the railroads, telegraph, banks, coal mines, oil fields and street cars, telephones, gas, electric lights, water works and many other things. It ought to be printed in pamphlet and distributed by the million.—Appeal to Reason.

Silver Rising.

The simple announcement that the Bank of England would hold one-fifth of its reserve in silver has had the effect to send the price of silver bullion up 6 cents. This is a practical and forcible illustration that the Industrial News was right when it held that free coinage adopted by this nation would rise to its former value and bring it immediately at par with gold bullion at a ratio of 16 to 1. Even such strong goldbug papers as the New York Evening Post admits that this sudden rise of 6 cents on the mere announcement of the comparatively insignificant concession promised to silver was a revelation to them and it has undoubtedly shown them that the "crazy Bryanites" were right after all.—Silver Knight-Watchman.

The Only Solution.

The transportation problem is rapidly solving itself. The objections formerly urged against government ownership have been largely answered by the railroad corporations themselves. The companies were "in politics" during the last campaign, as never before. Their exactions are becoming more tyrannical and unjust each day and the public begins to see that government ownership is the only solution.—People's Party Paper.

Some millionaire should hasten to bequeath to the common people the distinctive birthmark his vested rights and [illegible] Class. (Otherwise

JUDICIAL DESPOTISM.

A Federal judge in Tennessee has made a further improvement in "government by injunction." He is testing it in connection with a suit by a railroad corporation to prohibit ticket "scalping." On the application of the railroad company this judge has issued an injunction against a cut rate ticket agent forbidding him to carry on his business in so far as it affects the complaining railroad in respect of the matters complained of. Should this injunction be sustained, the railroads will have as little further use for congress as they now have for the police. They will be able to hedge themselves in on all sides with injunctions.—Cleveland Recorder.

There is a remarkable unanimity among the California press in its denunciation of the slaughter of miners at Hazleton by the deputies. The murder of those men will do much to spread anarchy—far more than the teachings of Herr Most and other wind bombs.—Bee.

We are very glad that the arrogance and un-Americanism of the federal courts has been carried so far. We are glad that men have been massacred, by armed thugs led by an officer of a Pennsylvania court. The price is cheap if all this brings back liberty. The danger which Jefferson foresaw has come upon the land. The federal judiciary has become tyrannical and utterly careless of constitutional restriction. The federal judges have exalted themselves above all that is called law. They think to rule us with injunction.—Stockton Mail.

The same authority that rides over legislative enactment debars peaceable men from marching in the public highway, puts the seal of silence upon the lips of the advocates of the people, and generally serves the monopolists at their will, has been invoked in Iowa to suppress the freedom of the press, and with astonishing alacrity the ever-loaded injunction was brought into line. This time it was done to save a lot of politicians and office-seekers from such public excoriation as their manifest fear would make appear they deserved. Briefly, it seems that a Republican longed for the postmastership of Charles City, and that the Democratic incumbent was absent from his post because of illness. The aspirant for successorship informed the grave and reverend senators from Iowa and the local congressman of the condition of affairs and he was urged to get affidavits of the sick man's neglect of business in order to expedite the latter's discharge. This, of course, is very high and noble business for men of their standing to be mixed up with, but the candidate for postmaster couldn't restrain his jubilation, and showed the letters from his friends at court all about town. The opposition editor got hold of them and proceeded to publish, with such comment as editors are wont to make, whereupon he was enjoined by Judge J. F. Clyde, of Osage, Ia., from "in any manner using, employing, publishing or commenting upon" said letters! The press censor is here. It will be interesting to note how the monopolistic newspapers which defend the injunction will receive this new expression of its tyranny.—Farmers' Voice.

Free Silverites Busy.

It will be noticed that in the face of dollar wheat and the announcement from Bradley's pulpit that prosperity has come the free silver anarchists are just as busy and a little more so than ever. And it will be noticed further that the jabberwobber sheets are treating this prosperity boom very gingerly. We don't like that. It looks discouraging. It looks very much as if the jabberwobbers had doubts. Naturally we would expect them to make all manner of sport of us, and it would be highly relished if it would bring what we almost earnestly desire. They can kick us, can smear us, can walk all over our door-yard, tread on the grass and tramp down the flowers, and spit tobacco in our eyes if they will only bring us prosperity. This hope of prosperity is born of despair, and waiting for so long and deferring it so often actually makes the heart sick. And now that some think we have got it there is a faint-hearted assurance that makes our under lip drop. Why don't they lambast us, walk all over us, make faces at us and bawl at us, crow over us, and ask us if we don't feel like hiding ourselves?

And if this promised prosperity does come, what then? "I tell you," a dozen men have said to us, "when this prosperity comes I'll unload everything I've got." But if everybody thinks that way there will be no unloading. And the very man who would unload if he finds his property valuable will change his mind. It does appear as if there were little faith in coming prosperity, even by the jabberwobbers, and if not by them then the free silver fellows certainly have good grounds for continuing their assaults on what they deem the plague of a false economy.—Grand Rapids Workman.

The Grain Supply.

The European shortage has provided for the farmer who has grain, and assures this year a measure of prosperity for the whole country. But the fact that the first touch of prosperity which has come to the farmer for many years was caused by a great deficiency in the grain supply, gives a basis of apprehension for the future. The question, "Are bad crops abroad necessary to the prosperity of American farmers?" is frequently asked. Important and interesting statistics on this question are contributed in the current number of the Forum by Mr. C. Wood Davis, who concludes that a protective duty on [illegible]

ONLY FAIR.

Activity of Merchandise Somewhat Less Pronounced.

WHEAT EXPORTS EXPAND.

Unseasonable Weather Has Had an Unfavorable Influence on the Distribution of Merchandise—Indications of a Smaller Cotton Yield Than Previously Compiled.

Bradstreet's trade review says:

The activity in staple lines of merchandise is less pronounced than a month ago, due to interior merchants having supplied their demands for the time, a gradual increase of the territory included by the yellow fever quarantine, the low price of cotton, a tendency in the Missouri river valley and spring wheat states to hold wheat for higher prices and the farmers being busy with fall planting.

Higher prices have an unfavorable influence on the distribution of merchandise throughout the central west and at Chicago and St. Louis sales have fallen off.

A well known representative of Bradstreet's, after extended investigation, gives reasons for anticipating a much smaller yield of cotton than trade requirements indicates. He looks for the Texas crop not to exceed 2,000,000 bales, or less than last year, while the Missouri valley will produce less than an average crop and Arkansas be in less favorable situation than last year. The long and severe drought of the latter part of the season, he says, destroyed all hope of a crop and will materially cut short the latter yield.

The position of the cotton goods industry is no more favorable, but Fall River manufacturers report business brisk, prices steady and unwillingness by merchants to accept further orders.

Advances of Bessemer are reported. Pig iron and steel billets meet with quick sales, but prices are firmly held. Some steel mills are not able to keep up with orders. The domestic consumption of pig iron last month was extraordinarily heavy and promises to greatly stimulate production.

With the slackening off in the rate of distribution of merchandise the upward movement of prices is correspondingly checked, and in this the third week in succession, the number of staples for which quotations are lower are greater than those that are higher or unchanged. There are nominal advances for lard and men's shoes, but prices for pork, sugar, other forms of iron and steel than those named, for copper, lumber, coal, hides and wool are unchanged. Quotations are lower for butter, potatoes, wheat, corn, oats, flour, beef, coffee, cotton, print cloths and lead.

Wheat exports have again expanded, the total for the present week being among the largest on record. The total exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) this week from both coasts of the United States aggregated 6,039,720 bushels, against 4,825,641 bushels last week, 4,156,817 bushels in this week a year ago, 2,409,000 bushels in 1895, 3,192,000 bushels in 1894, 2,709,000 bushels in 1893 and 3,270,000 bushels in 1892.

Corn exports were 2,224,000 bushels this week, against 2,109,000 last week, 1,711,000 bushels a year ago, 1,680,000 bushels in 1895, 113,553 bushels in 1894, 1,123,000 bushels in 1893 and 701,000 bushels in 1892.

There are 196 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, compared with 237 last week, 279 in the week a year ago, 289 two years ago, 253 three years ago and 340 four years ago.

There are 44 business failures reported throughout the Dominion of Canada this week, compared with 45 last week, 30 in the week a year ago and 37 two years ago.

Where Love Has Lingered.

Benjamin F. Hunt, a former resident of Rochester, N. Y., now in his 85th year, is about to wed Mrs. Julia A. Sherman, of Watertown, whose age is given as ninety years. The event is set for the 20th instant. The bride-elect is said to be possessed of a fortune of more than $1,000,000.

JUSTICE FIELD RETIRES

From the Supreme Court of the United States.

It was officially announced at the supreme court Thursday that Justice Stephen J. Field, of California, had notified President McKinley of his intention to retire as a member of the court and had informed his colleagues of this fact.

It is expected that his successor will be nominated by the president immediately after the convening of congress in December and that Attorney General McKenna, also of California, will be named for the office.

Arbitration Prospects.

There is a good prospect of the speedy conclusion of a general arbitration treaty between Great Britain and the United States. There is reason to believe President McKinley will propose a clause in the treaty providing that before any subject is finally referred to the court of arbitration such reference shall be approved by the queen on the one hand and by the American senate on the other. It is expected [illegible]

The board of health at Montgomery yesterday announced three new cases of yellow fever as follows: W. W. Yosick, 449 Perry street; W. U. Street, 4 Clayton Park; S. McAdam, 126 Clayton Park. No deaths are reported. Mr. White slightly improved. All new cases are in infected districts. The stampede of the people from here is something astonishing. There is no doubt but there is yellow fever here and there is very little doubt but that it has been here for a month and that forty or fifty people have been ill with it. The fact that only one death, that of Stebbins, the mail carrier, can be even remotely traced to yellow fever, is evidence of the exceeding mildness of the disease here and should re assure the people. It does not, however, and every available vehicle has been busy today hauling people and trunks out of town and out of the city. Commerce street has been crowded with people, hurrying to cath trains out of the city. Atlanta and Nashville have caught most of the crowd. The Western and Louisville and Nashville have been hauling great train loads of refugees all day and will contique to do so.

The local courts have adjourned for the month on account of the fever excitement. The following additional suspicious cases are reported today: Mrs. Harry Adams, 413 Clayton street; William H Barrett, superintendent of letter carriers, 215 Dickinson street; Mrs Coroner, Woodley C. Campbell and child, of 624 Mildred street; Pleasant McAdam, 426 Clayton street; David Jones, 624 Mildred street; J. W. Deming, local agent for Georgia and Alabama railroad, 135 Martha street; John Sawyer, colored porter C. A. Knabe & Bro 3 Whitman street.

Democrats and Silver.

Thus we find indications in nearly all the States to hold elections this fall of a Democratic backsliding on the silver issue. The Democrats of Pennsylvania and Massachusetts seemed to set an example of steadfastness to principle in the midst of discouraging surroundings. The conventions in both states declared unequivocally for free silver coinage. But now it seems that the Pennsylvania Democrats have caught the contagion of backsliding on the silver issue. Last Saturday the Democrats of Pittsburg had a political rally. The rally was small, the speakers were blue; one of them, the county chairman, finally declared that: "It looks as if free silver had been given a black eye by the Democrats of this country, judging from the speeches and temper of this audience." And then the meeting took on a decided anti-silver character. It being asserted that the question of free silver coinage was not an issue in the state campaign, that it should be dropped and the fight made on state lines. Indeed, the speeches sounded much like the editorials we are wont to read in the Philadelphia Record, which, gold paper though it is, finds reason to suppor the Democratic State ticket on local grounds. —Philadelphia American.

Late Educational News.

On the 18th day of October more than 10,000 students were on the rolls as members of the first Freshman class of the Cosmopolitan University. The confusion into which the plans regarding the Cosmopolitan's educational work were thrown by the retirement of President Andrews, in order to meet the urgent wishes of his friends at Brown University, has been met by the acceptance of the Presidency by Dr. Eliphalet N. Potter. President Potter has been at the head of two great colleges for nearly twenty-five years, and brings to the work ecceptional talents as an organizer and man of broad culture and common sense ideas. He is already at Irvington engaged in organizing his staff of professors. The work of the University has been grouped under fifteen heads, covering the various branches of knowledge. Each of these will be in charge of a professor. As soon as the task of selection is complete, the students will be assigned their work and the largest Freshman class in the history of the universities of the world will begin its studies.

The extraordinary dimensions of of the class thus formed has opened the eyes of the public to the importance of the gap in educational faculties which the Cosmopolitan has undertaken to fill. Knowing that the appropriation made by the Cosmopolitan is a limited one and that the entries are far beyond the most sanguine expectations, embarrassing the work by their proportions, many professors and other prominent men have already made the offer of advice and assistance without pay.

Atlanta and Selma Railroad.

The Atlanta and Selma Air-Line is now a certainty and Selma is in a state of jubilation Last week a corps of engineers started over the line on the final survey and Saturday the first section of construction was let by the Erie Construction Company, the main contractor for the building of the road. The subcontract provides for the grading to begin before the 25th instant and extends from the corporate limits of the city through Dallas to Autauga county. The road will be completed as rapidly as possible to a point on the Columbus and Western railway, opening up one of the richest sections of the South to Selma's trade The road will ultimately be built to Atlanta on the North and to New Orleans on the South.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many recommendations included therein, we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results, is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to every one afflicted with a cough or cold in any form—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 21, 1897.

There is so much interesting news in regard to that much and long talked of person the Hon. Mark Hanna that one scarcely knows where to begin. Gen. Warner, the well known silver advocate, challenged Mr. Hanna to debate, but has received no response, while the Republican leaders professes not to have received any letter from Gen Warner but gives it out cold that he will not notice any such letter if it yet arrives. The second item of interest comes from Dallas, Texas, in the form of a request from Republican headquarters at the point that all Middle-of-the-roaders, who had been invited by Mr. Hanna to go on to Ohio and take part in the campaign for Coxey, should consider such engagements off Some of these importations who were doing work indirectly for Hanna, have not pleased him and he wants no more of them. Hanna and his brother are being sued by the former members of a street railway corporation who allege that they were handsomely swindled out of their interests by these adroit financiers. In the mean time what with unlimited Republican money, the control of the entire state patronage, aided by Democratic squables and Coxey's side-show, it looks as if tha election of a legislature that will return Hanna to the casting votes unfavorable to English interests.

From Greater New York come many and varied rumors as to the mayoralty fight in progress there. An opportunity is furnished the Silver Democarts to show if they are sincere in the demands of the Chicago platform. The Socialists are most bitter in their opposition to George. Mrs. Lease is in New York and has proffered her aid in the campaign to Mr. George. Her arraignment of the other candidates, in a recent interview, shows that she is well posted as to all parties concerned, and has lost none of her faculty for stating unpleasant truths. United States Senate is an assured fact.

The proposition of the Bank of England to hold a part of its reserve in silver has met with such violent opposition that it is believed no more will be heard of it. The London Times is authority for the statement that American manufactures have expressed their disapproval urging that "it was to some extent a confession of the advisibility of what Mr. Bryan has claimed."

England refuses absolutely to take any part in the seal fisheries conference claiming that the calling of Japan and Russia into the dispute is but a "trap" sure to result in their truths in a scatching manner.

Jerry Simpson, who, by the way, is now a national figure and a credit to Kansas, will take part in the New York campaign.

In Iowa the prospects for a Republican majority is distressingly good. The Democrats are divided and crippled by the difference or opposition of some of their own time leaders. They are also short of funds. The Populists have sent out an appeal for money and are doing good work. The Middle-of-the-roaders have money and are making quite a stir. One of the most enthusiastic campaigners for White is the young lady editor, who created a sensation at the Chicago convention, when she tried to start a bolt for Boise, and who has been known since that event as "the Girl in White."

Eugene V. Debs will deliver a series of addresses throughout Kansas Kansas during the latter part of October under the auspices of the Social Democracy.

The New York Sun, after many years of political exploring, has come out in favor of municipal ownership, and gives long leaders defending the most advanced sort of Democracy. If the George campaign should result in a victory this would mean unlimited prestige and money to its owners.

Senator Henry Teller has been making speeches in Colorado in which he disclaimed being a Republican and endorses every Populist principle.

A Most Sensible Opinion.

Southern newspapers have, as a rule, been run too much as public property and not enough as business enterprises. A newspaper's space is its stock in trade, and the public should be educated into not expecting the proprietors to give it away to everybody and everything. When the truth is more fully realized and acted upon, there will be more newspapers successes The public, in days gone by, has made newspapers and newspaper men a sort of by-word for poverty, but newspapers are learning to correct this impression. The public is largely to blame for the estimate it has too freqnently formed by outright begging all sorts of favors from the publishing enterprises in their reach and by getting their cheek rewarded. People should be educated out of this habit. As fast as newspaper men teach their neighbors that newspaper space costs money and labor to produce and has a market value, just that fast will the public respect the undertakings at their doors as a business enterprise worthy of support. Then the average man will no more think of begging for newspaper space for his individual benefit than he would think of going into a clothing store and displaying the cheek to beg for a hat or a coat, or into a grocery store and asking for a barrel of flour or a side of meat. True enough, a newspaper must not be run as a money making machine, purely. That is calculated to exclude conscience, liberality and enterprise.—Montgomery Advertiser.

The True Remedy.

W. M. Repine, editor of Tiskilwa Ill., "Chief," says: "We won't keep house without Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Experimented with many others, but never got the true remedy until we used Dr. King's New Discovery. No other remedy can take its place in our home, as in it we have a certain and sure cure for Colds Whooping Cough, etc." It is idle to experiment with other remedies, even if they are urged on you as just as good as Dr. King's New Discovery. They are not as good, because this remedy has a record of cures and best les is guaranteed. It never fails to satisfy. Trial bottle free at Dr. J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

Postal Banks in Australia.

In several of the Austrilian colonies both general savings banks and postal savings banks exists, both being under control of the government, says the Chicago Record. This is true of Victoria, New South Wales and Tasmania. Postoffice banks alone exist in Queensland and Western Australia and general savings banks alone in South Australia. In Canada government savings banks antedate the postal savings bank, but are giving way to the latter as the more convenient and suitable institution. In some countries having the general savings banks bank as distinguished from the postal savings bank use is made of the postoffices as places of deposit for transmission to the general bank. As between the general savings banks under government control and the postal savings bank there is question that the latter is the one for adoption in the United States The postoffice has in operation machinery that could be utilized for the protection of small savings deposits with comparatively little additional trouble and expense.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. MRS. MARY LEWIS, wife of a prominent farmer, and well known by all old residents near Belmont, N. Three years ago my condition was alarming; the least noise would startle and unnerve me. I was unable to sleep, had a number of fainting spells and slowly grew worse. I began using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills. At first the medicines seemed to have no effect, but after taking a few bottles I began to notice a change. I rested better at night, my appetite began to improve and I rapidly grew better, until now I am as nearly restored to health as one can ever hope to be at my age. God bless Dr. Miles' Nervine."

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, to be bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

FOR ALL WOMEN

NINE-TENTHS of all the pain and sickness from which women suffer is caused by weakness or derangement in the organs of menstruation. Nearly always when a woman is not well these organs are affected. But when they are strong and healthy a woman is very seldom sick.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

is nature's provision for the regulation of the menstrual function. It cures all "female troubles." It is equally effective for the girl in her teens, the young wife with domestic and maternal cares, and the woman approaching the period known as the "Change of Life." They all need it. They are all benefitted by it.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

THOS. I. COOPER, Tupelo, Miss., says: "My sister suffered from very irregular and painful menstruation and children could not relieve her. Wine of Cardui entirely cured her and she [illegible] ever through the change of life."

5 DROPS

Hundreds of thousands of Sufferers cured without a single failure by "FIVE DROPS."

Though so universally used and tested did you ever hear anyone speak ill of this great remedy? No, you never did and never will, for if taken as directed and in the proper quantity "5 Drops" cannot fail to cure any of the diseases for which it is recommended. What it has already done to relieve the suffering is told in thousands of letters of grateful praise.

Mr. J. P. Limburner, widely known for many years as the official representative of the Populists and Free Silver Press of the United States, has kindly forwarded the following letter for publication:

Jan 25, 1897.

DEAR SIRS—I am anxious for the sake of the suffering and out of gratitude to you to give my personal endorsement of your wonderful remedy. On the 8th of January 1897, I was in Washington and was suddenly seized with an alarming case of inflammatory rheumatism; so severe and painful was the attack that within 6 hours my left arm was paralyzed and I was only able to drag it with assistance. I secured a bottle of 5 DROPS and took a dose that night, rubbing some on externally as directed. The following morning I was surprised to find myself comparatively relieved and continuing treatment woke the second morning cured. My arm was entirely free from pain and all swelling and stiffness had disappeared. The quickness and complete relief of my case was remarkable. I have known for over a year of the great curative properties of your medicine and have several friends who have been cured by it of Neuralgia, Catarrh and Asthma. Wishing you every success and trusting that those similarly afflicted will at least give this remedy a trial. Sincerely yours,
J. P. LIMBURNER,
Bureau of Populist and Reform Papers, Old Stock Exchange Building, Chicago, Ill.

CURES THE INCURABLE.

DEAR SIRS:—I would like to thank you for your great remedy, "5 DROPS," and tell you what it has done for me. I had Rheumatism in every joint and in the heart, and I had Catarrh of the head for 30 years. I was nearly lost I had the use of my legs and arms and could not move without pain. I was so stiff I could not bend. I told one what my Rheumatism, seven years and our family physician said I could not live. But now, after taking "5 DROPS" only two months, I can truly say I have not felt so well in seven years. This medicine does more than is claimed for it. My Catarrh is cured, and I have scarcely any Rheumatism at all and the heart is cured and [illegible] is now good and my eyesight is much better. I have gained [illegible] pounds of flesh and can do a full day's work. It is the best medicine [illegible] I can say to any one who has a young child, for it has the same effect on the child as on the [illegible] It was death to croup and cures the hives of the child and causes sweet [illegible] to be healthy, young and old.
W. M. KELLEMS,
Perla, Perry Co., Ind.

Jan. 29, 1897.

We received the following letter from Mr. W. J. Wilson, of [illegible] Mr. Wilson has been for many years an invalid, and [illegible] wrote his testimonial, which we publish below. We received the letter referred to in Mr. Kellems' letter, asking if his endorsement was genuine, and [illegible] it to be genuine.

MR. J. J. WILSON.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of recent date at hand, in which you ask if I am genuine. The company who manufactures and sells "5 Drops" published my testimonial just as I gave it to them and every word of it is true, and I could swear to it if it be necessary before many witnesses. The company did not pay me any money for this letter. I was in poor health in January for publication in your paper, and I was a cripple, incurable. I was so bad off that I could not walk without crutches. I now walk as well as you or any other man, and I am able to do a day's work on my farm. I believe I am cured for life, but time will tell. If it should not be cured, I can truly say I have received many letters like yours, which I have answered to the best of my ability, and I have told your neighbors what I have written you, and I am now in the habit of recommending "5 Drops" to all I see who are afflicted, for though I suffered so long, it is now a pleasure to me to do all I can to induce others who are afflicted to try "5 Drops." I also write this testimonial of my own free will and accord, without any pecuniary consideration whatever, and I am willing to make my signature good before any court in the land, if necessary, to the truth of the above statement. I also give you permission to publish my letter, if you think it will be of any benefit to others who are afflicted, and I will be glad to answer any letters from those who may be afflicted, if they will enclose a stamp for postage. I have no interest in the sale of the medicine, but I do it for the benefit of those who are afflicted, and I hope that this letter may be published in every paper in the United States, that all may know that there is a cure for the afflicted. I am yours, respectfully,
W. J. WILSON.

Dr. S. W. Kellems' mother, Mrs. [illegible] writes: "I have used 5 Drops in my family for years, and have found it a good medicine. I have recommended it to many others, and I believe it will do all that is claimed for it. I have used it for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sick Headache, Croup, Colic, Diarrhoea, Cholera Morbus, Sore Throat, Toothache, Earache, Bruises, Cuts, Burns, Scalds, Sprains, Stiff Joints, Pain in Chest, Pain in Back, Pain in Side, Pain in Limbs, Pain in Joints, Pain in Feet, Pain in Head, Pain in Face, Pain in Ear, Pain in Eye, Pain in Nose, Pain in Mouth, Pain in Throat, Pain in Neck, Pain in Shoulder, Pain in Arm, Pain in Hand, Pain in Finger, Pain in Nail, Pain in Toe, Pain in Foot, Pain in Leg, Pain in Knee, Pain in Thigh, Pain in Hip, Pain in Back, Pain in Side, Pain in Chest, Pain in Heart, Pain in Stomach, Pain in Bowels, Pain in Kidneys, Pain in Bladder, Pain in Urinary Organs, Pain in Generative Organs, Pain in Rectum, Pain in Anus, Pain in Skin, Pain in Hair, Pain in Eyes, Pain in Ears

If you pay your debts promptly, you are entitled to more credit than a man who is charitable, or a woman who is literary.

The proceedings of the House of Commons make very strange reading for an American occasionally. Recently that body of august legislators called up a usurer before it and lectured him solemnly upon the error of refusing to answer its summons and reply to certain questions of a committee. On the same day it refused to exercise similar authority toward a man of means who had offended it by the same cause. The "mother of parliaments" is not more just than other and newer bodies of lawmakers.

Pumice Stone in America.

Heretofore our supply of pumice stone has come almost exclusively from Italy. Now an American product is forcing its way into the market. This material has been found of excellent quality in Western Nebraska, and in a pulverized form. There are seven different deposits, these comprising in all about 400 acres. According to a report made by Prof. R. G. Salisbury of the University of Chicago, there are approximately 800,000 tons in sight. The deposits, with adjoining lands, have been acquired by the Chicago Pumice Company. They, however, desired also a lump pumice stone. After much search such a deposit was found in Utah, 245 miles south of Salt Lake City. This property comprises 120 acres, and it is virtually an entire mountain of the material of all degrees of purity.—Manufacturer.

New View of the Matter.

Mamma—"How hot you are, Tommy; your clothes are wet through, I declare!"

Tommy—"Can't help it, ma. The heat makes me cry all over."—Pick-Me-Up.

Occasionally there is found a man engaged in commercial pursuits who possesses great talent in artistic lines. Rogers, the poet, was a banker, and our own Halleck and Stedman were engaged in business having little to do with the muse. A noted poet of the West is a marker in a poolroom, and he doesn't write verse about Derby day, either, but about daffodils and azure skies. At least one successful merchant in Chicago dallies with literature, on the side, as it were. These remarks are called out by the discovery in London that the man who composed the music for its latest successful opera is a financier, whose musical accomplishments have never been suspected even by his intimate friends.

It is a singular fact that the reigns of female sovereigns have been distinguished by the number of medals issued, Queens and Empresses regnant apparently taking a greater pleasure than Emperors and Kings in thus commemorating events of their reigns. The medals of Catharine the Great, of Elizabeth, of Anna, of Catherine I., all of Russia; of Mary, of Elizabeth and Victoria, of England, and of Maria Theresa, of Austria, are far more numerous than the medals of any other sovereigns, so numerous, in fact, that, save in exceptional cases, only a nominal value attaches to them.

Gladstone's Career Equaled.

Mr. Gladstone, who celebrated his 87th birthday on the 29th of December, is younger than a former American Congressman and Cabinet minister whose old age is as vigorous as that of the great English statesman. Col. Richard W. Thompson, of Terre Haute, Ind., who was a Whig leader in the days of Jackson and Clay, who was the close friend of Lincoln, and who served as Secretary of the Navy under Hayes, will be 88 if he lives to the 9th of next June.

If, instead of being influenced by a hazy and undefined feeling, we bring clear thought to bear upon it, we shall find that the only supreme and final test of conduct must ever be the convictions which we hold at the time.

Not whether any other person or the whole world approve or disapprove, nor even whether we may or may not continue in future years to maintain them ourselves, must be our question, but whether at the present moment we believe in our inmost heart that such a course is the true and right one to pursue.

If this be not our guide—if any other voice, opposing that of conscience, be obeyed—then we act in defiance of our own moral sense, which is plainly the snapping of character.

Coining of Silver.

The common impression that the government is coining no silver is a mistake. The coinage of silver is still continued, although by the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act no bullion is now purchased by the government for use in coinage, there being on hand November 1, 1893, the enormous stock of 140,699,852.67 ounces.

Animals and the Weather.

Many naturalists insist that animals have a special sense which enables them to foresee approaching changes in the weather and conduct themselves accordingly. Hens, ducks and geese are well known to make preparations for rain, and hours before the change is apparent to human beings these creatures may be seen oiling and dressing their plumage. Pigs frequently prepare a shelter for themselves before a storm; a pig carrying a mouthful of straw is to the farmer a sure sign of rain. Dogs and horses exhibit unusual lassitude before rain, and the cat washing her face is, among housewives, a certain sign. The croaking of the "rain crow" is considered, in the country districts, as an indication of bad weather, while even ants and bees, when rain is approaching, seek their homes, the former retiring to their holes and closing the entrance, while the latter hurry to their hives as though conscious that danger was in the air.

A PECULATING GOOSE.

Carried Off a Gold Watch, and Got Servant in Trouble.

It is doubtful is another dumb animal ever caused greater mischief than a goose did recently in Lanesboro, N. Y. That goose stole a dozen valuable articles and brought about the discharge of a servant. For a long time the family of Mr. Albert Jenks has been missing valuables, and charged their disappearance to Miss Annie Coogan, a domestic. The girl was threatened with arrest to make her confess and when she protested her innocence she was discharged. As articles continued to disappear the family was in a quandary. A pet goose had a trick of knocking at the door in quest of dainties, and on being admitted would go all about the house. One afternoon recently Mrs. Jenks was amazed to see the goose take a gold watch and chain in its mouth and go outdoors. She followed and saw it hide the timepiece in its nest. Thus the mystery of the missing articles was explained. Among the dozen articles found in the nest were two gold thimbles, two scarfpins, a tortoise shell comb and a watch. The parents of the Coogan girl threaten to sue the Jenks for defaming their daughter's Saturday Sheriff O'Brien attached for debt all the lands, buildings, etc., composing the State Fair grounds, which are situated on the Birmingham & Bessemer railroad. The attachment was made on a writ sued out in the city court by Thomas G. Hewlitt against Hayden Dargin for $15,000.

Students Break Up an Institute.

The sale of the lands and building of the Alabama Mineral academy, at Huntsville, recently under a decree of the chancery court to Captain Milton Humes was continued Friday. The academy had a meteoric career several years ago, and while its prospects were brilliant for becoming a great institution, was broken up by a rebellion of students.

A Horrible Death.

Dr. Timothy Burke of Lowndes county, left Montgomery Thursday afternoon on the Hayneville macadamized road for his home at Hayneville, driving a mule to a buggy. As he was crossing the track of the Midland road a few miles west of the city his vehicle was truck by a gravel train and Dr. Burke was thrown upon the track and cut half in two by the wheels of the loaded cars. The mule was killed and the buggy demolished.

Will Make the Final Survey.

Colonel R. T. Barksdale, chief engineer of the Atlanta & Alabama Air Line, has located his camp three miles from Selma, preparatory to making the final survey, and work will be commenced immediately on the completion of the $100,000 subscription from the citizens of Selma. All but $11,000 of this amount has been subscribed and leading citizens are hustling to raise that amount. The first car load of grading tools has arrived and work is expected to begin on the 25th instant. The road is projected from Atlanta to Selma with New Orleans as its ultimate southern terminus.

Lawlessness in Dallas.

Lawlessness runs rampant near Richmond, in the southern end of Dallas county. Several months since West Ethridge rode up behind Allie Coleman, a wealthy farmer, and blew the top of his head off with a double barrel shotgun. He has managed to elude arrest. Later, Barrett Duckworth, Coleman's body servant, was assassinated in his house, and public opinion laid the crime at Ethridge's door. A month ago Shelby Sumner, a partner of Ethridge, was killed by Charles Nelson, a relative of Duckworth. Thursday night Frank Banks, a cousin of Nelson, was shot from the darkness while standing in the door of his home. All of the murders are thought to have grown out of the Ethridge-Coleman killing. Not an arrest has so far been made, although officers have made repeated raids. It is stated that a prominent citizen of the neighborhood, who has condemned the lawlessness, has had his life threatened.

A Refugee Train Wrecked.

Friday the regular passenger train running since the quarantine on the Mobile & Birmingham railroad between Thomasville and Selma, was totally wrecked between Eleanor and Safford, about twenty-five miles from Selma. There is no turn-table at Thomasville, and the engine was backing into the city pulling the baggage car and passenger coach. In some unaccountable manner the tender jumped the track, engine No. 11 passing over it and turning completely over down a 10-foot embankment. The baggage car turned over and rested on the engine, the coach doing likewise, falling on the tender. Engineer O. J. Munn was fatally scalded, so much so that he died a few hours later. Fireman Jere Godley was caught under his engine and horribly mangled. The passengers, all of whom escaped with a few scratches and bruises, succeeded in getting him out, but in twenty minutes death relieved his sufferings. The train flagman had his hand mashed, and Conductor Bradstreet was cut on the leg. Quarantine Officer Newman was also badly bruised on the leg.

Bill Gambrill, in a difficulty at Pinson, was shot and killed by a negro, last week.

James W. McCrary, a prominent merchant of Greensboro, died Thursday, aged 77.

Farmers in the vicinity of Ozark are preparing to plant from two to twenty acres of wheat each this fall.

Sam Fields, colored, who shot and killed his wife last July, was convicted last Thursday and sentenced to be hanged.

Montgomery has closed her pest house, all cases of smallpox having been discharged and no suspicious cases remaining in the city.

Will Hunter, the desperate negro convict, who escaped from Pratt Mines last week, was shot and captured at Warrior by Marshal Blackburn.

Judge Alex Boarman arrived in Birmingham from Washington last Thursday, and the United States Circuit and District court was opened Friday.

Hon. Charles A. Whitten has received his commission as chief enumerator to retake the Lowndes county school census under the special law of 1896 and 1897.

In case the yellow fever reports should prove true at Montgomery, the governor will be forced to temporarily locate the executive office of the state in Birmingham.

About noon Thursday E. P. Lacy, a grandson of Senator Pettus, and his private secretary, while out hunting was accidentally shot in the left arm, a wound being inflicted which necessitated amputation.

Captain Beckert, of the Government Secret Service, aided by a detective, last week captured and arrested, ten miles south of Tuscumbia, John Clakely and William Hooper, charged with making and circulating counterfeit silver money.

The Jefferson Volunteers, Birmingham Rifles and Troop D, will, in all probability go to Nashville on Alabama Day. It is expected that they will carry forty men each and will possibly be accompanied by the Bessemer Rifles and the Huey Guards.

Montgomery had a yellow fever scare the past week. The board of health met and made the following statement regarding the suspicious cases: "After a careful analysis of the symptoms of the few cases reported as suspicious, there is not a case that is at all typical of yellow fever and not a single case is seriously sick."

Had Unstamped Liquor.

Robert Strain, a Limestone county farmer, was arrested Monday for having unstamped liquor in his possession. He was tried before a United States commissioner and placed under a $500 bond.

Weems Surrenders.

Matt Weems, the young white man who shot and killed Will Gambel near Mt. Pinson last Tuesday, surrendered to the sheriff of Jefferson county Monday. He claims the killing was in self-defense.

Contract Signed.

A contract has been signed between the Erie Construction company and John A. Carson & Co. for the building of fifty miles of the Atlanta and Alabama Air Line railway. Mr. Carson is a Dallas county contractor of responsibility and experience. The new road, which means so much for Selma, is now a surety. Work will begin, unless yellow fever interferes, October 25.

Rock Run Furnace to be Operated.

John M. Bass, president of the Rock Run Furnace Co., in an interview Monday, says that his furnaces at Rock Run, Ala., Lenoir, Tenn., and his shops in Chicago, St. Louis and Fort Wayne have all been consolidated into one corporation with $7,000,000 capital and that they will all be put in operation at their full capacity. The bonding of these plants was perfected Saturday in the east.

Took Paris Green to End His Life.

B. H. Cooper, one of the best known and most prominent citizens of Tuscumbia, died Friday night at 11 o'clock from the effects of three spoonfuls of Paris green, taken with suicidal intent. He was apparently in good health Thursday, although dejected in spirits and despondent. He remarked to a physician prior to his death that the rash act was done premeditatedly; that he wished to die, and had taken the poison to bring about death. The deceased was 57 years old, a justice of the peace for this precinct. He was a widower, leaving a grown son and daughter. He was the eldest son of the late Lydal B. Cooper, one of the most prominent and distinguished lawyers of Northern Alabama. Several years ago Lang Cooper, his youngest brother, was found dead on the streets of a Missouri town with his throat cut.

A Nervy Farmer Captures a Murderer.

Joe Hughes, who shot and killed Wm. Henderson near Morris, in Jefferson county, about four weeks ago, was captured Saturday afternoon and is now in the county jail.

Saturday evening Sheriff O'Brien was notified that a man answering the description of Hughes was in custody at Double Springs, in Winston county, and he dispatched a deputy sheriff to the place.

The story of his capture is as follows: Last Saturday morning a man who had the appearance of being a tramp applied at the house of a farmer living near Double Springs for something to eat. He was asked to remain to dinner and did so. At the table the farmer noticed that his guest had a "double thumb," and, having read of the killing of Henderson and seen the published description, he decided at once that the man was Hughes. The only weapon in the house was a 22-calibre Flobert rifle, but the farmer decided to attempt the capture anyway, and presently he surprised his guest by leveling the rifle at him and telling him to march. Hughes gave up at once and walked on to Double Springs with the farmer following behind, rifle in hand. At Double Springs the prisoner was locked up.

A FINE RECORD.

More Students at the University Than at Any Time in Six Years.

The second week of the present session of the University closes today. A glance at the attendance as compared with the enrollment as shown by recent catalogues reveals the fact that there are more students now at the University than at any one time for six years. There are 172 students now there. The enrollment as shown by the last six catalogues was as follows

	Academic	Law	Total
1896–97	131	36	167
1895–96	154	31	185
1894–95	160	20	180
1893–94	148	18	166
1892–93	138	26	164
1891–92	148	19	167

Hence it is safe to say that at no time in these years has the attendance reached the present figures, 172. It is believed by President Powers that the enrollment this year will go to 200. When it is remembered that weeks ago he promised 100 new students and that there are already 99 such, it will be seen that his estimates are at least worthy of consideration.

Chas. A Dana Dead.

Charles A Dana, editor of the New York Sun, died at his home in Glen Cove, Long Island, at 1.20 o'clock last Sunday afternoon. Mr. Dana's death had been expected for several hours, and his family and physicians were at his bedside when the end came. His condition had been such for several months that the members of his family had kept themselves in constant readiness to go to his bedside at any moment. The cause of Mr. Dana's death was cirrhosis of the liver. On June 9 he was at his office apparently strong and healthy. The next day he was taken ill and he never afterwards visited New York. He was 78 years old.

Celebration of Alabama Day.

Governor Johnson has issued a proclamation, in which he calls on the people of the state to attend the Nashville Centennial on Alabama Day, the 22, and make that day a brilliant one. He reminds the people that the Centennial management have extended every courtesy to Alabama and has furnished the state a splendid opportunity to advertise its matchless resources. He suggests that Alabamians should show their appreciation by celebrating Alabama Day with enthusiasm and numbers worthy of their state.

HE WAS A BRILLLANT CLERK.

How a Virginia Prodigy Gave a 10 Per Cent. Discount.

I once had a promising bud of genius in my store down on the James River, said a Virginian to a reporter. I keep a general store there, and this bud, that promised to bloom into seven kinds of a loo loo flower, came to me from the far end of Prince George County, on the introduction of a friend of mine and his, who said as he wasn't good for anything else, perhaps he might be made handy in a store. I took him, just to be accommodating, of course, and promised to give him a chance to rise.

He was about 19 years old, and wrote poetry between times, so I put him to sweeping out as a starter. He could sweep well enough, and after a week I put him to doing the chores, and advised him to study the stock while he was resting.

After about six weeks of this kind of training I concluded he knew enough to take charge of my scrap counter, which was a counter where I put all my old stuff about every sixty days, with the most of it marked in big figures and with the additional information to those looking for bargains that there would be 10 off for cash.

Trade was lively the morning I put him at it, and he was doing as well, if not better, than the more experienced clerks, for I noticed several people getting around his way and getting out pretty quick with what they had bought. I didn't think much about the whys and wherefores until the young fellow came to me at the desk with a suit of clothes in his hands to ask me to explain something. The suit bore a large white card inscribed with a big black "$8."

"I don't quite understand this," says he. "The others I sold were marked $10.75, $11.50, $11.98, $12 and $12.48, and it was easy enough to calculate what 10 off would be and sell them for 75 cents, $1.50, $1.98, $2 and $2.48, but I'll be doggoned if I see how you're going to throw $10 off of an $8 suit, unless you want to give the customer $2, and I reckon you ain't that liberal, even at the scrap counter, are you?"

It mighty near gave me a spasm, that did, concluded the gentleman, and I put another clerk at my discount counter p. d. q.

A doctor, writing on the subject of the suppression of useless noises in cities, which he claims will hasten toward convalescence many a patient whose nerves are now too racked by perpetual racket to give the system a chance of recuperating, says he remembers one delightful ward in his training school wherein the "sister" used to insist on a "silent hour," from 2:30 to 3:30 daily. It was the only ward in the hospital which enforced this golden rule, alike beneficial to the nurses fortunate enough to be drafted there and the patients therein, who flourished and blossomed forth into amazing convalescence under the silence system and the good nursing which accompanied it. For the "sister" was a born nurse, and she had the real sympathy and womanliness which caused her to appreciate the balm and healing of that one quiet hour in the day.

It was a male surgical ward, and the patients, on first admission, used to chafe somewhat at "sister's" dictum—against which there was no appeal—of "no conversation or newspaper reading during the hour." But gradually each patient came to appreciate the soothing lull in the busy hum of the ward, and "sister" and her staff used to watch with satisfaction how patient after patient fell gradually under the soporific quiet of the time, and went off into comfortable sleep, which frequently lasted long after the prescribed limit. The good humor of the ward was most exceptional.

The senior surgeon of the hospital was never tired of saying, "The patients here, sister, get on as if by magic. What spells of witchcraft do you weave to heal them so quickly?"—Pittsburg Dispatch.

ALABAMA LADIES

Brave as Lions.

Mrs. Mattie Davenport.

Jenifer, Ala., writes: My Husband was cured of Billiousness by Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, which I have used 10 years. Have tried both Pills and "Black Draught," but I think the M. A. Simmons Medicine so far Superior that one Package of it is worth three or four of either the other kinds.

Insufficient Menstruation

Is sometimes caused by non-development of the parts, sometimes by obstructions at mouth of vagina, and sometimes by constipated bowels, but usually results from a debilitated condition of the system, which prevents nature from overcoming any ordinary exposure, such as fright or getting wet feet. Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine builds up the system and cures the disorder, while Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine cures the constipation, indigestion, loss of appetite, pains in back, hips, head and limbs, which are usually present.

John L. Brown

Shellman, Ga., writes: I have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine 8 years. It cured me of Torpid Liver, Indigestion, Nervousness and Sleeplessness. It cured my Wife of a Female Complaint. My two Aunts have been greatly benefited by it in the following ways. Have used "Black Draught" but think Dr. M. A. S. L. M. far superior to it.

Skin and Eyes Yellow.

This disorder indeed is direct cause in some derangement in the liver and its closely allied glands. The bile, instead of passing out through the bowels, has been obstructed and finding no outlet through its usual channels, has accumulated and been taken up by the absorbents and distributed over the system, poisoning the blood and disturbing all the functions of the body. In the treatment of this disease, Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine should be taken night and morning until the complexion becomes clear.

Spurn Frauds that court you for your money. The imitations that try to take the place of the Original Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, while by interested dealers sold as "the same," are advertised as "just the same," and you may be courted and deceived for your money at the expense of your health. Beware!

They were stepped upon by the crowd and several persons were bitten. All the doctors in town were summoned to give medical aid.

At Springfield, Mo., Raymond Allen, 12 years old, went to school carrying a portion of a stick of dynamite. The explosive, which the boy had found, was in his pocket with a knife, top and marbles. In getting to his seat the boy banged his dangerous collection against the desk, causing an explosion which will probably cost him his life and which was heard for two blocks. The teacher, Miss Mack, was close by and had her skirts torn into shreds, but she was not hurt.

SPAIN'S REPLY

To Minister Woodford Summed Up in a Few Words.

In the special note to United States Minister Woodford the government declares that Spain has done all in her power to end the war in Cuba, and cites the many sacrifices which have been made by the nation, the number of troops sent to Cuba and the reforms which are to be carried out in the island, which are fully described.

The note ends with the statement that "Spain will not admit the right of any foreign power to interfere in any of her affairs."

The note also declares that if the United States does not stop the sailing of filibustering expeditions from American ports Spain will re-establish the right to search vessels anchoring in Cuba waters.

Wants Fabulous Prices.

On the steamship George W. Elder, which leaves next Friday night for Dyea, Alaska, Charles E. Vest, of Portland, Oregon, will ship 4,000 dozens of eggs and about a ton and a half of poultry, fresh meats and oysters, which he expects to transport over the Chilcoot Pass to Dawson City by dog train before Christmas. The eggs have all been prepared and are ready for shipment. They were broken into cans, sealed up and then frozen. Vest has four others associated with him, and they expect to realize $100,000 out of the venture. They expect to sell the eggs at $35 per dozen and the poultry at fabulous prices.

IRREGULAR.

Bradstreet's Reports a Further Falling Off in Demand.

SHARP DROP IN EXPORTS.

A General Restriction of Business in the Gulf States is Noted Because of Quarantine--Production of Iron is Enormous. Steel Mills Refuse Orders for 1898.

Bradstreet's says: While the general trade movement is somewhat irregular, and there are further evidences of falling off in demand, the volume of business continues of large proportions. Speculation in wool has ceased and demand for the staple is less than for weeks past. Cotton goods are dull on the weakness of raw cotton and jobbers report dry goods slower than a week ago. Interior merchants in the central west have not distributed fall stocks as promptly as expected, and many jobbers at western centers find that they overestimated the resumptive demand when securing fall goods. Unseasonably warm weather has interfered with the movement of heavy goods at the west, but rains in Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska have improved the agricultural outlook. Relatively, the greatest activity in trade is reported by Kansas City and Omaha merchants. While quarantine regulations have been raised in Texas and modified in Louisiana, business throughout most of the gulf states remains practically at a standstill. Almost all the larger eastern cities report a decreased movement of merchandise and a tendency of collections to fall away, notably Baltimore, owing to its southern connections.

The industrial situation continues to furnish employment to as many persons as at any preceding period this year and at higher wages. Production of iron, steel, machinery, stoves, car structural work, glass and woolen goods continues heavy. Steel mills have orders to carry them into 1898 and decline contracts for next year's delivery. This explains the advance in the price of Bessemer pig iron, while the foundry quotations remain unchanged. The extraordinary heavy and steadily increasing production of iron is starting up furnaces long out of blast, and although consumption is heavy, it is not improbable that production may outrun it in the near future, which constitutes an unfavorable point in the outlook.

Exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States and from Canada this week amount to 5,552,171 bushels, against 6,089,000 bushels last week, 4,067,000 bushels in the week a year ago, 2,658,-000 bushels two years ago, 3,353,000 bushels three years ago, and as compared with 3,327,000 bushels in the like week of 1893.

There has been a sharp drop in the export movement of Indian corn this week, the total amounting to 1,177,-548 bushels, compared with 2,224,000 bushels last week, 2,979,000 bushels in the week a year ago, 1,348,000 bushels two years ago, 920,000 bushels three years ago, and as compared with 929,000 bushels in the like week of 1893.

There 205 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, against 196 last week, 232 in the week a year ago, 259 two years ago, 221 in the like week of 1894, and 329 in the third week of October, 1893.

There are 27 business failures reported from the Dominion of Canada this week, a total considerably smaller than that of last week or in the third week of October in any of the four preceding years.

Against Annexation.

It was definitely decided at Honolulu among Hawaiians opposed to annexation that a commission composed of five men should be sent to Washington to make a determined fight against the ratification of the annexation treaty. At least three Hawaiian societies will give their support to the movement. It is generally understood that J. O. Canter, a white man, will head the commission.

Counterfeiting Scheme Unearthed.

In a musty and darkened cellar at No. 131 Sangamon street, Chicago lawyers, detectives and constables unearthed what they claim to be one of the largest liquor counterfeiting schemes ever operated in this country. The liquor dealers of the world have been working to learn the location of the plant for over a year. After four hours work $25,000 in counterfeit labels, representing all the leading brands of liquor, bottles and cases were found. The loss to the liquor dealers and manufacturers through counterfeit has been nearly $500,000, and it may even reach a higher figure.

STILL INCREASING.

The Yellow Fever Situation Shows Marked Progress in Many Places.

The board of health reported the following new cases at Montgomery Friday night: Hugh McCutcheon, Mrs. Biggio, F. M. McQueen, Wm. McDaniel, Terrence R. Hardaway, R. O. Parker, D. L. Bray, Ed Biggio, Miss Mollie Mulcahy, child of J. Prendergrast, 6 years old. Dr. Guiteras, after visiting sixteen patients, six of whom were old cases, reported that the disease prevailing was the typical fever. In an address, he said the fever was not contagious; that the germs were responsible for its becoming epidemic. Pleasant McAdams died Friday night of yellow fever. He was only 18 years old.

A case of fever has developed at Notasulga, forty miles east of Montgomery, and two are reported at Robinson Springs, ten miles north.

Friday night at 7 o'clock the yellow fever cases had nearly reached fifty at New Orleans, and there had been five deaths.

Ten new cases were reported Friday at Mobile, five of whom were taken from the Italian bark Livomus. There were two deaths. Total cases to date, 197; deaths, 23; recoveries, 123, under treatment, 36.

President Thornton, of the Memphis board of health, Friday night officially declared that a case of yellow fever exists in Memphis. The case is that of B. H, McFerrin. He is a yard conductor, and was taken sick Sunday

One new case is reported from Cayuga, Miss.; under treatment, 15.

Bay St. Louis has 1 case.

Clinton has 11 cases under treatment.

At Edwards there are 4 new cases. Total to date, 487; deaths, 26; discharged, 436; convalescent, 48; under treatment, 37; in the country—deaths 4, all white; total cases, 55.

Selma reported a suspicious case of fever Friday night, and wired Dr. Guiteras to come and investigate.

RETURNED FROM HAWAII.

Senator Morgan Talks Enthusiastically About Annexation.

Senator Morgan and his daughter and F. M. Hatch, the new minister from Hawaii, were among the passengers who arrived at San Francisco from Honolulu upon the steamship Bolgic the past week.

Senator Morgan expressed himself as well pleased with what he saw and the manner in which he was entertained while on the islands. He is more than ever enthusiastic on the subject of annexation, and intimated that Hawaii may become a part of this country before the close of the coming year. He said:

"Hawaii is certainly going to be a state, but whether it will be at the time of its annexation or later remains to be seen. Should it be annexed as a territory the Hawaiian commissioners will recommend that the island should be admitted to statehood and a special act of congress would undoubtedly follow.

"I have favored annexation from the beginning, but I was surprised upon investigating the matter to find that the arguments in favor of the movement had been underestimated. In my opinion, Hawaii is absolutely indispensable to the United States, and we must have these islands. The only opposition found was that of a few of the Lilioukalani royalists who have no weight over there and are for the most part royalists for revenue only."

Senator and the Misses Morgans will leave here for their home at Selma, Ala., in a few days.

Secretly Arming.

It has just leaked out at Fort Smith, Ark., that the full-blood Cherokees have been secretly arming themselves and securing large quanties of ammunition for several weeks, but it has been especially brisk since the return of the attorney sent to Washington to enjoin the Dawes commission from proceeding to make the citizenship rolls. The majority of the Cherokees are opposed to the treaty, but the most bitter feeling is among the ignorant full-bloods. They are preparing to resist any attempt to change their tribal government. Several leading advocates of allotment and of treating with the Dawes commission have been warned to cease the negotiations or their lives will be taken.

ARMY REPORT.

General Miles Submits Estimates to the Secretary of War.

MORE SOLDIERS ARE NEEDED.

The General Wants Two More Regiments of Artillery and Five of Infantry—Will Take Fifty-eight Million Dollars to Put the Country in Condition of Defense.

Gen. Miles, major-general commanding the army, has made his report to the secretary of war. In it he makes reference to the reports of the general and other officers subordinate to him in rank. Gen. Miles says in part:

"The army, although inadequate in point of numbers, was never in a higher state of efficiency, both as to the character and qualifications of its officers and intelligence and loyalty of its soldiers. Important changes and improvements have been made along the Atlantic and gulf coasts, and especially in the mounting of modern artillery and the appliances adopted for the defense of the coast."

Attention is called to the condition of affairs in Alaska and a number of recommendations relative thereto are made.

Continuing, the report says: "During the last ten years much attention has been given by the government to the question of coast defenses, and most beneficial results are now becoming apparent. Approximately $26,000,000 has been appropriated by the government, which is nearly one-third of what is required to put the country in a safe condition of defense. Although the general desire of our people is to maintain a condition of peace with all nations and the policy of the government is one of good will and peaceful relations with all others, yet nothing could be more injudicious than to remain in a condition of insecurity and permit the lives of millions and the accumulated wealth of many generations to be destroyed or endangered by any foreign power with which we are liable to come in contact."

He recommends fortification appropriations as follows:

Hampton Roads, $463,000; approaches to Wilmington, N. C., $397,-000; Charleston harbor, S. C., $150,-000; Key West, Fla., $50,000; Pensacola harbor, $32,000; approaches to Mobile, Ala., $307,000; approaches to New Orleans, $319,000; Galveston, Tex., $419,000.

He recommends strongly an increase in the army of at least two additional regiments of artillery.

He also urges the necessity of adding five infantry regiments to the army and recommends that congress fix a standard of strength on a basis of the total population. This standard, he thinks, should be a maximum of one enlisted man to every 1,000 population and the minimum one soldier to every 2,000 population.

Fever Gives Way to Tragedy.

Interest in the progress of the fever in Biloxi was swallowed up in the contemplation and excitement of a most horrible murder and arson committed upon a most estimable couple of elderly people living out on Back Bay, about three or four miles from the city.

Word was brought to the city about 4 o'clock Friday morning that the Parkhurst property had been burned and that Mr. J. L. Parkhurst and his wife had been consumed in the flames. A man named Gibson, his wife and one Volkes are under arrest.

The autopsy held showed that the aged couple had been murdered, and evidence showed that they had been killed before they retired at night. Rumors and threats of lynching are rife.

No More Appointments at Present.

The president has determined not to consider any new appointments until congress meets, owing to many requests that have come from senators and representatives that consideration be held up until they can see the president; also the great pressure of other business, which is occupying the president's time.

Thousands of Lives Lost in a Cyclone.

Advices from Manila says a cyclone occurred October 12, and that Carigara and Suruyo, on the eastern coast of Leyte, one of the Phillipine Islands, have been wiped out, and that an immense wave swept inland, engulfing the villages. The cyclone also swept the island of Samar. The full extent of the catastrophe is not yet known.

Selma is in the throes of the yellow fever scourge. The outcome of Dr. Guiteras' visit to that city is a report that seven cases were under treatment and that the fever has existed in a mild form for three or four weeks.

Ground in the Machinery.

Bone Bagley was caught in the machinery at Hagin's cotton gin, near Markton, twelve miles north of Gadsden, and was literally ground to pieces. When the fragments of flesh and bones were withdrawn from the ginnery they presented a ghastly and sickening sight, the largest member of his body being not larger than an ordinary sized gourd.

A Record Breaker.

The Howard-Harrison Iron Company, at Bessemer, cast its first 72-inch pipe last Saturday. It will be one of an order for twelve for the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad, to be used in culverts. This immense pipe will be the largest in existence, being 72 inches in diameter, 12 feet 6 inches long, 2 inches thick and will weigh ten tons.

Governor Cannot Remove Him.

At Rockford Judge Carmichael rendered his decision in the Moore vs. Nolen case Wednesday in favor of Mr. Moore. This case is the one in which the constitutionality of the law which gave the governor power to remove a tax assessor was assailed, Mr. Moore being the old assessor and the one Governor Johnston removed when Nolen was appointed.

Miners Organizing.

The miners of Alabama will officiate with the United Mine Workers of America, and will at once begin to perfect the organization. A convention of the miners of the Birmingham district was held Friday for the purpose of considering the question of affiliating with the United Mine Workers of America or of maintaining a distinct state organization. A vote was taken which resulted in a victory for the national organization by a majority of 33 votes out of a total of 77 cast.

Camps will be organized and a state convention will be called to perfect a district organization under a charter granted by the United Mine Workers of America. It is estimated that when the organization is perfected 10,000 men will be enrolled.

New Road Is Commenced.

The first dirt on the Atlanta and Selma Air-Line was broken Thursday in the eastern suburbs of Selma with imposing ceremonies. Mayor Meyer and members of the city council, Col. Mitchell, president of the road, and a large number of citizens were present when the first scraper, drawn by four mules, was imbedded into the earth by Mrs. Watkin M. Vaughan, who had been selected as the sponsor for the road. There was speech-making and cheering. Fifty mules and one hundred men were put to work and these will be quadrupled in a few days. When ten miles are graded track will be laid and trains put on. The road will then be pushed through Autauga, Chilton, Coosa, Elmore, Tallapoosa, Clay and Randolph counties and on to Atlanta.

Progress of the M. & O. Extension.

A well-known contractor has made the following statement regarding the state of affairs on the construction of the Montgomery & Columbus extension of the Mobile & Ohio: "Over 90 per cent of the grading has been completed. This work will have been completed in three weeks from date. The wood work is also nearly completed. Track-laying is in active progress. They have laid twenty five miles of rails from Columbus and eight miles from the Montgomery end, thirty-three miles altogether. The track-layers expect to arrive at the Warrior bridge at Tuskaloosa in sixty days, but will be probably later than that at that point. The bridge at Tuskaloosa will not be completed for three months yet. That will be the last work to be done. The road will then be ready to be operated. Contracts for depot buildings, section houses, round houses, etc., were to have been let at Tuskaloosa on October 7. The bids were received, but letting the contracts was delayed on account of the absence of President Woolfolk. An army of men is in the field and the work is being pushed rapidly. In five months the road will be in operation.

But there is a fatality, a feeling so irresistible and inevitable that it has the force of doom, which almost invariably compels human beings to linger around and haunt the spot where some great and marked event has given color to their life time, and still more irresistibly, the darker the tinge that saddens it.

We must have a weak spot or two in a character before we can love it much. People that do not laugh or cry, or take more of anything than is good for them, or use anything but dictionary words, are admirable subjects for biographies. But we don't always care most for those flat pattern flowers that press best in the herbarium.

A New York man who has the Klondike fever is not disposed to be satisfied with a grub-stake merely. The theater burned down and there is where the shoe counted.

It is suggested that what some people want is sleep holidays. They do not need to go to watering-places and summer hotels and to be entertained by a round of gayety, with a band always playing. There may be something in the contention that a greater amount of sleep is required by people nowadays—especially brain-workers—than was formerly the case. Nicola Tesla, the electrician, is credited with saying that he believes a man might live two hundred years if he would sleep most of the time. That is why negroes often live to advanced old age—because they sleep so much. He also alluded to the current report that Mr. Gladstone now sleeps seventeen hours every day.

A pathetic appeal for aid comes to the Government from Chamberlain, S. D. "Chasing Crane," who is described as a "Lower Brule Sioux," has sacrificed his health for Uncle Sam, and he asks a pension. Chasing's case seems to demand prompt attention. The aged Sioux is battle-scarred and the hero of many a fight, but for these he asks no rewards. He has served for a year as a soldier in the regular army, and has been stationed during this time in Fort Omaha, but this he passes by without demur. Endowed with a strong constitution, he endured the rigors of fort life with fortitude, until confronted by the Government rations. It appears he struggled bravely with the insidious foe. Thrice daily he met the enemy, and seldom failed to down it. But his vigor was being sapped by the unequal battle, and after these many days of struggle he stands confessed a conquered and broken Sioux. It is a sad story, this of Chasing Crane. If he proves he ate these rations daily throughout all this year it is difficult to see how a pension can be withheld, and the papers can be expected soon, duly indorsed, "Wounded by a Nation's rations."

Influence of the Imagination.

Fear has killed many a man before to-day. There is an old story of a king whose favorite was condemned to die for a crime. Before his execution, however, it was discovered that he was innocent, and the king, in order to give his favorite and agreeable surprise, took the place of the executioner, using a towel instead of an axe. But the man was killed as instantly as if his head had been cut off.

In modern times some French men of science obtained permission to perform similar experiment on a man condemned to be guillotined. They bound him to a table, and told him that arteries would be opened in various parts of his body, and that he would be bled to death. He could not expect to live more than half an hour. He was then blindfolded. He was pricked in various parts of the body, and at the end of half an hour was dead, although he had lost very little blood.

HOW TO MANIPULATE COINS.

You Must Be Quick, and Be Prepared to Deceive.

The art of conjuring is to puzzle people. With nothing more expensive than a cent, a dime, or a quarter, and a little art in the cutting and boring of metal, the amateur will find that some very effective tricks are within his power.

The conjurer may flaunt a coin before the eyes of the company and then, like a flash of lightning, cause it to disappear and show both of his hands empty. Then the coin will suddenly reappear between the tips of the conjurer's fingers. The coin has two little holes bored through it, and a piece of silk is looped through these. When commanding the coin to disappear the performer slips the loop of silk over his thumb, and, keeping the front of his hand toward the audience, allows the coin to quickly drop between his fingers and rest on the back of his hand. When he wishes it to reappear he pulls the silk, and, presto! it is again between his finger-tips.

The wonderful "electrified" coin is easily made, and is warranted to cause some fun. The conjurer throws it in the air. "Behold!" he cries, "it will always return to me. See how affectionate it is." The coin, falling, touches the lapel of his coat and remains there.

THE MAGIC PENNIES.

This is not surprising, since about a quarter of an inch of a pin projects from each side of it.

The six magic pennies pass through a table, or appear to do so. As a preliminary step, the conjurer takes six pennies of his own, and fastens them together by running a rivet through them. He then obtains a little cap that will fit neatly over the coins. Having done this, he proceeds to borrow six cents from the audience, which he places unobserved in his left hand. In his right hand he holds his prepared pennies, so that all may see them. These he places on the table, and covering them with the cap, commands them to drop through to the other side. After a moment he withdraws the cap, and incidentally, with the cap, the pennies—an easy enough matter, as they are joined together—and it is seen that they are no longer on the table. He puts his left hand under the table, and apparently catches the cents as they drop through into his palm. He returns them to the audience, who find that they are unaffected by their journey through the deal board.

To be able to throw half a dozen coins through a silk hat in such a way that they will clearly be heard to drop on the inside, leaving, however, no trace behind them, is a trick of which any one might be proud. The conjurer borrows a hat, conceals six cents in his left hand, and shows six cents in his right. He then picks up the hat in his left hand and holds the cents at the same time in such a way that he may easily drop them in when required.

Taking a coin from his right hand he shows it to the audience, and pretends to throw it at the hat. A click of a coin dropping on the inside is heard, and on examination a coin will be found in the hat. As a matter of fact, however, no penny left the conjurer's right hand. He merely put it through the process known as "palming," and at the same time allowed a penny to drop from his left hand.

A very effective addition may be made to the trick in this way. A penny is fastened in a lathe, and a little groove is cut round its edge. It is then divided into two pieces, one being a little larger than the other, and these are joined loosely together by a small elastic band which is placed in the groove. A needle is brazed into the larger portion of the penny at right angles to the edge, a recess being cut into the smaller portion to accommodate it.

Having made this penny or bought it, the conjurer, when performing his trick of throwing the pennies through a hat, takes the trick penny in his right hand, and bending back one half, swiftly inserts the needle in the hat. This gives it the appearance of having passed half way through; it looks, in fact, as though the conjurer had not thrown it hard enough. He apologizes, draws out the trick penny, and pretends to throw it again, this time allowing a penny from his left hand to drop into the hat.

A penny that will pass through the narrow neck of a bottle is made in the same way. It is divided into three pieces, which are held together by elastic. It is folded up, and put into the bottle, and so soon as it has passed the neck the sides spring out and make it look like an ordinary penny.

Granted a small amount of skill in copper-cutting, which, with the aid of a lathe and suitable tools is a simple trick, any number of very effective trick-pennies may be constructed.

FRENCH LITERARY CRITIC.

Jules Lemaitre Is Recognized as One of the Best.

Jules Lemaitre is recognized as one of the best of French literary critics. He has done good work in a half-dozen departments of literature, but he is primarily a critic, who has made literary criticism as great an art as Saint-Beuve did in his day or Brunetiere does in our time. It is a pity that some of his best critical work has not been put into English. Though French to the core, Lemaitre is singularly cosmopolitan, and he is one of the few Frenchmen who have comprehended Shakspeare. He loves the classical writers, but he most delights in the moderns, and his keen analysis of Renan, Zola, Daudet, Ohnet, Scribe and other writers is a liberal education in contemporary French literature.

BIRTH OF THE BLOOMER.

It Is Forty-six Years Since They First Came Into View.

Forty-six years ago the bifurcated garment for female dress was ushered into a cold and critical world, and the mother of this now popular invention, Mrs. Amelia Bloomer, was thereby placed in the niche of deathless fame. Mrs. Bloomer's high social position and intelligence cannot be disputed. She was engaged in editing the Lily, a temperance journal, when her crusade in favor of dress reform was begun, and the columns of that paper fairly bloomed with the advocacy of her radical ideas.

The use of the bloomer is at present chiefly confined to athletic sports, but its originator intended it to have a more general adoption. It was to take the place, on every occasion, of the more cumbersome skirt, which at that time, was increasing in size to such an extent that, in the language of a contemporary English writer, the men were "beginning to ask what proportion of the geographical area the ladies meant to occupy." Her own first appearance in the new costume was at a ball, given at the house of one of the leaders of society in the town in which she lived, and she was the center of attraction during the entire evening.

The press of the country discussed the bloomer from all points of view and women in those days had not the moral courage to wear the garment. So it passed into a stage of suspended animation until fanned into life by the necessities of women astride the bicycle. Mrs. Bloomer wore her garment until she died, but her personal following was small.

Within thirty-five miles of Philadelphia there is a community, a large proportion of the female population of which at one time wore regularly the "rational" garb. When in 1861 Charles K. Landis laid out and opened for settlement the town of Vineland, N. J., the inducements offered by him to intending purchasers of land early attracted a large influx of a very mixed element. Among them were the "Bloomers," in faith Spiritualistic and all firm adherents of the trouser cult. All were agriculturists and men and women alike labored in the fields, so that at a little distance it was a matter of some difficulty to distinguish the sex of the toiler. The dress of the women consisted of a sort of blouse, coming in some instances just above the knee, in others a little below it. Beneath this the inevitable trousers, reaching half way to the ankle, where they were met by a sort of woolen legging, covering the upper part of the shoe. This costume was generally of light cloth, usually of a faded reddish color, the whole surmounted by a broad-brimmed slouch hat, such as the Dunkards are accustomed to wear. Sometimes in summer linen would be substituted for the more weighty cloth, but the style invariably remained the same. At one time there were between twenty and thirty "bloomer" families living in and about Vineland, but at the present time only two representatives of the sect remain.

Kind Forbearance.

Frederick Walker, who did such beautiful work in art, and who died so young that all the great promise in him could not be disclosed, began his drawings for the Cornhill Magazine by an interview with Thackeray, wherein he was much agitated, and the great writer proved correspondingly kind.

Walker had an exceeding reverence for Thackeray, and greatly dreaded an interview with him.

"Bring him here," Thackeray had said, "and we shall soon see whether he can draw."

So, early one morning, the young man was taken to the author's house in Onslow Square. The drive was a silent one, for the artist became every instant more agitated and distressed. This Thackeray noticed at once, and did his best to set him at ease.

"Can you draw?" he asked, after a little general conversation. "Mr. Smith says you can."

"Yaces, I think so," stammered Walker.

"I'm going to shave," said Mr. Thackeray. "Would you mind drawing my back?"

So he turned about, and Walker made a most excellent likeness of him in that position. If the lion had faced him, subjecting him to the ordeal of scrutiny, it was probable that he could not have worked at all. Doubtless Thackeray knew this, and so took his delicate precaution.

Whenever a woman's favorite doctor loses a patient by death, she always explains it by saying that he was not "called soon enough."

OWNER OF DAWSON.

BARNEY BARNATO OF THE KLONDYKE.

Notable Success of Joseph Ladue in the Land of Untold Value—One Of Many Who Went Out Penniless Now Rolling in Millions at Their Feet.

A Fortune in One Year.

Joseph Ladue, the founder of Dawson, in the Klondyke gold region, returned to his former home at Niagara Falls, New York. He returns from bleak Alaska to claim his bride, the woman whose letter from home upon his suit years before sent him home in 1882 for the Northwest. At that time he was a young man. When the gold fever broke out in 1896 he was a two years ago he was a failure in business and to Alaska he went. He found enough to stake him later on. He became one of the great later went to Alaska as a clerk in the employ of a company paid for a quantity of which was a fabulous figure, and made a fortune. Settlers there found that the place was too small and sold off small parcels at a profit. Dawson grew and became a town, having been platted by Barnato of Alaska. Barnato cannot be classed with many times a millionaire, for he struck it rich, and made a good thing when he saw it, selling to another tale of African diamonds, but much nearer home. If you want to get to Alaska, seriously, there are two ways. If you take the route you can start by steamship from Seattle, and crossing the Gulf of Alaska, touch at Unalaska, passing through the Aleutian Islands. From this point the route lies directly north, getting colder and colder every minute. You will need all the Arctic wraps you can bring with you. The ship's fare will be warm, nourishing food—chocolate, meats and spices. Of course, that you will need fur overshoes, blanket wraps, woolen clothes and big, warm, fur-lined bags to sleep in. For one going from warm city into this region the change is so great and so sudden that there is bound to be great suffering, and many would be Barnatos turn back.

Steamship stops at St. Michael's; within sight of Bering sea, within hailing distance of the Russian frontier, you leave the steamship and land to search for gold. Steamboats have nearly all followed the action. It leads into Klondyke, one of its tributaries is the Klondyke River. Dawson, Joseph Ladue's town, is on the Yukon; and this another rich spot, lies on the Yukon. Land is for sale here very cheap. You can do as many prospectors do—start in hunting for gold, taking too many inquiring friends, and so sudden that there is no line drawn between that which belongs to the Government and that which belongs to the Uncle Sam, and a man is free to take what he will. For your own comfort, it is well to have some arrangement made with the Indians, so as to avoid trouble of a kind. The way to reach the gold fields is a long one. Many journey in winter, as they went to Klondyke years ago. The pass is terrible and follows the Yukon, past Juneau and the White Horse pass, and so north to the gold fields to Dawson. The journey is a severe one, and when Klondyke is reached, on the other side of the mountains, finds himself in the heart of the gold country. The journey is great and the road is a hard one, but, despite this, thousands are turning their faces Alaska-wards.

Ladue nothing to become a millionaire. But those who want to follow in his footsteps will need something in money. The country is overrun now and prices are as high as they used to be in Alaska. At Circle City you may pay $50 for a fur coat when you can get one for $5. And flour, bacon, the absolute necessities, advanced 50 per cent. The same with coffee, eggs and butter—at fancy prices, so that a man must have ten times the sum required a year ago for traveling through the settlements of Alaska.

It is certainly true that better "finds" are being made in American territory than in British Columbia. Four hundred miles southeast of Dawson, on the Peili river, there has been a "find" located that is richer than any yet discovered. Prospectors say that as soon as attention is called towards the American side of the gold field line and working upon it becomes general there will be gold mined there in greater quantities than has ever been found on the British side of the Klondyke fields.

The way to travel to Alaska is in parties of four. These can easily be occommodated, in one room, and can travel in one small conveyance. One of the party should be a practical chemist, or understand the compiling of drugs, and one should be able to sew. A woman is of the utmost assistance, but few of the sex have ventured out. In the baggage which the four carry should be pieces of tanned skins, shoe leather, flannel and wool, everything for repairing the Alaskan wearing apparel. One of the number should be able to cook and the fourth should understand the art of putting up a quick shelter. All should be willing and ready to share and share alike in hardship.

One of the hardest things the prospector has to endure is the sight of the sacks of gold dust that are being shipped from every seaport and the tons of ore that are being sent down from St. Michael's and south from Juneau. In one day there came advices from St. Michael's that $1,400,000 worth of gold dust would be shipped by the Wells-Fargo south, and that $768,000 in dust was awaiting transportation. In one day there came down on the Puget Sound steamship $200,000 in Alaska gold.

Ladue was one of the first to strike the Yukon region, rich in gold. He settled Dawson City and built a sawmill. However, he found it difficult to get men to work for him at $15 a day. He has made a fortune out of the mines and will return to Dawson in the spring with his wife.

None of His Business.

Philosophers, lazy men and Turks have many qualities in common. So, at least, it would appear from the reply of a Turkish pasha to the British minister at Constantinople, who had asked for information concerning the population and trade of a certain province.

"Illustrious friend, joy of my liver!" the pasha's letter began. "The thing you ask of me is both difficult and useless.

"Although I have passed all my days in this place, I have neither counted the houses nor have I inquired into the number of the inhabitants; and as to what one person loads on his mules and another stows away in the bottom of his ships, that is no business of mine.

"O my soul! O my lamb! seek not after the things that concern thee not. Thou comest to us and we welcome thee; go in peace.

"Of a truth thou hast spoken many words, and there is no harm done, for the speaker is one and the listener is another.

"After the fashion of thy people thou hast wandered from one place to another, until thou art happy and content in none."

Nelson's Famous Order.

Captain Alfred T. Mahan contributes to the Century an article on "Nelson at Trafalgar." Concerning Nelson's famous order, Captain Mahan says: After returning to the deck, Nelson asked Blackwood whether he did not think another signal was needed. The captain replied that he thought every one understood perfectly what was expected of him. After musing a while, Nelson said, "Suppose we telegraph that 'Nelson expects every man to do his duty.'" The officer to whom the remark was made suggested whether it would not read better, "England expects." In the fleet, or, for the matter of that, to the country, the change signified little, for no two names were ever more closely identified than those of England and Nelson; but the latter welcomed it eagerly, and at 11:30 the signal which has achieved world-wide celebrity flew from the Victory's masthead, and was received with a shout throughout the fleet.

Hands Off.

In connection with the recent death of Blondin, the greatest of funambulists, it is recalled that President Lincoln once made use of him for one of his characteristically apt illustrations. To a fault-finding delegation that visited him, Mr. Lincoln said:

Gentlemen, suppose all the property you were worth was in gold, and you had put it into the hands of Blondin to carry across Niagara Falls on a rope; would you shake the cable, or keep shouting out to him, "Blondin, stand up a little straighter! Blondin, stoop a little more; go a little faster; lean more to the south?" No, you would hold your breath, as well as your tongue, and keep your hands off until he was safe over.

THE FIRST ELECTRIC CAR.

The Memory of Farmer, Its Inventor, Honored This Week.

The first electric passenger car ever made in the United States was displayed to the public for the first time at Dover, N. H., July 26, 1847. The fiftieth anniversary of the event, which occurred recently, has bee nfittingly observed at Eliot, Me., where lived the inventor of the car, Moses G. Farmer. His daughter still lives there, conducting a summer school of science and literature, and it was at her home that the event was celebrated by a company of electricians.

Moses Farmer was a native of New Hampshire and was born in 1820. He received a college education and taught school. Of a mechanical bent of mind, he spent many of his spare moments in experimenting. He early became interested in electricity and the subject of applying this force to propel vehicles occupied his attention. His experiments resulted in the construction of a train of two cars, on one of which was monuted the motor and battery which furnished the current, the other being a passenger car.

The rails of the track as built in 1847 were of cast iron, and the ties, or sleepers, of wood. On these rails ran the two cars, one for carrying passengers, the other being the locomotive. The electric current was generated in forty-eight cells of a Groves battery, the size of each cell being about one pint in capacity.

The cars were exhibited in various cities and attracted some attention, but the time was not ripe for electric transit and Farmer's scheme was not utilized. It formed the basis, however, upon which engineers subsequently built the electric cars of the present day. Farmer died in Chicago during the World's Fair in 1893.

WOMAN'S LONG RIDE.

Mrs. Margaret Valentine Le Long is a plucky little woman with a long name who recently rode, alone, from Chicago to San Francisco, her home, on a bicycle. She was on the road ninety days, covering the distance, 2,000 miles, without a puncture. She made the journey not to save expenses, for it cost twice as much as by rail, but for the sake of the adventure and the experience. She had only one accident, a broken pedal, when she had piled herself up at the foot of a hill in the dark. She did her own washing, had the good sense not to try for a record, and rested when she was tired. Eighty-six miles in one day was her best performance. On the way she lost eight pounds, made a detour from Ogden to Salt Lake, rode the railroad track for numberless rough and bumpety miles, and walked on an average ten miles a day. She is muscular as few women are, and is as brown as the proverbial berry, for she even tanned her hands through her thick chamois gloves. But she is not the least bit footsore or weary, and she would do it again.

Slightly Daft.

"Bobson is certainly daft about that new baby of his."

"What has he done?"

"Why, we were all talking about the tariff at the office last Saturday, but Bobson only made one remark."

"What did he say?"

"He wanted to know if they had raised the duty on catnip tea."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Dieting the Kaiser.

The German Emperor has been put on an almost entirely fruit diet. He is not allowed to drink tea or coffee, and his physicians consider it imperative that he should always have eight hours' sleep.

The Answer.

"Say, aren't those woolen clothes warm this kind of a day?"

"I don't know; I haven't asked them. If they are like me they are, though."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

COL. TOM OCHILTREE.

The Famous Texas Wit Who Has Made Two Continents Laugh.

Col. Thomas P. Ochiltree, the famous Texas wit and statesman, became a national character a few years ago when he came to Congress as a Representative from Texas. He was conspicuous to look upon, and he rarely said anything that was not conspicuous. He made friends, and he was so good-natured to his enemies and so quick with his wit that the men who were opposed to him were anxious to get over their tilts. He was pointed out on the floor of the House as the first native Congressman from his State. It was also related that his district was wider and longer than many of the states of Europe, reaching over a territory of twenty-seven counties, and running from the Gulf to Eagle Pass, on the Rio Grande. This area comprised 37,600 square miles. Ochiltree was practically the king of it.

Ochiltree went to the top of capital favoritism at a single bound. He was a prince of story-tellers. The beauty of his humor was that it hit no one so hard as it hit himself. He rarely appeared upon the floor of the Forty-eighth Congress that he did not put the House into a furore of laughter. The country members used to declare that he was more fun than the minstrels. His bills and appropriations were jested through. He called himself the "Red-headed Ranger from Texas," and the title was enough to get him a hearing before the busiest committee. It was his custom to send in word to an important session of a close-mouthed and dignified committee that the "Red-headed Ranger from Texas" had a few remarks he would like to make covering a few points in a measure the august body had in its pigeon holes. The admission of Ochiltree meant a good laugh—a long series of good laughs—and it is a part of legislative tradition that the Colonel's stories have done for him what plain, unvarnished and prosaic logic failed to do for others.

Judge William B. Ochiltree, a lawyer of great repute in the South, was determined that young Tom should be brought up in the strait and narrow path. He thought his son would be a quiet man, of gentle habits, and thereupon placed him under the care and tutelage of two Catholic priests. The priests labored in Nacogdoches parish, where the boy was born, and they tried industriously to keep their pupil in lines of thought that might possibly take him into the clergy. The lad stood it for a time, and at the age of 15 suddenly took the matter into his own hands. He wanted to fight Indians. The priests were powerless, and, with a great deal of shrewd planning, young Tom made an enlistment as a private in the Texas Rangers, starting west for the scalps of the Apaches and Comanches in 1854. A year knocked all the romance out of this boyish ambition, and he was willing to come home and buckle down to his books. He always had some outside plan in his head, and while he was still under his majority in years he was editor of a paper and had been sent as a delegate to the conventions in Charleston and Baltimore. He studied law and was barely out of his teens when his father took him into his office as a partner. The father went away from town one day, and while he was gone the boy had the sign changed. San Antonio awakened the next morning to laugh for years at the strange name of the firm — "Thomas P. Ochiltree and Father, Attorneys." The grown man was no less original than the boy had been, and his wit increased as the years brought the stubby, fat youngster into a rotund, broad-girthed statesman.

Ochiltree fought his way to a colonelcy in the Confederate army. After the war he told the people of Texas, through his Galveston paper, "to stop crying and get solace in work." His ability was marked enough to attract the attention of President Grant, and Grant made him the marshal for Texas. He and the President became great friends. It is said that Grant delighted in seeing no one more than he did in seeing Tom Ochiltree.

Texas owes as much to Ochiltree as it does to any other man that ever came from the State. He has been untiring in his efforts to keep the State before the public. He did so much in this respect with the papers that he edited he was at one time sent to Europe as emigrant commissioner for Texas. This gave him opportunity for many trips abroad, and he became as fluent in the continental languages as in English. He actually became a feature in the London papers, and the old journals used to advertise interviews with him as the New York papers now advertise their weekly grist of Sunday matter.

Col. Ochiltree has a reputation for knowing more about good things to eat, for having eaten more good things, for having helped more people to eat the best things than any other living man in this country. He is also no second on the proposition of beverages. The good taste in eating and drinking was natural for him, and he declares he protested loudly and industriously because the nurse insisted he should have nothing but milk during his very early life. He likes the good things of life no more than he does the bright men in life. Where he is there is a certain center of keen wit and ringing stories. He is versatile in his eating, as well as in his mind. He stands the chuck of the plains as well as the chef d'ouvres of the metropolis, and he will relish the poor stuff of the chapparel if the men are about the table that make the diners forget the dinner.

A MONSTER BELL.

It's the Biggest in the World that Is in Ringing Order.

On the principle that a living dog is better than a dead lion, a bell that is whole should be better than one that is cracked, even though the latter be the bigger of the two. For some time past there has been a sort of dead-heat between the two biggest bells in the world, the one at the cathedral in Moscow, and the other at the unfinished pagoda of Mengoon, a little north of Mandalay. If the former was the bigger of the two, it was cracked, and therefore useless as a bell, while the latter, though whole, had dragged its supports down till it rested on the ground, and would not emit any sound. Now, however, it has been reswung, and can claim attention as the biggest bell, in working order, in the world.

In 1896 the Burmese community decided to have the bell raised, and employed the Irrawaddy Flotilla Company, limited, to do the work. The work has been successfully accomplished. The bell hangs on a large steel girder, with a distributing girder on the top of it, and the main girder rests on two large iron columns, 25 feet high, which rest on concrete foundations. The bell swings, with its lower rim about three feet from the ground. The weight is about 98 tons, the circumference at the base being 51½ and at the top 26 feet. It averages over a foot in thickness. The bell itself is over 12 feet high, and the shackle, which was intended for logs of timber, about 12 feet. The pin in the shackle has a diameter of 16 inches. The bell was cast about the beginning of the century by King Bodaw-paya as an accompaniment to the huge brick pagoda which he never finished.

TEN new cases and one death is the latest fever news we have from Montgomery. Selma has five cases, and on Sunday last twenty-two hundred people cleared out of that city; only about 300 white people are now in Selma.

THE sickness of the Editor of THE BANNER has prevented us from making the full change to THE BANNER we had intended. Under the circumstances we are glad to be able to get out the paper at all. We request all our correspondents to send in their communications early next week to enable us to produce the best county paper Chilton has ever seen. All friends of the paper can greatly assist us by showing this issue to their friends and neighbors and inducing them to become subscribers.

CLANTON is quarantined against infected towns, but whomever is supposed to see that the quarantine is enforced certainly cannot be commended for vigilence. Sunday morning a train load of refugees from Montgomery pulled up at the depot. Hundreds of heads, arms and bodies were protuding from the open windows. On the track was apparently all the negroes in town, as well as some white people exchanging greetings with the refuges. As the train pulled out a negro leaned out of the window, snatched a hat from the head of a colored gentleman on the track, throwing him in exchange a dirty, greasy cap, which said colored gentleman has been wearing ever since—fever germs or not. Great is our quarantine.

SOME weeks ago Gov. Johnston, acting upon the report of that eminent mathematician, Examiner Cowan, declared the office of Tax Assessor of Coosa county to be vacant and appointed J. M. Nolen to the vacancy. S. L. Moore, the Tax Assessor elected by the people, could not see the force of being removed for nothing in this summary manner, and declined to recognize the Governor's appointee, and went on as usual with his appointments. Nolen also issued a list of appointments. Moore brought suit against Nolen in the Circuit Court which has been in session at Rockford the last two weeks, with the result that the Judge ruled the appointment of Nolen by the Governor was unconstitutional and consequently void. The case is to be carried to the Supreme Court. We congratulate Mr. Moore upon his victory.

Something to Depend On.

Mr. James Jones, of the drug firm of Jones & Son, Cowden, Ill., in speaking of Dr. King's New Discovery says, that last winter his wife was attacked with La Grippe and her case grew so serious that physicians at Cowden and Pana could do nothing for her. It seemed to develop into Hasty Consumption. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in store, and selling lots of it, he took a bottle home, and to the surprise of all she began to get better from first dose, and half dozen dollar bottles cured her sound and well. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is guaranteed to do this good work. Try it. Free trial bottle at Dr. J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 28, 1897.

Secretary Gage's infamous financial plans are given out and are substantially as follows: The issue of gold bonds, redeemable at the option of the government after 20 and within 50 years, bearing interest at the rate of 2½ per cent., these bonds to be used for refunding the whole present bonded debt of the United States $200,000,000 of them to be sold for cash.

The establishment of a separate bureau in the Treasury, to be devoted to and entitled "Issue and Redemption"; a fund of $325,000 000 of gold to be deposited in this bureau; to redeem outstanding paper money, but to disburse none of this paper money except for gold; the extension of the national banking system, so as to permit the organization of banks with only $25,000 capital in towns of 4,000 inhabitants or less, the repeal of all the tax on bank circulation; authority to the banks to deposit the 2½ per cent. refunding bonds and issue notes up to their par value, first to the extent of each bank's capital, and then to 25 per cent. above that. The restriction of bank notes to denominations of $10 and upwards, with discretion vested in the Secretary of the Treasury to issue silver certificates and all government notes, except ones, twos, fives and higher denominations, as his best judgment may dictate. Analysis of this much heralded plan will show it to be but a concentration of all the previous schemes to contract the money supply, pile up the nation's bonded debt and place us at the mercy of the money sharks.

Although the reform press of the country has been discussing the disposal of the Union Pacific Railroad for years and frequent mention of the approaching settlement has been made in these columns, not until the last week has the metropolitan press taken it up. Now flaming headlines announce that unless the president interferes the country will be robbed by a syndicate formed for that purpose, of many millions. So far no one has expressed either hope or belief that the chief executive will make any motion to prevent the robbery. Senator Foraker claims that President McKinley is powerless in the matter as he found the deal really closed before he became president. Cleveland has thus to take the blame, but those of us who remember the two millions donated by the men who make up the syndicate that is ready to take possession of this road, to the Hanna campaign fund, believe that the chief blame rests on the present administration. November 2 is the time set for the so-called sale of the road. No more splendid opportunity for testing government ownership than this can be desired, but it is manifest that the people will be robbed, after having already enriched beyond the dreams of avarice the first owners of this road which seems destined to be as linked with infamy as the historic star routes and whisky rings of the Grant administration.

German law makers are busy getting up a set of tariff laws that they announce through the German press are intended to be sufficiently retaliatory to satisfy the feelings of those manufacturers who feel aggrieved by the McKinley Bill.

The Single taxers of all the great cities are sending money to aid Henry George in his campaign in New York, feeling that his election would be a triumph for the faith of which he is a chief exponent.

Tamany has issued a circular in which the George boom is spoken of as a matter too small to deserve attention. Nobody is fooled thereby.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

The BANNER office is the only Job Printing establishment in Chilton and Coosa counties. We give you best work at lower prices than you can get elsewhere. Give us a trial breed in the bowels. Kill them and you are safe from the awful disease. Cascarets destroy the germs throughout the system and make it impossible for new ones to form. Cascarets are the only reliable safe-guard for young and old against Yellow Jack. 10c, 25c, 50c, all druggists.

The A. & A. Air Line.

The first dirt on the Atlanta and Selma Air Line was broken last Thursday with imposing ceremonies. Fifty mules and one hundred men were put to work and these will be quadrupled in a few days. When ten miles is graded track will be laid and trains put on. The road will then be rushed through Autauga, Chilton, Coosa, Elmore, Tallapoosa, Clay and Randolph counties and on to Atlanta. The road will, when completed, form the short line from Atlanta to New Orleans.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many recommendations included therein, we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results, is putting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to every one afflicted with a cough or cold in any form—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by Dr. J. S. Johnson, Jr. Druggist.

MR. R. C. PHELPS, the leading pension attorney of Belfast, N. Y., writes: "I was discharged from the army on account of ill health, and suffered from heart trouble ever since. I frequently had fainting and smothering spells. My form was bent as a man of 80. I constantly wore an overcoat, even in summer, for fear of taking cold. I could not attend to my business. My rest was broken by severe pains about the heart and left shoulder. Three years ago I commenced using Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, notwithstanding I had used so much patent medicine and taken drugs from doctors for years without being helped. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure restored me to health. It is truly a wonderful medicine and it affords me much pleasure to recommend this remedy to everyone."

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

Lee's Primary History of the United States.

This new and attractive book has just reached our desk, and we find it not only a good history for beginners but a good reader as well. The book contains 246 pages, is beautifully illustrated and substantially bound. The price is 50 cents, the exchange, 30 cents. This completes the series of school histories written by Mrs. Susan P. Lee, of Lexington, Va., and published by B. F. Johnson Publishing Company, Richmond, Va. The first two books of this series, the Advanced and the Brief, which appeared a year or two ago, have become very popular, and have stirred up a greatly increased interest in the study of history throughout the South. Now that the series is complete, it is considered the best arranged and most teachable series of school histories before the public. The publishers will be glad to furnish full particulars to any one interested.

IF WE KNEW.

If we knew the woe and heartache
Waiting for us down the road,
If our lips could taste the wormwood,
If our backs could feel the load;
Would we waste to-day in wishing
For a time that ne'er can be;
Would we wait in such impatience
For our ships to come from sea?

If we knew the baby fingers
Pressed against the window pane
Would be stiff and cold to-morrow—
Never trouble us again;
Would the bright eyes of our darling
Catch the frown upon our brow?
Would the print of rosy fingers
Vex us then as they do now?

Ah! those little ice-cold fingers,
How they point our memories back
To the hasty words and actions
Strewn along our backward track!
How those little hands remind us,
As in snowy grace they lie,
Not to scatter thorns, but roses,
For our reaping by-and-by!

Strange we never prize the music
Till the sweet-voiced bird has flown!
Strange that we should slight the violets
Till the lovely flowers are gone!
Strange that summer skies and sunshine
Never seem one-half so fair
As when winter's snowy pinions
Shake their white down in the air!

Lips from which the seal of silence
None but God can roll away
Never blossomed in such beauty
As adorns the mouth to-day!
And sweet words that freight our memory
With their beautiful perfume
Come to us in sweeter accents
Through the portals of the tomb.

Let us gather up the sunbeams
Lying all along our path;
Let us keep the wheat and roses,
Casting out the thorns and chaff;
Let us find our sweetest comfort
In the blossoms of to-day,
With a patient hand removing
All the briers from the way.

WHALEN'S SHEEP-RANCH.

Whalen's luck was copious, and it became proverbial; the facts here recorded are but specimen pages from the book of his experience.

When the Consolidated Canal Company went into insolvency, its assets consisted of a mortgaged right of way through the sagebrush and several completed but detached sections of a big ditch.

Mr. Brick Whalen, the contractor on section three, had finished the heavy work there and was preparing to move camp to section six when the company went broke. It was, in fact, upon the very day the suspension was posted that Whalen, having had his contract work inspected, took the engineer's certificate up to headquarters to get his check. He received instead a statement that the company was in temporary difficulties, and an assurance that it would soon resume.

Whalen had before this worked for shaky corporations; he knew better, and lost no time in acting on his knowledge.

"No good howlin' over a broken pipe or tryin' to save the pieces," he told himself. To his gang of twenty men, he said: "By's the company's broke and so am I. I can't pay ye and I can't feed ye. You got to rustle."

"What's the matter with us taking the mules?" said one.

"These mules and scrapers don't belong to me, as I've often told ye," said Whalen, whose custom it was to refer to a legendary backer. "This ditching outfit is the property of Martin, of San Francisco, and any man that meddles with it will get the sheriff after him."

"I'll take one, just the same," said Shorty, "and tell Martin he can have him again when my wages is paid. That's about fair."

A few others took the same view of the equities involved, and took mules, to which Whalen made only a wordy resistance. Most of the men were induced to accept orders on the defunct company for the amount due them, payable with large interest. "And if you don't get it very soon, the interest will double your money," said Whalen.

When the last man had gone, Whalen went out to the corral and counted the mules. "Forty-one head; that was a close call," said he.

It was late in the season to find another job of scraping, but the mules could not live on sagebrush and were at once started for the railroad. On a small stream where camp was made one night a band of trail sheep was also camped. Whalen eyed them disdainfully.

"I see the beggars eat sage," said he.

"Why, certainly," replied the sheepman; "that's the finest kind of feed for sheep."

"I wish work-mules would do that," said Brick. "I never was so near a sheep in my life," he continued; "the smell of 'em a mile away is enough for me. Funny little fellows, and they look some like mules, with ears and tails cut off. What do you do with them?"

"Double our money on them every twelve months," was the reply.

No extended description of sheep-farming would have impressed the fancy of the veteran mule-skinner, but "double your money" was his own familiar phrase for describing any hopeful venture, and on that evening he smoked many pipes of black plug over it. A brute that can thrive on a brush diet and double your money every year is an interesting creature.

At daybreak Whalen was in the sheep-camp negotiating a trade of sheep for mules on a basis of fifty to one, and prepared to accept much less. Three days later he sat in the door of the shack which had long done duty as mess-house on section three of the canal, as many an evening before he had sat watching the mules come in from water. To-night there was never a mule in sight. Down the breeze came a pungent odor and a tinkling of little bells. Over the crest of an adjacent hill appeared the flock browsing on the rank sage.

"They do look some like mules," he soliloquized, "and I'll bet I'm the only Irishman in America ever owned a herd of sheep."

Winter came and passed, and the only Irishman prospered. By roofing in a cut with brush he had commodious sheds, and cross-sections of poles divided the broad ditch into as many corals as he chose. The sheep were fat and carried heavy fleeces.

Whalen had for help two boys who had wandered there and asked for work. He had proposed to hire one of them, but the boys protested that they had never been separated, and that if they got jobs at different ranches "the other one wouldn't know where the other one was," a contingency which they could not abide. So Whalen offered to take the two at the price of one, and on that basis they shared with him the shack, herded the flock, and cooked the grub. They soon knew as much, or as little, about sheep as Brick himself; and the proprietor found opportunity to break the monotony of camp life by occasional trips to the railroad and once to San Francisco.

"I'm going to see my friend Martin," he told the boys. "Now tend to business and don't let any get away." And the boys gave their word that not one should escape.

During Whalen's absence in the city he went out of the sheep business even more abruptly than he went into it the previous autumn. The instruction to the boys was fulfilled to the letter—not any got away.

It happened on a hot day in June when, contrary to usual custom, the boys brought the flock to camp and the shade of sheds at noontime. It never rains in that arid region, but sometimes pours. This was one of those times. Charged with ice and water, a great black cloud came drifting down the wind, and emptied out its load upon the camp and the hill-side above it. The canal, curving around its base, formed an eave-trough for the whole mountain and poured several thousand inches of water into Whalen's improvised sheep-sheds. The flood very soon subsided, but when the cloud had passed and the sun again shone forth, there were no living sheep. Not many minutes are required to drown a rat in a hole.

Meanwhile the boys, greatly frightened by the sudden storm, and with no thought for the safety of the flock, were in the shack. The hail pounded and the wind shook it. Water covered the floor.

"Pray, Billy," said the one on the barrel.

"No, you do it," he answered from the table-top.

The shack had no window, and, with the door closed, it was pretty dark in there. When Whalen reached home two hours later, the floor was still wet and the boys were yet roosting on table and barrel, but outside, in the bright sunlight, the ground appeared already almost dry. A solitary goat stood upon the shed roof; he had been among the sheep in the pen.

"You can't keep a good man down any more than you can a goat," was Brick's comment on the catastrophe.

While Whalen was working the boys double time at pulling the wool from the dead sheep, he had the happy thought of stocking his ranch with bees. Having money enough from the proceeds of his wool sale to buy a hundred stands, he promptly carried the thought into effect.

Again he sat down in the door of his shack to "double his money."

"This is better than sheep," said he; "for they herds themselves. And they are like mules in one thing—you are liable to get hurt if you fool with 'em."

This wave of prosperity broke up as soon as former ones had done, for he had imported a bad case of foul brood, and within a year the hundred swarms had petered out. When we went down there last summer in the interest of a new company which has taken up the work of completing the canal, Whalen gathered the bones out of the old shed in the cut and hauled them to the railroad, where he sold them for fertilizer, realizing enough to buy two more mules. With his four-mule team he is at work in the ditch for day's wages. Somewhat grizzled now, and not so brick-red of hair and whisker as formerly, he is happy as ever, and sanguine that he will double his money.

"Here's hoping" that he may.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Title of Admiral.

It should here be explained that the title of "Admiral" was not used in England in the earlier days, says the London Nautical Magazine. In fact, the better opinion, is that it was not so used before the beginning of the fourteenth century. He was called Capitaneus Maris (Captain of the Sea), "Keeper of the seacoasts," "Captain of the King's mariners." The title "Admiral" or "Amiral," probably derived from the Arabic amir or emir (prefect), was used in foreign countries much earlier than in England, and came to us from France. Prynne ("Animadversions," page 106), states that there were admirals and an admiralty court in England as early as the time of Henry I., derived from our ancient Saxon kings—Alfred, Edgar, Ethelred and others who had the dominion of the British ocean. None of these kings probably was more potent than King Edgar, who, possessing an absolute dominion of the neighboring sea, sailed around about it every year and secured it with a constant guard. These ships, being very stout ones, were in number 1,200; some writers even affirm that there were 4,800 sailing ships.

Whenever you hear anyone speak of himself as "high spirited," it is nearly always a sign that he is a little bit silly.

PASSING OF THE MUSTANG.

Wild Horses Are No Longer of Any Value.

The wild horse of Texas has become one of the greatest nuisances within the border of the Lone Star State. Not satisfied with its own freedom the wild horse has adopted the tactics of the Apache and of the Sioux and stampedes its brethren. Novelists have taught us to believe that the wild mustang is emblematic of freedom pure and noble. The Texas ranchman regards him as an emissary of the evil one, for he brings to his ranch despair and loss.

For the last decade the droves of horses that run in Texas have been steadily increasing in number and strength. Years ago it was worth while to catch these animals to sell. Nowadays it is hard work to sell a mustang for use even as a cow pony. Formerly it was the case that there was no horse for the stockman, the cattle-grower, like the Texas pony which had run wild for the first four or five years of its life. Lean and sinewy as an Arab with the endurance of an Indian and a capacity for steady speed that can only be likened to a locomotive he was a treasure. Well seasoned, a cow-pony could be ridden 100 miles in a single day and come out of the encounter with fatigue with flying colors.

The wild horse, however—that same animal which the 10-cent novelist describes as the "fiery untamed steed"—believes the sweets of freedom are so very sweet that all his brethern in bondage should share them. With this in mind therefore he swoops down upon the inclosure of the ranchman, induces the cow ponies to brave the terrors of jumping a barbwire fence and takes chances on clearing the sides of the corral. The result is that the stockman, unless one of the riders stops on guard, is likely to wake up in the morning and find his herd stampeded.

If it is the round-up the first thing the wranglers know a thunder of hoofs comes from the prairie, a shrill neighing, which the herd answers in equally shrill notes. The hoof beats sound nearer and nearer, the herd grows more and more excited and uneasy, until finally the wild mustangs dash in and mingle with the cow ponies and in a moment more all are off for some place, no one knows where. The wranglers, or herders, will be fortunate, indeed, if they can control their own animals and avoid being forced to join in the stampede.

Nothing Daunted.

There are brave men everywhere, among all classes of humanity, but the man who has the courage to fight despair, who sets himself resolutely to work out a future from what would seem to be the ruins of a shattered life, is not the least of the world's heroes. Forty years ago such a man met fate, and conquered, and in the conquering laid the foundation of an industry that had before existed only as an adjunct to another calling.

The making of models of newly patented machines, models that embody an inventor's idea, and yet are so small that they can conveniently be carried in the pocket or in a hand-bag, is an industry very useful, and indeed essential, in this age of invention. Without it the inventor could not well sell his goods, for a customer cannot be induced to wade through a pamphlet of description, though he will look at a miniature working model, and at once see its advantages.

The making of such models used to be left solely to watchmakers. These men had no knowledge of practical engineering, and sometimes could not follow the idea of the inventor. Yet to them he was bound to apply until about forty years ago.

At that time a misfortune befell a skillful London mechanic, intrusted with the most delicate work in a large engineering establishment. He was attacked by partial paralysis, which deprived him of the use of his legs, but left his arms uninjured. He could never again hope to leave his chair, and his former work was now an impossibility.

He was, however, too brave a man to despair. His arms were free, and he determined to devote himself to such engineering work as was still possible to him. He turned his attention to miniature models—microscopic models, they might be called, since it was impossible to make out the parts without a magnifier. To his efforts it is due that the making of working models is now a distinct branch of industry.

Two of his models, described in Chambers' Journal, were masterpieces of workmanship. One was a model of the engines of the ironclad Warrior, and the other a tiny copy of the steamship Great Britain, engines and all. The first was the most minute pair of engines the world had ever seen. They stood on a three-penny piece, and the same coin balanced them in the scales. Every detail was there in its exact proportion, and the engines worked with amazing speed when simply blown with the breath.

The other model was equally wonderful. It was the smallest steamship ever fashioned. It was eight inches long, and its screw propeller was hardly larger than a pea. Its whole weight, when ready for sea, was an ounce and a quarter. The engines weighed less than half an ounce. It was a sight to see the tiny ship plowing its way across a bath-tub.

An Obnoxious Rivalry.

There are two policemen in Cambridge, Mass., who have been striving for records in the number of arrests they make. So annoying has this become that the citizens in that one section of the town have made complaint to the authorities.

Do All that You Can.

"I can not do much," said a little star,
"To make this dark world bright;
My silvery beams cannot pierce far
Into the gloom of night;
Yet I am a part of God's great plan,
And so I will do the best that I can."

"What can be the use," said a fleecy cloud,
"Of these few drops that I hold?
They will hardly bend the lily proud,
If caught in her chalice of gold;
But I am part of God's great plan,
So my treasures I'll give as well as I can."

A child went merrily forth to play,
But, thought, like a silver thread,
Kept winding in and out all day
Though the happy golden head—
Mother said: "Darling, do all that you can,
For you are a part of God's great plan."

Quite Enough to Laugh About.

First Little Boy.—What are you laughin' at?

Second Little Boy.—Father's scoldin' everybody in the house 'cause he says he can't lay a thing down a minute without some one pickin' it up an' losin' it—he, he, he!

"What's he lost?"

"His pencil."

"Where is it?"

"Behind his ear all the time."

Not a Coward.

While a number of white boys were skating in Kentucky, a negro boy came to the creek and commenced putting on his skates. The skaters tried to drive him away, but he would not go. This aroused their anger, and one of them challenged him to fight and called him a coward when he refused.

A little while later the pugilistic boy broke through the ice. The white boys ran frantically about, too excited and frightened to try to rescue him from his peril; but the negro threw off his coat, dived into the icy water, and happily succeeded in saving the life of the youngster who had called him a coward.

The rescued boy cannot be destitute of the sense of shame, and in this he has no doubt been sufficiently punished without having his name printed. The name of the colored boy is Wilbur Travis.

A wicked old Wam-bel-lee Woo,
Goes about in the dark crying: 'Boo!"
And I tremble o' nights, when the light is put out,
For fear that this creature, in roaming about,
May chance upon me and then wickedly shout
His weird and uncanny cry: "Boo!"

That this wandering Wam-bel-lee Woo
May be harmless, I'll grant may be true;
But his shadowy form and his great glaring eyes,
And the swish of his inky black wings, as he flies,
Will alarm me, I'm sure, as he passes and cries,
In the night, by my bedside, his "Boo!"

This wicked old Wam-bel-lee Woo
I have never yet seen—nor have you—
But I have a queer feeling that, roaming about,
There is just such a creature, without any doubt;
And some night he'll scare me, I'm sure, with his shout—
His startling and terrible "Boo!"

Who Stole the Eggs?

Sometimes a monkey is quite as smart at mischief-making as a boy. A French writer who has studied monkeys for many years tells this little story:

At the Saintes, an island dependent upon Guadaloupe, a small detachment of infantry was quartered in a house in which it messed, and in which there was consequently a supply of provisions distributed all about. The supply of eggs was placed upon a shelf over a door, so as to put it out of reach of rats and other marauders.

One day the cook, upon going to get some eggs, came near falling to the floor with the entire stock upon observing that five or six eggs, placed at the top of the basket, consisted of nothing but empty shells. Upon examining them he saw that the thief, after making a very small hole at the point, had sucked out the contents and then carefully placed the egg in the same spot whence he had taken it.

There was a negro in the employ of the post, and as negroes are gourmands there was no one else to suspect. So he was accused and threatened with a flogging. He protested his innocence, and swore that, if he were spared, he would do his best to discover the guilty person.

In addition to the negro there was a monkey at the post, and the former, knowing better than the Europeans the malice of the monkey, said to himself at once: "It was that monkey that sucked those eggs."

He therefore set himself to watch, and after two or three days that the thief had allowed to elapse, doubtless in order that his crime might be forgotten, he saw the monkey climb up the door frame, put his hand up to the shelf and seat himself thereon. Thus master of the place, the animal delicately picked up an egg, made a hole in it with the nail of his fore finger, and then sucked out the contents.

Then, with all sorts of precautions, he replaced the egg, when the negro, allowing himself to be seen, closed the door and siezed the thief as he was about to jump to the floor.

The monkey was dragged before the captain, acting very much ashamed, and the negro thus proved his innocence.

A Sparrow that Rode a Wheel.

Birds have all sorts of queer adventures, and one of the oddest of recent days is that which befell a sparrow at Anderson, Ind. It flew into a knife and bar manufactory, and, getting too near a small wheel, was sucked in. The workmen noticed it go into the wheel, but, knowing that the cylinder was revolving at a speed of 130 revolutions a minute, took it for granted that the bird had been killed. When the factory shut down at noon the men were astonished to hear a gentle chirp from the wheel, and, lo! there was the sparrow, as well as ever. They found that the bird had clung to the strengthening rod, on the inside of the wheel, and was in a scandalized condition. They picked it up and put it on a table, and thence, after collecting its wits, the little bird flew to freedom. The wheel in which the bird rode made 31,000 revolutions while he was in it, and so the tiny feathered creature traveled seventy-three and eight-tenths miles in the embrace of a fly-wheel.

A Battle in the Air.

A gallantly contested battle between a small sparrowhawk and a flock of black martins was seen the other day among the hills near Duarte, reports an Arizona paper. The hawk had captured a half-grown dove and was flying low and heavily when he was vigorously attacked by a flock of black martins.

He dropped his prey and dashed upward, then swooped down upon one of the martins. With the little bird in his claws the hawk dropped toward the earth, tearing at his unfortunate little antagonist as he came. A trail of black feathers followed the pair until they were about fifty feet from the ground, when the martin fell like a stone and the hawk shot upward again. The flock of martins instantly closed around him, and within another moment or two a second bird was torn to pieces and dropped. This maneuver was repeated three or four times, each time ending in the death of a bird, before the flock of martins gave up the pursuit and allowed the hawk to escape. Upon examination each one of the birds was found to be disemboweled and terribly mutilated.

Queensland Beef in London.

The low prices in London for Queensland, Australia, meat have adversely affected the meat trade, writes the Rockhampton Bulletin. A very active discussion is going on at present as to the causes of these low prices, and it is evident from the various contributions to the controversy that the old explanation of the all-powerful and rapacious middleman is falling into disrepute. In Britain capital is ever scouring this country for investments which will yield even modest returns, and it is impossible to suppose that if there were such enormous profits in retailing Queensland beef as some people would have us believe, there would not have been a rush into that business which would quickly have brought profits to the level of those returned by other retail concerns. It is a very comforting thing to put down all our troubles in the meat industry to the rascally middleman. The middleman has no friends, and everyone is free to hit him. But the middleman is not the criminal he is made out to be. The criminal, there is some reason to believe, will have to be sought in Queensland. The facts appear to be that our beef is not so good as that of our rivals, and our methods of putting it on the market are far from satisfactory. There are too many complaints heard of meat being landed in a wretched state for them all to be false or exaggerated. The difficulties in the way of a perfect preparation and handling of the meat are no doubt serious; but they will not be removed by ignoring them and placing the blame for the unsatisfactory results on the wrong shoulders.

Texan Fondness for Oratory.

As Judge Lurton of Tennessee was once going through Texas he met an old Texan who described at length the people who had settled in his neighborhood, a large number of them having come from Kentucky. "And there's them Kaintucklians," said he. "They're the speakin'est people I ever see in my life, fer a fact. Why, whenever we hev a shootin' match, a campmeetin', a weddin' or a fun'ral, you can jest bet that them Kaintucklians will be thar, and afore you knows it they'll be offerin' resolutions and a-makin' speeches tell you cain't rest. To tell the truth, jedge, they can't cut a watermelon without a speech."

Thomas Jefferson.

The story that Thomas Jefferson was a descendant of Pocahontas, though often repeated, is not credited by his most reliable biographers. It probably arose from the fact that the Randolph, Bolling, Fleming and other influential families of Virginia, with some of whom the Jefferson family was allied by marriage, were descended from Thomas Rolfe, the son of Pocahontas.

Senator Mills' Long Service.

Of the twenty-six Senators who served terms in the lower house before coming to the Senate, Senator Mills of Texas served longest, his term being from 1873 to 1892.

HUSBANDS ARE PLENTIFUL.

Colonies Where Any Spinster Stands a Good Chance.

The spinster who wants a husband need only emigrate, for if all accounts are true, the different European colonies in Africa and Asia as well as in distant regions in Canada are destitute of women. In the French colonies even where the conditions are the most favorable for colonization, as in Algeria, there are four to six Frenchmen for every French woman. For the most part, there is no family life, and dissipation is more general than would be the case if there were more homes and more of the social life that is possible only when the sexes are nearly equal in numbers.

It is not so easy to solve the problem in the French colonies, for the young women of France are not at all eager to expatriate themselves, even in find good husbands and comfortable homes. There are hundreds of colonists who would like to get married.

British and Dutch colonies do not find it so difficult to induce the fair sex of their old homes to share their lot in newer parts of the world, or at least they have found it really difficult to prevent wives from the mother country, many of the Dutch in the last half have not disdained to be married in the wedlock with the daughters of the native.

Even to-day, in large parts of Canada, Australia and Cape Colony, there are not women enough to supply the demand for wives.

But when the societies that promote the emigration of women to the colonies send out a party, the last thing in their minds, apparently, is the better chance these women will have of getting husbands. They send women who lack work to colonies that lack women.

Their character and fitness for emigration must be approved, and then they are sent on the long journey in charge of matrons, who see to their comfort, and are responsible for their safety until situations that will yield them a living are found for them.

The United Women's British Emigration Association, the largest of all these societies, would refuse to assist any woman to emigrate if she should openly avow that she was seeking a husband rather than opportunities for work.

Gruel in the Parlor.

The old-time hospitality of the South included certain established customs, the importance of which was felt by all, from the master to the youngest servant on the place. How sacred these observances were may be judged from the difficulty which Mr. John Howard Payne, the author of "Home, Sweet Home," once had in obtaining a humble bowl of gruel instead of the more elegant refreshments usually offered to visitors. He was living at a little tavern in a Southern town, and went with woebegone face to a friend's house one morning.

"Miss Mary," he patiently inquired, "do you know what gruel is?"

"Indeed, I do. Why, what is the matter?"

"Oh, those horrid biscuit at the tavern seem compounded of saleratus, lard and half-baked flour. Could you have me a dish of gruel prepared?"

"Certainly I can," she answered, and hastened to the kitchen to lay the case before Aunt Minda, the family cook.

"Lor, Miss Mary," exclaimed the ebony priestess of pots and pans, "yes know yer maw not gwine ter like that. I never knowed gruel carried inter the parlor ter company. Yer got no pride, chile."

"But, Aunt Minda—"

"Go 'long inter the house an' give yer frien' fruit-cake an' pineapple cheese, Miss Mary."

"But, Aunt Minda—"

"Don' keer chile! Gruel ain' ter be carried inter the parlor, nohow."

"But Mr. Payne has dyspepsia, Aunt Minda. He's sick, and doesn't want anything but your gruel."

This appeal conquered the old negress, who prided herself as much on nursing as on cooking, and the gruel was prepared.

But Rob, the house-boy, had yet to be reckoned with. He was as flustered as Aunt Minda by such a compromise of dignity. He would have proudly and promptly presented cake and wine, but gruel, in his opinion, would besmirch the family escutcheon forever. He entered into a long argument, which ended in his sulkily carrying the tray of gruel to the visitor. His wounded feelings were mollified, however, when he saw the steaming beverage quaffed like nectar.

"Rob," said Mr. Payne, "is there any more gruel where that came from?"

"Lor, yes, Mr. Payne! There is barrels!"

"Well, bring me another bowl, then," said the visitor, gratefully, slipping a dollar into the boy's hand.

The Thing He Forgot.

The absent-minded German professor continues to contribute to the gaiety of the nations. Lately he had late in night in his chamber, disrobed himself, when he sat down with his head in his hands.

"Donnerwetter!" he said. "There was something I was to do. What was it now?"

He sat and pondered intensely for half an hour, growing colder and colder. Finally he sprang up.

"Ah, I have it!" he exclaimed. "I intended to go to bed!"

Story of the Three Taverns—The Ruin Wrought by Liquor—Crimson Wave of Dissipation Has Destroyed More Sailors Than the Ocean—Mankind's Curse.

TEXT: "They came to meet us as far as Appii Forum and the Three Taverns."—Acts xxviii., 15.

Seventeen miles south of Rome, Italy, there was a village of unfortunate name and bibulous suggestion. A tavern is a place of entertainment, and, in our time, part of the entertainment is a provision of intoxicants. One such place you would think would have been enough for that Italian village. No! There were three of them, with doors open for entertainment and obfuscation. The world has never lacked stimulating drinks. You remember the condition of Noah on one occasion, and of Abigail's husband, Nabal, and the story of Belshazzar's feast, and Benhadad, and the new wine in old bottles, and whole paragraphs on prohibition enactment thousands of years before Neal Dow was born; and no doubt there were whole shelves of inflammatory liquid in these hotels which gave the name to the village where Paul's friends came to meet him; namely, the Three Taverns. In vain I search ancient geography for some satisfying account of that village. Two roads came from the sea coast to that place; the one from Actium and the other from Puteoli, the last road being the one which Paul traveled. There were, no doubt, in that village houses of merchandise and mechanics' shops and professional offices, but nothing is known of them. All we know of that village is that it had a profusion of inns—the Three Taverns. Paul did not choose any one of these taverns as the place to meet his friends. He certainly was very alectemous, but they made the selection. He had enlarged about keeping the body under, though once he prescribed for a young theological student a stimulating cordial for a stomachic disorder, but he told him to take only a small dose—"a little wine for thy stomach's sake."

One of the worst things about these Three Taverns was that they had especial temptation for those who had just come ashore. People who had just landed at Actium or Puteoli were soon tempted by these three hotels, which were only a little way up from the beach. Those who are disordered of the sea (for it is a physical disorganizer), instead of waiting for the gradual return of physical equipoise, are apt to take artificial means to brace up. Of the one million sailors now on the sea, how few of them coming ashore will escape the Three Taverns! After surviving hurricanes, cyclones, icebergs, collisions, many of them are wrecked in harbor. I warrant that if a calculation were made of the comparative number of sailors lost at sea and lost ashore, those drowned by the crimson wave of dissipation would far outnumber those drowned by the salt water.

Alas! that the large majority of those who go down to the sea in ships should have twice to pass the Three Taverns, namely: Before they go out and after they come in. That fact was what aroused Father Taylor, the great sailors' preacher, at the Sailors' Bethel, Boston, and at a public meeting at Charlestown he said, "All the machinery of the drunkard-making, soul-destroying business is in perfect running order, from the low grog holes on the docks, kept open to ruin my poor sailor boys, to the great establishments in Still House Square, and when we ask men what is to be done about it, they say 'you can't help it,' and yet there is Bunker Hill, and you say you can't stop it; and up there are Lexington and Concord." We might answer Father Taylor's remark by saying, "The trouble is not that we can't stop it, but that we won't stop it." We must have more generations slain before the world will fully wake up to the evil. That which tempted the travelers of old who came up from the seaports of Actium and Puteoli is now the ruin of seafaring men as they come up from the coasts of all the continents, namely, the Three Taverns.

There are streets in some of our cities where there are three or four taverns on every block; aye, where every other house is a tavern. You can take the Arabic numeral of my text, the three, and put on the right hand side of it one cipher, and two ciphers, and four ciphers, and that reinforcement of numerals will not express the statistics of American rummeries. Even if it were a good, healthy business, supplying a necessity, an article superbly nutritious, it is a business mightily overdone, and there are three taverns where there ought to be only one.

The fact is, there are, in another sense, Three Taverns now; the gorgeous tavern for the affluent, the medium tavern for the working classes, and the tavern of the slums, and they stand in line, and many people, beginning with the first, come down, through the second, and come out at the third. At the first of the three taverns, the wines are of celebrated vintage, and the whiskies are said to be pure, and they are quaffed from cut glass, at marble side-tables, under pictures approaching master-pieces. The patrons pull off their kid gloves, and hand their silk hats to the waiter, and push back their hair with a hand on one finger of which is a cameo.

But those patrons are apt to stop visiting that place. It is not the money that a man pays for drinks, for what are a few hundred or a few thousand dollars to a man of large income; but their brain gets touched, and that unbalances their judgment, and they can see fortunes in enterprises surcharged with disaster. In longer or shorter time they change taverns, and they come down to tavern the second, where the pictures are not quite so scrupulous of suggestion and the small table is rougher and the castor standing on it is of German silver and the air has been kept over from the night before and that which they sip from the pewter mug has a larger percentage of benzine, ambergris, creosote, henbane, strychnine, prussic acid, cocculus indicus, plaster of paris, copperas, and nightshade. The patron may be seen almost every day, and perhaps many times the same day at this tavern the second, but he is preparing to graduate. Brain, liver, heart, nerves, are rapidly giving way. That tavern the second has its dismal echo in his business destroyed and family scattered and woes that choke one's vocabulary. Time passes on, and he enters tavern the third; a red light outside, a big coughing and besotted group inside. He will be dragged out of doors about 2 o'clock in the morning and left on the sidewalk, because the bartender wants to shut up. The poor victim has taken the regular course in the college of degradation. He has his diploma written on his swollen, bruised and blotched physiognomy. He is a regular graduate of the Three Taverns. As the police take him up and put him in the ambulance the wheels seem to rumble with two rolls of thunder, one of which says, "Look not upon the wine when it is red, when it moveth itself aright in the cup, for at the last it bitteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." The other thunder roll says, "Whoremongers shall have their place in the lake that burneth with fire and with brimstone."

I am glad to find in this sermon of the text that there is such a thing as looking successfully great Tavernian temptations. I can see from what Paul said and did after he had traveled the following seventeen miles of his journey, that he did not receive no damage at the Three Taverns. How much he was tempted I know not. Do not suppose that he was superior to temptation. That particular temptation has destroyed many of the grandest, mightiest, noblest statesmen, philosophers, heroes, clergymen, apostles of law and medicine and government and religion. Paul was not physically well under any circumstances; it was not in mock depreciation that he said he was "in bodily presence weak." It seems that his eyesight was so poor that he did his writing through an amanuensis, for he mentions it is something remarkable that his shortest Epistle, the one to Philemon, was in his own penmanship, saying: "I, Paul, have written it with my own hand." He had been thrown from his horse, he had been stoned, he had been endungeoned, he had had his nerves pulled on by preaching at Athens to the most scholarly audience of all the earth, and at Corinth to the most brilliantly profligate assemblage, and been howled upon by the Ephesian worshipers of Diana, tried for his life before Felix, charged by Festus with being insane, and crawled up on the beach, drenched in the shipwreck, and much of the time had an iron handcuff on his wrist, and if any man needed stimulus, Paul needed it, but with all his physical exhaustion, he got past the Three Taverns undamaged, and stepped into Rome all ready for the tremendous ordeal to which he was subjected. Oh! How many mighty men, feeling that they must brace up after extraordinary service, and prepare themselves for other service, have called on the spirit of wine for inspiration, and in a few years have been sacrificed on the altar of a Moloch, who sits on a throne of human carcasses. Shall I call the names of fifty of the victims, all of them illustrious in American history? No! It not would be wise, or kind, or Christian to call their names in public, but you call them out of your own memory. Oh, how many splendid men could not get past the Three Taverns.

Long ago an arch fiend arrived in our world, and he built an invisible cauldron of temptation. He built that cauldron strong and stout for all ages and all nations. First he squeezed into the cauldron the juices of the forbidden fruit of paradise; then he gathered for it a distillation from the harvest fields and the orchards of the hemispheres; then he poured into this cauldron capsicum and logwood and assault and battery and vitriol and opium and rum and murder and sulphuric acid and theft and potash and cochineal and red carrots and poverty and death and hops. But it was a dry compound, and it must be moistened and it must be liquefied, and so the arch fiend poured into the cauldron the blood of twenty thousand assassinations. And then the arch fiend took a shovel that he had brought up from the furnaces beneath, and he put the shovel into this great cauldron and began to stir, and the cauldron began to heave and rock and boil and sputter and hiss and smoke, and the nations gathered around it with cups and tankards and demijohns and kegs, and there was enough for all, and the arch fiend cried: "Aha! Champion fiend am I! Who has done more than I have for coffins and graveyards and prisons and the populating of the lost world? And when this cauldron is emptied I'll fill it again, and I'll stir it again, and it will smoke again, and that smoke will join another smoke—the smoke of a torment—that ascendeth for ever and ever. I drove fifty ships on the rocks of Newfoundland and the Skerries and the Goodwins. I have ruined more Senators than will gather next winter in the national councils. I have ruined more Lords than will be gathered in the House of Peers. The cup out of which I ordinarily drink is a bleached human skull, and the upholstery of my palaces is so rich a crimson because it is dyed in human gore, and the mosaic of my floors is made up of the bones of children darned to death by drunken parents, and my favorite music, sweeter than Te Deum or triumphal march—my favorite music is the cry of daughters turned out at midnight on the street because father has come home from a carousal, and the seven-hundred-voiced shriek of the sinking steamer because the captain was not himself when he put the ship on the wrong course. Champion fiend am I! I have kindled more fires, I have wrung out more agonies, I have stretched out more midnight shadows, I have opened more Golgothas, I have rolled more Juggernauts, I have damned more souls, than any other emissary of diabolism. Champion fiend am I. Ha! ha! ha! ha!"

But what a glad time when the world comes to its last Three Taverns for the sale of intoxicants. Now there are so many of them that statistics are only a more or less accurate guess as to their number. We sit with half-closed eyes and undisturbed nerves and hear that in 1872 in the United States there were 1964 breweries, 3340 distilleries, and 171,669 retail dealers, and that possibly by this time these figures may be truthfully doubled. The fact is that these establishments are innumerable, and the discussion is always disheartening, and the impression is abroad that the plague is so mighty and universal it can never be cured, and the most of sermons on this subject close with the Book of Lamentations, and not with the Book of Revelations. Excuse me from adopting any such infidel theory. The Bible reiterates it until there is no more power in inspiration to make it plainer that the earth is to be, not half, or three-quarters, but wholly redeemed. On that rock I take my triumphant stand and join in the chorus of Hosannahs.

One of the most advantageous movements in the right direction is taking this whole subject into the education of the young. On the same school-desk with the grammar, the geography, the arithmetic are books telling the lads and lasses of ten and twelve and fifteen years of age what are the physiological effects of strong drink, what it does with the tissue of the liver and the ventricles of the brain: and whereas other generations did not realize the evil until their own bodies were blasted, we are to have a generation taught what the viper is before it stings them, what the hyena is before it rends them, how deep is the abyss before it swallows them. Oh! boards of education, teachers in schools, professors in colleges, Legislatures, and Congresses, widen and augment that work, and you hasten the complete overthrow of this evil.

It will go down. I have the word of Almighty God for that in the assured extirpation of all sin. But shall we have a share in the universal victory? The liquor saloons will drop from the hundreds of thousands into the score of thousands, and then from the thousands into the hundreds, and then from the hundreds into the tens, and from the tens to Three. The first of these last three taverns will be where the educated and philosophic and the high-up will take their dram, but that class, aware of the power of the example they have been setting, will turn their back upon the evil custom and be satisfied with two natural beverages that God intended for the stimulus of the race—the Java coffee plantations furnishing the best of the one and the Chinese tea fields the best of the other. And some day the barroom will be crowded with people at the vendue and the auctioneer's mallet will pound at the sale of the appurtenances.

The second of these last three taverns will take down its flaming sign and extinguish its red light and close its doors, for the working class will have concluded to buy their own horses and furnish their own beautiful homes and replenish linely the wardrobe of their own wives and daughters instead of providing the distillers, the brewers, and liquor sellers with warbrobes and mirrors and carriages. And the next time that second tavern is opened it will be a drug store, or a bakery, or a dry goods establishment, or a school. Then there will be only one more of the three dissipating Taverns left. I don't know in what country, or city, or neighborhood it will be, but look at it, for it is the very last. The last inebriate will have staggered up to its counter and put down his pennies for his dram. Its last horrible adulteration will be mixed and quaffed to eat out the vitals and inflame the brain. The last drunkard will have stumbled down its front steps. The last spasms of delirium tremens caused by it will be struggled through. The old rookery will be torn down, and with its demolition will close the earth's abominations. The last of the dissipating Three Taverns of all the world will be as thoroughly blotted out as were the Three Taverns of my text.

THE SABBATH SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR OCTOBER 31.

Lesson Text: "Paul's Voyage and Shipwreck," Acts xxvii., 13-26—Golden Text: Acts xxvii., 25—Commentary on the Day's Lesson by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

13. "And when the south wind blew softly, supposing that they had obtained their purpose, loosing thence they sailed close by Crete." Paul, with Aristarchus, a former fellow traveler, and afterward a fellow prisoner (Acts xix., 29; Col. iv., 10), is now at sea on his way to Rome. They touched at Sidom and thence near Cyprus to Myra on the mainland of Lycia, in Asia Minor. There he was transferred to a ship of Alexandria bound for Italy, and after many days of slow sailing rounded the east end of Crete and reached the Fair Havens, on the south coast of Crete. Here they spent much time, until Paul advised them not to venture further on account of the season, but the master and owner and the majority advised to try and reach the port of Phenice, a little farther west in Crete, and winter there. So with a light wind they started, keeping as near the land as possible. Paul is in the hands, humanly speaking, of those who know not God; but he is really in the hands of God and can trust Him to manage.

14, 15. A mighty wind from the land arose, against which the ship could not bear up, and they were compelled to let her run before it. Was this of God or the devil that they were thus driven out to sea? We know that satan is the prince of the power of the air, and that he caused the wind that blew down the house upon Job's children and killed them (Job i., 12, 19), but he could not do it without God's permission. God controls the angels who control the winds, and even the stormy wind fulfills His word (Rev. vii., 1; Ps. cxlviii., 8). We must see God alone.

16, 17. The storm increased. Under the lee of the island of Clauda they get the small boat on board which had evidently been towing astern. They somehow undergird the ship, then lower the sail and let her drive under bare poles. What about the condition of the passengers among the 276 souls on board? (Verse 37.) Sailors are not supposed to feel anything, never to know they are sick till they are dead, but many ordinary people do get awfully sick in a storm. This must have been a sad ship. And yet there were some on it very dear to the Lord Jesus.

18, 19. "Exceedingly tossed with a tempest." Well, there is no use to say a word about this unless you have been in such circumstances yourself. It was a bad case, and many doubtless wished that there was no more sea (Rev. xxi., 1). Yet even under such circumstances the Prince of Peace can control one's heart. In health or sickness, life or death, we can be quiet in His loving care.

20. "All hope that we should be saved was then taken away." Surely they were at their wits' end (Ps. cvii., 27), or, as in the margin, "All their wisdom was swallowed up." The case was, as far as human eyes could see, utterly hopeless. It makes one think of the sinner having no hope and without God in the world (Eph. ii., 12), or, as in Rom. v., 6, "without strength." But there is a Saviour for the lost, and only for such. He said, "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners, to repentance."

21. "But after long abstinence Paul stood forth in the midst of them." They had fasted for fourteen days (verse 33), and must have felt forlorn indeed and ready for a word of comfort from any one who might have it for them. None but God could help or comfort them, and His servant is ready to be the messenger. He is the Father of mercies and the God of all comfort (II Cor. i., 3), but we cannot fully appreciate It or Him till we get into strait places.

22. "And now I exhort you to be of good cheer, for there shall be no loss of any man's life among you, but of the ship." He emphasized it by adding, "There shall not an hair fall from the head of any of you," and he took bread and gave thanks to God in the presence of them all and began to eat (verses 34, 35).

23. "For there stood by me this night the angel of God, whose I am and whom I serve." This and the next two verses are to me the very heart of this lesson. Take the words, "God, whose I am," and think of what is included. His property, which He will certainly care for, His child, whom He will certainly see to, loved by the Lord Jesus as the Father loves Him (John xv., 9), bought with the precious blood of Christ, and therefore as precious to God as that blood is; a part of Christ Himself, a member of His body. We need not hesitate to say, "The most high God, the possessor of heaven and earth, owns me," and take all the comfort there is for us. Then consider "whom I serve," and remember that we cannot serve God and Mammon; neither can we serve Christ and please men (Math. vi., 24; Gal. i., 10).

24. "Saying, Fear not, Paul! Thou must be brought before Cæsar, and, lo, God hath given thee all them that sail with thee." This is a confirmation of the Lord's testimony to him in Jerusalem—"Thou must bear witness at Rome (chapter xxiii., 11). The Lord's "musts" are as sure as God Himself, whether "ye must be born again" or "all things must be fulfilled." Every purpose of the Lord shall be performed, and all His thoughts shall come to pass (Jer. li. 29; Isa. xiv., 24). It was the Lord's purpose that Paul should be His witness at Rome, and therefore it was as good as done, although in this storm everything seemed against it. How blessed are the "fear nots" of God from the first one in Gen. xv., 1, to the last in Revelation! His perfect love casts out all fear, and the soul that rests in Him can truly say, "What time I am afraid I will trust in Thee. I will trust and not be afraid."

25. "Wherefore, sirs, be of good cheer, for I believe God, that it shall be even as it was told me." Verse 44 says, "And so it came to pass." Whatever God says is as sure as if it had already come to pass, so we should say continually, "I believe God." The first "believe" in the Bible is in Gen. xv., 6, where it is said of Abraham, "He believed in the Lord, and He counted it to Him for righteousness." It might be literally translated "Abraham amened God," or said amen to God. So did Jeremiah long afterward. See Jer. xl., 5, in the margin. It becomes us to be ever saying, "Even so, Father, or, as Mary said, "Be it unto me according to Thy word."

26. "Howbeit we must be cast upon a certain island." There must have been a good reason for that also or it would not have been so. It is written in Ezek. xiv., 23, "Thou shalt know that I have not done without cause all that I have done in it, saith the Lord God." Everything in the life of a child of God is beforehand arranged for God's glory and his highest good. Let us not seek to introduce additions of our own, but be content with His plan.—Lesson Helper.

No Heart Can Hold All Christian Love.

The self-giving love of Christ awakens a responsive love in all who contemplate it. As they muse the fire burns, as they enter into Christ's love his love enters into them, filled with its fullness, the pent-up floods within them are bound to find an outlet. The love of Christ is too large for any heart to hold it. The heart of Christ is a costly thing to own. If it cost him the cross, it will cost them no less.—J. M. Campbell.

Now mark how the Father draweth men unto Christ. When somewhat of this perfect good is discovered and revealed within the soul of man, as it were in a glance or flash, the soul conceiveth a longing to approach unto the perfect goodness and unite herself unto the Father. And the stronger the yearning groweth, the more is revealed unto her, the more she is drawn toward the Father.—Theoler's Germanica.

Persons afflicted with blackheads should scrub the face with hot water and castile soap nightly, and avoid all greasy or fatty foods, rich soups, cake, pastry, pie, pork, salted meats, rich deserts, butter to excess, cheese, sausage, cocoa and chocolate, and, above all, intoxicants.

The following is an excellent specific for weak and irritable nerves, taken before meals: One teaspoonful of tincture of calumba, in water, and after meals take one teaspoonful, in water, of this mixture: Bromide of soda, four drams; tincture of nux vomica, four drams; compound tincture of lavender up to three ounces.

Leucorrhœa—"Whites."

This is a disorder from which few women escape at some period of their lives. It is in the nature of nasal catarrh. In a healthy condition the lining membrane of the genital organs secretes sufficient mucus to moisten them, but if the mucus membrane is congested or inflamed, the secretion becomes profuse, irritating and offensive. The best results will follow the use of our Mexican Female Remedy as an injection, and a dose twice a day for some time of that great uterine tonic, Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine, will cure the complaint.

Energy, Miss., writes: M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine has been in my family for Nervousness, Sick Headache, Dyspepsia, Biliousness. My Sister was confined to bed for months from Enlargement of Liver. Our doctor gave her up to die. She began taking M. A. S. L. M. and was soon entirely well. There is no further question between M. A. S. L. M. and Simmons Liver Regulator. The latter by careful test having been found not so reliable has been discarded.

Menstrual Irregularities.

Puberty is the period when menstruation is established. It is the time when the girl becomes a woman, and also the time from which many female diseases date. The menstrual flow usually continues from three to six days and comes on about every twenty-eight days. The quantity exuded varies from two to eight ounces, but the amount consistent with the health of one person may be excessive and even deadly in another. The function is regarded as being regular when its effect upon the system is favorable. The departures from healthy menstruation are numerous and should be corrected by using Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine.

INFLUENCE ON PRICES

THE VOLUME OF MONEY ALWAYS A FACTOR.

If All Goldbugs will Commit the Following to Memory They Need Not Expose Their Ignorance—Money and Prices.

About a year ago Judge C. J. Hillyer of Washington, D. C., published an article entitled "Money and Prices," the republication of which, in view of the recent talk about the separation in price of silver and wheat, is most appropriate. Judge Hillyer then said:

"I notice some confusion in drawing conclusions as to what prices, at any given time indicate, which seems to make it worth while to restate what every intelligent man knows and recognizes when he stops to think. The price or money value of any article depends invariably on four conditions: First, the quantity of the article for sale; second, the demand for the article; third, the quantity of money available for purchase, and fourth, the demand for the money. More succinctly and with equal accuracy it may be expressed by saying that prices depend upon, first, the supply of any article relative to the demand for such article, and, second, the supply of money relative to the demand for money. These four, or in the latter expression, two factors, always operate concurrently, and their joint influence absolutely determines at any given time the price of everything which is bought and sold. With money conditions unchanged, and the demand for any article remaining the same, its scarcity will always increase its price, and the quantity remaining the same, an increased demand for it will have the same effect. So with conditions relating to the article unchanged; a scarcity of money while the demand remains the same will reduce the price, or the money quantity remaining the same, an increased demand for it will produce the same result. The essential thing to bear in mind is that, however much prices may fluctuate from other causes, the influence of monetary conditions upon them is never absent or impaired. Owing to insufficiency of supply to meet demand, the price of any one thing may be higher although money is scarce, but in every such case the price would be correspondingly higher if money were plenty. Take for an illustration wheat. Suppose, first, an average supply and demand for it as an article of commerce and that with the world's money supply of eight billions of dollars in gold and silver, available for its purchase, its price is one dollar per bushel. Now suppose a half crop for a year or series of years with the demand for it and money conditions unchanged the price would rise to two dollars per bushel. Then suppose a double crop, with no increase of demand, the price would fall to fifty cents. Now postulate the steady continuance of an average wheat crop, but that by political action silver is demonetized, and the money quantity available for its purchase reduced to four billions instead of eight billions. The demand for money being universal, and therefore always equally operative, the price of wheat will be fifty cents; with a half crop it would rise to one dollar, and with a double crop sink to twenty-five cents. Of course, in actual experience these fluctuations do not occur with mathematical accuracy because the conditions are never as in an abstract case absolute. But the law is inflexible and the visible results are always proximate."

At the time the above was written it was, although suggested by a flurry in the price of cotton and iron, substantially the enunciation of an abstract economical proposition. The occasion seems now to have arisen for its practical application. For many years the variations in the price of wheat or of most marketable articles had coincided quite closely with those of silver relative to gold. Now the price of wheat has advanced, and at the same time that of silver, as measured by gold, has fallen. If any one will carefully read the above statement as to the theory of prices and also take accurate note of present conditions, the explanation of this divergence will be very simple.

The demand for wheat has been abnormally increased by a deficient harvest both in the countries which usually produce a certain portion of their supply, and also in those which are usually competitors with us in supplying the deficiency. Contemporaneously, the demand for silver has been weakened by the crop failure in India cutting off grain exports and thereby silver imports, and by the political action of Japan in changing from a nominal double standard and an actual silver basis to a half weight standard of gold. The result is exactly in accordance with the well-established economic theories recapitulated in Judge Hillyer's former article. It is simply stupid to suppose that it in the slightest degree impairs the force of the argument for silver restoration.

A Suggested Change.

Let us change the order, and, instead of putting the plundered and homeless tramp at work on the stone pile for the crime of being poor, let us see to it that a system is established where the rich idler will be obliged to earn his own living or be consigned to the rock pile.—Rights of Man, Minneapolis.

A brilliant indication of McKinley "prosperity" comes from San Bernardino in the reduction of the mortgage indebtedness of the county, within a few days, of half a million of dollars—by foreclosure!—San Francisco Star.

POINTS FROM THE PRESS.

Money that is just in its purchasing power is to civilization what light is to darkness.—Bloomington Trades Review.

We call the gold dollar a thieving dollar because it has doubled the fortunes of those who own it and own bonds payable in dollars, and has confiscated the property of the masses. Its value as compared with property has changed every day, always in one direction, ever since silver was demonetized. — Silver Knight-Watchman.

Yes, a dollar a bushel is a pretty good price for wheat, but it is none too high. Under proper conditions, with no famines in foreign countries, wheat should never bring less than a dollar, and, with famines abroad, it should never bring less than $2. Any sensible person knows this. If every person who is willing to work had employment, at fair wages, wheat would never drop below the dollar mark.—Kansas Agitator.

What do you think of giving to railroads more than 179,000,000 acres of the public lands—enough to make a dozen states—besides guaranteeing $100,000,000 of railroad bonds? What is crowding this country—immigration or land stealing?—Cincinnati Common Cause.

We often hear the remark made that popular government is a failure. We should want to see it tried before saying this, for up to the present hour the government has been run by political machines as corrupt as ever debauched the courts of Rome or any monarchy on earth. With a government by the people it might be different.—Chicago Express.

Prosperity has struck the machinists of the C. & A. shops in this city. They now work ten hours per day and receive $2.10 per day. Before prosperity struck here on the first of the month they received $2.60 for the same work.—Bloomington Trades Review.

The Chicago Record is again hollering for free bath houses for Chicago. It's a good idea. With free bath houses the unemployed of Chicago could employ themselves bathing.—Helena (Mont.) Independent.

Why do the goldbugs shout good times when prices rise, notwithstanding the fact that they insist that contraction and falling prices are the sum of human happiness and progress? Because they know the people feel good when prices go up, and they want to make the masses believe that they will put prices up for their benefit.—Silver Knight-Watchman.

If the gold finds in Alaska continue as fabulous as reported, in another year or two we will be getting enough gold from Alaska to pay from one-fourth to one-half of the interest on our bonds.—West Plains Quill.

What will the farmers do with all this money they are getting for their wheat? Why, they'll take it to the banks and pay their debts with it. That'll make their credit good again, and the banks will loan them back their money on a new set of mortgages, and then—prosperity will be here, and "business" will boom like a house afire!—Chicago Social Democrat.

Klondike gold may relieve, in some measure, the financial stringency but under our present financial system it will not prevent the stock gamblers from making another stringency when they find it will be profitable to them to do so.—Equity.

As a result of land monopoly and the rent system there are 210 families —1,200 people—living in one tenement house in the city of New York. Think of bringing up children in such a pen as that must be and then decide whether you are a friend of the present system of land tenure. This tenement house belongs to one of the large estates of New York city and descends from generation to generation, without regard to the production of wealth or the industry of those who own it!—Nebraska Independent.

Government by Injunction.

Under our system of justice persons charged with crime are entitled to a trial of the facts by jury; but persons charged with disobeying an injunction are not entitled to trial by jury. Consequently, by issuing an injunction against crime, and proceeding against an alleged offender for contempt, a judge is enabled to pass upon a charge without a jury. To illustrate with an extreme case: Arson is a crime; whoever stands charged with committing it is entitled to a jury trial. But if an injunction against arson were issued—and that would be the same principle as one against riot—the accused could be deprived of that fundamental right. It is this usurpation which constitutes the essential evil of government by injunction.—East Oregonian.

Different in Australia.

In Australia, on a government-owned railway line, you can ride 1,000 miles for $6.50, and workingmen ride six miles for two cents, 12 miles for four cents, and 30 miles for ten, and railroaders secure more wages on the eight hour basis than they are paid in this country for ten hours. This is the difference between having the railroads run on the Populist plan and having them run on the goldbug party plan.—Journal of the Knights of Labor.

PANICS INEVITABLE.

SO ASSERT THE GOLDBUG HIGH PRIESTS.

Tom Reed's Fatalism and the Chicago Tribune's Effrontery—They Teach Us the Doctrine of Hopelessness—Sponsors for Ignorance.

Thomas B. Reed has furnished, at great length and a greater price, to the New York World, his theory of panics and booms. He professes to believe that we are now having a business boom of Republican proportions, but warns us that we must prepare for another panic and industrial depression, because under the only social arrangements that he knows anything about panics will continue to come and there is no way of stopping them. Mr. Reed says:

"Men and nations and the whole civilized part of the race go from one extreme to another. These alternations seem as necessary as the ebb and flow of the tides of the ocean. When the business of the world gets inflated at certain periods it will go too far, and then there must be a settlement. It must be settled who owns the property, and until that is established nothing else can be done. Those who nominally own property resist this. They hope some miracle will help. Then after settlement if any laws be deemed necessary they must be passed or there will be further delay. Some false starts may be taken, like that to which the Venezuelan war cloud gave such a chilling frost.

"The returns from the wheat crop and the other cereals spent in purchases starts the nation to work. When the nation once gets to work, it will not stop until it gets out of gear again, and then it will halt, and then it will go on again, a succession of like events forever and forever."

This is the best cheer we can get from the greatest man in the Republican party, "the man who made McKinley." Probably it never occurred to Mr. Reed that the nation might just as easily have been set to work years ago by the returns from silver mining spent in purchases.

About how soon may we expect the old machine to get out of gear again and another industrial depression to take its turn? Next year. Because next year there will in all probability be large crops all over the world, gold standard prices for farm products will reappear, and the returns from the sale of wheat and other cereals not being sufficient to make many purchases, the factories will once more close down and a large proportion if not a majority of our population will again be face to face will starvation.

So let us make the most of our present prosperity. It is with us for but one year, and then "men who nominally own property" will have to begin giving it up again to their creditors, who really own it.

And even when we have prosperity some people don't know how to enjoy it. The latest issue of a paper published in Speaker Reed's own region, the Johnston, R. I., Beacon, says:

"The times may well be called troublous. The cotton mills of New England are closing their doors on all sides and the managers are busy explaining that McKinley and the tariff have nothing to do with it. The docile wage slaves who ambled meekly along in protection and prosperity parades—purely to please themselves and by no means at the behest of their bosses—are acting as though they didn't hear aright. None of them has the courage to cry out: 'Sold again.' That is their condition nevertheless."

The New Time asks the Chicago Tribune, the Chicago Times-Herald, the New York Sun, the New York Herald, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, the Louisville Courier-Journal and other papers which pose as public educators if they expect another panic. It asks them to give logical reasons why history shall not repeat itself. It asks them to defend a system which condemns the world to enforced idleness and suffering seven years out of every ten. It asks them what remedy they have to propose if any.

They have no remedy. They regard panics as inevitable. Listen to the Chicago Tribune: "There is a regular order about all business disorder. 'Panics' come on an average once in seventeen years" (the Tribune figured the average from 1819 to 1867 and omitted the panic of 1887. It also fails to give the present average, which is one in about six years,) "and last from one to six years. They are usually followed by a slow recovery, then by a period of good times, then by a boom, and the boom usually brings another collapse from over speculation."

"Perfectly correct," says the New Time, "excepting 'overspeculation.' The collapse is brought about by the fact that the people cannot purchase back that which they have produced. Their wages will not buy that which they have created. They cannot consume the surplus. The factories cannot sell their products. They shut down. The men are thrown out of work. They are no longer producers, and if they consume it is by an expenditure of their savings while at work or by the grace of charity. Prices fail. Merchants are ruined. Interest goes on. Banks cannot realize on their loans. The people who have deposited $2,000,000,000 or $3,000,000,000 in the banks try to draw it out and fail for the simple reason that there is only $1,500,000,000 in the country and but a percentage of that in the banks. This is a panic."

The New Time is more than half right. But no factory ever expects its workmen to buy its products. The basis of the market is the farmer. There is never a panic when farm products are high in price, because then the farmer's demand for goods keeps the mills open. When farm products fall so low that it takes the whole crop to pay taxes and interest, a panic is due. Such a time is any year, under the gold standard, when the world's crops are heavy. Besides, the increase in the rent of land, which always approaches nearer and nearer to the point at which production becomes impossible, would alone cause periodical depressions. We must abolish land monopoly. We must have postal banks. And, first of all, we must open the mints to silver and provide a volume of currency large enough to maintain prices.

Panics are totally unnecessary. But it is absolutely certain that we shall have our regular periodical panics as long as we take our politics from the Chicago Tribune and vote for such men as Thomas B. Reed and the President whose fame Reed made by appointing him chairman of the ways and means committee.

The Real Issue.

Not many months ago in address before a bar association Ex-President Harrison spoke of the necessity of a complete change in our laws regarding corporations. The vast powers which a few great corporations now hold and their brazen abuse of those powers, have aroused the most conservative of the American leaders of thought to the need of immediate and radical reform in this direction. In a personal letter to the editor of the Farmers' Voice, one of the leading officials of the state of Kansas writes as follows upon this subject:

"To my mind the vital interests of the day can all be embraced in the one proposition :'The Corporations vs. the People,' and in the near future the question that will be asked with reference to any candidate for official position will be, not is he a Republican or a Democrat or a Populist? But is he for the people or for the corporations?

"All the evils of which we complain can be traced directly to corporation rule. It is the corporation that corrupts legislatures, courts and public officials. In fact, if the people may live corporations must die. Ultimately all corporations except those that are purely co-operative must be wiped out; this power of combining capital must be confined to organizations for the people's good and not for private gain."

The growth of private monopoly now going forward in this country is the most threatening danger to the republic, and it is a hopeful sign that such men as the writer of the letter quoted from are seeking means to check and ultimately destroy it.—Farmers' Voice.

His Model.

The Czar of Russia winked at the Sultan of Turkey.

"How do you treat the working classes?" asked the Czar.

"I never treat 'em," answered the Sultan. "I only treat my friends."

"But," said the Czar, "I mean what do you do to the working classes in order to keep them down?"

"I have a variety of ways," answered the Sultan, "but not one of them is any good."

"That's what I thought," said the Czar. "Now look at me. I don't have any trouble with the working classes."

"But you said last year that you had. I remember well hearing you say you wish you knew how the toilers could be kept quiet while they were being robbed and exploited."

"Well, I've found the way to do it since then."

"Then tell me, for heaven's sake!"

"I treat the working classes in my empire just as they are treated in the United States."

And with tumultuous enthusiasm the pair of potentates proceeded to sing something about the home of the brave and the land of the free.—Twentieth Century.

The Reason Why.

Ex-Governor John P. St. John says: "The reason why silver is so low and wheat so high is because there is no wheat in India to be bought by England, and, therefore, England has no use for our silver. Hence the demand is cut short and the price goes down. When India has wheat to sell again the price of silver will go up and our wheat will go down.

"The remedy for this disloyal discrimination in favor of England and against our own people will be found in free coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1. Then the bullion in a silver dollar will be worth 100 cents, and that is what it will cost England, thus restoring to our own people the advantage that England is now using against us.

"With short crops in all foreign countries, were we not measuring values with a 200-cent single gold standard dollar, our wheat today would be worth $2 a bushel."

The Remedy for Trusts.

Senator Jones of Nevada lucidly stated, in a New York Journal interview, the cause of and remedy for trusts. Continued falling prices compels and prevents competition. Rising prices encourage expansion and stimulate trade. Free silver coinage, he says, will put twice as much new money in circulation each year as we now have, which will immediately raise prices. On a rising market money will be invested in all kinds of property. On a falling market no one dares engage in business, as the result will be certain bankruptcy. Senator Jones has a clear conception of economics and speaks at all times with authority.—Silver Knight-Watchman.

MEXICAN TRADE.

Alabama Coal Invading the Southern Republic.

Captain W. H. Hughes, representative of the Louisville and Nashville railroad and the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company, has just returned from Mexico, where he went to introduce Alabama coal, with a view to opening up an extensive trade in that country. Captain Hughes took with him through the ports of Pensacola a sample car of 1,200 tons of the Alabama black diamond, which was sold to the Inter-Oceanic railroad, which terminates at Vera Cruz. The railroad management liked the coal so well that it closed a contract for a year's supply, amounting to 100,000 tons. The contract dates from January 1, and the coal will take the place of English coal and native woods, which the road has been using as fuel. Captain Hughes received assurances that other large consumers of coal will buy from Alabama as soon as their existing contracts with English operators expire. The recent action of congress in removing the discriminating duty imposed on Mexican vessels loading coal shipments at American ports has enabled Alabama operators to place their product in Mexico on equal footing with English coal—free of duty. However, the Alabama article has a big advantage in the matter of freight rates. It is believed that the Alabama operators will be able to build up a large coal trade in Mexico.

NINETEEN LIVES FIND WATERY GRAVES

A Passenger Train on the New York Central Plunges Into the Hudson.

When nearly opposite Garrison, N. Y., Sunday morning, an eastbound New York Central passenger train, which left Buffalo Saturday night, plunged into the river.

Neither engineer nor fireman will ever tell the story of that terrible moment, for with his hand upon the throttle, the engineer plunged with his engine to the river bottom, and the fireman, too, was at his post. Behind them came the express car, the combination car and the sleepers, and these piled on top of the engine.

What seems to have happened was that underneath the tracks and ties the heavy wall had given way and when the great weight of the engine struck the unsupported tracks it went crashing through the rest of the wall and toppled over into the river.

Then there happened what on the railroad at any other time would have caused disaster, but now proved a very blessing. As the train plunged over the embankment the coupling that held the last three sleepers broke and they miraculously remained on the broken track. In that way some sixty lives were saved.

The number who lost their lives in the watery grave is placed at nineteen, and there is little doubt that this is the total number of killed. The bodies of the engineer, fireman and Mr. Van Etten's secretary are still in the river, with little hope of their recovery.

To Extend to Montgomery.

Henry L. Lamb, of New York, vice president of the Chattanooga Southern railroad, has been in Chattanooga for the past two weeks. Mr. Lamb stated before leaving that the company had decided to extend the road to Montgomery at once. The extension will begin at Gadsden and go by way of Anniston. The road at present runs from Chattanooga to Gadsden and is there bottled up. It is the purpose of the management to make connection with the Plant system at Montgomery for a southern connection. The road will be constructed of the heaviest steel rails and will develop a section now remote from railroad connections. Engineers are to be put to work making the permanent survey.

Young Girl Gets $25,000,000.

After a search for heirs extending over a score of years, the vast estate of Imblay Clarke, at San Francisco, now appraised at $25,000,000, seems about to come to its rightful possessor, the daughter of Clarke, a mine owner who died in Australia over twenty years ago. She is Grace M. Elliott, adopted daughter of William H. Elliott, a saloon keeper, who took her from the Home for the Friendless in 1878, when the matron assured him her parents were dead, her father, Imblay Clarke, leaving her in the home, and that he afterwards died in Australia.

Tragedy at Selma.

Monday afternoon a bloody tragedy took place at Matthews' bar, Selma, resulting in the killing of Orange Peebles, a colored man, by another negro named Big Joe Wilson. He and Bishop had been playing dominoes. They went to the bar and Peebles asked Bishop to drink. They had some words and Wilson commenced an attack on Peebles, cutting his jugular vein and inflicting a terrible wound in close proximity to the heart. Peebles fell forward on the counter and then staggered to the alley and fell inside the billiard room, bleeding profusely. He expired in a few minutes. Wilson was apprehended after an exciting chase and sent to jail.

More Cases at Memphis.

The board of health officially announces four new cases of yellow fever at Memphis. All four cases are directly traceable to the McFerrin residence.

The people seem to have confidence in the ability of the board of health to hold the disease in check, and there is no excitement.

Storm Raged.

THE NEEDS OF AGRICULTURE IN THE SOUTH

In the current number of The Southern States Farm Magazine Dr. Charles W. Dabney, Jr., discusses some of the needs of agriculture in this section. On account of the timeliness of this article The Constitution feels warranted in calling the attention of its readers to some of the salient points therein discussed. As Dr. Dabney puts it, the great problem of southern agriculture is to make farming in this section pay. Up to the present time the farmers of the south have not derived from the soil that measure of recompense which its unsurpassed fertillity is calculated to yield, and the reason which Dr. Dabney gives for this unsatisfactory experience is that our farmers, like those the world over, are disposed to move along in certain ruts. He contends that for twenty years or more the farmers of the south have devoted themselves almost exclusively to the raising of cotton and tobacco, and that present conditions in the south are largely the result of this restriction. The high price of cotton and tobacco which prevailed twenty years ago," says Dr. Dabney, "naturally betrayed our farmers into raising these crops and simply because they knew how to grow them easily they continue to raise cotton and tobacco, in spite of the fact that prices have fallen almost to the cost of production. This tendency marks the world over. It is far easier to keep in the old rut than to pull out of it." As a remedy for these evils Dr. Dabney urges our southern farmers to study the resources of their farms for the purpose of raising supplies needed to support the workers employed thereon, and also, at the same time, to study the demands of the market. He argues that our farmers are wrong to raise money crops without giving any attention to those needed supplies for which large sums are to be paid out during the year. In this connection Dr. Dabney says:

One special need of southern agriculture is to make still more meat and milk. With the increased production of forage in the south the production of meat, milk and butter is greatly increased during the past ten years. The increased crops of corn means more hogs, and larger crops of hay and oats mean more cattle and stock of all kind. * * * Dairy products will always be in great demand among civilized people. The more highly civilized they are the more of these products they consume. It is estimated by the United States department of agriculture that the milk from 5,000,000 cows is annually consumed as milk in the United States, the average being about twenty-five and a half gallons per year for each person. * * * Butter is becoming more and more a necessity to all well-conditioned people, and within recent years cream has become an important article of commerce. The demand for condensed milk is said to be steadily growing. Cheese is also being used more and more in this country as an article of food.

To show how little the south has contributed toward supplying the demand for dairy product, pointed out in the foregoing paragraph, Dr. Dabney continues:

The facts show that the southern farmers have many fewer cows than the farmers of any other section of the country. The populations of Georgia and Michigan are approximately the same, and so are the number of improved acres in farms, but Georgia had in 1889 less than 300,000 milch cows, against 1,000,000 in the state of Michigan; Virginia and Wisconsin have approximately the same total population, and the same number of improved acres in farms. Many portions of Virginia are just as well adapted for dairying as is Wisconsin, while Virginia has every advantage in the way of climate and accessibility to market. But Virginia had in 1889 only 275,000 milch cows, as against 800,000 in Wisconsin.—Constitution.

Fatal Accident.

On Tuesday Oct. 26 while working at the steam threshing machine at Crofford Hayes gin near Providence church in the northern end of the county, the belt slipped off and struck Robert Killingsworth in the abdomen, and in a few hours he died. It was one of those unfortunate, unavoidable accidents which occasionally occur. He was a man well liked and respected in the community and his sad death has cast a gloom over the neighborhood.

SORE THROAT.

In a letter to Dr. Hartman, dated Dec. 27, 1896, George A. Blanchard, of Washington Ga., writes: "My throat had been in the habit of getting sore every year for the last twenty years, and if any medical skill did me any good it was so little I did not know it. Two years ago my wife was down sick two months, tried two doctors; but the case was a stubborn one of female trouble. I found in Pe-ru-na not only a good, safe remedy for sore throat, but one for weakness and nervous prostration. I quit the doctors and purchased a bottle of Pe-ru-na, and in three days after my wife got up and she has been going ever since, and I have not been bothered with that bad sore throat. It used to last fifteen or twenty days. Since we have used your medicine my wife has not lost a single day, and she has gained over fifty pounds."

In a later letter, July 22nd, 1897, Mr. Blanchard writes: "All of the sickness we have in the family is when we cannot get Pe-ru-na. We people in the South think Pe-ru-na is a God-sent blessing. I recommended Pe-ru-na to friends of mine that had asthma and one bottle cured them. Whenever Pe-ru-na is used it speaks loudly for itself."

Dr. Hartman, the original compounder of Pe-ru-na, has a recent book on chronic catarrh which will be sent free by The Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, O.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

Montgomery, Oct. 29, 1897.

Editor BANNER. Will you be so kind as to give me space in your columns to pen a few lines. We are here with the fever, trying to discharge our duty. The citizens of Montgomery are, and will take care of their sick and needy. They are a generous and brave people in need and distress. A great many have left and others go as chances present themselves. Many go out, say four or five miles, and remain over-night, and return in the morning about eight or nine. They close up about four and the city looks deserted by dusk. I think the people away from here are frightened more than the people here. I understand Bozeman has quarantined against Mountain Creek and Verbena. I see no use in this as they have no good water and not even a hotel. During the year 1873 when the fever was so bad in Montgomery a goodly number came up to Clanton and some of them are now living there. It was said by Drs. Lanier and Davis that the yellow fever could not live in Chilton county as the air and water was pure and good, and no local causes to give it life. Some of our people had better attend church more regularly and trust in God more and keep cool. I was informed yesterday that if I should go home to Verbena I would not be permitted to remain at home. I wish to state to my friends that if I should go home (I may or may not) but if so, I want to say that there is not any man can dislodge me when there. I mean just what I say.

My family came down here and spent one night; they were not within a mile of a case, and left before it was officially announced and yet everybody is afraid to go about them. I know there are some weak-kneed people in Chilton, and the good Lord may visit them some way yet. The idea of quarantining any county north of Montgomery, the only thing that is small about me is my pocket book. I was in the war and never deserted my post of duty, and never betrayed a friend intentially. I hope to live and die on this line. We are hopeful and by the help of God we will try to discharge our duty. Officirl report to day: new cases 7; deaths 1, all confined in words 1 and 2. Respectfully,

W. F. CLAUGHTON.

Jemison, Nov. 2, 1897.

Once more we are blessed with gentle rain, and so also an approaching blizzard is about to blize. How glad everysne will be to thus see yellow fever rushed back into the gulf. There let it remain till we can offer better welcome. Let each day be a separate one of thanks giving.

Let us hasten to congratulate the readers of the BANNER in the pleasure of enjoying an enlarged interesting weekly. The farmer now has a page for each day besides an extra one for desert.

We trust the generous Editor will in the future have better health so that he can better enjoy and continue his faithful task, which he has previously so diligently manifested.

At present the health of Jemison and surrounding community is fairly good except Mr. J. P. Allen and Mr. P. Quigley, two of the oldest men round about. They have for some time elicited anxiety from from friends and acquaintances. May health be restored and their usefulness continue.

We are glad to say that Mr. Claud Mooney has recently opened a store at Jemison. Success to his efforts. He was raised without a father, by an intelligent good mother. He richly deserves patronage, more especially because he seems to wish others to live and have room on earth along with himself and his. This is the most religious view man can look at fellow mortals. Mrs. IRA CAMPBELL.

"Self preservation is the first law of nature," accounts for such a strict quarantine being kept from all infected places by our prudent and energetic citizens.

Our late rains have been very partial, very little fell here.

The angel of death has been again in our midst and borne from her sorrowing parents, sweet little Grace Lee Minter, these parents have been doubly afflicted in now being childless, having lost an infant son a few months ago. We have prayed that the bereaved parents may say "Thy will be done."

The three-year-old boy of J. A Johnson, of Lynn Center, Ill., is subject to attacks of croup. Mr. Johnson says he is satisfied that the timely use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, during a severe attack, saved his little boy's life. He is in the drug business, a member of the firm of Johnson Bros. of that place and they handle a great many patent medicines for throat and lung diseases. He had all these to choose from, and skilled physicians ready to respond to his call, but selected this remedy for use in his own family at a time when his child's life was in danger, because he knew it to be superior to any other, and famous the country over for its cures of croup. Mr. Johnson says this is the best selling cough medicine they handle, and that it gives splendid satisfaction in all cases. Sold by J. S. Johnson, jr. Druggist.

The March to Alabama.

I hear the march of many men,
Towards our Alabama.
They seek the coal beneath our feet,
They shape our iron by its heat;
And now the world will gladly greet
Our bonny Alabama.

I hear the march of many men,
Towards our Alabama.
They cut our noble oak and pine;
It seeks the most remote confine
That any one can ever find
Away from Alabama.

I hear the march of many men
Within our Alabama.
They plant our hills with tree and vine,
They draw therefrom the latent wine,
They soon will be good sons of thine,
Oh mother Alabama.

I hear the march of many men,
Unto our Alabama.
We welcome all unto our lands;
From north or west or foreign strands,
We greet them all with out stretched hands
Unto our Alabama.

St. Matthew 28:20.

Oh, my soul why filled with sorrow,
Why so full of doubts and fears,
There'll be many a bright to-morrow
As we walk this vale of tears.
Tho' to-day our sky seems darkened,
Trials every step attend,
Have we not the Master's promise,
I'll be with you to the end.

Though the way be dark and thorny,
'Tis the Father leadeth me,
And the path be rough and stony,
'Tis His call, He needeth me.
What if life be sad and dreary,
And we have no earthly friend,
Still we have the Master's promise,
I'll be with you to the end.

Rouse thee now my soul and shrink not
From the burden thou must bear,
Tho' life's cup be bitter, drink not
Thou the dregs of dark despair.
Trust the Saviour for His kindness,
On His loving arm depend.
For we have His blessed promise,
I'll be with you to the end.

"MONEY OLIGARCHY."

SILVER REMONETIZATION AND GOVERNMENT BANKING.

The People Should Control the People's Money—The Present System Is One of the Most Ingenious and Powerful Monopolies Ever Devised.

By E. E. Ewing.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident" that the land was designed by the Creator for the use of the people, that money is created by government for the use of the people, and that the first consideration of government is the welfare of the people. We find, however, that both land and money have been monopolized and withheld from free use by the people and that property has been given the first place in the concern of government. If denied access to the land man perishes and must soon become extinct. Without money civilization is impossible, and the human race would remain in a tribal and barbarous condition. And to that degree which the population is denied the use of the earth is the people hindered in their pursuit of happiness and enjoyment of liberty.

To the same extent that the industrial, wealth-producing class is restricted or hindered from the free use of money they are hampered and hindered in the pursuit of their industrial vocation.

To the perversion of these three fundamental principles of government all the complaint and hardship which cause the present public unrest, can be traced.

The most active of these evils is the monopoly of and abuse of money. That abuse remedied would quickly lead to the abolition of other abuses which afflict the people.

The rent or interest which the monopolist is able to exact from the users is the object for which money is monopolized. The whole system of handling and distributing money has been perfected into one of the most ingenius and powerful monopolies ever devised by the brain of man. The banks are the grand factors in the system of money monopoly. The individual money loaner is but a crude, unskilled person in the art of usury. He can only loan his own money, but the bank not only loans everybody's money and pockets the interest or rent for the loans, but it loans in addition its credit, which is an intangible thing based on the security of its debtor who has borrowed his neighbor's money from the bank and pledged his own and probably the same neighbor's property to the bank as security for the payment of the loan. By this double refined process of fleecing the wealth producers, the money monopoly draws from the producers annually hundreds of millions of the wealth they create.

If the producing class and all those who are closely allied to and associated with that class, as "middle men," manufacturers and distributors of the raw and manufactured materials, could lift their noses from the grindstone long enough to consider this they would brush it away without a mighty, colossal scheme of robbery, moment's hesitation.

Consider for a moment what money is and what are its legitimate uses. Government makes it, creates money by act of law, and for the use of the people. A person or corporation cannot make or create money. That is a function purely governmental. The object of government in creating money is to enable the industrial classes to exchange and distribute the wealth they create with ease and dispatch and divide it into infinitesimal quantities, when desired, throughout the whole community. For instance, a farmer has produced a thousand bushels of wheat. He wants but a small portion of the grain for his own use, but he wants a hundred other things. It would be an endless job to go around and exchange the grain in small quantities with producers of other things which he must have for his and his family's comfort. He hauls his grain to a warehouse or mill, delivers it to the miller or shipper, and the party receiving the grain transfers the value of the grain to the farmer in the form of moneys which has been created by government for this purpose, the transfer of values. The farmer then in a few hours, if he chooses, purchases a hundred different things for his personal use, from a penny's worth to the highest sum within the capacity of his money. This money represents the value of the farmer's wheat, and in effect he is exchanging his wheat for all these various articles he purchases. This transaction embraces the entire use and function of money. Paying debts is only a deferred payment for some property or service which has been enjoyed by the debtor in advance, or at least presumed to have been so enjoyed or received.

This being true, why should government permit such an outrage on society as the monopoly of this necessary article, and by that monopoly rob the producers in sums aggregating hundreds of millions of dollars annually, out of the fruits of their labor? It is one of the many abuses which have grown up with society out of its primitive condition, and should be abolished. The system has become an abuse in our present advanced state of society. In a cruder state of society there might have been a plea of necessity advanced for what has become an abuse only.

Government, the creator of money for the use of the people, should be the custodian and distributer of that essential medium of trade and industry, and never permit it to remain in the hands of a monopolizing class who make use of the power thus given them to exploit an entire nation; and this power given the banking class over money is rapidly assuming the strength and dominion of an oligarchy which is tramping the people down in poverty, dominating courts, dictating acts of Congress, and virtually making laws that no despot at the present day has power to do.

If the government were to take the control and distribution of the money of the country into its own hands and out of the control of exploiting bankr run by banking corporations, depositors' money would always be safe in the custody of the government. The government would have no incentive to fleece the users of money by the system of interest or to loan wind called credit by the banking exploiting class and would transact the entire banking business of the country at the net cost of the work, which it is pretty definitely ascertained would not be more than a charge of one-half of one per cent per annum.

There would be no wind loans by government but the amount of money the business of the country required which would be determined by the security offered, would be always kept in circulation. The business of the country would be relieved from the periodical financial panics that the exploiting system of the banks creates, and the producing and business class would be annually richer by the hundreds of millions they are now fleeced out of by our present financial system of private banking. The bankers would simply quit business, as no one would deposit in a private bank if he had a government bank to place his money in, and no business firm would pay a high interest for the use of money when, if engaged in a legitimate business, money could be had at a nominal rate from government banks. There would be no piling up hundreds of millions in the treasury and other reserves held out of use to meet checks drawn against wind loans, but under government control the entire volume which now accumulates in government sub-treasuries would be kept circulating through the government's banks. Under a government banking system the money would not flow in a constant stream from all points in the country to the great cities to be used in making corners on grain stocks and all kinds of products that can be handled by these exchange gamblers.

The advantage that would accrue to the public under a financial system conducted through government banks are so many and beneficent in their results that it is impossible to enumerate them all. There would no longer exist a gold combination against the remonetization of silver. Wall street would have no interest in fighting bimetallism or spending millions in subsidizing the press to spread its pernicious sophistries on finance.

The power and danger of the moneyed oligarchy were never before shown as in the election campaign of 1896. The entire banking class of the country was combined, and under its control every corporation from the great railroad systems of the country down, including manufactories and large mercantile establishments, were assessed and taxed to create a monster corruption fund to bribe voters, subsidize the press, distribute lying literature, and pay prevaricators, to deny facts, corrupt the elective franchise of the nation, and beat the people. Fraud, bribery, intimidation, promises of impossible things, all were resorted to by this domineering, cruel, relentless, tyrannical oliarchy. And while it is allowed to tax the whole industry of the country at will by the exaction of tribute for the use of money, it can never be overthrown. It has fought the people since the foundation of the government to rob them of their property and their liberty, and is stronger, more arrogant and domineering to-day than ever before. It must be smitten to the death, not scotched and driven back as in times past. The people's money in the people's control, under the allpowerful arm of their government, is the only remedy.

Results of Land Monopoly.

Without land man is absolutely helpless. Without land labor can accomplish nothing. Why, our very bodies, this flesh and blood with which we clothe it, comes from the land and to the land it returns. Therefore, it is that labor without land is utterly helpless. Therefore it is that as advancing civilization increases productive power, it cannot absolve men from the necessity of using land, and, therefore, if there be one class who own the land and another who have no right whatever to use land without the permission of the other, advances in civilization must give greater and greater amounts of wealth to the landowners and make more and more helpless those who must obtain someone else's permission to live or to work.—Charters Towers. Aust., Eagle.

Government by Injunction.

We have been ruled by a king, we have been governed by an aristocratic parliament, we are now apparently entering upon a government by judges—the worst form of autocracy, next to that of hierarchy, of which the mind of man can conceive.—Cleveland Recorder.

But Not Enough for Plutocrats.

THE ELECTIONS.

Tammany Ticket Successful in Greater New York Contest.

OHIO PROBABLY REPUBLICAN

Senator Hanna Will be Returned to the Senate—Democrats Carry the Elections in Kentucky and Maryland—Falling Off of Republican Vote.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Tammany's victory in the first election in Greater New York is a sweeping one. The only question remaining to be settled is the one of the plurality by which the entire ticket headed by Robert A. VanWick has carried the gigantic municipality.

It can scarcely be less than 60,000, and may be larger than that. Van Wick has polled a vote which is possibly 40,000 under the combined votes of Gen. Tracy, republican, and Seth Low of the Citizens' union.

Later estimates place the vote of Greater New York for mayor as follows: Van Wyck, 233,752; Low, 146,821; Tracy, 100,998; George, 20,386. Van Wyck's plurality, 86,921.

The plurality of Parker, democrat, candidate for judge of the court of appeals in the state, is 143,195 over Wallace, the republican candidate.

Ohio.

The election in this state is very close. It will probably take the official count to determine the result. At midnight the democrats claim that the legislature is democratic by safe majorities in both branches and that the entire state ticket is elected by good pluralities; while, on the other hand, the republicans claim that Bushnell, for governor, is elected by from 12,000 to 15,000 plurality, and a majority of both branches of the legislature.

Maryland.

Returns from the state are meagre and unofficial in character. Up to 11 p. m. no complete returns have been received, but the indications are that the democrats may possibly have a majority on joint ballot in the legislature, which will ensure the election of Senator Gorman; while the republicans claim to have elected a sufficient number of members with the holdovers to give them a majority on joint ballot in the next legislature.

The republicans have elected their municipal ticket in Baltimore by majorities ranging from 4,000 to 6,000.

Kentucky.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 2.—A conservative estimate of the result of the election at 11 o'clock tonight places the majority of Charles P. Weaver (democrat), candidate for mayor over George D. Todd, the present incumbent, at from 3,000 to 3,500.

The returns from the state are meagre and unofficial at this hour. According to those received, Shackleford (silver democrat), is leading Bailey (republican)), by about 5,000 votes. The national democratic vote is very light.

Virginia.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 3.—The election story in Virginia is briefly told. Although there was unusual apathy, it is estimated that the democratic state ticket is elected by about 55,000 or 60,000 majority, and that the democrats have two-thirds of the house of delegates, and four-fifths of the senate.

Pennsylvania.

The incomplete figures show an apparent plurality for Beacon, the head of the republican ticket, of 145,000, as against Haywood's plurality of 174,265 in 1895. The indications are that McAuley, the republican candidate for auditor general, will receive about 170,00 plurality.

New Jersey.

Five democrats and one republican were elected state senators in New Jersey. Senate for 1898: Republicans, 14; democrats, 7.

Senate for 1897 stood: Republicans, 18, democrats, 3. Democratic gains by today's election, 4.

Nebraska.

The fusion ticket has carried the state by 12,000 to 15,000 plurality.

The State Journal (rep.) concedes the defeat of the republican state ticket. Scattering returns indicate that fusion has carried the state by a greater plurality than was given Bryan last year.

Massachusetts.

The indications are that Wolcott, for governor, has been elected by decreased majorities.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D.—At midnight indications are that the republicans have won in South Dakota.

In Colorado both sides claim a victory, but neither claims over 5,000 plurality. Returns are meagre.

Two Deaths in a Wreck.

A wreck occurred on Tuesday on the Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham railroad one mile west of Carbon Hill, Ala. Through freight No. 55 was derailed at the switch leading to mine No. 5. The engine left the track and half buried itself in an embankment. Engineer Snapp was thrown and terribly scalded and died shortly afterward. Pumper B. B. Martin, of New river tank, was on the engine and died from his injuries.

MYSTERY SOLVED BY SCIENCE.

Microbes Can Draw Nitrogen from the Air and Give It to Plants.

Besides buying well-selected fertilizers, the progressive farmer of the future will also provide himself with bottled billions of the microbes which enable plants to obtain nitrogen from the air. It was a long puzzle to chemists to learn how nitrogen is absorbed. It was clear that under ordinary circumstances plants are unable to appropriate directly from the air the nitrogen they absolutely require for their growth. The air in the pores of the soil contains plenty of it, but the roots are not capable of causing it to become a constituent of the sap or fiber. Leguminous plants, such as beans, peas, and clover, require a great deal of nitrogen, and it was of special interest to provide them artificially, if possible, with this important constituent.

The mystery was dispelled by a recent discovery that the roots of plants capable of absorbing nitrogen bear little protuberances, and it is through these protuberances that the nitrogen is taken in. Further study with the help of the microscope revealed the fact that the protuberances contain millions of bacteria, and that it is these bacteria that absorb the nitrogen and give it to the roots of plants in a form in which it can be used by them. To the activity of these beneficent bacteria, plants—particularly leguminous plants—owe their vigor and perhaps their existence in their present form. The plant life in this view, is a result, in incidental product, of the vital processes of microbes, a million of which could swim with comfort in a single drop of water. The next step was to isolate, by methods with which bacteriologists are familiar, the varieties of bacteria suited to each crop, and to breed them artificially in paying quantities.

This has been done. A German firm breeds seventeen species of bacteria of the nitrogen-absorbing species and sells them to agriculturists in bottles under the name of "nitragin." A bottle containing some thousand billions of the useful bacteria and selling for $1.25 will "inoculate," it is said, an acre of ground. The experience of farmers with "nitragin" is too brief to qualify them to speak with certainty of its practical utility. Some have obtained encouraging results, while others have not. It has been on the market less than a year and began to be used too late in the season for a fair test. "Nitragin" ought to be used before it is two months old, and its vitality is impaired, if not wholly lost, when it is four months old. It must be kept in a cool place, and is best applied, perhaps, at night, since it is injured by exposure to the light. Its function is to assist germinating seeds and small roots to put forth the desired protuberances.

It is accordingly useless for growing plants, and in soils already well supplied with nitrogen in the required form. Under favorable conditions several experimenters have obtained, it is said, excellent results. Cereals have not been found susceptible to its influence to an appreciable extent. Much remains to be determined as to the extent of its utility. It is yet undecided, it seems, whether the seed or the soil is to be inoculated—whether the seed should be mixed with the gelatine containing the "nitragin," or whether the "nitragin" should be mixed with a quantity of the latter scattered over the area to be treated. In any case, agriculturists have in nitragin an interesting subject of experiment.—Baltimore Sun.

A Rare Bird.

The rarest species of bird now extant, and one which is almost extinct, has its home in the jungles of South America. The ornithological curiosity is known to science as the palamedra cornuda, and to the common people as the "horned screamer." As a rara avis nothing could excel the cornuda, unless it should be the accidental discovery of a living moa, or an epiornis. But few of the bird books even let you know that such a horned paradox ever existed, let alone telling you that living specimens of the queer creature are occasionally met with. The only one now in captivity in North America, if the writer was not misinformed, is that belonging to the aviary of the Philadelphia Zoological Gardens, and which arrived in this country about three years ago. The creature is about the size of a full-grown turkey hen, and of a blackish brown color. One of its distinguishing peculiarities is a ruffle of black and white which surrounds the head.

The Obstinate Juror.

The latest way to arrive at a verdict is to smoke out the obstinate juror. This was successfully tried in Hartford not long ago when eleven good men and true were unable to influence their companion. The obstinate juror held out as long as he could, but the volumes of smoke that filled the jury room from the cigars, pipes and cigarettes of his eleven companions proved more effective than argument, and he gave in.—Hartford Times.

Sculpture Under Ground.

While a workman engaged in a Pueblo, Colo., stoneyard was dressing a block of stone his chisel laid bare a round knot or knob near the surface of the rock. A stroke of the hammer vigorously applied for the purpose of smoothing down the nodule had the effect of dislodging it entire. An investigation proved that the underside of the stone knot bore a perfect model of a human face. Who owned that face and in what age of the world did he live?

The Howard Harrison Iron Co., at Bessemer, cast last week the largest iron pipe ever made in the world on strictly pipe shop lines. It was 72 inches in diameter on the inside, 76½ inches in diameter, outside measurement, and 12 feet 6 inches long over all. The metal in it alone weighed 20,000 pounds.

On Eternity's Brink.

The negro, Major Terry, to have hanged at Elba last week, was granted, at a late hour, a new trial, and the date of the execution postponed indefinitely.

Terry, it will be remembered, was convicted of assaulting and killing a Mrs. Thomas and her baby in Coffee county, and burning their bodies. It was with great difficulty that a mob was prevented from hanging Terry at the time of his capture.

Tax Collector's Accounts Short.

Examiner Foster has submitted to the governor his sworn statement of the result of his examination of the books of Tax Collector J. A. Box, of St. Clair county. He finds Mr. Box short in his accounts $1,087.40. This amount, he says, is due on taxes collected or raised by the board of equalization in 1892, 1894 and 1896. Mr. Box states that he was not aware of the omissions of these items on his reports.

Will Be Hanged for Murder.

At Guntersville Henry Boyd, colored, was condemned to be hanged at the term of circuit court just ended. His execution will take place December 10. In June last a young negro woman was found dead in the hills back of Guntersville with her skull crushed. Suspicion pointed to Boyd and his arrest and conviction followed.

If this hanging takes place it will be the first legal execution Marshall county has had in thirty years, notwithstanding there have been murders galore.

Bribery Charged.

The sensational charge of bribery made in the United States Court by District Attorney Vaughan, at Huntsville, against A. W. McCormack, an illicit distiller of Jackson county, has been considerable discussed in court and out since. He was charged with bribing L. C. Staples, colored, one of the jurors. Judge Bruce ordered McCormack and Staples both to be sent to jail till a full investigation could be had. Staples demanded an immediate trial. Pending an investigation, they were released on bond. Judge Bruce has decided to extend the term of court another week.

MUST TAKE WHAT'S LEFT.

Southern Looms Are Destined to Make the Cotton Goods.

At Thursday's session of the New England Cotton Manufacturers' Association, held in Philadelphia, a large number of technical papers were read. One of the most important papers was by Arthur Parkinson, of Providence, R. I., on the "Manufacture and Export of Cotton Goods," during which he said:

"It is well known that Southern manufacturers, with the present conditions, can undersell or compete easily with the Eastern mills on medium and coarse fabrics and the future looks dark for New England. The facilities of manufacturers have been so increased that in many lines of goods the existing manufacturing establishments can produce a vast amount more than the United States can consume, and it seems likely each year will cause stagnation for the industry, and, of course, the usual stoppages of the mills during certain periods. As a result of this continued competition in certain lines of goods for the home market, the prices are low, wages are low and tariff legislation cannot help matters for the merchant. The jobber is bound to buy in the cheapest market, and that means Southern looms will be engaged ahead and the New England mills must take what is left."

PULLMAN'S WILL PROBATED.

Two Sons Get But a Small Share—Charitable Institutions are Remembered.

The will of George M. Pullman was filed for probate last Thursday. To his widow he left the homestead on Prairie avenue. Lowden, of Chicago, and Mrs. Carolan, of San Francisco. An income of but $3,000 yearly is provided for his two sons, George M. Jr. and Sanger W.

About $150,000 in sums of $10,000 and $20,000 is left to various charitable institutions in Chicago. A sum of $200,000 is given for the erection of a manual training school in Pullman, which is also endowed with $1,200,000. Five old employees are give $5,000 each. Two sisters and two brothers of the dead millionaire are given $50,000 each and another brother gets $25,000.

The total value of the estate is shown by the petition for letters testamentary $7,600,000. Of this amount $6,800,000 is personal property and $800,000 realty.

How They Stand in Georgia.

According to the report of Judge Turner, principal keeper of the Georgia state penitentiary, there are a goodly number of farmers in the state prison, but only two newspaper men—one reporter and one printer. There are 975 laborers and 863 farmers in the penitentiary. Of the other occupations, none are represented by over 100. Carpenters come next, with 28, and brickmasons next, with 27. There are 24 painters and 21 cooks, 18 sailors and 15 coachmen. Eleven merchants are doing penal service, but the prison walls enclose but 2 newspaper men—1 reporter and 1 printer—while the school teachers show up with 5 convicts, and, strange to say, the preachers are represented by 2 zebra-striped workers. There are 58 women in the penitentiary.

Mississippi Isolated.

Mississippi has struck the final blow against railroad transportation in that state so long as the yellow fever epidemic continues. Not only is it maintaining strict quarantine against adjoining states, but her own citizens are now prevented from traveling from one town to another. Half a dozen railroads entering the state of Mississippi through Alabama were practically compelled to discontinue the running of trains of any kind.

A Wonderful Operation.

Dr Garey, of Mexico City, has performed an operation, declared to be without a parallel, having successfully operated on and saved the life of a man who had received a knife wound in the upper right hand side of the neck, cutting into the carotid artery. The patient lost three litres of blood and was in an exhausted condition. The artery was tied and the doctor, waiting an opportune moment when the anaurism containing a small quantity of blood, removed the coagulated blood and succeeded finally in stopping the hemorrhage. The patient in fifteen days has been pronounced cured and is strong and active.

Wants a Postponement.

Long cable messages have been received by United States Attorney General McKenna in the matter of the Union Pacific Railway sale on behalf of the Coates syndicate, making offers that meet the objections raised. The syndicate claims that its bid would produce $20,000,000 more to the government than any other bid, and urges that the sale be adjourned until Dec. 15, to enable congress to determine as to the advisability of the acceptance of bonds in part payment.

GEORGE DEAD.

The Noted Single-Taxer Passes Suddenly Away.

BRIEF SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

At the Time of His Death He was Candidate for Mayor of Greater New York on the United Democracy Ticket—His Son's Name Substituted for Mayor.

Henry George, the candidate of the Jeffersonian democracy for mayor of Greater New York, died Friday. His death is thought to have been due to apoplexy.

Mr. George had just returned to the Union Square Hotel from several large mass meetings in the Borough of Queens and Brooklyn.

The work of the night seemed to have told on him. He complained of being tired, but his friends and relatives, who awaited him, thought it was only the natural fatigue due that follows such hard campaign work as Mr. George had been doing. Not long after reaching the hotel he retired. It was about 3:30 o'clock when Mrs. George was awakened. She found Mr. George sitting in an arm chair.

Mrs. George at once grew anxious as to her husband's condition. Mr. George gradually grew incoherent and lapsed into unconsciousness.

A call was sent to a physician, and he came without delay. Mr. George was still unconscious. All efforts to revive him failed. Without a sign of recognition to those around him he passed peacefully away at 4:45 o'clock.

SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

Henry George, political economist, was born in Philadelphia September 2, 1839. He attended the public schools until 14 years old, learned the printer's trade, went to sea, and settled in California in 1858. He worked at his trade in a newspaper office until 1866, then changed to a reporter, rose to be editor, and became part proprietor. While editor of the Sacramento Reporter he was in harmony with the democratic party, but bitterly opposed to the railroad and other monopolies of the state.

Shortly afterward he entered upon literary work, his first publication, on land-ownership, was Our Land and Land Policy. The attention which this attracted led him to a very detailed and laborious investigation into the causes of industrial depressions and the increase of want with the increase of wealth. In 1879 he published the results of his investigations under the title of Progress and Poverty, and in August, 1880, removed to New York. His books gained an immediate and wide reputation, and within a few weeks after his arrival in New York he was in receipt of requests from all parts of the country to give public expositions of his theories. He then went to Ireland to study the land question. While abroad he lectured throughout England, Scotland and Ireland. Returning to New York and resuming lecturing, his views were adopted by the United Labor party, which made him its candidate for mayor of the city in 1886. He received 68,110 votes against 90,552 for Abram S. Hewitt, democrat, and 60,435, for Theodore Roosevelt, republican.

In 1887 he was nominated by the same party for secretary of state, but was defeated.

His sixth book, Protection or Free Trade, was published in 1886, and The Condition of Labor: An Open Letter to Pope Leo XIII., 1891.

At the time of his death Mr. George was a candidate for mayor of New York, having received the nominations of the silver Democrats, Populists, single taxers and several other factions. All of these nominations he accepted and he was engaged in the campaign when his demise occurred.

The Thomas Jefferson democracy Friday afternoon substituted the name of Henry George, Jr., for the name of his father, Henry George, deceased, as a candidate for mayor of Greater New York.

Andree's Balloon.

Dispatches received from Vardoe, an island in the Arctic ocean off Finmark, which, with Vardoehuus, is the most northern point in Northern Europe, say the public there is fully convinced of the truth of the report that a whaling ship sighted Professor Andree's balloon floating on September 23 near Prince Charles promontory, Spitzbergen.

Dr. Otto Nordenskold, the well-known Arctic explorer, will superintend an Arctic exploration at the joint expense of Norway and Sweden to see whether any trace of Prof. Andree's balloon can be found.

An Edison Success.

Thomas A. Edison has succeeded in recovering by electrical means the iron contained in low grade ore. The inventor's experiments have been carried on during the past six years at the old Ogden iron mines, a few miles from Dover, N. J. His process, in brief, consists in pulverizing the ore. The powder is then allowed to fall in close proximity to electro magnets, which deflects the iron to one side, and the non-metallic matter falls to the other side by gravity.

JUDGES PERPLEXED.

Supreme Justices in a Dilemma Over the Fever Situation.

On behalf of the judges of the state supreme court, who are trying to solve the problem of how they will convene and then adjourn court at Montgomery this week in accordance with the state law and not be forced to leave the state for violating the quarantine regulations, Associate Justice J. B. Head has addressed the following letter to Governor Johnston:

"It becomes necessary, under the laws of the state, for the supreme court to meet at Montgomery on or before the 6th of November. The court has resolved to meet there on the 3th, and members desire to conform to the quarantine regulations. It is proposed to leave Birmingham on a special, arrived at Montgomery at 12 m, proceed at once to the capitol, open and adjourn court and return on the special immediately. This can be done, not detaining us more than thirty minutes in the city. We desire to know if there will be any objection to our returning to the upper portion of the state, or whether any other arrangement can be made that will be approved, to accomplish this result."

The governor has sent an inquiry to each member of the state board of health for his opinion and upon the reply of a majority will depend his answer to the judges. Unless the supreme court meets in Montgomery not later than November 6, it must stand adjourned for a year.

Germany Wroth.

Serious trouble has arisen between Hayti and Germany. The German minister to the Republic of Hayti, Count Reichwerin, has hauled down his flag and according to current report three German warships are expected at Port Au Prince to back up the ultimatum of the German minister to Hayti, demanding an indemnity for the alleged illegal arrest of a German citizen. The affair has caused considerable excitement among the native population and some of the people have threatened to kill the German minister and all the Germans in Port Au Prince.

Conferences Postponed.

The Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, that are to be presided over by Bishop Keener, have been postponed, as follows:

The North Alabama Conference, which meets at Florence, will convene Dec. 1.

The Alabama Conference on Dec. 15.

The Florida Conference on Jan. 5, 1898.

This has been made necessary by quarantine restrictions now existing.

A Work of Art.

An evidence of genuine enterprise and liberality is shown by the publishers of the Youths' Companion, Boston, Mass., in giving all new subscribers to their publication an art calendar for 1898—a gem of beautiful color-work far in advance of anything of the kind previously produced. Also, a magnificent illustrated Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's double numble of the magazine—each a prize—which will be preserved by thousands of art lovers. By sending a coupon cut from the advertising columns of the local paper of this week or last week, and following its instructions, these artistic and valuable productions can be secured.

Carlist Leader in New York.

Count Henry De Penalosa, one of the leaders in Paris of the Carlist movement, was a passenger on the White Star liner Germanic, which arrived at New York from Liverpool Thursday. Count Penalosa is one of the most enthusiastic supporters of the pretensions of Don Carlos to the throne of Spain. While he would not admit it in words, the count gave a decided impression that his visit here has some connection with an attempt to be made in Don Carlos' interest.

Gov. Atkinson Condemns Lynching.

Mob law was severely condemned by Governor Atkinson in his message to the Georgia legislature in Atlanta the past week. He advocates stringent legislation against mobs and insists that the legislature pass a law laying every county wherein such a crime is committed subject to a large indemnity to the relatives of the mob's victim. The governor is in favor of arming the prisoners and allowing them to protect themselves from mobs.

Carnegie Grows Generous.

Andrew Carnegie says he has offered the Carnegie armor plate works to the United States government. If the offer is not accepted the firm will sell them abroad.

He says that he only took up the armor plate business from a sense of duty to his country, and that the works have never paid.

There is a lively scrimmage on for the reward for the capture of Taylor Delk, who will serve a sentence of life imprisonment in the penitentiary for complicity in the murder of Sheriff Guinn. Since it was announced some days ago that a life verdict had been agreed on, Major Revill, secretary of the executive department at the capitol, has answered several communications relative to this reward. It seems as though Delk had quite a number of captors who now want the reward for their trouble.

Embargo Lifted.

Chattanooga has lifted the quarantine entirely, and people from infected places and elsewhere can go thither.

Fever at Prattville.

There was one death from yellow fever at Prattville Saturday. There are no new cases.

Supreme Court Convenes This Week.

The supreme court of Alabama will convene in Mongomery November 6 despite the fact that yellow fever is prevalent in that city.

Alone in the World.

Centreville citizens served notice to the postmistress there not to receive the mail from the horseback carrier, who brings it from Randolph, on the Selma branch of the Southern railway, and people of that town are hearing nothing from the outside world.

Senator Morgan Improving.

United States Senator John T. Morgan who is in San Diego, Cal., is slowly regaining his strength. He has been free from fever for over thirty-six hours, but must remain quiet for some days yet. His trouble is due to an injury to his knee which he received while in Hawaii.

To Operate Gold Mines.

The Alabama King Mining company has been reorganized with a capital of $100,000 and headquarters in Atlanta. This company will mine for gold at Jackson's Gap, Tallapoosa county, where it owns the Bonner-Terrell properties, containing 200 acres. Three development shafts have been sunk and several open cuts have been made. Assays of the ore have run as high as $80 per ton.

Selma People Encouraged.

The yellow fever situasion at Selma continues to improve. There have been no new cases for several days, and all fever patients have been discharged. There is not a serious case of sickness of any kind in the city. In fact, the health of the city was never better. Quarantine restrictions against all infected localities have been reestablished. Dr. Mullins offers a reward of $1,000 for a trace of yellow fever in Selma, and says there has been none there since 1853.

Removing to Anniston.

The machinery of the United States Rolling Stock company's plant at Decatur is being moved to Anniston, where it will be combined with the company's plant there. It is claimed the removal will cost the company dear, as they are under an ironclad contract with the Decatur Land company not to move any of the plant. An attempt was made some time ago to remove it, but it was stopped by injunction. Since then the company made a heavy bond and is now going ahead doing the thing they were enjoined not to do.

Harsh Words Produced Death.

Last week at Huntsville Bert Hubert noticed that his 3-year-old daughter had her grand-mother's snuff box and instructed her to put it away. A delay in executing his specific request angered the father, and giving away to his temper he scolded the child in a violent manner. From a playful and happy expression the child's face became livid with conflicting emotions; her eyes suddenly gave forth a meaningless stare, and it reeled to the floor insensible. Efforts at resuscitation were fruitless, and a physician was summoned, but the child died soon after his arrival.

Fatal Accident at Gate City.

An accident at the Alabama rolling mills at Gate City Thursday morning resulted in the death of Lindsey Dorkins and William Washington, both negroes. A big band wheel in the guide mill burst while going at the rate of one hundred revolutions per minute, smashing another wheel nearby, tearing down rafters about the building and flinging heavy pieces of iron in all directions. One piece of the wheel, over 1,000 pounds in weight, was thrown into the yard where Lindsey Dorkins and Wm. Washington, two colored men, were loading iron and both men were caught by the heavy missile with the result above stated.

BRIEFLY NOTED.

John Goff, a negro miner, was murdered and robbed near Johns last week.

Dr. Charles Whelan, a prominent citizen of Birmingham, died of Bright's disease last Thursday.

John Johnson, a negro painter, fell from a scaffold in Birmingham Saturday and was instantly killed.

On a plantation two miles from Pickensville, Bill Taylor shot and killed Jim Clark. Both were negroes.

Tom Brown, the oldest colored man in North Alabama, died at Veto, or State Line. He was 101 years of age. He left in all, children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, the large number of 357.

In an altercation between Bessie Thomas and Ella Barnes, both colored, at Birmingham last week, the latter picked up a lighted lamp and struck her antagonist with it, igniting Bessie Thomas' dress, which blazed up in a second and literally cooked the woman to death.

Hon. Augustus Barnes, one of the most brilliant members of the Alabama bar, and one of the leaders of the Bryan democracy in Alabama, died at Opelika Wednesday of typhoid fever, after an illness of seven days. Mr. Barnes was twice mayor of Opelika and once a prominent candidate for congress from that district.

At Bessemer while Ernest Chappell, an operator of the Western Union Telegraph company, was going home on his bicycle, he collided with Millard Harthan, who was also on a wheel, and both were seriously injured, Chappell perhaps fatally. The young men met in a dark street on the outskirts of the town, and came together at full speed.

She took a fragile flower from a bunch
against her breast,
Sweet little maiden that she was;
Its petals for a moment at her ripe, red lips
were pressed,
Dainty little maiden that she was!
Then she bade me sweet "good day,"
Threw the scented bud away,
And I watched it where it lay,
Pretty little maiden that she was!

I knelt beside the flower where it lay upon
the floor—
Tender little maiden that she was;
I fondly pressed it to my lips, as she had done before—
Darling little maiden that she was.
And then, turning suddenly,
At the corner I could see
Her slyly watching me—
Cunning little maiden that she was.

HUMOROUS.

If we ever invent anything it will be a salt cellar that always has salt in it.

She—Woman's mind is cleaner than that of man. He—Certainly. She changes it oftener.

"I hope we'll have that Miss Smartwood for teacher next year." "Why do you like her so much, Bobbie?" "'Cause she's so sickly."

Mr. Hiland—I see that many Klondike miners have got enough and are returning. Mr. Halket—Enough gold? Mr. Hiland—No, enough experience.

"I fear," said the tutor, "that you are not up on mathematics." "No," candidly confessed the scion of the plutocratic house. "I am down on 'em."

"A woman," remarked the observer of men and things, "is often a contradiction on the face of her; she can't possibly be as old and as innocent as as she looks."

Hungry Higgins—I wouldn't mind goin' to Klondike, if it wasn't fer havin' to dig out the gold. Weary Watkins—That ain't the worst of it; it has to be washed after it is dug.

Nell—I don't suppose the girl who married Jack Rappidde will ever have another idle moment as long as she lives. Belle—Why, dear? Nell—She says she married him to reform him.

"And how do you like living in a tent? Find it as free and easy as you thought?" "Oh, quite! The rain comes in at the top, the wind at the bottom, and the flies and mosquitoes all over."

Jenny Gay—Why, Nellie! Back from the seashore? And just covered with freckles! I declare, you are a perfect show. Nell Flypp (exhibiting engagement rings)—Yes, and a three-ringed show at that.

"You're not going to the Klondike region, are you?" "No." "Don't like the climate?" "It isn't the climate. It's the surface conditions. There are too many mountain passes and no railway passes."

"I found out the cost of those roses," said the girl with the real blonde hair, "but I can't say that the information has done me any good." "No?" said the other girl. "No; not a bit. If at that price they were more than he could afford, there is no use to think of marrying him, and if they were not more than he could afford, he does not love me."

Little Girl—Mrs. Brown, ma wants to know if she could borrow a dozen eggs. She wants to put 'em under a hen. Neighbor—So you've got a hen setting, have you? I didn't know you kept hens. Little Girl—No, ma'am, we don't, but Mrs. Smith's goin' to lend us a hen that's goin' to set, and ma thought if you'd lend us some eggs we'd find a nest ourselves.

Real Courage.

All men have their own ideas of what constitutes courage. I believe our firemen and some of our policemen are as heroic men as ever breathed, but instances of true courage are rare. The policeman is too often the mere active principle of his uniform and shield, his club and revolver. Firemen fight fire as ordinary persons fight flies. It is second nature. They brave danger so continually that it becomes mere routine, utterly devoid of excitement. A brave man is he who, seeing a fellow creature in the grasp of death, goes to the rescue. Those who brave the undertow to save a drowning person, who enter a yellow fever or cholera-ravaged district to nurse the helpless victim of either dread disease, who throw themselves in front of a trolley car to rescue a child from the very jaws of death—they are the brave people. Bravery, my brethren, is homely. It does not lie in spectacular performances and theatrical stunts. One of the bravest acts of recent days occurred on the Brooklyn bridge, when a man volunteered to be let down by a rope to the bottom of the tower well to get the dead body of his companion. The gases were killing, and the deed nearly cost him his life. There's no medal for such as he.—New York Sun.

No Poetry in Him.

"Dad," said the romantic youngster, "this here's the season when the poets write purty things about 'autumn's gold,' an' make songs 'bout the skies an' the leaves."

"I know it, Jimmie," replied the old man. "Now, run out an' cut a cord o' wood, an' fetch in some light-wood knots!"—Atlanta Journal.

"MONEY OLIGARCHY."

SILVER REMONETIZATION AND GOVERNMENT BANKING.

The People Should Control the People's Money—The Present System Is One of the Most Ingenious and Powerful Monopolies Ever Devised.

By E. E. Ewing.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident" that the land was designed by the Creator for the use of the people, that money is created by government for the use of the people, and that the first consideration of government is the welfare of the people. We find, however, that both land and money have been monopolized and withheld from free use by the people and that property has been given the first place in the concern of government. If denied access to the land man perishes and must soon become extinct. Without money civilization is impossible, and the human race would remain in a tribal and barbarous condition. And to that degree which the population is denied the use of the earth is the people hindered in their pursuit of happiness and enjoyment of liberty.

To the same extent that the industrial, wealth-producing class is restricted or hindered from the free use of money they are hampered and hindered in the pursuit of their industrial vocation.

To the perversion of these three fundamental principles of government all the complaint and hardship which cause the present public unrest, can be traced.

The most active of these evils is the monopoly of and abuse of money. That abuse remedied would quickly lead to the abolition of other abuses which afflict the people.

The rent or interest which the monopolist is able to exact from the users is the object for which money is monopolized. The whole system of handling and distributing money has been perfected into one of the most ingenius and powerful monopolies ever devised by the brain of man. The banks are the grand factors in the system of money monopoly. The individual money loaner is but a crude, unskilled person in the art of usury. He can only loan his own money, but the bank not only loans everybody's money and pockets the interest or rent for the loans, but it loans in addition its credit, which is an intangible thing based on the security of its debtor who has borrowed his neighbor's money from the bank and pledged his own and probably the same neighbor's property to the bank as security for the payment of the loan. By this double refined process of fleecing the wealth producers, the money monopoly draws from the producers annually hundreds of millions of the wealth they create.

If the producing class and all those who are closely allied to and associated with that class, as "middle men," manufacturers and distributors of the raw and manufactured materials, could lift their noses from the grindstone long enough to consider this they would brush it away without a mighty, colossal scheme of robbery, moment's hesitation.

Consider for a moment what money is and what are its legitimate uses. Government makes it, creates money by act of law, and for the use of the people. A person or corporation cannot make or create money. That is a function purely governmental. The object of government in creating money is to enable the industrial classes to exchange and distribute the wealth they create with ease and dispatch and divide it into infinitesimal quantities, when desired, throughout the whole community. For instance, a farmer has produced a thousand bushels of wheat. He wants but a small portion of the grain for his own use, but he wants a hundred other things. It would be an endless job to go around and exchange the grain in small quantities with producers of other things which he must have for his and his family's comfort. He hauls his grain to a warehouse or mill, delivers it to the miller or shipper, and the party receiving the grain transfers the value of the grain to the farmer in the form of moneys which has been created by government for this purpose, the transfer of values. The farmer then in a few hours, if he chooses, purchases a hundred different things for his personal use, from a penny's worth to the highest sum within the capacity of his money. This money represents the value of the farmer's wheat, and in effect he is exchanging his wheat for all these various articles he purchases. This transaction embraces the entire use and function of money. Paying debts is only a deferred payment for some property or service which has been enjoyed by the debtor in advance, or at least presumed to have been so enjoyed or received.

This being true, why should government permit such an outrage on society as the monopoly of this necessary article, and by that monopoly rob the producers in sums aggregating hundreds of millions of dollars annually, out of the fruits of their labor? It is one of the many abuses which have grown up with society out of its primitive condition, and should be abolished. The system has become an abuse in our present advanced state of society. In a cruder state of society there might have been a plea of necessity advanced for what has become an abuse only.

Government, the creator of money for the use of the people, should be the custodian and distributer of that essential medium of trade and industry, and never permit it to remain in the hands of a monopolizing class who make use of the power thus given them to exploit an entire nation; and this power given the banking class over money is rapidly assuming the strength and dominion of an oligarchy which is tramping the people down in poverty, dominating courts, dictating acts of Congress, and virtually making laws that no despot at the present day has power to do.

If the government were to take the control and distribution of the money of the country into its own hands and out of the control of exploiting banks run by banking corporations, depositors' money would always be safe in the custody of the government. The government would have no incentive to fleece the users of money by the system of interest or to loan wind called credit by the banking exploiting class and would transact the entire banking business of the country at the net cost of the work, which it is pretty definitely ascertained would not be more than a charge of one-half of one per cent per annum.

There would be no wind loans by government but the amount of money the business of the country required which would be determined by the security offered, would be always kept in circulation. The business of the country would be relieved from the periodical financial panics that the exploiting system of the banks creates, and the producing and business class would be annually richer by the hundreds of millions they are now fleeced out of by our present financial system of private banking. The bankers would simply quit business, as no one would deposit in a private bank if he had a government bank to place his money in, and no business firm would pay a high interest for the use of money when, if engaged in a legitimate business, money could be had at a nominal rate from government banks. There would be no piling up hundreds of millions in the treasury and other reserves held out of use to meet checks drawn against wind loans, but under government control the entire volume which now accumulates in government sub-treasuries would be kept circulating through the government's banks. Under a government banking system the money would not flow in a constant stream from all points in the country to the great cities to be used in making corners on grain stocks and all kinds of products that can be handled by these exchange gamblers.

The advantage that would accrue to the public under a financial system conducted through government banks are so many and beneficent in their results that it is impossible to enumerate them all. There would no longer exist a gold combination against the remonetization of silver. Wall street would have no interest in fighting bimetallism or spending millions in subsidizing the press to spread its pernicious sophistries on finance.

The power and danger of the moneyed oligarchy were never before shown as in the election campaign of 1896. The entire banking class of the country was combined, and under its control every corporation from the great railroad systems of the country down, including manufactories and large mercantile establishments, were assessed and taxed to create a monster corruption fund to bribe voters, subsidize the press, distribute lying literature, and pay prevaricators, to deny facts, corrupt the elective franchise of the nation, and beat the people. Fraud, bribery, intimidation, promises of impossible things, all were resorted to by this domineering, cruel, relentless, tyrannical oliarchy. And while it is allowed to tax the whole industry of the country at will by the exaction of tribute for the use of money, it can never be overthrown. It has fought the people since the foundation of the government to rob them of their property and their liberty, and is stronger, more arrogant and domineering to-day than ever before. It must be smitten to the death, not scotched and driven back as in times past. The people's money in the people's control, under the allpowerful arm of their government, is the only remedy.

Results of Land Monopoly.

Without land man is absolutely helpless. Without land labor can accomplish nothing. Why, our very bodies, this flesh and blood with which we clothe it, comes from the land and to the land it returns. Therefore, it is that labor without land is utterly helpless. Therefore it is that as advancing civilization increases productive power, it cannot absolve men from the necessity of using land, and, therefore, if there be one class who own the land and another who have no right whatever to use land without the permission of the other, advances in civilization must give greater and greater amounts of wealth to the landowners and make more and more helpless those who must obtain someone else's permission to live or to work.—Charters Towers, Aust., Eagle.

Government by Injunction.

We have been ruled by a king, we have been governed by an aristocratic parliament, we are now apparently entering upon a government by judges—the worst form of autocracy, next to that of hierarchy, of which the mind of man can conceive.—Cleveland Recorder.

But Not Enough for Plutocrats.

"Two hours and fifteen minutes daily work by each able bodied man, if systematically applied, would produce all the food, clothing and shelter the people need.—C. D. Wright, U. S. Com of Labor.

THE ELECTIONS.

Tammany Ticket Successful in Greater New York Contest.

OHIO PROBABLY REPUBLICAN

Senator Hanna Will be Returned to the Senate—Democrats Carry the Elections in Kentucky and Maryland—Falling Off of Republican Vote.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Tammany's victory in the first election in Greater New York is a sweeping one. The only question remaining to be settled is the one of the plurality by which the entire ticket headed by Robert A. VanWick has carried the gigantic municipality.

It can scarcely be less than 60,000, and may be larger than that. Van Wick has polled a vote which is possibly 40,000 under the combined votes of Gen. Tracy, republican, and Seth Low of the Citizens' union.

Later estimates place the vote of Greater New York for mayor as follows: Van Wyck, 233,752; Low, 146,821; Tracy, 100,998; George, 20,386. Van Wyck's plurality, 86,921.

The plurality of Parker, democrat, candidate for judge of the court of appeals in the state, is 143,195 over Wallace, the republican candidate.

Ohio.

The election in this state is very close. It will probably take the official count to determine the result. At midnight the democrats claim that the legislature is democratic by safe majorities in both branches and that the entire state ticket is elected by good pluralities; while, on the other hand, the republicans claim that Bushnell, for governor, is elected by from 12,000 to 15,000 plurality, and a majority of both branches of the legislature.

Maryland.

Returns from the state are meagre and unofficial in character. Up to 11 p. m. no complete returns have been received, but the indications are that the democrats may possibly have a majority on joint ballot in the legislature, which will ensure the election of Senator Gorman; while the republicans claim to have elected a sufficient number of members with the holdovers to give them a majority on joint ballot in the next legislature.

The republicans have elected their municipal ticket in Baltimore by majorities ranging from 4,000 to 6,000.

Kentucky.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 2.—A conservative estimate of the result of the election at 11 o'clock tonight places the majority of Charles P. Weaver (democrat), candidate for mayor over George D. Todd, the present incumbent, at from 3,000 to 3,500.

The returns from the state are meagre and unofficial at this hour. According to those received, Shackleford (silver democrat), is leading Bailey (republican)), by about 5,000 votes. The national democratic vote is very light.

Virginia.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 3.—The election story in Virginia is briefly told. Although there was unusual apathy, it is estimated that the democratic state ticket is elected by about 55,000 or 60,000 majority, and that the democrats have two-thirds of the house of delegates, and four-fifths of the senate.

Pennsylvania.

The incomplete figures show an apparent plurality for Beacon, the head of the republican ticket, of 145,000, as against Haywood's plurality of 174,265 in 1895. The indications are that McAuley, the republican candidate for auditor general, will receive about 170,00 plurality.

New Jersey.

Five democrats and one republican were elected state senators in New Jersey. Senate for 1898: Republicans, 14; democrats, 7.

Senate for 1897 stood: Republicans, 18, democrats, 3. Democratic gains by today's election, 4.

Nebraska.

The fusion ticket has carried the state by 12,000 to 15,000 plurality.

The State Journal (rep.) concedes the defeat of the republican state ticket. Scattering returns indicate that fusion has carried the state by a greater plurality than was given Bryan last year.

Massachusetts.

The indications are that Wolcott, for governor, has been elected by decreased majorities.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D.—At midnight indications are that the republicans have won in South Dakota.

In Colorado both sides claim a victory, but neither claims over 5,000 plurality. Returns are meagre.

Two Deaths in a Wreck.

A wreck occurred on Tuesday on the Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham railroad one mile west of Carbon Hill, Ala. Through freight No. 55 was derailed at the switch leading to mine No. 5. The engine left the track and half buried itself in an embankment. Engineer Snapp was thrown and terribly scalded and died shortly afterward. Pumper B. B. Martin, of New river tank, was on the engine and died from his injuries.

MYSTERY SOLVED BY SCIENCE.

Microbes Can Draw Nitrogen from the Air and Give It to Plants.

Besides buying well-selected fertilizers, the progressive farmer of the future will also provide himself with bottled billions of the microbes which enable plants to obtain nitrogen from the air. It was a long puzzle to chemists to learn how nitrogen is absorbed. It was clear that under ordinary circumstances plants are unable to appropriate directly from the air the nitrogen they absolutely require for their growth. The air in the pores of the soil contains plenty of it, but the roots are not capable of causing it to become a constituent of the sap or fiber. Leguminous plants, such as beans, peas, and clover, require a great deal of nitrogen, and it was of special interest to provide them artificially, if possible, with this important constituent.

The mystery was dispelled by a recent discovery that the roots of plants capable of absorbing nitrogen bear little protuberances, and it is through these protuberances that the nitrogen is taken in. Further study with the help of the microscope revealed the fact that the protuberances contain millions of bacteria, and that it is these bacteria that absorb the nitrogen and give it to the roots of plants in a form in which it can be used by them. To the activity of these beneficent bacteria, plants—particularly leguminous plants—owe their vigor and perhaps their existence in their present form. The plant life in this view, is a result, in incidental product, of the vital processes of microbes, a million of which could swim with comfort in a single drop of water. The next step was to isolate, by methods with which bacteriologists are familiar, the varieties of bacteria suited to each crop, and to breed them artificially in paying quantities.

This has been done. A German firm breeds seventeen species of bacteria of the nitrogen-absorbing species and sells them to agriculturists in bottles under the name of "nitragin." A bottle containing some thousand billions of the useful bacteria and selling for $1.25 will "inoculate," it is said, an acre of ground. The experience of farmers with "nitragin" is too brief to qualify them to speak with certainty of its practical utility. Some have obtained encouraging results, while others have not. It has been on the market less than a year and began to be used too late in the season for a fair test. "Nitragin" ought to be used before it is two months old, and its vitality is impaired, if not wholly lost, when it is four months old. It must be kept in a cool place, and is best applied, perhaps, at night, since it is injured by exposure to the light. Its function is to assist germinating seeds and small roots to put forth the desired protuberances.

It is accordingly useless for growing plants, and in soils already well supplied with nitrogen in the required form. Under favorable conditions several experimenters have obtained, it is said, excellent results. Cereals have not been found susceptible to its influence to an appreciable extent. Much remains to be determined as to the extent of its utility. It is yet undecided, it seems, whether the seed or the soil is to be inoculated—whether the seed should be mixed with the gelatine containing the "nitragin," or whether the "nitragin" should be mixed with a quantity of the latter scattered over the area to be treated. In any case, agriculturists have in nitragin an interesting subject of experiment.—Baltimore Sun.

A Rare Bird.

The rarest species of bird now extant, and one which is almost extinct, has its home in the jungles of South America. The ornithological curiosity is known to science as the palamedra cornuda, and to the common people as the "horned screamer." As a rara avis nothing could excel the cornuda, unless it should be the accidental discovery of a living moa, or an epiornis. But few of the bird books even let you know that such a horned paradox ever existed, let alone telling you that living specimens of the queer creature are occasionally met with. The only one now in captivity in North America, if the writer was not misinformed, is that belonging to the aviary of the Philadelphia Zoological Gardens, and which arrived in this country about three years ago. The creature is about the size of a full-grown turkey hen, and of a blackish brown color. One of its distinguishing peculiarities is a ruffle of black and white which surrounds the head.

The Obstinate Juror.

The latest way to arrive at a verdict is to smoke out the obstinate juror. This was successfully tried in Hartford not long ago when eleven good men and true were unable to influence their companion. The obstinate juror held out as long as he could, but the volumes of smoke that filled the jury room from the cigars, pipes and cigarettes of his eleven companions proved more effective than argument, and he gave in.—Hartford Times.

Sculpture Under Ground.

While a workman engaged in a Pueblo, Colo., stoneyard was dressing a block of stone his chisel laid bare a round knot or knob near the surface of the rock. A stroke of the hammer vigorously applied for the purpose of smoothing down the nodule had the effect of dislodging it entire. An investigation proved that the underside of the stone knot bore a perfect model of a human face. Who owned that face and in what age of the world did he live?

In a Duck.

A duck shot by Edward Jackson, of Atchison, had a nine-pound fish in its esophagus.

On Eternity's Brink.

The negro, Major Terry, to have hanged at Elba last week, was granted, at a late hour, a new trial, and the date of the execution postponed indefinitely.

Terry, it will be remembered, was convicted of assaulting and killing a Mrs. Thomas and her baby in Coffee county, and burning their bodies. It was with great difficulty that a mob was prevented from hanging Terry at the time of his capture.

Tax Collector's Accounts Short.

Examiner Foster has submitted to the governor his sworn statement of the result of his examination of the books of Tax Collector J. A. Box, of St. Clair county. He finds Mr. Box short in his accounts $1,087.40. This amount, he says, is due on taxes collected or raised by the board of equalization in 1892, 1894 and 1896. Mr. Box states that he was not aware of the omissions of these items on his reports.

At Guntersville Henry Boyd, colored, was condemned to be hanged at the term of circuit court just ended. His execution will take place December 10. In June last a young negro woman was found dead in the hills back of Guntersville with her skull crushed. Suspicion pointed to Boyd and his arrest and conviction followed.

If this hanging takes place it will be the first legal execution Marshall county has had in thirty years, notwithstanding there have been murders galore.

Monday's report of the yellow fever situation is more encouraging than for any day for some time past. Along the cost the disease is fast losing ground, though the death rate is slightly on the increase.

Judge Bruce ordered McCormack and Staples both to be sent to jail till a full investigation could be had. Staples demanded an immediate trial. Pending an investigation, they were released on bond. VERSES OLD AND NEW.

Rings.

(With apologies for rifling Poe.)

Ring out, free press, across the land
Old Mac is cringing in his stand
The trust is dying in the night
Ring out, free press, and be light.

Ring out the gold, ring in the silver
Let silver to the people flow
The bonds are going, let them go
Ring out the false, ring in the true.

Ring out the Confidence, the Trust
The promises begat by gold
The lies which gave the Platform
Ring in the votes which free men hold.

Ring in the days, full near at hand
Which "Mark" the passing of the ghoul,
Ring out the strains which now
The banner of our Trusted land.

The Elysium of the Wise.

Slow fades the pageant, and the tom stage
As slowly filled with spectral forms;
Here, over fireless hearths, the shivering Age
And blew with feeble breath embers; storms
Hung in the icy welkin, and Earth lay forbidden in Winter's nel air.

No careless childhood laughed
ingly,
But dwarfed, pale manhood
a century's gloom
On infant brows, beneath a
With skeleton fingers piled loom;
Mocking in cynic jests life's things,
They wove gay king-robes,
"What are kings?"

And thro' that dreary Hades
Stalked, all unheeded, the guests;
Grim Discontent, that loathes
and Woe,
Clasping dead infants to her breasts;
And maddening Hate, and Iron heel,
And voiceless Vengeance, secret steel.

"Can such things be below above?"
Faltered the king. Replied genius, "Nay.
This is the state that sages prove;
This is man civilized, the sway
Of merchant kings, the ripened art
Which cheapens men—the the Mart."

Plaint and Appeal.

Lookest thou down from above,
Or knowest thou, William
That in thy land of "Brother
They shoot down hungry

Thy brother's board is starkly
No sunbeam lights his
For the earth is owned by the

And they shoot down starving

But there's an over-production say,
Luxuries wasting all around
Yet thy brother has barely pay
For toiling beneath the

What food for soul, I ask,
We know he has this to
That he may be buried alive
And his little ones left

My sickening soul the scene
Great God, was this thy
That a few should gather up
And starve their brother

Prosperity With Blow Holes.

The estimated value of all the products of Kansas this year, exclusive of live stock is placed at $176,000,000 by the boomers, which is probably more than it is, even including the stock. But for the sake of argument the matter let us assume it is. As the population of Kansas is 1,000,000 this means that the average is $665 per family! A wonderful prosperity, that. Not enough to put a collar for some of the pet dogs of plutocracy. The census of 1895 places the value of the lands, fences, houses and machinery of Kansas at $578,595,836, it means that a farmer with skill and a capital of $578 is only able, in the most prosperous year, to get a gross income from the farm of $665! Wonderful prosperity, indeed, when you take into consideration that a large part of the population are producers and get the largest share. This will still further reduce the magnificent prosperity of the plutocratic farmer. When the farmer has the salaries and expenses of the thousands of officers, the interest on $600,000,000 of home and farm mortgages they can give fancy balls that will rival the Bradley-Martins—I think. The farmer is expected to be prosperous on a [illegible] diet.

Money Is the Life-Blood.

To commerce money occupies the same relation that blood does to the human system. A healthy circulation system prevails when money is plenty and freely, but when it becomes scarce or insufficient in quantity commerce becomes inert.—Dublin Progress.

MUST TAKE WHAT'S LEFT.

Southern Looms Are Destined to Make the Cotton Goods.

At Thursday's session of the New England Cotton Manufacturers' Association, held in Philadelphia, a large number of technical papers were read. One of the most important papers was by Arthur Parkinson, of Providence, R. I., on the "Manufacture and Export of Cotton Goods," during which he said:

"It is well known that Southern manufacturers, with the present conditions, can undersell or compete easily with the Eastern mills on medium and coarse fabrics and the future looks dark for New England. The facilities of manufacturers have been so increased that in many lines of goods the existing manufacturing establishments can produce a vast amount more than the United States can consume, and it seems likely each year will cause stagnation for the industry, and, of course, the usual stoppages of the mills during certain periods. As a result of this continued competition in certain lines of goods for the home market, the prices are low, wages are low and tariff legislation cannot help matters for the merchant. The jobber is bound to buy in the cheapest market, and that means Southern looms will be engaged ahead and the New England mills must take what is left."

PULLMAN'S WILL PROBATED.

Lowden, of Chicago, and Mrs. Carolan, of San Francisco. An income of but $3,000 yearly is provided for his two sons, George M. Jr. and Sanger W.

About $150,000 in sums of $10,000 and $20,000 is left to various charitable institutions in Chicago. A sum of $200,000 is given for the erection of a manual training school in Pullman, which is also endowed with $1,200,000. Five old employees are give $5,000 each. Two sisters and two brothers of the dead millionaire are given $50,000 each and another brother gets $25,000.

How They Stand in Georgia.

According to the report of Judge Turner, principal keeper of the Georgia state penitentiary, there are a goodly number of farmers in the state prison, but only two newspaper men—one reporter and one printer. There are 975 laborers and 863 farmers in the penitentiary. Of the other occupations, none are represented by over 100. Carpenters come next, with 28, and brickmasons next, with 27. There are 24 painters and 21 cooks, 18 sailors and 15 coachmen. Eleven merchants are doing penal service, but the prison walls enclose but 2 newspaper men—1 reporter and 1 printer—while the school teachers show up with 5 convicts, and, strange to say, the preachers are represented by 2 zebra-striped workers. There are 58 women in the penitentiary.

The artery was tied and the doctor, waiting an opportune moment when the anaurism containing a small quantity of blood, removed the coagulated blood and succeeded finally in stopping the hemorrhage. The patient in fifteen days has been pronounced cured and is strong and active.

Wants a Postponement.

Long cable messages have been received by United States Attorney General McKenna in the matter of the Union Pacific Railway sale on behalf of the Coates syndicate, making offers that meet the objections raised. The syndicate claims that its bid would produce $20,000,000 more to the government than any other bid, and urges that the sale be adjourned until Dec. 15, to enable congress to determine as to the advisability of the acceptance of bonds in part payment.

GEORGE DEAD.

The Noted Single-Taxer Passes Suddenly Away.

BRIEF SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

At the Time of His Death He was Candidate for Mayor of Greater New York on the United Democracy Ticket—His Son's Name Substituted for Mayor.

Henry George, the candidate of the Jeffersonian democracy for mayor of Greater New York, died Friday. His death is thought to have been due to apoplexy.

Mr. George had just returned to the Union Square Hotel from several large mass meetings in the Borough of Queens and Brooklyn.

The work of the night seemed to have told on him. He complained of being tired, but his friends and relatives, who awaited him, thought it was only the natural fatigue due, that follows such hard campaign work as Mr. George had been doing. Not long after reaching the hotel he retired. It was about 3:30 o'clock when Mrs. George was awakened. She found Mr. George sitting in an arm chair.

Mrs. George at once grew anxious as to her husband's condition. Mr. George gradually grew incoherent and lapsed into unconsciousness.

A call was sent to a physician, and he came without delay. Mr. George was still unconscious. All efforts to revive him failed. Without a sign of recognition to those around him he passed peacefully away at 4:45 o'clock.

SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

Henry George, political economist, was born in Philadelphia September 2, 1839. He attended the public schools until 14 years old, learned the printer's trade, went to sea, and settled in California in 1858. He worked at his trade in a newspaper office until 1866, then changed to a reporter, rose to be editor, and became part proprietor. While editor of the Sacramento Reporter he was in harmony with the democratic party, but bitterly opposed to the railroad and other monopolies of the state.

Shortly afterward he entered upon literary work, his first publication, on land-ownership, was Our Land and Land Policy. The attention which this attracted led him to a very detailed and laborious investigation into the causes of industrial depressions and the increase of want with the increase of wealth. In 1879 he published the results of his investigations under the title of Progress and Poverty, and in August, 1880, removed to New York. His books gained an immediate and wide reputation, and within a few weeks after his arrival in New York he was in receipt of requests from all parts of the country to give public expositions of his theories. He then went to Ireland to study the land question. While abroad he lectured throughout England, Scotland and Ireland. Returning to New York and resuming lecturing, his views were adopted by the United Labor party, which made him its candidate for mayor of the city in 1886. He received 68,110 votes against 90,552 for Abram S. Hewitt, democrat, and 60,435, for Theodore Roosevelt, republican.

In 1887 he was nominated by the same party for secretary of state, but was defeated.

His sixth book, Protection or Free Trade, was published in 1886, and The Condition of Labor: An Open Letter to Pope Leo XIII., 1891.

At the time of his death Mr. George was a candidate for mayor of New York, having received the nominations of the silver Democrats, Populites, single taxers and several other factions. All of these nominations he accepted and he was engaged in the campaign when his demise occurred.

The Thomas Jefferson democracy Friday afternoon substituted the name of Henry George, Jr., for the name of his father, Henry George, deceased, as a candidate for mayor of Greater New York.

Atlanta has twenty-three cases of small-pox under treatment.

Andree's Balloon.

Dispatches received from Vardoe, an island in the Arctic ocean off Finmark, which, with Vardoehuus, is the most northern point in Northern Europe, say the public there is fully convinced of the truth of the report that a whaling ship sighted Professor Andree's balloon floating on September 23 near Prince Charles promontory, Spitzbergen.

Dr. Otto Nordenskold, the well-known Arctic explorer, will superintend an Arctic exploration at the joint expense of Norway and Sweden to see whether any trace of Prof. Andree's balloon can be found.

An Edison Success.

Thomas A. Edison has succeeded in recovering by electrical means the iron contained in low grade ore. The inventor's experiments have been carried on during the past six years at the old Ogden iron mines, a few miles from Dover, N. J. His process, in brief, consists in pulverizing the ore. The powder is then allowed to fall in close proximity to electro magnets, which deflects the iron to one side, and the non-metallic matter falls to the other side by gravity.

JUDGES PERPLEXED.

Supreme Justices in a Dilemma Over the Fever Situation.

On behalf of the judges of the state supreme court, who are trying to solve the problem of how they will convene and then adjourn court at Montgomery this week in accordance with the state law and not be forced to leave the state for violating the quarantine regulations, Associate Justice J. B. Head has addressed the following letter to Governor Johnston:

"It becomes necessary, under the laws of the state, for the supreme court to meet at Montgomery on or before the 6th of November. The court has resolved to meet there on the 3th, and members desire to conform to the quarantine regulations. It is proposed to leave Birmingham on a special, arrived at Montgomery at 12 m, proceed at once to the capitol, open and adjourn court and return on the special immediately. This can be done, not detaining us more than thirty minutes in the city. We desire to know if there will be any objection to our returning to the upper portion of the state, or whether any other arrangement can be made that will be approved, to accomplish this result."

The governor has sent an inquiry to each member of the state board of health for his opinion and upon the reply of a majority will depend his answer to the judges. Unless the supreme court meets in Montgomery not later than November 6, it must stand adjourned for a year.

Germany Wroth.

Serious trouble has arisen between Hayti and Germany. The German minister to the Republic of Hayti, Count Reichwerin, has hauled down his flag and according to current report three German warships are expected at Port Au Prince to back up the ultimatum of the German minister to Hayti, demanding an indemnity for the alleged illegal arrest of a German citizen. The affair has caused considerable excitement among the native population and some of the people have threatened to kill the German minister and all the Germans in Port Au Prince.

Conferences Postponed.

The Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, that are to be presided over by Bishop Keener, have been postponed, as follows:

The North Alabama Conference, which meets at Florence, will convene Dec. 1.

The Alabama Conference on Dec. 15.

The Florida Conference on Jan. 5, 1898.

This has been made necessary by quarantine restrictions now existing.

A Work of Art.

An evidence of genuine enterprise and liberality is shown by the publishers of the Youths' Companion, Boston, Mass., in giving all new subscribers to their publication an art calendar for 1898—a gem of beautiful color-work far in advance of anything of the kind previously produced. Also, a magnificent illustrated Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's double numble of the magazine—each a prize—which will be preserved by thousands of art lovers. By sending a coupon cut from the advertising columns of the local paper of this week or last week, and following its instructions, these artistic and valuable productions can be secured.

Carlist Leader in New York.

Count Henry De Penalosa, one of the leaders in Paris of the Carlist movement, was a passenger on the White Star liner Germanic, which arrived at New York from Liverpool Thursday. Count Penalosa is one of the most enthusiastic supporters of the pretensions of Don Carlos to the throne of Spain. While he would not admit it in words, the count gave a decided impression that his visit here has some connection with an attempt to be made in Don Carlos' interest.

Gov. Atkinson Condemns Lynching.

Mob law was severely condemned by Governor Atkinson in his message to the Georgia legislature in Atlanta the past week. He advocates stringent legislation against mobs and insists that the legislature pass a law laying every county wherein such a crime is committed subject to a large indemnity to the relatives of the mob's victim. The governor is in favor of arming the prisoners and allowing them to protect themselves from mobs.

Carnegie Grows Generous.

Andrew Carnegie says he has offered the Carnegie armor plate works to the United States government. If the offer is not accepted the firm will sell them abroad.

He says that he only took up the armor plate business from a sense of duty to his country, and that the works have never paid.

There is a lively scrimmage on for the reward for the capture of Taylor Delk, who will serve a sentence of life imprisonment in the penitentiary for complicity in the murder of Sheriff Guinn. Since it was announced some days ago that a life verdict had been agreed on, Major Revill, secretary of the executive department at the capitol, has answered several communications relative to this reward. It seems as though Delk had quite a number of captors who now want the reward for their trouble.

Embargo Lifted.

Chattanooga has lifted the quarantine entirely, and people from infected places and elsewhere can go thither.

ALABAMA NEWS ITEMS.

Fever at Prattville.

There was one death from yellow fever at Prattville Saturday. There are no new cases.

Supreme Court Convenes This Week.

The supreme court of Alabama will convene in Mongomery November 6 despite the fact that yellow fever is prevalent in that city.

Alone in the World.

Centreville citizens served notice to the postmistress there not to receive the mail from the horseback carrier, who brings it from Randolph, on the Selma branch of the Southern railway, and people of that town are hearing nothing from the outside world.

Senator Morgan Improving.

United States Senator John T. Morgan who is in San Diego, Cal., is slowly regaining his strength. He has been free from fever for over thirty-six hours, but must remain quiet for some days yet. His trouble is due to an injury to his knee which he received while in Hawaii.

To Operate Gold Mines.

The Alabama-King Mining company has been reorganized with a capital of $100,000 and headquarters in Atlanta. This company will mine for gold at Jackson's Gap, Tallapoosa county, where it owns the Bonner-Terrell properties, containing 200 acres. Three development shafts have been sunk and several open cuts have been made. Assays of the ore have run as high as $80 per ton.

Selma People Encouraged.

The yellow fever situasion at Selma continues to improve. There have been no new cases for several days, and all fever patients have been discharged. There is not a serious case of sickness of any kind in the city. In fact, the health of the city was never better. Quarantine restrictions against all infected localities have been reestablished. Dr. Mullins offers a reward of $1,000 for a trace of yellow fever in Selma, and says there has been none there since 1853.

Removing to Anniston.

The machinery of the United States Rolling Stock company's plant at Decatur is being moved to Anniston, where it will be combined with the company's plant there. It is claimed the removal will cost the company dear, as they are under an ironclad contract with the Decatur Land company not to move any of the plant. An attempt was made some time ago to remove it, but it was stopped by injunction. Since then the company made a heavy bond and is now going ahead doing the thing they were enjoined not to do.

Harsh Words Produced Death.

Last week at Huntsville Bert Hubert noticed that his 3-year-old daughter had her grand-mother's snuff box and instructed her to put it away. A delay in executing his specific request angered the father, and giving away to his temper he scolded the child in a violent manner. From a playful and happy expression the child's face became livid with conflicting emotions; her eyes suddenly gave forth a meaningless stare, and it reeled to the floor insensible. Efforts at resuscitation were fruitless, and a physician was summoned, but the child died soon after his arrival.

Fatal Accident at Gate City.

An accident at the Alabama rolling mills at Gate City Thursday morning resulted in the death of Lindsey Dorkins and William Washington, both negroes. A big band wheel in the guide mill burst while going at the rate of one hundred revolutions per minute, smashing another wheel nearby, tearing down rafters about the building and flinging heavy pieces of iron in all directions. One piece of the wheel, over 1,000 pounds in weight, was thrown into the yard where Lindsey Dorkins and Wm. Washington, two colored men, were loading iron and both men were caught by the heavy missile with the result above stated.

BRIEFLY NOTED.

John Goff, a negro miner, was murdered and robbed near Johns last week.

Dr. Charles Whelan, a prominent citizen of Birmingham, died of Bright's disease last Thursday.

John Johnson, a negro painter, fell from a scaffold in Birmingham Saturday and was instantly killed.

On a plantation two miles from Pickensville, Bill Taylor shot and killed Jim Clark. Both were negroes.

Tom Brown, the oldest colored man in North Alabama, died at Veto, or State Line. He was 101 years of age. He left in all, children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, the large number of 357.

In an altercation between Bessie Thomas and Ella Barnes, both colored, at Birmingham last week, the latter picked up a lighted lamp and struck her antagonist with it, igniting Bessie Thomas' dress, which blazed up in a second and literally cooked the woman to death.

Hon. Augustus Barnes, one of the most brilliant members of the Alabama bar, and one of the leaders of the Bryan democracy in Alabama, died at Opelika Wednesday of typhoid fever, after an illness of seven days. Mr. Barnes was twice mayor of Opelika and once a prominent candidate for congress from that district.

At Bessemer while Ernest Chappell, an operator of the Western Union Telegraph company, was going home on his bicycle, he collided with Millard Harthan, who was also on a wheel, and both were seriously injured, Chappell perhaps fatally. The young men met in a dark street on the outskirts of the town, and came together at full speed.

She took a fragile flower from a bunch
against her breast,
Sweet little maiden that she was;
Its petals for a moment at her ripe, red lips
were pressed,
Dainty little maiden that she was!
Then she bade me sweet "good day,"
Threw the scented bud away,
And I watched it where it lay,
Pretty little maiden that she was!

I knelt beside the flower where it lay upon
the floor—
Tender little maiden that she was;
I fondly pressed it to my lips, as she had done before—
Darling little maiden that she was.
And then, turning suddenly,
At the corner I could see
Her slyly watching me—
Cunning little maiden that she was.
—Cleveland Leader.

HUMOROUS.

If we ever invent anything it will be a salt cellar that always has salt in it.

She—Woman's mind is cleaner than that of man. He—Certainly. She changes it oftener.

"I hope we'll have that Miss Smartwood for teacher next year." "Why do you like her so much, Bobbie?" "'Cause she's so sickly."

Mr. Hiland—I see that many Klondike miners have got enough and are returning. Mr. Halket—Enough gold? Mr. Hiland—No; enough experience.

"I fear," said the tutor, "that you are not up on mathematics." "No," candidly confessed the scion of the plutocratic house. "I am down on 'em."

"A woman," remarked the observer of men and things, "is often a contradiction on the face of her; she can't possibly be as old and as innocent as she looks."

Hungry Higgins—I wouldn't mind goin' to Klondike, if it wasn't fer havin' to dig out the gold. Weary Watkins—That ain't the worst of it; it has to be washed after it is dug.

Nell—I don't suppose the girl who married Jack Rappidde will ever have another idle moment as long as she lives. Belle—Why, dear? Nell—She says she married him to reform him.

"And how do you like living in a tent? Find it as free and easy as you thought?" "Oh, quite! The rain comes in at the top, the wind at the bottom, and the flies and mosquitoes all over."

Jenny Gay—Why, Nellie! Back from the seashore? And just covered with freckles! I declare, you are a perfect show. Nell Flypp (exhibiting engagement rings)—Yes, and a three-ringed show at that.

"You're not going to the Klondike region, are you?" "No." "Don't like the climate?" "It isn't the climate. It's the surface conditions. There are too many mountain passes and no railway passes."

"I found out the cost of those roses," said the girl with the real blonde hair, "but I can't say that the information has done me any good." "No?" said the other girl. "No; not a bit. If at that price they were more than he could afford, there is no use to think of marrying him, and if they were not more than he could afford, he does not love me."

Little Girl—Mrs. Brown, ma wants to know if she could borrow a dozen eggs. She wants to put 'em under a hen. Neighbor—So you've got a hen setting, have you? I didn't know you kept hens. Little Girl—No, ma'am, we don't, but Mrs. Smith's goin' to lend us a hen that's goin' to set, and ma thought if you'd lend us some eggs we'd find a nest ourselves

Real Courage.

All men have their own ideas of what constitutes courage. I believe our firemen and some of our policemen are as heroic men as ever breathed, but instances of true courage are rare. The policeman is too often the mere active principle of his uniform and shield, his club and revolver. Firemen fight fire as ordinary persons fight flies. It is second nature. They brave danger so continually that it becomes mere routine, utterly devoid of excitement. A brave man is he who, seeing a fellow creature in the grasp of death, goes to the rescue. Those who brave the undertow to save a drowning person, who enter a yellow fever or cholera-ravaged district to nurse the helpless victims of either dread disease, who throw themselves in front of a trolley car to rescue a child from the very jaws of death—they are the brave people. Bravery, my brethren, is homely. It does not lie in spectacular performances and theatrical stunts. One of the bravest acts of recent days occurred on the Brooklyn bridge, when a man volunteered to be let down by a rope to the bottom of the tower well to get the dead body of his companion. The gases were killing, and the deed nearly cost him his life. There's no medal for such as he.—New York Sun.

No Poetry in Him.

"Dad," said the romantic youngster, "this here's the season when the poets write purty things about 'autumn's gold,' an' make songs 'bout the skies an' the leaves."

"I know it, Jimmie," replied the old man. "Now, run out an' cut a cord o' wood, an' fetch in some light wood knots!"—Atlanta Journal.

THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

CLANTON raised the quarantine against infected places last Saturday. As the State quarantine fully covers the ground there was no necessity for the local quarantine.

THE sudden death of Henry George in the thick of the fight for the mayoralty of Greater New York was a shock to the whole country. Henry George was a man of the people and his entire life had been spent in the endeavor to ameliorate their condition. He was a profound thinker, but every thought that came into his mind was on behalf of of the people. Had he lived and been elected the chief magistrate of the Enpire City he would have made an ideal mayor. We could ill afford to lose him, but he is now at rest.

THE appearance of frost is having a good effect upon the yellow fever situation, and giving a better feeling of confidence both in infected towns and those which have escaped. A few more frosty mornings in this section, and a touch or two of the same weather in the lower part of the State, and Yellow Jack will be knocked out. At Montgomery the situation is improving. Some excitement was caused at Prattville by a case of fever there, and at Speigners a man named Rogers died of the fever on Tuesday. A request has also been made for an expert to go to Speigners as there are some suspicious cases at the convict prison. At Selma no new cases are reported, and a much better feeling prevails all around.

THE outlook for any improvement in the price of cotton this season is far from encouraging. The estimates of Neal Brothers, of New Orleans, play an important part in regulating the price. At the commencement of the season Neal's estimate was a crop of ten million three hundred and fifty thousand bales, and there is no doubt but that the market was considerably influenced by that statement. Last week Neal comes out with another estimate of ten and a half million bales as the minimum crop; and the prediction is made that cotton will be sold in Liverpool at 2⅞ pence, which means about 4½ cents will be the price realized by the planter here. Other estimates place a lower figure upon the crop, but we are much afraid we shall not see much, if any, improvement in the price.

THE elections which have taken place this week in several states show Democratic gains. The pendulum has swung away from Republicanism back to Democracy. In New York city Van Wyck, the Democratic candidate for mayor, has been elected, and in the State there seems a strong probability that the Democrats will have a majority. In Virginia the Democratic ticket swept the State. In Ohio, at the time of our going to press we have not learned the result, but in any case Hanna and the Republicans are having a close fight for it. Kentucky is back again into the Democratic fold, and Joe Blackburn is certain of going to the Senate. In Massachsetts the Republican majority has been greatly reduced, and in New Jersey the Democrats have gained some, while in Pennsylvania the full Republican has been elected.

The Republicans of the Fourth district continue to write us of the appointment of Populists as postmasters in that district. We hope the Republicans will not charge these appointments to the President for he is a Republican, but place the blame upon those who have misled the President in making these appointments.—Birmingham Times.

IF the Times was more familiar with the condition of politics in the Fourth district it would know that, while no one questions the Republicanism of President McKinley, there is a very considerable amount of uncertainty respecting the genuineness of the Republicanism of certain so-called Republican leaders in the Fourth district. For years past it has been notorious throughout the district that these leaders have used every effort to persuade whatever following they possessed to vote for Democratic candidates, and evidently this is better and more properly appreciated at Washington than it is by the Times.

Some Populists and some Republicans have been appointed postmasters in this district in preference to Democratic applicants. Anything wrong about? But whether the appointee has been a Populist or a Republican a storm of protests has gone up to Washington from these Republican leaders, whose exertions were all on behalf of Democratic applicants. At Verbena, this county, a lifelong, Democrat has just been appointed postmaster, and so far as we know not a single protest has been made by any Republican. We are not finding fault with the appointment; we believe Mr. Gulledge will make an excellent postmaster. But had the appointee been either a Populist or a Republican, Washington would have been inundated with objections, and the objections would have met with the same fate they have encountered in other cases, and amounted to nothing.

I do not know that many are aware that the annual freight bill of this country amounts to more than $800,000,000. It is a tax, and the most burdensome tax which this country knows, upon our industries and upon production. Its meaning, brought home, is that each family in the United States pays on an average $60 a year for freight alone. If Commissioner Wright's statistics are correct—that the average income of each laborer in this country is not more than $500 a year—then each head of a family must set aside on the average the results of a month and a half of toil to pay his share of the freight. There is no Jones to do it here.

The people of the West have learned this economic lesson well. They have seen their wheat carried over the Great Lakes at an average charge of less than one mill per ton mile, when the railroad rate from their farms to lake transportation, or to market, was from a cent to a cent and a half per ton mile. They know that if all the freight in the United States could be carried as cheaply as is wheat from Duluth to Buffalo this burden would be cut down to one-tenth of what it now is.

Such consideratons as these ought to make it plain, even to a wayfarer or a Congressman, that the freight question is worth a little attention.—"From the Lakes to the Sea." by Carl Snyder, in American Monthly Review of Reviews for November.

IN the annual report of the second assistant Postmaster General, sandwiched in with a multitude of other dry departmental reports with which we are ever deluged at this time of year, we come across one item of interest and significance. We are told that there is no demand among our people for postal savings banks. But here we have striking evidence that there is such a demand. During the last fiscal year money orders amounting to $188,071,056 were issued, and orders paid to the amount of but $180,141,660. In other words nearly $8,000,000 of postal money orders were purchased as a means for the safe keeping of money. Here we have evidence of the Post Office being used at a place of deposit for savings in spite of the offering of no special facilities.—Philadelphia American.

Don't Neglect Your Liver.

Liver troubles quickly result in serious complications, and the man who neglects his liver has little regard for health. A bottle of Browns' Iron Bitters taken now and then will keep the liver in perfect order. If the disease has developed, Browns' Iron Bitters will cure it permanently. Strength and vitality will always follow its use. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 3, 1897.

Chairman Marion Butler has been doing splendid work in the North Carolina campaign. At Jackson recently he was introduced by a democrat who declared that the principles of populism are true Jeffersonian democracy. This is no news to us, but we are glad to recognize the gentleman's candor.

The New York campaign has been a great benefit to the reform elements as it has forced many men to boldly declare themselves. Some politicians of national note have adroitly kept out of the fight but no thinking man can doubt where a man stands when he refuses to help the right man in a fight like this. Mr. George has made a splendid campaign and his followers have prepared to stay in the field as a working organization and if he is defeated in this mayoralty race he will be put forward for the United States senate. The party will continue to hold the name of democrats of Thomas Jefferson. Women have taken a most active part in the New York campaign, acting as clerks at the headquarters and doing enthusiastic and effective service in a house to house canvass among the poorest classes. This is the first time a systematic effort has been made to influence the voters through the women. Some of the women have been handicapped by the lack of funds but the band which was working for the republican candidate had elegant quarters and abundant funds. Mrs. Lease not only has refused to take any part in the canvassing of voters for Mr. George but condemns the method. She has made a number of speeches however for the reform candidate.

The Labor Bureau of the state of Missouri, which is under the control of State Chairman Rozelle, an old time greenbacker and a populist, has established a free employment department which has not only proven a great success but has shown beyond all contradiction that there are a vast number of idle people who are eager for work and that rational aid from the state in securing the same, is not only practical but a crying necessity.

Mayor Carter Harrison of Chicago, has disappointed many men who supported him by going on to New York and helping the Tammany candidate. Ex-Gov. Altgeld is outspoken in his disapproval of his conduct.

In spite of the discouragement incident to the failure of the bimetalic commission ex-Gov. Altgeld says: "It may confidently be expected that England will come out for bimetallism in a few years. In Germany the agricultural industries have been almost destroyed by the blight of the gold standard, and they too, will soon take up bimetallism. France is ready to espouse the cause of bimetallism at any time. I tell you the one great struggle of the world will soon be made to establish bimetallism."

Tennessee is now in the lead as to the location of the Debs Social Democratic colony, offering several thousand acres of fine land through which a railroad is already built and that has good water power on it.

Another national party has been born. It was first heard from in Chicago and is called the National Paper Money party. It denounces silver.

Mr. Bryan spoke five days in the Ohio campaign and was everywhere greeted by the greatest enthusiasm. The defeated presidential candidate hard at work for the cause for which he has done so much, among the laboring classes, was in striking contrast to the elected president riding

Consumption

Will SCOTT'S EMULSION cure consumption? Yes and no. Will it cure every case? No. What cases will it cure then? Those in their earlier stages, especially in young people. We make no exaggerated claims, but we have positive evidence that the early use of

of Cod-liver oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda in these cases results in a positive cure to a large number. In advanced cases, however, where a cure is impossible, this well-known remedy should be relied upon to prolong life surprisingly.

about in a gorgeous car with and standing by the side of Mark Hanna while the great boodler essayed to speak—a dummy for sooth.

Republican headquarters in Iowa have been disturbed by the loss of letters which if given to the public are said to contain much light on the middle-of-the-road campaign in that state.

Ex-Governor Lewelling of Kansas, has won golden opinions by soundly threshing a middle-of-the-roader who persisted in a political slander without having any proof for his assertions.

Much comment is being made in silver democratic papers on the subject of union of the anti-gold forces and nearly all agree as to the need of union on a just and equitable basis.

An official call has been issued for a national conference of the Buildings Trades Council to meet at St. Louis Monday, December 20, 1897. The long and widespread depressions is to be the chief subject of discussion and it is expected that some decided utterances will be heard as to its causes and remedies from a political standpoint.

Large numbers of populist papers are discussing with great interest Wharton Parker as a possible presidential candidate for 1900.

Judge O. D. Jones of Missouri, who was appointed one of the State University Curators by a Democratic governor, has been making objections as to the method of some of the professors employed by the state at that institution. Teaching by proxy, while travelling abroad to study political economy, he regards as un American and unable to result in good to the American youth. He also desires to have investigated the conduct of a certain teacher who is said to have claimed that an employer has a perfect right to control the vote of his employees. Good for Judge Jones. The charges on investigation, may not be sustained but it is time for the West to look well to her institutions of learning if she would not have her youth corrupted by the narrow minded pedagogue whose highest ambition is to catch the eye of some plutocrat who may endow a chair that he is to fill to the satisfaction of the donor.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

Randolph.

On Monday Oct. 25 Michael Fulghum was in Randolph with a two horse wagon load of lumber. The horses became restless and the old man went to hold their heads, but the horses ran away and the end of the tongue caught Fulghum, knocking him down. He was not run over and it is supposed the shock of the fall caused his death, he being a man well advanced in years.

At the end of six months I was reduced to but a shadow of myself, and at last my heart became affected and I was truly miserable. I took six or eight bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine. THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

$1800.00 GIVEN AWAY TO INVENTORS.

Every cent we earn we spend in helping inventors. We offer $1800 every month given away to any one who applies for it for the most meritorious patent during the month preceding.

We secure the best patents for our clients, and the object of this offer is to encourage inventors to bring fresh of their bright ideas. At the same time we wish to impress upon the public the fact that such as the "car-window" which can be easily slid up and down without breaking the passenger's back, "suspenders," "collar-button," "nut-lock," "bottle-stopper" and a thousand other little things that most any one can find a way of improving; and these simple inventions are the ones that bring largest returns to the author. Let us think of something to invent.

IT IS NOT SO HARD AS IT SEEMS.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice in the "National Recorder," published at Washington, D. C., which is the best newspaper published in America in the interests of inventors. We furnish a year's subscription to this journal, free of cost, to all our clients. We also advertise, free of cost, the inventions each month which seem to us to be of merit, and hundreds of thousands of dollars of the "National Recorder," containing the records of the winner, and a description of his invention, are mailed throughout the United States among all the leading manufacturers, thus bringing to the inventor the notice of the invention.

ROSE AND THORN.

When weary seem the ways of life,
High aims and fruitage all at strife,
Breathe soft, what wind soever blows,
"There is no thorn without its rose."

When sweetest hopes forever fade,
In friendships chilled and trust betrayed,
Smile lovely, as life's burden grows,
"There is no thorn without its rose."

A RECORD-BREAKING RIDE.

"Belverton-on-Sea, July, 189—.

"Messrs. Gearup & Co.:

"Gentlemen: I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of yesterday's date asking me to ride one of your Special New Hellespont Bicycles in the South-Eastern Mile Championship Race to be held in this town on Saturday next. In declining to comply with your request, I cannot refrain from expressing my astonishment at the extraordinary offer by which it is accompanied. To endeavor to tempt an amateur rider with a monetary bribe is, as I should have thought you would have been aware, a very serious matter; and it will hereafter become my duty to consider the propriety of bringing the case under the notice of the National Cyclists' Union.

"Yours faithfully,
"RICHARD DINGLE."

I despatched the above on Tuesday night, and before noon on the following day I received a reply-paid telegram from Messrs. Gearup worded as follows: "Our letter sent under misapprehension; will fully explain in a few days. Meanwhile, obliged if you will defer communicating with N. C. U. Kindly wire."

My answer to this was "Very well; will wait one week," and, when I had handed the form to the messenger, I dismissed the matter from my mind with a little laugh, and spent the next half-hour in the examination of the high-grade Gravelotte machine which had just been delivered to my order, and on which I hoped to achieve the victory in Saturday's race.

I had only recently started as a medical practitioner in the rising watering place of Belverton, and so far had not found the duties of my profession interfere to any appreciable extent with the pursuit of my favorite amusement—cycle racing.

During the particular week of which I am writing my services were required for the first time on Friday morning, by a tall, bearded man of gentlemanly appearance, who informed me that his sister, who, with himself, had just arrived for a brief seaside holiday, had been taken suddenly ill.

If I could come at once he would be extremely obliged, and would escort me to the furnished cottage they temporarily occupied. To this I assented, and we left the house together.

"You have capital outbuildings here, doctor," remarked my visitor, who had given the name of Selhurst, as he glanced at the large wooden shed which ran along the side of the house.

"Yes," I said, "and they are very useful. My space indoors is rather limited."

"Cycles do take up a lot of room," he replied. "You will excuse me for mentioning it, doctor, but I am a rider myself—somewhat of an enthusiast—and am glad to meet a man of whose doings on the track I have often read with admiration."

We walked on in silence for a few moments, then Selhurst inquired, suddenly:

"Have you ever studied mental disorders, Dr. Dingle?"

"Oh, yes; not specially, though."

"Ah! It is in that way my sister suffers."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; she has never been herself since the death of her little girl, which occurred under exceptionally painful circumstances, about a month ago. The poor child was always a weakling, and, acting under medical advice, her mother let her accompany me on my last business voyage to Australia. Alas! she died on the way home, and we buried her at sea."

"Your sister is a widow, I presume, Mr. Selhurst?"

"Yes; her husband has been dead two years. She is a Mrs. Gray."

"What form does her derangement take?"

"A most curious one—she fancies that her child is still alive."

"I am afraid the case is serious. Has she been under treatment before?"

"No; I was always hoping she would get better, and, indeed, she seemed so before we left London. She has acted as my housekeeper since her husband died, you know; but this morning she is very wild—I fear the excitement of yesterday's journey down here must have upset her. Ah, here we are; you shall judge her condition for yourself."

We entered a two-story house on the outskirts of the town, and, leaving me in a small sitting-room on the ground floor, Selhurst went upstairs. I heard him unlocking a door rather noisily; then he descended and asked me to follow him.

He conducted me to a room immediately above that in which I had been seated, and murmuring, "She seems to have been asleep," left me to contemplate one of the most beautiful women I have ever seen.

She was lying on a couch near the window, fully dressed in deep mourning. The morning sunshine played on her rich, auburn hair, and accentuated the extreme pallor of her exquisitely chiselled features.

The next moment she opened her eyes; then, before I could utter a word sprang up, and running to the door, opened it, and having surveyed the landing, came back to where I stood and said at once:

"You are a doctor, I believe? I am not ill, but I want your help. That is why I let him—Mr. Selhurst—summon you."

"What can I do for you?" I asked, soothingly.

"I like your look—I am going to trust you. But first, you can tell me this: Has he informed you of the death of my darling little girl?"

I nodded assent.

"It is a lie," she cried fiercely. "My child is alive. She is always calling to me, but he won't let me go to her. He—he has tried to drive me into madness. Listen, my dear one is actually here, in another room, at this moment; I heard her cry a few minutes since."

"Why, then, did you not—"

"I could do nothing; I was locked in."

"But if he wishes you to think your child dead, why does he bring her here?"

"Why? It is part of his plan. It is what for some weeks he has done in London. He wants me to hear her voice, to chafe at my inability to reach her, to rage impotently when he repeats the fiction of her death. I am naturally nervous, and perhaps, hysterical; if you do not help me, I shall not be able to bear the strain much longer. Selhurst will succeed in effecting his object."

"But why should he desire to do this thing?"

"I'll tell you in a word—for money! In the event of my insanity he would become my child's guardian, and would thus have the handling of our property, a sum of about £4,000."

"You are making terrible charges," I said, slowly; "terrible! If Mr. Selhurst—"

She interrupted me. "Mr. Selhurst—I can never again bear to speak of him as my brother—is thoroughly unscrupulous," she said. "He sticks at nothing. Even in sporting matters he has acted dishonorably. Three years ago, at a great bicycling handicap in the Midlands, he was warned off the track for giving a false name and false particulars in his entry form. He won the race, but some one found out the fraud. Since then—but why do you start?"

The movement had been involuntary. I recollected now that I had seen the man before, and how chance had enabled me to unmask him. I did not reply to Mrs. Gray's question, but asked instead:

"Well, how can I help you?"

"In this way. I believe that this evening I shall be able to make my escape—that is, if you will help me. Do you know a village called Nepton?"

"Yes, but it is six miles from here, and a long distance from a railway station."

"Never mind; I must get there; I will tell you why. My dear husband's father is the rector of the place; he is the only friend I have in the world now, and I want to tell him how I am situated, for I know he will help me."

"Yes, but—."

"You ride a cycle, don't you? Everyone does nowadays. I ride myself, though I haven't a machine. But Mr. Selhurst has one, and he has brought it here. If you will only come with me, I can go on that. I—I can wear his clothes. Do come with me, Dr. Dingle," she added in a pleading voice.

What was I to say, to do? Was she mad, or had she spoken truth? Distrust of Selhurst almost led me to believe her.

"At what time would you start?" I asked, at last.

"You will come, then? Thank you—thank you!"

"I cannot promise."

"Oh, you will come! Be here at nine—outside the house. You must go now, or my jailer will grow suspicious. Good-bye." She pressed my hand gratefully.

I went downstairs and confronted Selhurst.

"Well?" he said.

"Well," I answered, "the case is a difficult one. I must think it over. You shall hear from me later on."

"No immediate development is likely?"

"Oh, no."

I was about to step into the street when a piercing cry in a child's voice rang through the house. An evil look mounted to Selhurst's brow, but he said nothing. I went out. That cry decided me. Mrs. Gray was a victim of this villain's wicked plans. She should have my help.

Accordingly at 8.45 that evening I went round to the outhouse which had excited Selhurst's comment and got out my old roadster. As I did so, I glanced at the new and glittering mount I was to bestride in to-morrow's race, and suppressed the thought that to-night's adventure was scarcely the best possible preparation for that encounter. Then I locked the door, put the key in my pocket and started for the rendezvous.

Mrs. Gray, dressed in knickerbockers and short jacket, awaited me, and rewarded my punctuality with a smile and a slight blush.

"I hate riding in these things," she said apologetically; "but you see, doctor, I have no option. Let us get away at once," she added.

I assented, silently, and we both mounted and rode off.

There was little conversation between us. Our way lay along smooth and level roads, so that we proceeded at a good pace, and were soon within a mile of our destination. But at this point Mrs. Gray, who had fallen behind, suddenly called out that she had punctured her tire. I dismounted, and walked back to where, apparently in tears, she stood beside her bicycle.

"How unfortunate!" she cried, brokenly. "Oh, how unfortunate!"

"Perhaps it can be set right," I said, soothingly. "Let me see if I can find where it is."

Then asking me to hold my own bicycle I stooped down, and——

In a moment she had mounted my machine, and was riding away at topmost speed.

I stood transfixed. I neither called to her to stop nor made any effort to go after her. Mechanically, I turned again to look for the puncture, and found that it consisted of a slit about a foot long. It had evidently been deliberately made with a knife. I had been tricked, fooled, duped!

But was the woman who had thus treated me mad or sane? That was the question I asked myself when I had grown somewhat calmer. In the former case my predicament would indeed be terrible; in the latter, I must have been victimized for some reason I was altogether unable to guess.

In this uncertainty I trudged beside the disabled bicycle wearily back to Belverton, and made my way to Selhurst's cottage. It was in complete darkness, and, though I knocked several times, I obtained no answer. At last, however, a lady from the next house came forward, and told me that the gentleman I was in search of had been unexpectedly summoned to town, and should not be back. I thanked my informant and proceeded homeward. Should I now unravel the mystery, I wondered? Reaching my house, I went first of all to the outhouse to deposit the bicycle. Then I gave a cry. The lock on the door had been forced; evidently I had been decoyed for purposes of theft. My racer, my splendid Gravelotte, had been stolen! I was wrong. The machine stood just where I had left it!

My housekeepr was unable to throw any light upon the circumstances of the forced lock, and I was eventually obliged to retire to rest more mystified than ever. Physically worn out, both physically and mentally, I fell at once into a deep, dreamless slumber, from which I did not awaken until after 8 o'clock next morning. I immediately determined not to perplex myself about the previous evening's adventure until the great race had been won or lost. This, I suppose, was a wise decision, for when the afternoon arrived, I felt fresh and fit, and not only came off victor, but actually succeeded in breaking the amateur record for the distance.

My performance caused tremendous enthusiasm, and on my way to the dressing-room at the conclusion of the race I had to receive the congratulations of quite a throng of friends. It was at this moment that a man in the crowd seized the head of my machine, from which, of course, I had dismounted, and, striking it with a heavy stick, promptly disappeared. The effect of the blow was to remove the name-plate containing the words "Gravelotte No. 1," and I stooped to pick it up from the ground. Then, to my astonishment, I saw that it had only been loosely fastened on, and that let into the enamel on the very spot on which it had hung was the inscription, "Special New Hellespont." Had I, after all—? Yes, the two makes were almost precisely alike, but now I noticed several small points of difference between the wheel I had just ridden and the one I had examined the other day. The former, with its false name-plate, had evidently been substituted for the latter during my absence last night—and, I felt sure of it, by none other than the oppressor of the charming widow in whose company I had started for that brief but eventful ride to Nepton.

My surmise was correct. On reaching home I was handed a note which had been delivered by hand during the afternoon. It ran as follows:

"So, in spite of everything, Dr. Dingle has done excellent service on behalf of the machine he spurned, better than might reasonably have been expected. His double feat shall be duly chronicled in large type in every important newspaper in the country when, on Tuesday next, the prospectus of the "Special New Hellespont Company, Limited," is published for the benefit of the financial world. Would Dr. Dingle like some preference shares? He treated Messrs. Gearup & Co.'s head partner, the future managing director of the new company, very badly a few years since, and would like to have done so again. James Selhurst, however, forgives him in both these matters, and for the attempt he made last night to run away with his. J. S.'s, wife. But if this attempt were generally known it would hardly enhance Dr. Dingle's professional prospects, would it? Let Dr. D. think over this, and probably he will hesitate before making the communication he contemplated to the National Cyclists' Union. Otherwise—"

That was all: the document was typewritten and bore no signature. There could be no doubt, however, as to the identity of the sender. Selhurst's audacity simply staggered me, but not more so than the wonderful acting of his wife. Of course, I could say nothing about the affair; the ingenious couple were in a position to swear away my character effectively, and who would believe the extraordinary story I should have to tell in my defence?—London Tit-Bits.

High Latitude Not Beneficial.

More people over 100 years old are found in mild climates than in the higher latitudes. According to the last census of the German empire, of a population of 55,000,000, only 78 have passed the 100th year. France, with a population of 40,000,000, has 213 centenarians. In England there are 146, Ireland 578, and in Scotland 46. Sweden has 10 and Norway 23, Belgium 5, Denmark 2, Switzerland none. Spain, with a population of 18,000,000, has 401 people over 100 years of age. Of the 2,250,000 inhabitants of Servia 575 people have passed the century mark. It is said that the oldest person living whose age has been proved is Bruno Cotrim, born in Africa and now living in Rio Janeiro. He is 150 years old. A coachman in Moscow has lived 140 years.

GOSSIP FOR THE FAIR SEX.

ITEMS OF INTEREST ON FEMININE TOPICS.

All Hail to the Apron—Picturesque Plumes—Jackets — Novel Trimmings for Gowns, Etc., Etc.

ALL HAIL TO THE APRON.

The latest thing in Paris is aprons, not simply for morning wear by those ladies who give an hour or two after breakfast to superintending their household arrangements, but by women who, as the saying is, "Never put their hands to anything," and by young girls who have left the schoolroom and are all ages to make the most of their emancipation. These articles de luxe are made for the most part of the richest materials procurable, satin and silk, for morning wear, and for later in the day embroidered lawn or mousseline de sole.

PICTURESQUE PLUMES.

There are plumes and plumes on the new hats, and they droop in a most picturesque manner. There are gray plumes on dark-blue velvet hats, white plumes on delicate gray hats, and black plumes on all sorts and kinds and conditions of hats. It loks as if the ostriches would not have a feather to their backs this winter. All the hats which do not have plumes have wings or an occasional whole bird—some as big as hens. The few remaining hats, plumeless and wingless, are decked in plaid ribbons. But plaid hat trimmings are doubtful. In bright color they cheapen almost everything on which they appear.

JACKETS.

Jackets are worn somewhat longer than last season, and extend about six inches below the waist. The sleeves are diminished in width, but a certain breadth is allowed at the top to accomodate the dress-sleeve. The leg-o'-mutton is the accepted shape, and fits the arm rather snugly from the elbow to the wrist. While black is always the preferred jacket, many colors are worn, but usually trimmed with black in the form of braiding, bindings and buttons. Collars are severe in cut, and the inlaid effect of velvet has the lead. Buttons, both large and small, are used, in some cases as ornamentation only, but in others as a fastening.

It is a recognized fact that strapped seams are flattering to the figure, and for this reason the handsomest jackets of the season are finished in this welted effect. Some of them are finished with a bias piece of the material laid over the seam and stitched on both edges, while others have a medium-width black braid applied in the same way.—Woman's Home Companion.

NOVEL TRIMMINGS FOR GOWNS.

All the gowns are to be trimmed this season, the skirts as well as the bodices. Yokes will be much in favor and every yoke requires a certain amount of trimming as its finish.

A great quantity of braid will be used. Black braid in all widths will be fashionable—the braid will trim the dresses rather in a design than in straight rows—skirts will be braided not only near the hem but from the waist line down over the upper part of the skirt.

Puckered satin ribbon will be perhaps the newest trimming of the season. It will be in many different designs and frequently edged with a fine silk cord. Conventional scrolls will be one of the favorite designs for trimming skirts.

Pipings of satin or velvet will also be much in favor. Many of the newest sleeves will be trimmed from the cuff to near the shoulder with rows of piping. This makes a particularly effective trimming, especially when the piping is a shade or two darker than the material of the dress. It will also be fashionable to have the piping in conspicuous color contrast from the dress.

Silk applique trimmings will be in demand. For street gowns black will be the favorite, but on reception and dancing gowns all the delicate colors will be used. These applique trimmings are very beautiful in floral designs and wrought with tiny bits of colored rhinestones.

Passementerie will claim its customary popularity. It is always in demand and this season's designs are more intricate and striking than ever before. Two-toned silk passementerie will also be in fashion. Passementerie wrought with it will be worn, and Van Dyke point effects will be much in favor.

The old-time cording is coming back into fashion again. The cordings are always in striking contrast to the color of the dress they trim.

Tucks as a trimming are to be all the vogue. Very fine tucks will be used, and they will trim not only the sleeves of the new gown, but the skirts.—New York Journal.

GLOVES FOR NEXT YEAR.

The gloves for next season are the suedes or soft finished leather ones. For street wear they are pique stitched, and the most stylish have but one button [illegible] are to be worn with tailor-made gowns and should match the suit. Gloves of a contrasting color are no longer regarded as in good taste.

For cloth gowns the most appropriate gloves for street wear or shopping are of castor or soft-finished leather, with one button. They are to be had in all the dark shades of blue, red, brown, green and purple, to match the new dress goods brought out for fall wear. When the gloves do not match in color, English tans, the darker biscuit shades and mole colors, will be worn.

For more formal occasions and for wear with silk, satin and velvet gowns, suede gloves only will be permissible, though they are so thin and of such delicate finish as closely to resemble the best quality of glace kid. Pearl, white, yellow, biscuit, and mole colors will pass as in the best taste. The stitching on the majority of the gloves of these delicate tints is only a shade darker. The merchants assert that the best class of customers never wear gloves which make their hands look conspicuous, yet they show some imported novelties in black suedes embroidered on the back in bright, cut jet. The patterns are tiny vines, with blossoms and leaves. The effect is novel, and may take with the New York women when they learn of their popularity in Paris. Other Parisian gloves are in soft grays and mole colors, and are stitched on the back with steel and iridescent beads. They are to be worn with elegant gowns on formal occasions.

Evening gloves are made longer than usual, some of them measuring more than one yard and a half from the finger-tips to the tops. They will be worn more wrinkled than formerly, and for that reason the arms are made somewhat larger, but not so tapering. For evening as well as street wear the style will be for harmony rather than contrasts, and all lengths of suedes are to be had, as well as every conceivable shade. Some few are lace-trimmed, others daintily embroidered; but the majority have plain machine stitching in silk to match the color of the glove or just one shade darker.

FASHION NOTES.

Chiffon scarf sashes are in favor knotted at the back or the sides. They freshen up gowns which begin to look rusty at the end of the season.

There are also some odd combinations of fancy short-skirted jackets with slashed boleros, to be seen on the newest gowns.

There is nothing more useful, stylish and universally becoming than a skirt and blazer. It suits everybody, and is a general favorite.

Old-fashioned point-lace shawls are worn draped handkerchief-wise as "aprons" over dress skirts. A very full and deep flounce of chiffon meets the edges.

Regarding waists, many are fastened down the front with handsome buttons, but invisible fastenings are still much in favor, and so are irregular and one-sided effects.

The freshest of muslins, soft and transparent as chiffon, are being made up into dinner dresses. The favorites are checks in pink, blue and mauve, with cross bars of white hair lines.

The small basque pieces are flat, silk faced and fitted smoothly, with no deep curves, ripples or wavelets. They are tabbed, cut in Vandyke points, long or short, scalloped and bound, etc.

School dresses for girls are made of all-wool plaids with velvet collar, cuffs and yoke. They are also trimmed with narrow velvet ribbon or braid in row upon row or in fanciful and elaborate patterns.

Some overskirts are caught up at one side, some are draped in washerwoman fashion, the lower edge faced with a bias material, contrasting in kind, and often in color, with that of the overskirt.

Pear-shaped pearls are the fancy of the moment, and, of course, they are rare and expensive, having increased in price in proportion as they became in demand. The pure whiteness of the pearl is best preserved by constantly wearing it or keeping it in the sun.

A neat and natty costume for a boy is what is called a Russian suit. There are high shoes, long stockings, full knee trousers and a belted sailor blouse. The collar is turned over and stitched with a round collar and braided front with vest. The sleeves are plaited in at the wrists.

Simplicity is going out of date. Fashion demands the utmost elaborateness, and the amount of material and trimming that may be put into an up-to-date dress is somewhat surprising. Even inexpensive fabrics are so combined and trimmed that they are no longer simple but of the most extravagant description.

Plaids are fashionable. They are shown not only in the regulation class, but in French and fancy patterns. The "Royal Stuart," the Victoria and the Rob Roy are familiar to most persons, while the Gordon, Campbell and other darker and more sober plaids are specially liked for waists and cloak linings.

A stylish waist has the front entirely covered with insertion and plain strips of material alternating. This made-up front is quite full, and has a collar of the plain material with folds of silk mingled with the folds of the goods, the sleeves are quite full at the tops and fit the arms closely below the elbows. The belt is of folds of the goods and silk alternating.

Your Hair Could Support 500 People.

It is interesting to others than statisticians to know that the hairs of our heads are numbered. Certain scientific men have laboriously calculated the number of hairs on a square inch of heads of different colors, and by estimating the total area covered have arrived at aggregate numbers, which may be taken as fairly correct. A head of fair hair consists of 143,000 hairs. Dark hair is coarser and only totals 105,000, while those who boast a poll of red must be content with a total of 29,200. It is estimated that the hairs on a "fair head" would support the weight of 500 people.

The skirts are moderately full, but with nothing like the ripple effect of last season.

A MUNICIPAL ARMY.

GREATER NEW YORK'S VAST ARMY OF EMPLOYEES.

They Number 25,000, and Nearly Equal the Standing Army of the United States—How They Are Divided—Many Under Civil Service Ruling.

In spending the $[illegible] Greater New York's money an army of men and women, chiefly men, will be employed. It will be nearly as large as the standing army of the United States. It will have in its ranks a greater number of persons than there are in the majority of the cities of the country.

This great municipal army will contain not far from 25,000 persons. The most of them will draw salaries ranging from $1,000 to $4,000, while many of the salaries will be as high as $7,000 and $8,000. A few will go over the $10,000 mark. The great rank and file will receive from $1,500 to $4,000 a year—a pretty comfortable stipend.

The persons employed by the city, if sequestered into a community by themselves, would make a respectable city, as far as size is concerned. Such a city would be as large as Poughkeepsie, and it would take as many fine homes to house them as are found in Newport, for the combined salaries of the 25,000 amount to more than is annually spent in America's most fashionable watering place.

Of the 25,000 about 8,000 are policemen, and as many more are employed in the various schools of the greater city. The employes of the Street Cleaning Department of New York come next in number. There are more than 5,000 of them. Next in order are the employes of the Department of Public Works in New York and of the Department of City Works in Brooklyn. These number between 2,000 and 3,000. Under the new charter the work and the employes of these two departments will be divided among three or four departments, and at the head of each will be a full-fledged commissioner, who will receive a salary of $7,500 a year.

Many of the places are so fortified by the rules and regulations of the Civil Service Board that the occupants could not be disturbed by the ordinary changes incident to a change of administration. This fact has stared the present reform administration in the face during all of the three years that it has been in power.

In Brooklyn the Civil Service Board has a much tighter grip on offices than that of New York. In fact, there are less than fifty sorts of positions in Brooklyn that are exempt from competitive examination.

Under the new charter practically all of the positions of the new city will be subject to the supervision of the Civil Service Board. Appointments by the Mayor will be exempt. An effort will be made by the Civil Service Board, however—if it is made up as it is at present—to include in their regulations all of the new positions below the rank of deputy commissioners.—New York Press.

Navajo Indian Weaving.

"In the art of weaving the Navajos excel all other Indians in the limits of the United States," said R. Jones of Santa Fe. "In fineness of finish, artistic design and variety of pattern the Navajo blanket is ahead of any of the handiwork of the other tribes. They are clever enough to weave blankets with the different designs on the opposite sides, but of late years their work has deteriorated somewhat because of the substitution of inferior aniline dyes bought from traders for permanent native dyes formerly used, and also on account of the yarn not from the same source, instead of that laboriously twilled by the hands of the Indians. They are great at weaving belts, sashes, garters, and saddlegirths. The Navajo woman finds her greatest diversion in this occupation, and the acquisition of money is by no means the chief motive that actuates her in producing a blanket that is really a work of art, for after wearing it a little while, till the charm of newness is gone, she will sell it at a price that doesn't at all compensate for her time and labor. The wealthiest of the tribe will weave just as assiduously as their poorest neighbors, which goes to prove that they regard it as more in the light of pastime than toil."—New York Tribune.

Largest Steam Power Plant.

The largest steam-power plant in the world, it is stated, will be erected by the Metropolitan Traction Company at Ninety-sixth street and First avenue, New York City. The five north and south and the two cross-town street railways operated by the company are to be run by electric current furnished from this one central station, which is expected to have a total capacity of 70,000 horse-power. The location has been selected on account of its being on the water front, thus avoiding carriage of coal and ashes.

Maddened by a Bear's Bite.

Not long ago a man in Cincinnati killed his wife and himself. He had been a bear keeper at the Zoo. The afternoon before the tragedy occurred he had been bitten in the hand by one of his charges. It is believed by both the neighbors and the physicians that the bear bite produced insanity, which resulted in the murder and suicide.

A Swedish Woman Professor.

The appointment of Elsa Eschelsohn to the professorship of civil law at the University of Upsala recalls the fact that she is the second woman professor of university rank in Sweden. The late Sonya Kovalevsky was appointed professor of mathematics in the University of Stockholm in 1889.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

SUNDAY'S DISCOURSE BY THE NOTED DIVINE.

Duties of Men Toward Their Suffering Brethren of thy Present Generation—Cooling of the Soul Should Keep Pace With That of the Physical Wants of Man

TEXT: "David, after he had served his own generation by the will of God, fell on sleep." Acts xiii. 25.

"That is a text which has for a long time been running through my mind. Sermons have a time to be born, as well as a time to die; a cradle as well as a grave. David, cowboy and stone-slinger and fighter and czar, and dramatist and blank verse writer, and prophet, did his best for the people of his time, and then went and lay down on the southern hill of Jerusalem in that sound slumber which nothing but an archangelic blast can startle. There are about four generations to a century, now; but in olden time life was longer, and there was, perhaps, only one generation to a century. Taking these facts into the calculation, I make a rough guess and say that there have been at least 180 generations of the human family. With reference to them we have no responsibility. We cannot teach them, we cannot correct their mistakes, we cannot soothe their sorrows, we cannot heal their wounds.

"I admit that I am in sympathy with the child whose father had suddenly died, and who, in her little evening prayer, wanted to continue to pray for her father, although he had gone into heaven and no more needed her prayers, and looking up into her mother's face, said: 'Oh, mother, I cannot leave him all out. Let me say, "Thank God that I had a good father once," so I can keep him in my prayers.' But the 180 generations have passed off. Passed up. Passed down. Gone forever. Then there are generations to come after our earthly existence has ceased; we shall not see them; we shall not hear any of their voices; we will take no part in their conversations, their elections, their revolutions, their catastrophes, their triumphs. We will in nowise affect the 180 generations gone or the 180 generations to come. But our business is, like David, to serve our own generation; the people now living, those whose lungs now breathe and whose hearts now beat. And, mark you, it is not a silent procession, but moving. It is a 'forced march,' at twenty-four miles a day, each hour being a mile. Going with that celerity, it has got to be a quick service on our part or no service at all.

"Well, now, let us look around earnestly, prayerfully, in a common-sense way, and see what we can do for our generation. First of all, let us see to it that, as far as we can, they have enough to eat. The human body is so constituted that three times a day a body needs food as much as a lamp needs oil, as much as a locomotive needs fuel. To meet this, want God has girdled the earth with apple orchards, orange groves, wheat fields, and oceans full of fish, and prairies full of cattle. And notwithstanding this, I will undertake to say that the vast majority of the human family are suffering either for lack of food or the right kind of food. Our civilization is all askew, and God only can set it right. Many of the great estates of to-day have been built out of the blood and bones of unrequited toil.

"Don't sit down at your table with five or six courses of abundant supply and think nothing of that family in the next street who would take any one of these five courses between soup and almond nuts and feel they were in heaven. The lack of the right kind of food is the cause of much of the drunkenness. After drinking what many of our grocers call coffee, sweetened with what many call sugar, and eating what many of our butchers call meat, and chewing what many of our bakers call bread, many of the laboring classes feel so miserable they are tempted to put into their mouths poison what the tobacconist calls tobacco, or go into the drinking saloons for what the rumsellers call beer. Good coffee would do much in driving out rum.

"How can we serve our generation with enough to eat? By sitting down in embroidered slippers and lounging back in an arm chair, our mouth puckered up around a Havana of the best brand, and through clouds of luxurious smoke reading about political economy and the philosophy of strikes? No! No! By finding out who in this city has been living on gristle, and seeing them a tenderloin beefsteak, seek out some family who, through sickness or conjunction of misfortune, have not enough to eat, and do for them what Christ did for the hungry multitudes of Asia Minor, multiplying the loaves and the fishes. Let us quit the surfeiting of ourselves until we cannot choke down another crumb of cake, and begin the supply of others' necessities.

"It is an awful thing to be hungry," said the preacher. "It is an easy thing for us to be in good humor with all the world when we have no lack. But let hunger take full possession of us, and we would all turn into barbarians and cannibals and fiends. Suppose that some of the energy we are expending in useless and unavailing talk about the bread question should be expended in merciful alleviations. I have read that the battlefield on which more troops met than on any other in the world's history was the battlefield of Leipsic. 150,000 men under Napoleon; 250,000 men under Schwarzeberg. No! No! The greatest and most terrific battle is now being fought all the world over. It is the struggle for food. The ground tone of the finest passage in one of the great musical masterpieces, the artist says, was suggested to him by the cry of the hungry populace of Vienna, as the King rode through and they shouted: 'Bread! Give us bread!' And all through the great harmonies of musical academy and cathedral I hear the pathos, the ground tone, the tragedy of uncounted multitudes, who, with streaming eyes and wan cheeks and broken hearts, in behalf of themselves and their families, are pleading for bread.

"Let us take another look around to see how we may serve our generation. Let us see, as far as possible, that they have enough to wear."

The preacher dilated upon the curse of drunkenness and idleness, causing the maelstrom that has swallowed down the wealth of those who are in rage. But things will change, and by generosity on the part of the crowded wardrobes, and industry and sobriety on the party of the empty wardrobes, there will be enough for all to wear.

"God has done His part toward the dressing of the human race. He grows a surplus of wool on the sheep's back, and loses it from the mountains and valleys with a garden of warmth, intended for transfer to human comfort when the shuttles of the factories rattle all the way from Christ's sheep to the Virginian, shall have spun and woven it. In white letters of snowy fleece God has been writing for a thousand years His wish that the thought of warmth for all nations. While others are discussing tariff or no tariff, I am content to let you do all the talking you want, if you will only let me do the thinking. Let us see to it that our fellow mortals have enough to wear.

"Let us see to it that our generation have enough of the right kind of amusement. Let us see to it that our young men are not driven into the dangerous amusements of the day for want of better amusements

THE NEW WAY.

WOMEN used to think "female diseases" could only be treated after "local examinations" by physicians. Dread of such treatment kept thousands of modest women silent about their suffering. The introduction of Wine of Cardui has now demonstrated that nine-tenths of all the cases of menstrual disorders do not require a physician's attention at all. The simple, pure taken in the privacy of a woman's own home insures quick relief and speedy cure. Women need not hesitate now. Wine of Cardui requires no humiliating examinations for its adoption. It cures any disease that comes under the head of "female troubles"—disordered menses, falling of the womb, "whites," change of life. It makes women beautiful by making them well. It keeps them young by keeping them healthy. $1.00 at the drug store.

Teaching thrift to the Young.

The number of minors who become depositors in the postal banks of countries having the system in operation is very large. It is principally for the purpose of encouraging children to save that provision is made for stamp deposits.

In Great Britain, for instance, the smallest deposit which will be received and entered in a passbook is 1 shilling, or 24 cents. Depositors of smaller amounts may be saved by stamps. A child with a penny may buy a stamp and affix it to a card. When this card contains twelve stamps it can be deposited as a shilling, and the depositor is entitled to receive a passbook. This arrangement makes the institution very popular among the children, and is so convenient as to stimulate them to make use of its advantages. In addition, the schools are frequently made use of as agencies of the postal bank for the collection of savings. The teachers receive the deposits of the children and turn them over to the postal bank authorities. Belgium is one of the countries in which the activities of the savings bank are extended to the schoolroom. Out of 7,447 primary schools, inclusive of infant schools and the schools of primary instruction attached to educational institutions of other classes, there were 4,798 which took part in the savings bank business. The number of children in those schools possessing deposit books was 154,192, of whom 86,309 were boys and 67,883 were girls. Including the schools above primary grade there were, according to a recent report 5,056 schools of all kinds in which 200,847 pupils have saved 3,734,402 francs. Most of the schools of Belgium, therefore, it may be said, teach thrift and economy with their instruction in the elements of education.

The spectacle of postoffices of a country being used as a means for teaching the young the value of saving and inculcating in them habits that will be of great use to them in later life should make every thoughtful person an advocate of postal savings banks.—Chicago Record.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and to science—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account of creed, race or nationality.

5 DROPS

Hundreds of thousands of Sufferers cured without a single failure by "FIVE DROPS."

Though so universally used and tested did you ever hear people speak of this great remedy? No! Never did such a remedy take as Dr. Kellems "Five Drops" has. It cures every time. Thousands have written us that it has already saved them many times its cost in doctors' bills, time and suffering.

W. T. P. Lyndsayer, of Fly Creek, Otsego Co., N. Y., writes: "Five Drops" cured my wife of Kidney Pain. Send me another bottle for my friend, enclosed find money order for $1.00."

Dear Sirs: I am sending you the name of a party who I think would give you a personal testimonial if you wished it. I was in Washington and was suffering with rheumatism so severely that I was prostrated and I was advised to try "Five Drops" and took a dose. The relief was almost marvelous. I was able to walk the second morning. My wife has been troubled with weakness and dizziness and disturbed rest. I have recommended it to her. I have known for several years of several friends who have used it with good results. Wishing you every success and hoping you may give this remedy a trial. Yours, Baronet of Exchequer.

CURES THE INCURABLE!

Dr. Kellems: I would like to know what you think is done for me. I had a cancer of the throat, which I had suffered with for seven years, and was given up to die. I underwent two months, I paid $125 to save my life, more than it is claimed for it. My cure is remarkable and no wonder it is a holiday's work. It is the remedy for it has the same effect on the native of the child and centenarian.

Jan. 29, 1896.

We received the bottle of "Five Drops" you sent us, and have given it to many people. Kellems is doing all he claims for it.

MR. J. J. WILSON

Dr. Kellems: Your letter of inquiry received. The company with my office and I have given it to them and every word it is true. I have many witnesses. The company did not ask me to write January for publication in other papers. I know it will cure Catarrh. I have received many letters like mine, and I know it will cure your neighbors and friends who are afflicted. I have recommended it to many who are afflicted, for though I received no pay for it, I am willing to do all I can for humanity. Dr. S. W. Kellems, my doctor, has my endorsing this great remedy. He says for information, write to me.

Everywhere, [illegible] Nebraska, the tale told [illegible] the same. Everywhere it is dis-[illegible], impatience, dissatisfaction [illegible] the non-fulfilment of the Re-[illegible]can promises of prosperity. [illegible]erever the people have voted [illegible] have recorded the one verdict, [illegible] they are not satisfied with the [illegible] the Republican promises have [illegible]erialized.

Our people long for prosperity, [illegible] an industrial revival that will [illegible] agriculture, manufacturing, [illegible]ing profitable, that will give to [illegible]ployers work at remunerative [illegible]ces that will insure to employees [illegible] at fair wages. They have [illegible] intolerably tired of condi-[illegible] under which agriculture can-[illegible] be carried on so as to yield a [illegible]nt living, under which manu-[illegible]rers and miners cannot pros-[illegible] unless in dishonest league with [illegible] managers of some transporta-[illegible] company, unless enjoying spe-[illegible] privileges in the marketing of [illegible] products, lower transporta-[illegible] rates than are granted their [illegible]petitors. Under such a state [illegible]airs when only such enterprises [illegible] as are consolidated into [illegible] and trusts, and which [illegible] favors from the railroads [illegible]bing the railroad managers [illegible] trusts are strong enough [illegible] the railroads into the [illegible] the same favors by [illegible] our people have grown [illegible]ly unsuccessful.

When a man cannot get ahead [illegible] world by honest industry, [illegible]timate enterprise, when to [illegible] to accumulate wealth, one [illegible] get some unfair advantage [illegible] his fellows, men cannot be [illegible] contented. And this is the [illegible]tion today. Those who toil [illegible]stly and industriously and seek [illegible] doing injury to their fel-[illegible] grow poorer as they toil. [illegible] who are possessed of that [illegible]rupulousness, which goes by [illegible] smartness, who have [illegible] or riches to buy the favors [illegible] transportation companies [illegible] enable them to prey upon [illegible] products of others' labor, to [illegible] others' toil, add to [illegible] And when the inde-[illegible]ent producer is driven to ruin [illegible] the favored, the one [illegible] or trust prospers, [illegible] contented. They [illegible] when the trust pros-[illegible] the wage earner does not share [illegible] prosperity. There is no [illegible] force a trust to [illegible] its increased profits with [illegible] for where there is no [illegible] competition [illegible] overs for hands, no [illegible] to force up wages. NO DIMINUTION YET.

Uncle Sam's Pension Roll Grows Larger, as Seen by the Report.

The first annual report of Commissioner of Pensions H. Clay Evans to the secretary of the interior was made public Friday.

There were added to the rolls during the year 50,101 new pensioners, and there were restored to the rolls 3,971 pensioners who had been previously dropped, a total of 54,072. Losses were 3,960 by death, 1,074 by re-marriage of widows and mothers, 1,145 by legal limitation (minors), 2,683 for failure to claim pension for three years and 360 for other causes, an aggregate of 41,122.

The whole number of pensioners on the rolls June 30, 1897, was 976,014. The net gain over the previous year was 5,336. It will thus be seen that the pension roll has not yet begun to show any diminution. Seven widows of revolutionary soldiers and nine daughters of revolutionary soldiers are still on the rolls.

The amount disbursed for pensions by the pension agents during the year was $139,799,242.12, and the amount disbursed by treasury settlement was $150,475.23, a total of $139,949,717. This exceeds the amount disbursed during the fiscal year 1896 by the sum of $1,854,480.

NEW YORK'S PATRONAGE.

Second Only to That of the President of the United States.

More than 55,000 persons will directly or indirectly draw pay from the city in the first administration of the mayor of Greater New York. The salaries of 33,000 of these whose names will be actually on the city's pay roll will aggregate $33,000,000. Part of this amount represents the salaries and patronage of the other officers elected on Tuesday, but this is comparatively small, most of the total representing the patronage of Greater New York's first mayor, Robt. A. Van Wyck.

Second only to the president of the United States, in the value of his patronage, the first mayor of the greater city is first in the significance of this patronage. With his colleagues-elect, of the same political party as himself, Mr. Van Wyck can lead an army of office-holders, and those indirectly employed by the city, as great as the Army of the Potomac.

Tragedy at Gallatin, Tenn.

The Dismukes-Rhodes affair at Gallatin, Tenn., a few days ago, has at last resulted in a tragedy. Thursday afternoon John Rhodes was standing in the public square, when Martin Dismukes came out of the court house and fired at Rhodes with a double-barreled shotgun. Rhodes ran a few steps and fell. Bystanders rushed in and prevented Dismukes from firing again. The gun was loaded with buckshot. One ball struck Rhodes in the shoulder and another entered just under the heart, inflicting probably fatal wounds.

The shooting was the outcome of an attack upon ex-Senator Dismukes by the Rhodes boys a few days ago. Martin Dismukes tried to kill Rhodes on the day of the attack on his father, firing once at him, but striking a bystander

TRADE OUTLOOK BRIGHTER.

Resumption of Traffic and Prospective Revival in Staples Are Features.

TRADE STIMULATED BY THE COLD WEATHER.

October Made a Splendid Record on Failures—Moderate Reaction in Iron and Steel—Leading Manufacturing Industries Continue Fairly Well Employed.

Bradstreet's trade report says in part:

Killing frosts south, the raising of quarantine embargoes in nearly all states invaded by yellow fever, the resumption of traffic and a prospective revival in demand for staple merchandise constitute the trade features of the week.

Rains in central western and western states, followed by colder weather have favored farmers and stimulated demand from interior store keepers. Jobbers in northwestern states are awaiting seasonable weather to stimulate the movement of heavy dry goods and winter clothing. Features at larger Pacific coast cities are confined to sales of merchandise and provisions for the Klondike, and the heavy foreign shipments of wheat and flour. New England centers report that orders from the west exceed those from the south or east. Leading manufacturing industries continue fairly well employed. While there has been a moderate reaction in iron and steel, furnaces and mills continue well employed, and the outlook for higher quotations next year is unchanged.

In addition to lower prices for southern and Bessemer pig and for steel billets quotations for naval stores, wools, copper, coffee, pork, flour, oats and wheat are lower, while those for cotton, print cloths, sugar and beef are unchanged, and corn, lead and lard a shade higher. Exports of wheat (flour included), from both coasts of the United States and from Montreal this week aggregate 5,477,156 bushels, compared with 5,911,691 bushels last week, 3,477,000 bushels one year ago.

Exports of Indian corn this week amount to 2,199,550 bushels, compared with 1,589,000 bushels last week, 2,407,000 bushels in the corresponding week one year ago.

There are 223 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, compared with 218 last week; 223 in the week a year ago, 260 two years ago, 261 three years ago and as compared with 333 in the first week of November, 1893.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION.

The President of Brazil Attacked by a Desperate Soldier.

The president was just landing at the marine hospital after visiting the steamer on which General Barbardosa, minister of marine, had returned from Bahia.

The by-standers frustrated the attempt, but Colonel Moraes, the president's nephew, was slightly wounded in disarming the soldier.

General Bitancour, minister of war, then interfered and was himself stabbed. The wound was so serious that he died soon afterwards.

An Ill Fated Train.

A passenger train on the St. Louis and Southwestern road, known as the "Cotton Belt" route, was ill fated, and death marked its run Friday. Near Mount Pleasant the train ran over J. C. Beasley, ex-section foreman, who had fallen asleep on the track. He was instantly killed.

About thirty miles further west, near Greenville, three negro children were playing down among the timbers of a trestle bridge. They scampered up to the track, trying to escape. Two were killed between the rails. The other child died an hour later.

A few miles further west, near Wylie, a passenger named J. C. Davis entered the toilet room and committed suicide by shooting himself through the head.

May Open Arbitration Negotiations.

Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, who is just back from London, probably will confer with Secretary Sherman at an early date concerning the reopening of negotiations for an Anglo-American treaty of arbitration. Mr. Sherman made known to the British authorities some months ago that the president would view with favor a reopening of the negotiations, and was hopeful that a peace treaty ultimately would be secured. The British officials were much gratified at this suggestion, but no negotiations were entered upon. Since then Sir Julian has visited London and has had an opportunity to learn the views of the foreign office.

Representative Clarence Knowles, of Fulton county, Georgia, introduced a resolution in the house calling upon congress to enact laws so as to place the control of the quarantine regulations in the south in the hands of the Marine Hospital Service when there are future epidemics of yellow fever, smallpox, etc.

John Lyon, one of the assistant attorney-generals of the department of the interior, died at his home in Washington Friday morning.

NEGRO COLONY LAUNCHED.

Mrs. Lillian K. Ray, an English Woman, at the Head.

Saturday witnessed the formal opening of the Cedar Lake negro colony in Morgan county, promoted and backed by Mrs. Lillian K. Ray, the wealthy English woman, who represents a syndicate of English capitalists. Application was made for a city charter and a provisional government elected. Several hundred negroes were present, and seem to be in earnest with the movement. The colony comprises 367 acres of fine wheat and tobacco lands, beautifully located, on either side of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, three and a half miles from Decatur.

Mrs. Ray has donated the lands to the colony, and built thereon school and church buildings and donated $10,000 on condition that 140 houses are built by the negroes within another year. She has enlisted the aid and support of many prominent and wealthy people. She read a letter to the gathering from President Smith, of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company, promising aid and support to build a depot, side tracks, etc., and give all necessary shipping concessions. She has the promise of a wealthy Providence, R. I., firm to erect a 20,000 spindle cotton mill at a cost of $60,000, and a cigar factory. She will be materially aided by Thomas J. Lipton, an English millionaire. He is interested in tobacco culture, and his plantations in Cuba having been destroyed has decided to invest in Alabama, as he believes tobacco culture here will be profitable.

Misfortune, Then Reward.

Near Huntsville two weeks ago Mr. Williams had the misfortune to lose by fire his house with its contents, baled cotton and farming implements, in fact everything he possessed. A few days ago he received a letter from a friend in Texas summoning him to come at once and take possession of 1,500 acres of rich farming land, to which he had fallen heir through the death of an uncle.

Extract From the Treasurer's Report.

The State Treasurer has made his annual statement for the year ended September 30. The receipts for the year were shown to be $2,174,644 37, and the disbursements $2,188,955 20. This excess of disbursements arose from the fact that several extraordinary expenses incurred by the State were paid by the treasurer during the year. Among others the expense incident to holding the last legislature; that incident to the preparation and printing of the new code, and increased appropriations to the Girls' Industrial school at Montevallo, and other State institutions. The new tax laws and the improved business methods that are being enforced now in the several counties of the State will, it is believed, cause the treasury to show a handsome profit next year.

SPAIN'S REPLY RECEIVED.

The Full Text is in the State Department Hands.

The full text of the Spanish reply to the note of United States Minister Woodford reached the State Department Friday.

So far as can be learned it is not the intention of the administration to give it to the public now, so that the interest of the people must be satisfied at present with more or less official statements emanating from Madrid as to the character of the Spanish note.

It is expected that the president will make his note and the correspondence leading up to it the basis for one of the most important chapters of his forthcoming message to congress upon the reassembling of that body in December next, and meanwhile it is not believed to be probable that any radical change in policy will characterize the correspondence between the two countries unless something unforeseen occurs.

Fills a Pauper's Grave.

Gen. Thomas L. Clingman, ex-United States senator, died in the Western Insane asylum at Morganton, N. C. Aged, poor and infirm, the state gave him a home there. Gen. Capt. W. H. Briggs, of Emporia, Va., a prominent citizen and late county collector, committed suicide by shooting himself early Friday morning.

May Impeach Weyler.

A special dispatch received from Madrid says that the Spanish cabinet is now considering the impeachment of Gen. Weyler, the late captain general of Cuba, on account of the remarks which he made previous to his leaving Havana on his return to Spain. Gen. Weyler, in his remarks said in part:

"My release from my post and responsibilities did not surprise me. I had expected it from the death of Canovas, not believing that any political leader would be strong enough to sustain me when the United States and the rebels were together combined demanding that Spain should come to a settlement."

An Excellent Showing.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Tennessee Centennial exposition Auditor Frank Goodman made his report, showing that the total indebtedness of the exposition is now only $36,000. The property of the Exposition Company is valued at more than this sum, and there are uncollected assets amounting to $[illegible]. The total attendance officially reported was 1,682,305.

The legislature of Georgia will make Jeff Davis' birthday a legal holiday.

THE MOONSHINER

Two horsemen were trotting slowly down a narrow path that wound along the Kentucky ridge of the Cumberland mountains. Their horses were ridden out, and the men had but little to say. One of them hailed from New York. His face bespoke energy and strong will, but the rugged features inspired little confidence. His companion, as could be seen at a glance, was an Englishman. The fair, ruddy complexion, the quaintly shaped traveling cap, the long yellow gaiters not long from old England. The latter had met by accident at a crossing of country roads, and being both bound for Glace City, in Virginia, they agreed to make the journey together. The conversation, anything but lively at first, had ceased altogether. The New Yorker answered his companion's questions curtly, and lapsed into silence before they had traveled a mile together.

"GENTLEMEN, LET ME INTRODUCE YOU TO MY WINCHESTER."

"There's a house at last! It's as far as we can go to-day," suddenly exclaimed the American. "An old negro, no doubt," pointing at a little shackled house, the roof of which peeped out of a cornfield. "Hardly decent enough to give shelter to a horse. There's nothing else to be done." The two riders turned their horses into the narrow lane that led toward the house. When they were within 20 feet of it the door was suddenly thrown open and the porch in front of it appeared a tall, gaunt form of an old man with flowing beard and snow-white hair. His right hand clutched a Winchester rifle.

"Gentlemen," he cried—and there was a tinge in his voice—"let me introduce you to my Winchester! The first man who makes a motion toward his pocket will find himself with a hole in his [illegible] large enough to give passage to a team of oxen!"

The Englishman laughed heartily at the novel reception. "What queer people these Americans are!" he cried. "We've come to settle down among you!"

"Ah, you're a Britisher!"

"Yes, my good old friend, just over from old England."

"Wal, there looks like a tax on purpose."

The Englishman shrugged his shoulders. The New Yorker introduced himself as owner of the Winchester, "This is George Deadmore," he said, "land agent from New York. His business doesn't concern you, least. I wouldn't shoot you still if you held it over me."

He made an angry motion to send the intruders away, but the grizzly hospitality prevailed.

"Gentlemen, what can I do for you?"

"We want a way to Glace City, which, I guess, is 50 miles from here. I didn't dare to travel over that deceptive path at the dead of night. You'll have to stay here till morning."

The guests dismounted and the hosts caught the reins of the horses and led them to the little shed in the rear of the house. There he unsaddled and fed them. When he came back he conducted his guests into the house, and invited them to a frugal meal, consisting of corn bread, bacon and a glass of whisky.

Next morning the Englishman awoke to find himself alone. His companion had departed before daylight.

"I didn't like to keep him," said the old man, "for I don't trust him; but I hope you will remain with me for awhile. My name is Walker, Col. Walker, and I haven't always lived in poverty. A beautiful country home stood on the site of this old tumble-down cabin, and hundreds of negroes worked in my fields. But the war swept away my house, my lands and my slaves, and weeds are growing where tobacco and cotton flourished. I was luckier than many, for I held onto the land, and I have good reason for living in this wilderness. That Yankee yesterday was not far out of the way. If it's unlawful what I am doing, the Yankees are to blame for it. They made me a beggar! But you, stay with me just a little while, you've no idea how lonely it is for an old man to be cut off from everybody."

The invitation was given so heartily that the young Englishman decided to accept it. He had come over to this country to study the land and its people, and here was a good chance to see a phase of life and a kind of people of whom he had read in books.

The days stretched into weeks, the weeks into months, and still the Englishman tarried. His days were spent in riding about the country, hunting, fishing and exploring the beauties of the Cumberland hills. On one of these exploring tours he came upon a little distillery built close to the edge of a mountain brook. It was here the old man brewed his "moonshine" whisky. The arrangements were primitive and quaint, but the Englishman never discussed his discovery with his old friend. At night he and his friend ate their frugal meal, smoked their pipes and reveled in the loveliness of the southern night. The old warrior told of the days before the war when the country teemed with prosperity, and the Englishman listened in sympathetic silence.

Suddenly their peaceful seclusion was rudely disturbed. While the stranger strolled through the forest on the hills a fusillade of rifle shots rent the air. They came from the direction of the little cabin. He hastened down and soon reached the clearing in front of the house. In his absence the old man had been surprised by tax collectors. Three of them lay dead in their blood at the edge of the corn field. Leaning against a tree stump the Englishman recognized his former traveling companion from New York. Col. Walker's rifle had done effective work. The riderless horses feasted on the tender ears of the corn in the fields. Nothing was to be seen of the old man.

The stranger, sick with fear over the terrible tragedy, stumbled into the cabin. There, ghastly white and with disheveled hair, lay his old friend. Blood trickled from several wounds, and formed little puddles along the floor. The blue jeans shirt rose and fell with the labored breathing of the dying man. He was unconscious. The Englishman knelt besides him, moistening his lips with drops of the burning liquid which was responsible for the tragedy. One bullet has grazed the left temple, another had shattered the elbow, and the third had penetrated the abdomen. The wound was deadly; there was no recovery from it. The wounded man regained consciousness and immediately recognized his young friend.

"These scoundrels have poured more lead into me than is good for my health. The New York chap gave me away. He sent the tax collectors after me. Well, he is dead, and I'll soon follow, but before I go I want to exact a promise from you. All my old friends are dead. They were either killed in the war or died soon afterwards, and I am sorely troubled about my little girl."

"Your daughter?"

"Yes, my daughter. I have never spoken about her to any one. I sent her away to a convent in Paris. This rough, inhospitable life would not suit her at all. I intended to have her come home when the place was built up again. For her I stinted and saved and made 'moonshine' whisky. I never liked the business. It isn't fit for a gentleman. Now my daughter has finished her education and is coming here to see her old father again. She will not find me alive; but she will come into her own. There is $50,000 in the bank. And now, for the favor I'll ask of you. It's a dying man's request, will you fulfill it?"

"Yes, as far as is in my power."

"Then go to my daughter—and make her your wife."

The Englishman was dumfounded. He—to marry the daughter of a murderer. Had he forgotten that yonder in the grass lay three men whom he had killed?

"You are going to deny my request," cried the colonel. "I know what you are thinking. Have pity. In a few moments I'll be dead. Come, make haste. She is beautiful," he moaned, when the Englishman still hesitated. "Pure as the snow and highly accomplished. You need not be ashamed to call her your wife."

"Stop," cried the Englishman, torn with contending emotions. "Do not make my answer more difficult than it is. I am no longer free to give love. On my way over from Havre I gave my heart to a young girl. She gave me hers. I cannot break my word, for I love her passionately.

The dying man clutched the Englishman's sleeve. "Then take my orphan girl and let her live with you and your wife. Shield her from harm, and some day find a good husband for her."

"That I will with all my heart," promised the Englishman. "But tell me, where can I find her?"

"She does not bear her father's name. The stigma of the 'moonshine still' attaches to mine. She was called Josefa after her mother."

"And what was her other name?" questioned vehemently the young man.

"Turner—Josefa Turner."

"Josefa Turner, the girl who promised to be my wife. * * * your daughter!"

Like a drunken man he staggered toward a chair and threw himself upon it, burying his face in his hands.

The moments sped by and with them the life of the wounded man. When the young Englishman shook off the lethargy into which he had fallen he rose and went over to the spot where the old man lay.

He was dead, but over his rugged, wrinkled face lay the sweet light of peace.

New Economy.

A Tennessee community, apparently founded on institutes drawn from the precepts of Ruskin, has just established a college, to which they gave the name of that rhapsodist, at New-Economy, the town they have built up in the last three years. The community now numbers 213 and possesses property valued at $80,000. When it started each head of a family put in $500, and the increment represents what they have earned in the interval beyond their living expenses.

The settlement lives as a single family; its standard of value is an hour's labor; in its home commerce it has no money and needs none—a certificate that labor has been performed takes its place. A pound of tea costs eleven hours' work; seventy hours pay for a pair of shoes; two and a half for a pound of crackers, and so on. Everybody works and all—men and women alike—receive the same wages. They have heretofore worked ten hours a day, but expect soon to reduce it to eight. They have a kindergarten and adequate education machinery, music, languages and a limited technology being taught in addition to the regular branches.

The majority of the communists are agnostics. There is no church, but those who like can go to church outside. Of the great number of similar communities first and last founded in this country few survive. The most do not outlast a decade, and it would not be safe to predict a longer term for this one, though its institution of a college shows that it has so far no misgivings on that score.—New York Tribune.

A Racing Stable a Luxury.

A veteran turfman, in speaking of the expense of conducting a racing stable, gives some rather startling figures. One would want at least twelve horses, and these, if they are to be honest, fair racers, with some chance of success, would cost at least $75,000. This is a very low estimate, as is seen by the following figures. It cost August Belmont $92,500 for four horses—Henry of Navarre, $27,000; Hastings, $37,500; Keenan, $18,000; and Dorian, $10,000. In the same year W. P. Thompson paid $26,000 for Requital. After the purchase of the horses the next big item of expense will be a trainer, who will want at least $5,000 a year, besides his living, which will amount to fully $2,500. The trainer will also expect a percentage of winnings. No jockey worth the name can be secured for less that $7,500 per year, besides valuable presents and tips. In 1896 August Belmont paid Griffin a salary of $17,500. This year Fred Taral receives from Marcus Daly $18,000; while "Tod" Sloane, who is riding for Pittsburg Phil, gets $15,000. Fred Littlefield gets $10,000 from the Morrises, while Thorpe draws $8,000 for piloting the Bromley string.

India Rubber.

Caoutchouc is a milky juice, white as it flows from the plant, but darkening with exposure to the weather. It is commonly called India rubber, and is so useful and convenient an article that civilized people could hardly get along comfortably without it. It forms an important article of commerce. Mexico, Central and South America, and the East Indies are the principal places from which India rubber comes. The East India rubber is the juice of a species of fig tree. The South American product is taken from the syringe tree, which is sometimes as rough as an eight-story house. To erase pencil marks is one of the uses of India rubber which will occur to you first, and then you will think of water-proof cloaks and shoes, without which you could not go out comfortably in stormy weather. But these only begin to be the list of articles which this obliging gum aids in constructing. Tubes, fire hose, elastic bands, mats, belts for machinery, door springs, etc., are made of it. Combined with sulphur it forms combs, canes, buttons, picture frames, brush backs and surgical instruments, and combined with sulphur and coal tar and polished like jet it is used to make beautiful ornamental jewelry.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

A COLUMN OF PARTICULAR INTEREST TO THEM.

Something that Will Interest the Juvenile Members of Every Household—Quaint Actions and Bright Sayings of Many Cute and Cunning Children.

Ditty from Juvenile Town.

There was once a dear baby from Juvenile Town
Jumped out of a cabbage leaf
His ears were like shells, and his hair was brown,
The former of pink, the latter of down;
But when he arrived he had nary a gown—
This imp from a cabbage leaf.

Now I'm sorry to say that in Juvenile Land
The babies wear only skin;
But when they arrive on our shores, of sand
They must look about for a dress or a band
That will hide them all over the head and the hand—
These imps with nothing but skin.

And this is why Baby just hid in a petal
(He told me the other day),
For cabbages oftener are safer than nettle,
Or dahlias, or squash leaves, or things of such mettle,
For babies to hide in till we folk can settle
On clothes that are built the right way.

When We Go Fishing.

When we go fishing in the brook,
Joey and Cicely and I,
A crooked pin's our only hook.
That catches 'em! Sometimes we tie
The string tight to a willow limb
Just where the biggest minnows swim.

Then we lie down there in the shade,
And watch our bobs that tip and float;
And once a bridge of rocks we made,
And built a castle and a moat;
But, just as sure as we begin,
Why, Joey goes and tumbles in.

Then all the frightened fish they hide
Beneath the rocks and in the pool.
There's not a minnow to be spied!
The water settles clear and cool
With bubbles 'tween the rocks, and foam;
But then we must take Joey home.

Of course he cries at mamma's look.
She says: "Is this the only fish
That you can catch in Silver Brook?"
She knows, though, we'd get all she'd wish,
With just our string and pail and pin—
If Joey wouldn't tumble in!
—St. Nicholas.

How Five Kittens Came to be Named.

There was the mother cat and five kittens, and none of the kittens had names. Somehow the children had been so busy watching them tumble over each other and try to walk and then all go to sleep in a bunch, that they had not thought of naming them.

The mother cat was gray and four of the kittens were gray, but the fifth cat was black, jet black, and so without any planning or forethought the fifth kitten came to be called Blackie.

It was easy enough to distinguish her from the others, but how to tell apart the four gray ones was a question. At last it was discovered that three of the gray ones had white feet and the fourth one was gray all over. So again, without a thought of naming her, the children designated her as Gray Paws.

And then there were the other three. One of these had but one eye, the children announced sorrowfully, after the kittens were old enough to prove that they had eyes at all, and then in all tenderness and with no thought of reproach, the afflicted kitten became One Eye.

Still there were two left; two that looked almost exactly alike. Of course the children watched them every day and it did not take them long to find out that one of these was a very spunky kitten. She would spit at the others if they came near when she was eating, or if she was suddenly surprised by any one, and when this was discovered she was dubbed the Spitfire of the family.

But the remaining kitten was the one who made the others "stand 'round." If they did not do as she saw fit she boxed their ears. If the rest came around her saucer of milk she cuffed them away, and so of course she was the Boss.

And no one was more surprised than the children when we discovered that the kittens were all named, for every one was sure he had not named them.

And such a funny lot of names as it was: Blackie, Gray Paws, One Eye, Spitfire and Boss. But the names all fitted and some of them had been earned, and the kittens didn't seem to mind them in the least.—Youth's Companion.

Enlisting School Children.

Miss Eaton, of Pittsburg, is visiting the various public schools organizing Bands of Mercy among the pupils. The work is along the line of humane society efforts, though adapted to the minds of children, who are organized into societies with officers chosen from among themselves. Each member takes the following pledge:

"I will try to be kind to all living creatures and to protect them from cruel usage."

The plan is to hold appropriate exercises at stated periods, the literature for which is provided free of cost by Mr. Geo. T. Angell, a wealthy Boston gentleman, who is devoting a fortune to the work.

The children are said to be enthusiastic over the work, and it will undoubtedly prove successful. The movement already embraces bands aggregating over 1,000,000 members in various parts of the country.—Altoona (Pa.) Gazette.

Animals that Do Not Grow Thirst

How long would you be contented without a drop of water to drink? There are many different kinds of animals in the world that never in all their lives sip so much as a drop of water. Among these are the llamas of Patagonia and the gazelles of the far east. A parrot lived for fifty-two years in the "Zoo" at London, England, without drinking a drop of water, and many naturalists believe the only moisture imbibed by wild rabbits is derived from green herbage, laden with dew. Many reptiles—serpents, lizards and certain batrachians—live and thrive in places entirely devoid of water, and sloths are also said never to drink. An arid district in France has produced a race of non-drinking cows and sheep, and from the milk of the former Roquefort cheese is made. There is a species of mouse which has established itself on the waterless plains of western America, and which flourishes, notwithstanding the absence of moisture.

Labor Laws in Russia.

While Emperor Nicholas has declined until now to endow his people with a constitutional form of government, yet it cannot be denied that he is introducing many reforms which show that he is possessed of an enlightened and broad-minded sense of his responsibilities. Thus he has just promulgated a ukase prohibiting, under severe penalties, any form of labor on Sunday, or on the fourteen principal Russian feast days of the Muscovite calendar. This practically assures the laboring population sixty-six legal days of rest in the year. Children are not permitted under any circumstances to work more than eight hours a day, while eleven are henceforth to constitute the maximum working day of grown men. On Saturday the working day is limited to ten hours.

Buried with His Money on Him.

Not long ago a miserly person, who had been teased almost to death by his heirs, endeavored to cheat them out of his money. Before he died he left positive instructions that he should be buried in a certain suit of clothes. His wish was carried out, but after the funeral his surviving relatives could find no will and no money. Finally one of them suspected that the old man had served them a shabby trick, and suggested that the body be exhumed and the clothing examined. This was done, and the coat, waistcoat and trousers were found to be lined with Bank of England notes.—Chicago Record.

Danger in the X Ray.

Fine complexions, according to a recent sensational announcement, can be made by an application of the X ray. Prof. Elihu Thomson, the electrician, says this is not true, and that to prevent serious physical injury the ray must be used at some distance from the body, with an exposure of not more than from 15 to 30 minutes. Not long ago he tested the power of the ray on his little finger, held close to the tube for 12 minutes. Redness and irritation quickly followed, the nail fell off later, and the flesh looked like it had been scalded. The scar still remains, at the end of eight weeks. Enough is known of the ray to warrant the rule that it shall be handled only by the expert.

A Protection Against Lightning.

"People living in cities are prone to believe that the increasing number of telephone, telegraph and trolley wires increase the danger from electric storms," writes Edward W. Bok in the Ladies' Home Journal. "On the contrary, the maze of wires is a protection, and lessens the danger, since it is shown that where the wires attract the electricity they hold it, and discharge it only at the end of the wires in the central station. The fact is that of the two hundred lightning accidents every year only an average of forty occur in the cities. The trees in the country are a far greater danger; they account for the proportion of four cases in the country to one in the city."

Preserving His Boots.

A new wrinkle may be learned from an English soldier who was noted for keeping his boots in better condition and making them last longer than any of his brother officers. When asked what he did to them to prevent the leather from cracking and keeping it soft and smooth his reply was "Mutton bone." When an explanation was demanded he said: "It is nothing, I assure you. My man asks the cook for a knuckle bone, which he cleans and then bakes. After rubbing the leather with cream, he then frotes them as hard as he can with the bone. Usually my boots last me three years.—New Orleans Picayune.

One of the family of the "fighting Bells" of Augusta County, Va., has died at the homestead at Long Glade at the age of 80. He was Alexander R. Cushing's company of the Fifth Virginia Regiment, Stonewall Brigade, and were nearly all killed in battle or died of wounds.

Bradley had just been released from jail and, it is said, went to the house of his wife at that place and a quarrel ensued. Bradley resented the reprimand with two blows of the axe upon her head, felling her to the floor and immediately fled.

If the present low price of cotton is not enough to convince our farmers of the benefits they could derive from a thorough organization, then nothing could prove to them the good of the Farmers' Alliance. Disorganization means demoralization and holds good both in politics and business.

The farmers' association kindly ask that all papers friendly to them to publish the foregoing and lend a helping hand to expel the nightmare that is pressing all the life and energy out of the soil-tillers.

American Applications of the "Referendum."

This decision in Philadelphia, about to be made by popular referendum, suggests the growing favor in which the idea is held of a direct decision by the people upon various matters of public interest and concern. Seth Low, for example, has made it evident in his speeches that he would be in favor of referring the question of the Sunday sale of drinks to a direct vote of the citizens of New York. In the two States of Connecticut and New Jersey the voters have within a few weeks taken direct action on important questions submitted for their determination. The voters of Connecticut, by a very large majority, declared themselves on October 3 as in favor of an amendment to the constitution of the State which restricts suffrage to voters able to read in the English language any article of the constitution or any section of the statutes. The vote against the proposition was very slight, every community, whether urban or rural, voting in the affirmative. In New Jersey a great popular contest was waged upon the question of amendment to the constitution prohibiting gambling—the evil practically aimed at being that of race-track pool-selling, book-making, and betting. The country districts of New Jersey were in favor of the amendment, and the large towns were against it. At first the amendment seemed to be lost, but on the final count of the votes it was found that this salutary provision had been adopted. The good citizens of New Jersey have found themselves unable to trust their law-makers to do their duty as against the powerful influence of the gambling fraternity, and thus it has been deemed best to appeal to the referendum and seek protection under a constitutional clause. The almost complete domination of our legislatures by bosses and corrupt elements will probably drive the people of this country to a constantly increasing use, under one form or another, of what is known as the referendum—that is to say, the direct vote of the people themselves upon questions of general importance.—From "The Progress of the World," in American Monthly Review of Reviews for November.

Stands at the Head

Aug. J. Bogel, the leading druggist of Shreveport, La., says: "Dr. King's New Discovery is the only thing that cured my cough, and it is the best seller I have." J. F. Campbell, merchant of Safford, Ariz., writes: "Dr. King's New Discovery is all that is claimed for it; it never fails, and is a sure cure for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I can not say enough for its merits." Dr. Kings New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is not an experiment. It has been tried for a quarter of a century, and to-day stands at the head. It never disappoints. Free trial bottle at Dr. J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

How are we to get true freedom, self-government, and to be complete it must not only be political but social, economic, industrial, intellectual, and embrace all of the sides and activities of life. The next step toward freedom is political self-government. It we partially have now. Through it the others can be obtained. Through it the education necessary for the others can be gained. How can we get political self-government? We have done away with the middleman in religion. A man can worship as he pleases. We have done away with the middle-man in our intellectual life: a man can think as he pleases. We have partially done away with the middle-man in our governmental life, but not completely. The people themselves must have the final sav on the laws which govern them. Then will the people have complete self-government in political matters.—The New Time.

Weakness manifests itself in the loss of ambition and aching bones. The blood is watery; the tissues are wasting—the door is being opened for disease. A bottle of Browns' Iron Bitters taken in time will restore your strength, soothe your nerves, make your blood rich and red. Do you more good than an expensive special course of medicine. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

At last the reform movement has a magazine of which it can well be proud. The New Time is splendidly edited. The best artists and cartoonists of the world contribute their work to its pages, and the great thinkers and writers of the age have made it their forum. You can well afford to spend a dollar for a year's subscription to The New Time. The Banner acts as its agent in this vicinity. Forward a subscription at once. The Banner and The New Time $1.50 per year.

Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 10, 1897.

Of the three men who addressed the great throng that assembled to do honor to the memory of Henry George, the most perfect sympathy and greatest applause was accorded to John Crosby, the well known single taxer and People's Party man. Mr. Crosby dwelt upon the work of the man rather than the man and spoke in glowing periods of the great task ahead of those who were the disciples of the man who had sacrificed his life for the cause of humanity. Mr. Crosby is well known throughout the middle-western states, where he was, during his residence in Kansas City, a speaker always in demand and sure of a delighted audience. He removed from that place to New Jersey only to find himself boycotted for his splendid work during the campaign there last spring and he was forced to seek some other location in order to make a living. He is succeeding in New York and has the good wishes of many western friends.

The splendid opportunity for a demonstration of the feasibility of government ownership of railroads offered by the foreclosure of the mortgage on the Union Pacific is past. The sale was made at Omaha on November 1 and the syndicate that saw in its possession a golden opportunity for the control of transcontinental traffic and the accumulation of wealth beyond the dreams of avarice, bid it in without competition. The time will come when a majority of the people will see how they were robbed in this matter.

Senator Allen did splendid service in the Nebraska campaign. On several occasions he paid his respects especially to the judiciary, pointing out the limitations that should be placed around those officials if our liberties are not to be lost. He also made a fine point on the fact that no injunction prohibited the plotting that was done in gilded parlors, but that common people dare not meet even in the highways to discuss plans for protecting their already jeopardized interests.

Bartley, the Nebraska state treasury thief, is helped out of his dilemma of accounting for over $500,000 that are missing since his retirement from office by a republican judge who has handed down the decision that since Bartley's bond was filed before it was approved by the governor, that he was not legally state treasurer at the time and hence cannot be held responsible for the lost money.

Very little has been given to the public as to the recent meeting of the Texas State People's Party Committee except that they agreed that any policy that would overthrow democratic rule in that state would be adopted and followed out with the greatest vigor.

An unanswerable argument in favor of union of all the silver forces is to be found in the election returns from Kansas, where the Republican candidates were snowed under by a union or fusion of the reform forces.

Department clerks hissed the picture of Mark Hanna when it was shown on the stereoptican canvas along with the election returns in Washington, D. C. We venture to believe that they will not be so candid when Mark returns to that city.

Said W. J. Bryan, when he had heard the election returns: "I regard silver as stronger than ever. The sentiment in favor of the Chicago platform shows a healthy growth throughout the country. Perhaps our opponents will now admit that silver is not dead. The attempt to secure international bimetalism has proved a failure, and it is now more apparent than ever that the people of the United States must legislate for themselves on the financial question. Free and unlimited coinage at 16 to 1 is nearer than it was a year ago. High tariff on a gold basis has disappointed those republicans who looked to it for relief.

The meager 20,000 votes cast for young George, in Greater New York, go to show that ours is not a country of heredity in politics. Every man must earn his place—or buy it.

Election returns assure the Populists of Nebraska a decided victory. The democratic press, in speaking of this, chronicles it as a victory for democracy, but this is true only of the radical silver wing of that party.

The election of the Tammany candidate in Greater New York must be an awkward victory for those democrats who indorse the Chicago platform.

Another month of the Dingley bill and no affect of that much lauded measure is felt in the United States Treasury. General Nelson O. Miles, U. S. A. recently returned from the celebration of the Queen's Jubilee, recommends the permanent mounting of gatling guns on the new Post Office in Chicago, so as to sweep all approaches to the building.

Led by Switzerland, five powers of the Latin Union have signed an agreement to increase their number of small silver coins by a franc per head of their population. A. R.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail Mention The Banner and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

The Banner office is the only Job Printing establishment in Chilton and Coosa counties. We give you best work at lower prices than you can get elsewhere. Give us a trial

"Just as Good as Scott's and we sell it much cheaper," is a statement sometimes made by the druggist when Scott's Emulsion is called for. This shows that the druggists themselves regard of Cod-Liver Oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda as the standard, and the purchaser who desires to procure the "standard" because he knows it has been of untold benefit, should not for one instant think of taking the risk of using some untried preparation. The substitution of something said to be "just as good" for a standard preparation twenty-five years on the market, should not be permitted by the intelligent purchaser.

Scott's Emulsion

Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion. See that the man and fish are on the wrapper.
50c. and $1.00, all druggists.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suitable for any season, but perhaps more especially needed, when the languid, tired feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. One bottle of this medicine has averted long and perhaps fatal attacks of fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and removing from the system the malarial poison. Headache, Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. 50c and $100 per bottle

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

NOTES OF INTEREST TO THE ANTI-LIQUOR LEAGUERS.

The Belgian Commission of Enquiry Takes Strong Guard Against the Use of Alcohol — Why Cardinal Manning Took the Pledge.

Love's Memories.

O-NIGHT! to-night! what memories to-night
Came thronging o'er me as I stood near thee!
Thy form of loveliness, thy brow of light,
Thy voice's thrilling flow—
All, all were there; to me—to me as bright
As when they claim'd my soul's idolatry
Years, long years ago.

That gulf of years! Oh, God! hadst thou been mine,
Would all that's precious have been swallow'd there?
Youth's meteor hope, and manhood's high design,
Lost, lost, forever lost—
Lost with the love that with them all would twine
The love that left no harvest but despair—
Unwon at such a cost.

Was it ideal, that wild, wild love I bore thee?
Or thou thyself—didst thou my soul enthrall?
Such as thou art to-night did I adore thee,
Ay, idolize—in vain!
Such as thou art to-night—could time restore me
That wealth of loving—shouldst thou have it all
To waste perchance again?

No! Thou didst break the coffers of my heart,
And sat so lightly by the hoard within,
That I too learn'd at last the squanderer's art—
Went idly here and there,
Filling my soul, and lavishing a part
On each, less cold than thou, who cared to win
And seem'd to prize a share.

No! Thou didst wither up my flowering youth
If blameless, still the bearer of a blight;
The unconscious agent of the deallest truth
That human heart hath riven;
Teaching me scorn of my own spirit's truth,
Holding, not me, but that fond worship light
Which link'd my soul to Heaven.

No, no! For me the weakest heart before
One so untouch'd by tenderness as thine;
Angels have entered through the frail tent door
That pass the palace now—
And he who spake the words "Go, sin no more,"
'Mid human passions saw the spark divine,
But not in such as thou!

Use of Alcohol.

Advocates of temperance will be rejoiced to hear of the uncompromising attitude taken up on the liquor question by some members of the Belgian Commission of Enquiry into Alcoholism in Belgium. The commission, as originally appointed, consisted of fifteen members, who were unable to agree upon any unanimous report, and a pamphlet has just been issued by the king's printer in Brussels giving the views entertained by six of their number. These gentlemen maintain that all alcohol is injurious whatever pains may be taken to secure its purity; they point out at some length that restriction of the number of places for selling alcohol leads to no diminution in the quantity consumed; that excessive taxation has also little effect, and encourages smuggling; and that the only thing to be done is to attack the evil at the fountain head, and restrict the output from the distilleries. They aspire after such moral coercion as they find resulting from the organization of temperance societies in Great Britain and America, and they advo- strict the output from the distilleries, with a view to the diminution of the supply of alcoholic liquors. M. de Vauclery, one of the Belgian commissioners referred to, drew up a report on the properties of alcohol which his fellow commissioners adopted. It stated that alcohol, however pure, was no tonic, and did not increase the vital energies; that, instead of warming the body, it lowered the temperature; that in large doses during meals, or in small doses fasting, it led generally to acute alcoholism; that even the moderate daily use of alcohol could produce chronic alcoholism without warning of previous drunkenness; that alcoholism in parents was transmitted to the children, thus infecting the progeny with a hereditary vice; that absinthe, bitters, vermouth and other spirituous liquors led to more terrible disorders in the human system than ordinary alcohol; that distilled liquors possessed no nutritive value; that wine, beer and cider had but little value as food—much less than that of the products used in the preparation; that the moderate use of wine or beer at mealtimes might be wholesome, but that if they are taken in large quantities, and, above all, if they are taken fasting, they are likely to be dangerous and to lead to alcoholism; and that fermented liquors not adulterated are less injurious than distilled liquors containing the same quantity of alcohol.

Rum in Colonial Times.

The power of rum as a commercial factor in the colonies was at its height about 1750. That year the royal treasury report gave sixty-three distilleries in Massachusetts turning molasses into rum. This formed the store for about 900 vessels engaged in various branches of trade—400 in cod fishing, 200 mackerel fishing, 100 whalers, etc. Newport kept pace relatively with Boston. Refuse codfish paid for much of the molasses. Connecticut attempted to prohibit distilling, because it made molasses scarce, but the prohibition was very hastily stopped when the citizens found that business went where rum could be obtained. Rum proved the best New England commodity in all trading operations. Rum was the Indian's choice, in fact his only acceptance, as payment for his peltries; it was chosen with equal eagerness by the Virginian or Carolinian in exchange for his tobacco. The Newfoundland fishermen wished it in return for codfish, and, most important of all, on the Guinea coast New England rum entirely vanquished French brandy as a medium for acquiring slaves. The commerce in rum and slaves afforded all the ready money that paid for any merchandise in England. It was the driving power of all commercial machinery. The circuit was powerful at every step. The Yankee vessel laden with home-made rum sailed to the African coast. The rum was bartered to great advantage for negroes. The negroes were carried to and sold at a large profit at the West Indies and the distillation in Newport and Boston started afresh the round of New England money making. Sometimes trade was so brisk that the market was stripped of rum. In the year 1752 Isaac Freeman wanted a cargo of rum for the African trade. He sent to Newport, where there were then thirty great rum distilleries in full blast. His correspondent wrote that he could not have it for three months. "There are so many vessels loading for Guinea we can't get our hogsheads of rum for cash. We have been lately to New London and all along the seaport towns in order to purchase molasses, but we can't get one hogshead." The shipmasters were not above watering the rum to make it go as far as possible. Old Merchant Potter instructed his captains to "trade with the blacks, worter ye' rum as much as possible, and sell as much by short messur as you can." —Brockton (Mass.) Times.

Consecrated Anew.

The battlecry of a certain Western regiment in our civil war was the name of a field in Mexico on which the regiment had brought disgrace upon itself. The memory of the old stain on the colors fired the men with bravery almost superhuman, and they burned out the old shame in deeds of heroic valor on the new field. So should it be in life. Does the year's retrospect bring the crimson to our cheek as we recall this or that experience? Shall not the memory of our weakness or sin fire us with intense desire to be strong and true hereafter? Shall not the shame of our past failures become a mighty motive to noble and heroic living in the days to come? Shall we not seek to burn out the dishonor on our old record with the brilliant flame of a new loyalty and consecration? Not only should penitence become repentance, but the sorrow we feel over our errors should become energy and impulse toward holy life and consecrated service.—J. R. Miller.

Manning's Pledge.

The consecration of Cardinal Manning's life to total abstinence came, it is said, from a brief conversation with a London dock laborer. "Take the total abstinence pledge," said the prelate in paternal counseling to the laborer, "you need it." "Have you it yourself, father?" replied the laborer, with filial liberty. "Why do yon not need it, too?" Quickly Manning said: "I do need it, and I take it." "Then I also take it," said the laborer. Explaining later his words, the cardinal said: "I needed the pledge, strong as I might have thought myself against temptation, in order to speak convincing words to the poor and the weak." The holiest and purest motives led Cardinal Manning to the practice of total abstinence.—Irish World.

Make It Odious.

Intemperance, like treason, ought to be made odious in the land, but there is very close similarity between the two. The treasonable man endeavors to dethrone the rightful sovereign, and intemperance dethrones reason from her throne, and reason is the presiding spirit of our soul, the ruler of our soul. —Cardinal Gibbons.

Temperance.

The saloonkeepers of Toronto are not allowed to become members of the city council.

Buffalo has a prohibition priest, the Rev. Father George Zurcher, pastor of the St. Joseph's Catholic church.

In Warren, Pa., the druggists propose to close all their stores except one on Sunday. Each of the stores will have a Sunday in turn, while the others will give their employes a rest.

Mrs. Dora Alexander has begun suit in the circuit court at Taylorville, Ill., for $5,000 damages against two saloonkeepers, who she alleges sold liquor to her husband, causing his death from exposure to the cold while intoxicated.

It has been decided by the commissioner of internal revenue that figs are not berries, and, as a consequence, a canning company of Fresno, Cal., although allowed to pay the tax on, and sell a distillation, will not hereafter be permitted to make brandy from figs.

Mayor Edward F. Winkler of Belleville, Ill., was arrested recently charged with malfeasance in office, consisting in issuing a license contrary to law for pool selling at the St. Clair county fair. The fair officers and directors and the pool sellers were also arrested.

Two hundred and fifty-five chiefs of police tell The Voice that sixty-three per cent of their business consists in taking care of the product of the legalized rum shops. Of the 255 officials answering the questions asked them by The Voice 225 put the percentage at not less than one-half, while thirty estimated the proportion at 90 per cent or more.

They had been drifting about in an open boat for seven days, and had almost given up hope, when the lookout cried, wildly: "A sail! a sail!" The only woman passenger looked up, anxiously: "Oh, is it a bargain sale?" —London Tit-Bits.

THE WOLCOTT FIASCO.

NO SHOW FOR INTERNATIONAL BIMETALLISM.

The Republican Party Must Now Meet Democracy and Defend the Obnoxious British Gold Standard—People Fooled Long Enough.

The reply of Premier Salisbury of the British government to the proposals of the bimetallic commissioners sent abroad by the federal administration for the purpose of fooling the people, seems to be very much in the nature of the action of that little bird which once was in danger of being caught through the process of throwing salt on its tail. It is quite possible, at least so far as we are able to judge, it is quite possible, that the salt has been thrown and the throwers have been in a position to watch results. But throwing salt on tails is not an approved manner of capturing birds in this day and age, and so it seems that the bimetallic commissioners and the federal administration they represent are in pretty much the same position as a bird catcher who confined himself to the use of salt, and the upshot of the matter is that the proposal of the federal administration looking toward another international conference has left matters just where they were when the present federal administration went into power. The truth is that this whole affair has been one stupendous sham. There has been a pretense of honest effort. But there is little sense in running up against a stone wall, no matter how honest may be the intentions of the runner. Great Britain gave no promise of favoring another conference, even if it were to be granted that another international conference would amount to any more than the previous conferences have amounted to. There has been no hope at any time that the commissioners could accomplish anything. All that they have been able to do at the most has been to raise a disturbance when the Bank of England was mentioned as giving a slight promise of doing under impossible circumstances what it is expected by authority of its charter to do at all times. The long drawn out negotiations may or may not have been the result of diplomatic delays. The fact is, that defeat faced the commissioners when they were appointed, and it has been facing them ever since. If defeat had taken its eyes off of them for a moment their lack of authority and general uncertainty of object would immediately have drawn the eyes back. It is no wonder, therefore, that the matter has turned out as it has, her only wonder in the matter being in the patience of the American people in the face of this wide-open flim-flam game. The gullibility of the American public is great, but it is almost too much to believe that it has been misled into the belief that the present national administration means to do anything for the rehabilitation of silver. The present administration dare to do nothing in this line. The McKinley following sold itself body and soul to the Platt faction, dominated by the gold standard extremists at the St. Louis convention last year, and it dare not now call its soul its own. It is comforting in all this to know that this commission sham is now a thing of the past, and that the real policy of the administration will now soon be brought to light in the proposition of Secretary Gage to retire the Greenbacks, run the nation into the hands of the banks through bank currency and bind the nation for generations yet to come by a bond issue ad libitum.

Is a Red Rag.

Whatever may be the real opinion of the British press as to silver and practical bimetallism, it is quite certain that the very mention of the subject has the same effect as that of a red rag upon a bull. The present course of the British ministry in maintaining secrecy with respect to its course toward the representatives of the United States commission of supplication for the granting of charitable relief from the present monetary ills is the object of most violent attacks from British newspapers, and the least mention of anything in the nature of a movement toward an international agreement seems to be as exasperating to them as a personal insult. This great show of indignation is quite useless in its way, for there is every reason in the world to believe that nothing will come from this pretended movement on the part of the administration of government in these United States. At the same time it is perhaps only reasonable to believe that the coming of practical bimetallism is now so near that even the newspapers of the United Kingdom can see its approach. They already are commencing the fight they must make for the preservation of the gold standard, if it is to be preserved.

Commerce and Industry Department.

The officers and members of the executive committee of the National Business league have sent a petition to President McKinley asking him to call attention in his forthcoming message to the matter of the creation of an executive department to be called the "department of commerce and industry." They suggest that the department should include, among other things, "matters relative to the gathering of information with a view to the systematic extension of our commerce with the South and Central American States and other foreign countries and the collecting and tabulating of statistics as to the various industries of this country—with reports and recommendations as to the same—as a basis of intelligent action in the interest of such industries and the employes therein." That is all well enough so far, provided agriculture is included as one of the industries. Agriculture is as truly an industry as the production of iron or woolen cloth. It is a vicious trick of the crafty protectionist to include manufacturing and some few other pursuits among the industries and leave agriculture out, as though it was not an industry. It would be a still more vicious practice for congress to establish an executive department separate and apart from the department of agriculture, as though there was some radical difference between agriculture and other branches of industry. Such a proceeding would tend to create and foment antagonism where there ought to be harmony. Agriculture is by far the most important of the incustries, and it lies at the very foundation of most others. That fact may be accepted as a sufficient reason for establishing an agricultural department first. But there is no good reason why another department should be created and all other industries assigned to it, as though there was a natural and radical difference between the chief industry and every other.

Kansas Robbery.

The Republican administration cannot clear its reputation by compromising with the railroad pool and allowing a steal of $12,000,000 to be perpetrated in the Kansas Pacific matter. There appears to be little reason to believe that the great robbery of $20,000,000 would have been prevented had not the Democratic press of the United States shown the iniquity of the plot and in unmistakable terms denounced the plotters from the head of the administration down to the smallest man in the robber syndicate. The New York Journal charges the administration with complicity in the proposed looting of the treasury, and among other strong statements says: "Today the country knows that a comedy was played for its deception, with Mr. McKinley as the star and the syndicate the supporting company. The bid for the Union Pacific has been raised $8,000,000, and the sale will take place on Nov. 2, according to the original program. Postponement is asked for only in the case of the Kansas Pacific, which, except as a part of the Union Pacific, is of comparatively small value. When the Union Pacific has been taken possession of by the conspirators, as it will be on Nov. 2, the Kansas Pacific will be in the market. It owes about $13,000,000 to the government, and the government will be allowed to keep it, unless it shall consent to sell on the ring's terms." This is the situation as it stands today, and unless the administration heeds the warnings of the Democratic press, the stigma of a gigantic steal will still be placed upon the Republican party. President McKinley cannot afford to go down in history as the first chief magistrate of the United States who allowed the people to be robbed of $12,000,000, but he may be forced into that disgraceful position by the powerful influence of the trusts.

Gold Men and the Farmers.

One of the many evidences of the perturbed state of mind of our gold friends is the eagerness with which they seize upon the temporarily increased price for the farmers' wheat to argue that the farmer must now be prosperous and happy; that he no longer looks for the restoration of silver as a necessary means of maintaining the price of farm products. They hail the apparent improvement of the farmers' condition as the forerunner of coming prosperity for all. However, we must remind them that this verifies our contention "that to the extent the agriculturists prosper so may we expect the country generally to prosper." Up to this hour, however, it has not been usual, in these parts at least, to see farmers driving in coach and four, nor do they, as a rule, wear silk hats or tanned shoes. They feel and look just as they have felt and looked for many years past. It is true the failure of the wheat crop in other countries has, for the time being, strengthened the wheat market, and just now our farmers are getting a price for their wheat just about sufficient to pay the cost of its production.—R. P. Bland in North American Review.

Only Outside Markets Needed.

Knoxville (Tenn.) Tribune: Informed Englishmen admit that this country excels England in the cheapness of iron and steel manufacturing and that the south has superior advantages over all other sections. The south contains about 40 per cent of the total coal area of this country and in less than two decades has increased its coal output from 14 to 24 per cent of the total production of American mines. The coal and iron industries of the south need no tariff protection. Demand from outside markets will be worth more to them than all the tariffs that can be levied.

How Bosses Keep in Power.

Baltimore Sun: The boss cannot afford to be scrupulous about means. Bribery, corruption, the purchasing of support and of votes, with money or with office or the promise of office, are among the most innocent means to which he can resort. Violence, the intimidation of voters, election murders, pudding tickets, repeating, ballot-box stuffing, the falsifying of election returns, the burning of ballots to prevent the discovery of fraud—these are among the methods by which "bossism" has been perpetuated.

Bondage Is an Innovation.

As far at least as our race is concerned freedom is everywhere older than bondage. It is liberty that is ancient, tyranny that is modern.—E. A. Freeman.

ASIA'S CROSS OF GOLD.

BEING CRUCIFIED BY THE BANKERS OF LONDON.

The Commerce and Industries—Whole Continent Gradually Passing into the Hands of the Money Lenders—Ruin and Desolation Everywhere.

The government of India has undertaken the negotiation of a loan of three crores of rupees at 3½ per cent, and it was declared at the outset that the money should be raised in India, and without the interference of London capital. Now a crore of rupees consists of 100 lacs, and a lac is 100,000 rupees, so that the loan calls for 30,000,000 rupees, or nominally something less than half that sum in American dollars. It does not appear what success attended the effort to thus further mortgage the resources of the country, but that part of it need not be in doubt a moment, for there is abundant capital seeking investment on such security, despite the starving of hundreds of thousands of impoverished natives. But the volume of this loan is a mere bagatelle to what is coming as a result of the existing troubles on the northern frontier of that rich and productive but unhappy land. There will be fines, heavy enough in all conscience, imposed upon the rebellious tribesmen just as soon as they are properly subdued, and their territory occupied by British soldiery. The bulk of the expenses of the campaign, however, will have to be paid by the people of India, and inasmuch as the revenue of the government is already inadequate the necessity of additional taxation will furnish the next pretext needed for disguising the extortion by the imposition of a gold standard coinage. Taxation has reached such a pass in India that to impose more of it directly on the people would be as dangerous to British supremacy there as were the greased cartridges at the opening of the Sepoy rebellion forty years ago. The expedient required is one that will add to the revenues of the horde of English office holders in India, and at the same time blind the eyes of the Hindus to the real cause of the hard times, which must ensue when the producer has to give more and ever more of his productions for the same number of rupees. Many able English economists fear the effect of the gold standard in India, but inasmuch as it has been worked off on a much more intelligent people commercially, the people of the United States, the men in charge of affairs governmentally are confident that with caution the same gold brick can be palmed off on the Hindus without inciting a rebellion. To be sure when Lord Herschell's commission was discussing this matter in London a year or two ago one member of the commission remarked that he washed his hands of the iniquitous proposal because, as he put the case, "it looks too much like setting fire to your neighbor's house to roast your own sucking pig." But conscientious scruples of this kind are in a minority, and the new India loan may therefore be reasonably regarded as part and parcel of the scheme which is to make a larger Ireland out of the fairest section of all India. By systematically depressing the price in gold of silver the London bullionists have already driven China into the market for another loan to enable her to pay her war indemnity, and keep her governmental head above water. This is but the beginning of the end there, too. Already the English Straits Settlements' dollar is finding its way into the innermost provinces of North China, and the latest consular reports from the interior are to the effect that ninety per cent of the trading junks on the rivers now fly the flag of British ownership. All this is going on, the economic enslavement of Asia for the benefit of the luxurious few in London and one or two minor financial centers is being visibly accomplished, while an army of political party hacks in the United States are trying to barter honor and intellect for a few paltry offices by doing to their native land what England is doing to her conquered provinces. Usury caused the downfall of ancient Rome, but the modern form of usury is more subtle and difficult to detect, for while nominally reducing the rate of interest it bleeds the debtor of more and ever more of his productions. Just how long it will take the great majority to fully appreciate the enormity of the swindle is the same question as is asked by those who inquire how long government by bribery and corruption can stand. It is the one basic problem upon which the stability of modern civilization as exemplified in the policy of the English speaking, and no one living can tell the outcome.

American Cotton Goods Abroad.

Boston Globe: The cotton manufacturers who have been holding session in Philadelphia ought to go to their homes with a keen appreciation of the foreign market opportunities which Americans have in the past so strangely neglected. Great Britain, the chief rival of this republic in trade, has not neglected her chances. Great Britain, without a pound of native raw cotton, spins and weaves over 77 per cent of the cotton goods that are purchased by other nations, while this country, producing over one-half of all the cotton grown in the world, supplies less than 1 per cent.

Farmers' Profits.

This has been a marvelous month for the farmers. Farmer Charles Pillsbury has made $500,000. Farmer D. R. Francis has made $300,000. Farmer J. Pierpont Morton has made $1,000,000. There will be great doings at the county fairs this fall.—Chicago Journal.

These are very striking words read in the light of recent events, appointment of the gold and commission in 1886, and the h of several international monetary ferences, as well as the holding eral inquiries into trade depr and into agricultural depression called for by the fall in prices. significant commentary on Lord consfield's sagacity in foreseeing far-reaching effects of the stee monetary changes which were the ginning.

SUNDAY'S DISCOURSE BY THE NOTED DIVINE.

A Christian Home and What It Should Be—A Powerful Test of Character—Various Meanings of Home—Can Be Made the Brightest Place on Earth.

TEXT: "Go home to thy friends and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee," Mark v., 19.

There are a great many people longing for some grand sphere in which to serve God. They admire Luther at the Diet of Worms, and only wish that they had some such great opportunity in which to display their Christian prowess. They admire Paul making Felix tremble, and they only wish that they had some such grand occasion in which to preach righteousness, temperance and judgment to come; all they want is only an opportunity to exhibit their Christian heroism. Now the evangelist comes to us, and he practically says: "I will show you a place where you can exhibit all that is grand, and beautiful, and glorious, in Christian character, and that is the domestic circle."

If one is not faithful in an insignificant sphere he will not be faithful in a resounding sphere. If Peter will not help the cripple at the gate of the temple, he will never be able to preach three thousand souls into the kingdom at the Pentecost. If Paul will not take pains to instruct in the way of salvation the jailer of the Philippian dungeon, he will never make Felix tremble. He who is not faithful in a skirmish would not be faithful in an Armageddon. The fact is, we are all placed in just the position in which we can most grandly serve God; and we ought not to be chiefly thoughtful about some sphere of usefulness which we may after a while gain, but the all-absorbing question with you and with me ought to be: "Lord, what wilt Thou have me now and here to do?"

There is one word in my text around which the most of our thoughts will this morning revolve. That word is "Home." Ask ten different men the meaning of that word, and they will give you ten different definitions. To one it means love at the hearth, it means plenty at the table, industry at the workstand, intelligence at the books, devotion at the altar. To him it means a greeting at the door and a smile at the chair. Peace hovering like wings. Joy clapping its hands with laughter. Life a tranquil lake. Pillowed on the ripples sleep the shadows.

Ask another man what home is, and he will tell you it is want, looking out of a cheerless fire-grate, kneading hunger in an empty bread trough. The damp air shivering with curses. No Bible on the Shelf. Children robbers and murderers in embryo. Every face a picture of ruin. Want in the background and sin staring from the front. No Sabbath wave rolling over that doorsill. Vestibule of the pit. Shadow of infernal walls. Furnace for forging everlasting chains. Awful word! It is spelled with curses, it weeps with ruin, it chokes with woe, it sweats with the death agony of despair.

The word "Home" in the one case means everything bright. The word "Home" in the other case means everything terrible.

I shall speak to you this morning of home as a test of character, home as a refuge, home as a political safeguard, home as a school, and home as a type of heaven.

And in the first place I remark, that home is a powerful test of character. The disposition in public may be in gay costume, while in private it is in dishabille. As play actors may appear in one way on the stage, and may appear in another way behind the scenes, so private character may be very different from public character. Private character is often public character turned wrong side out. A man may receive you into his parlor as though he were a distillation of smiles, and yet his heart may be a swamp of nettles. There are business men who all day long are mild, and courteous, and genial, and good-natured in commercial life, damming back their irritability, and their petulance, and their discontent; but at night fall the dam breaks, and scolding pours forth in floods and freshets.

The reason men do not display their bad temper in public is because they do not want to be knocked down. There are men who hide their petulance and their irritability just for the same reason that they do not let their notes go to protest. It does not pay. Or for the same reason that they do not want a man in their stock company to sell his stock at less than the right price, lest it depreciate the value. As at sometimes the wind rises, so after a sunshiny day there may be a tempestuous night. There are people who in public act the philanthropist, who at home act the Nero with respect to their slippers and their gown.

Now, that man who is affable in public and who is irritable in private is making a fraudulent overissue of stock, and he is as bad as a bank that might have four or five hundred thousand dollars of bills in circulation with no specie in the vault. Let us learn to show piety at home. If we have it not there, we have it not anywhere. If we have not genuine grace in the family circle, all our outward and public plausibility merely springs from a fear of the world or from the slimy, putrid pool of our own selfishness. I tell you the home is a mighty test of character. What you are at home you are everywhere, whether you demonstrate it or not.

Again, I remark that home is a refuge. Life in the United States army on the national road to Mexico, a long march with ever and anon a skirmish and a battle. At eventide we pitch our tent and stack the arms, we hang up the war cap and lay our head on the knapsack, we sleep until the morning bugle calls us to marching and action. How pleasant it is to rehearse the victories, and the surprises, and the attacks of the day, seated by the still campfire of the home circle!

There is the place where we may talk of what we have done without being charged with self-adulation. There is the place where we may lounge without being thought ungraceful. There is the place where we may express affection without being thought silly. There is the place where we may forget our annoyances, and exasperations, and troubles. For lorn on earth pilgrim! no home? Then die. That is better. The grave is brighter, and grander, and more glorious than this world with no tent for marchings, with no harbor from the storm, with no place of rest from this scene of greed, and gouge, and loss, and gain. God pity the man or the woman who has no home.

Further, I remark, that home is a political safeguard. The safety of the State must be built on the safety of the home. We cannot France come to a placid republic? Ever and anon there is a threat of National capsize. France as a nation has not the right kind of a Christian home. The Christian hearthstone is the only cornerstone for a republic. The virtues cultured in the family circle are an absolute necessity for the State. If there be any religious influence to make the family all that it can be, will it not be enough politically to induce the State to adopt it? No, it does not mean that. Turcos and Vandals, means the Nomads of Asia, means the Nomads of Africa, changing from place to place, according as the pasture happens to change. Confounded be all those Bastiles of impurity which would overtower and destroy the home. The same storm that upsets the ship in which the family sails will sink the frigate of the constitution. Jails and penitentiaries and armies and navies are not our best defense. The door of the home is the best fortress.

Further, I remark, that home is a school. Old ground must be turned up with subsoil plow, and it must be harrowed and reharrowed, and then the crop will not be as large as that of the new ground with less culture. Now, youth and childhood are new ground, and all the influences thrown over their heart and life will come up in after life luxuriantly. Every time you have given a smile of approbation, all the good cheer of your life will come up again in the geniality of your children. And every ebullition of anger and every uncontrolable display of indignation will be fuel to their disposition twenty, or thirty, or forty years from now—fuel for a bad fire a quarter of a century from this.

Oh, make your home the brightest place on earth, if you would charm your children to the high path of virtue, and rectitude, and religion. Do not always turn the blinds the wrong way. Let the light which puts gold on the gentian and spots the pansy pour into your dwellings. Do not expect the little feet to keep step to a dead march. Do not cover up your walls with such pictures as West's "Death on a Pale Horse," or Tintoretto's "Massacre of the Innocents." Rather cover them, if you have pictures, with "The Hawking Party," and "The Mill by the Mountain Stream," and "The Fox Hunt," and "The Children Amid Flowers," and "The Harvest Scene," and "The Saturday Night Marketing."

Above all, my friends, take into your homes Christian principle. Can it be that in any of the comfortable homes of my congregation the voice of prayer is never lifted? What! No application at night for protection? What! No thanksgiving in the morning for care? How, my brother, my sister, will you answer God in the Day of Judgment, with reference to your children? It is a plain question, and therefore I ask it. In the tenth chapter of Jeremiah God says He will pour out His fury upon the families that call not upon His name. O parents, when you are dead and gone, and the moss is covering the inscription of the tombstone, will your children look back and think of father and mother at family prayer? Will they take the old family Bible, and open it and see the mark of tears of contrition and tears of consoling promise wept by eyes long before gone out into darkness?

Oh, if you do not inoculate Christian principle in the homes of your children, and you do not warn them against evil, and you do not invite them to holiness and to God, and they wander off into dissipation and into infidelity, and at last make shipwreck of their immortal soul, on their death-bed and in their Day of Judgment they will curse you. Seated by the register or the stove, what if on the wall should come out the history of your children? What a history—the mortal and immortal life of your loved ones. Every parent is writing the history of his child. He is writing it, composing it into a song or turning it into a groan.

My mind runs back to one of the best of early homes. Prayer, like a roof, over it. Peace, like an atmosphere, in it. Parents, personifications of faith in trial and comfort in darkness. The two pillars of that earthly home long ago crumbled to dust. But shall I ever forget that early home? Yes, when the flower forgets the sun that warms it. Yes, when the mariner forgets the star that guided him. Yes, when love has gone out of the heart's altar and memory has emptied his urn into forgetfulness. Then, the home of my childhood, I will forget thee! The family altar of a father's importunity and a mother's tenderness, the voices of affection, the funerals of our dead father and mother, with interlocked arms like intertwining branches of trees making a perpetual arbor of love, and peace, and kindness—then I will forget them—then and only then. You know, my brother, that a hundred times you have been kept out of sin by the memory of such a scene as I have been describing. You have often had raging temptations, but you know what has held you with supernatural grasp. I tell you, a man who has had such a good home as that never gets over it, and a man who has had a bad early home never gets over it.

Again, I remark, that home is a type of heaven. To bring us to that home Christ left His home. Far up and far back in the history of heaven there came a period when its most illustrious citizen was about to absent Himself. He was not going to sail from beach to beach; we have often done that. He was not going to put out from one hemisphere to another hemisphere; many of us have done that. But He was to sail from world to world, the spaces unexplored and the immensities untraveled. No world had ever hailed heaven, and so far as we know heaven had never hailed any other world. I think that the windows and the balconies were thronged, and that the pearly beach was crowded with those who had come to see Him sail out the harbor of light into the ocean beyond.

Out, and out, and out, and on, and on, and on, and on, and down, and down, and down He sped, until one night, with only one to greet Him, he arrived. His disembarkation, so unpretending, so quiet, that it was not known on earth until the excitement in the cloud gave intimation that something grand and glorious had happened! Who comes there? From what port did He sail? Why was this the place of his destination? I question the shepherds, I question the camel drivers, I question the angels. I have found out! He was an exile. But the world has had plenty of exiles—Abraham an exile from Ur of the Chaldees; John an exile from Ephesus; Kosciusko an exile from Poland; Mazzini an exile from Rome; Emmett an exile from Ireland; Victor Hugo an exile from France; Kossuth an exile from Hungary. But this one of whom I speak to-day had such resounding farewell and came into such chilling reception—for not even a hostler went out with his lantern to help Him in—that He is more to be celebrated than any other expatriated one of earth or heaven.

It is ninety-five million miles from here to the sun, and all astronomers agree in saying that our solar system is only one of the small wheels of the great machinery of the universe, turning round some one great center, the center so far distant it is beyond all imagination and calculation, and if, as some think, that great center in the distance is heaven, Christ came far from home when He came here. Have you ever thought of the homesickness of Christ? Some of you know what homesickness is, when you have been only a few weeks absent from the domestic circle. Christ was thirty-three years away from home. Some of you feel homesickness when you are a hundred or a thousand miles away from the domestic circle. Christ was more millions of miles away from home than you could calculate if all your life you did nothing but calculate. You know what it is to be homesick even amid pleasurable surroundings; but Christ slept in huts, and He was athirst, and He was a-hungered, and He was on the way from being born in another man's barn to being buried in another man's grave. I have read how the Swiss, when they are far away from their native country, at the sound of their national air get so homesick that they fall into melancholy, and sometimes they die under the homesickness. But, oh, the homesickness of Christ! Poverty homesick for celestial riches. Persecution homesick for hosanna. Weariness homesick for rest. Homesick for angelic and archangelic companionship. Homesick to go out of the night and the storm and the world's exceeration, and all that homesickness suffered to get us home.

At our best estate we are only pilgrims and strangers here. "Heaven is our home." Death will never knock at the door of that mansion, and in all that country there is not a single grave. How glad parents are in holiday times to gather their children home again. But I have noticed that there is almost always a son or a daughter absent—absent from home, perhaps, absent from the country, perhaps absent from the world. Oh, how glad our Heavenly Father will be when He gets all His children home with Him in heaven! And how delightful it will be for brothers and sisters to meet after long separation! Once they parted at the door of the tomb; now they meet at the door of immortality.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR NOVEMBER 14.

Lesson Text: "Paul's Ministry in Rome," Acts xxviii., 17-31—Golden Text: Romans i., 16—Commentary on the Day's Lesson by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

17. "After three days Paul called the chief of the Jews together." The expression "three days" is so suggestive of resurrection that one cannot fail to think of it who has anything of the spirit of Paul, who had as one of his heart utterances "That I may know Him and the power of His resurrection" (Phil. iii., 10). At his conversion he was three days without sight, and then Ananias came to him, sent of God. Probably he gave himself to prayer these three days in Rome that he might be fully in the Lord's hands as His messenger to accomplish His pleasure, and now the principal Jews of the city have come together to hear what he has to say.

18. "There was no cause of death in me." Yet here he is in Rome a prisoner by the will of God. So there was no cause in Christ why He should be hated (John xv., 25) or crucified, yet by the will of God He suffered the just for the unjust. To be willing to endure hardship for the good of others is Christlike, for He loved us and gave Himself for us, leaving His home in glory for over thirty-three years and suffering all the humiliation consequent upon His being the sinner's substitute, that we who accept Him might not only be saved, but share His glory.

19. "Not that I had aught to accuse my Nation of." Although it was through his own people that he was now a prisoner, yet he would not accuse them, but rather see the hand of God in it all and continue to love and pray for his poor, blinded people. See his heart for them in Rom. ix., 3, and x., 1, "I could wish that myself were accursed from Christ for my brethren." "Brethren, my heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel is that they might be saved." And it was his custom always as here in Rome to seek the Jews first.

20. "For the hope of Israel I am bound with this chain." By comparing chapters xxiii., 6; xxiv., 15; xxvi., 6, 7, it is evident that the hope which Paul meant was associated with resurrection, the resurrection of Christ and then of His people. The resurrection spoken of in Dan. xii., 1-3, and in Hos. vi., 2, and elsewhere—very fully in Ezek. xxxvii., where it is said that they shall be one nation in their own land under one king, never to be divided or scattered any more.

21, 22. "As concerning this sect we know that everywhere it is spoken against." They had heard nothing evil of Paul, but they had heard the followers of this Jesus Christ spoken against. Simeon said to His mother that He would be for a sign spoken against (Luke ii., 34), and it is written, "All that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution" (II. Tim. iii., 12). The carnal mind is enmity against God, and the wisdom of this world knows not God.

23. "He expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses and out of the prophets from morning till evening." Having appointed him a day, they came to him to his lodging, and thus he talked to them. The beginning, middle and end of his talk was Jesus and His resurrection, looking to the kingdom yet to be established with Israel as a righteous nation at the center, Jesus, the Son of David, as their King, and all nations blessed through them, their King acknowledged by all as King of kings and Lord of lords.

24. "And some believed the things which were spoken and some believed not." So it has been and will always be in this age. Paul never expected that all would believe him, but he labored that he might by all means save some (Rom. xi., 14; I. Cor. ix., 22). Our Lord taught us that some seed will fall by the wayside, some on stony soil, some among thorns and some on good ground; that the tares will grow with the wheat until the harvest and that the kingdom will come at harvest time.

25-27. "And when they agreed not among themselves they departed after that Paul had spoken one word." That one word was a quotation from Isa. vi., 9, 10, and is also found in Math. xiii., 14, 15; John xii., 40; Rom. xi., 8. Isaiah having seen His glory and having heard the question, "Whom shall I send and who will go for us?" replied, "Here am I, send me." Then he was told that the people to whom he was sent would not all receive his message. Jeremiah and Ezekiel were also told the same thing (the record is in Jer. i., and in Ezek. ii. and iii.). It is the one business of the Lord's messenger to deliver the Lord's message faithfully, diminishing not a word, and trust the Lord to see to the results. See Hag. i., 13; Jer. xxiii., 28; xxvi., 2. We are not to think out the passage any more than the prophets did or our Lord Jesus Christ Himself. Both He and they spake only the words commanded them by God (John xii., 49; Jer. i., 6, 7; Ex. iv., 12), and we must not think to do otherwise.

28, 29. "To the Jew first was his way always; then, when rejected by them, turn to the gentiles, sure that somehow the Lord shall see of the travail of His soul and shall be satisfied. Since He shall not fail nor be discouraged (Isa. xlii., 4), there is no room for any servant of His ever to be discouraged. We must remember His word to Moses and to Joshua to put off their shoes, which, if I understand it, signified that the work was the Lord's and not theirs.

30. "And Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired house and received all that came in unto him." During that time he probably wrote the epistles to the Ephesians, the Philippians, the Colossians and some others. When people came to him, he would be ever ready to welcome them and talk with them of Him of whom his heart was so full.

31. "Preaching the kingdom of God and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ with all confidence, no man forbidding him." Thus this book of the Acts begins and ends with the kingdom, for we read in chapter i., 3, that during the forty days he ween the resurrection and ascension our Lord, when He appeared from time to time, spoke of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God. The time will come when the kingdoms of this world shall have become the kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ, when all kings shall fall down before Him and all nations serve Him (Rev. xi., 15; Ps. lxxii., 11). What can we do to hasten it? First let Him save us freely by His grace, then let Him as our Lord use us as He will and where He will to make Him known to others, that they, too, may receive Him and help complete His body and hasten the time of His return to bring the kingdom and restore all things of which the prophets have spoken. —Lesson Helper.

God of all patience, by whose long-suffering love alone we are permitted to continue in the opportunities of life, keep us in the quiet of thy presence all day long that we sin not in hasty word or deed. Be swifter than our provocations, stronger than our easily resetting sins, and kinder than our own thought of others. In our impatient hours, when anger burns within us and cries out for utterance, give us courage in the memory of thy love for self-restraint. In the reflection of thy mercy may our faces shine. In cheerful hours may we await the ripening of thy purpose. So teach us to weigh the hopes and fears, the joys and disappointments of this mortal life that we may know the worth of the enduring treasure of thy grace. Guard us from the folly of heart rest in earthly things. Enlarge our souls in the good hope of eternal life through Christ and make us willing instruments of service. Enable us to think in charity, to speak in kindness, to deal lovingly as well as justly in all relations and responsibilities of life. And glorify thyself in us through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

In time the child, growing into a woman, came across the ocean and settled in Canada. Twenty years of the drudgery of domestic service made but a little change in her. In the course of these years her father and mother died, and the uncle returned to Scotland with his fortune. Of late Miss McKay has been employed by Mr. Lawrence, of Bayside, L. I., as a cook. She says she has no higher ambition than to make her home in Flushing and help the poor.

MISSISSIPPI GIRLS NOT AFRAID.

Martell Tabor

Crape, Miss., says: I have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine 18 years. It is the best of all Liver Regulators. It cures Sick Headache, and is a great deal more popular than "Black Draught" or any other liver medicine in this country.

Menstrual Non-Appearance.

Absence of the flow may arise from some organic defects or from abnormal condition of the blood or nervous system. As the time approaches there are many symptoms that should be apparent to an intelligent mother. When they are tardy, the attempt to establish this function is attended with pain in the head, loins and back, chilliness, nausea and bloating of the abdomen. The treatment necessary is moderate out-door exercise, the use of Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine to correct the action of the digestive organs and a dose twice a day for some weeks of that great uterine stimulant, Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine.

W. W. Graves

Postmaster, Merchant and First Assistant Principal Hebron Normal High School, Fuller, Miss., writes: I am 25 years old, and my Father, who died when he was 75 years old, had been using and selling Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine ever since I could remember. It does all that is claimed for it, and is as staple as Sugar, Flour and Bacon. I consider it much Superior to "Zeilin's Medicine," which I don't use at any price.

Girls Approaching Puberty

Frequently suffer from irritability, restlessness, smothering sensations, palpitation of heart, depression of spirits, nausea, constipation and sometimes fainting spells. Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine, taken with the original Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, quickly relieves these and other distressing symptoms and assists nature in performing its natural functions at the proper time.

Look Out.—Don't let the preparation called "Black Draught" come into your house on the fraudulent pretension of being "just the same" as M. A. S. L. M. It is "not" the same. If the component parts were the same there is as much difference between them as between day and night. Beware of all imitations.

SAVINGS OF THE POOR.

Is It Right That They Should Be Used for the Profit of Others?

One of the principal reasons put forth in opposition to the establishment of postal savings banks is that the government ought not to interfere in any way with the business of private bankers by taking for safe-keeping deposits which they might like to handle.

Opposed to the general principle laid down by the opponents of postal savings banks as the basis of their opposition is another principle which The Record believes is more pertinent to the particular subject under consideration. It is that private individuals ought not to be allowed to make a profit from handling the small savings of the poor. This principle is one that is recognized not only in most civilized countries abroad, but also in those parts of the United States where wealth is most abundant and where provisions for the protection of property of all kinds are most highly developed. In the New England states and New York, the only portion of this country at all aequately supplied with savings-bank facilities, bankers are allowed, as in Illinois, to regard the small savings of the poor as funds to be invested for their own private inrichment. The savings banks of those states are mutual institutions, managed by trustees who serve without compensation and who derive no profit from the loaning of the funds intrusted to their care. No other kind of savings bank is permitted by law. The savings of the poor are held so sacred that it is deemed unwise to allow bankers to use them for private profit for fear the tendency to speculate with the funds and invest them in questionable securities because these pay high rates of interest might result in loss and hardship to a class that it should be especially the object of society to protect.

If we are not to have postal banks, then the states of the west and south should imitate the example of New England and New York and make provision for mutual savings instutions for the accommodation and safety of the small depositors.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and, therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely-educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account creed, race or nationality.

5 DROPS — 49 YEARS OF SUFFERING FROM RHEUMATISM.

Read carefully this testimonial found below, also letters from those who have been cured of other diseases, and remember that "5 Drops" has and can fail to quickly relieve and permanently cure.

DEAR SIR:—Your bottle of "5 Drops" received. It was for an old friend, Mr. Edwards, of Martinstown, Wis. He has had Neuralgia in his chest, suffering a great deal of pain, so much so that it affected his heart and he could not sleep on account of a smothering feeling. He has been under the care of the most eminent physicians, but found no relief until I gave him a dose of "5 Drops." The very first night he rested well, and has ever since and is gaining daily. I myself am 67 years old and began taking your medicine last fall for Rheumatism, which I have had for 49 years, also for a weak heart. Since taking "5 Drops" the Rheumatism has all disappeared, the stiffness is going from my joints, and my heart never misses a beat. I am to-day a well, strong woman, and I owe it to "5 Drops." I only wish I could sound my bugle of praise loud enough to be heard all over the world, so I could convince every one that "5 Drops" is all you claim it to be and more.

Mrs. D. F. Carver, Winslow, Stevenson Co., Ill.

34 YEARS OF SUFFERING.

JANUARY 2, 1897.

DEAR SIR:—Over 34 years ago, I had Typhoid Fever, and barely escaped with my life. It left my system so shattered that I have had ever since, Rheumatism and Throat Trouble, which gave me a terrible Cough. I had been unable to find any relief for these diseases, until I learned of your "5 DROPS", which I commenced taking only two months ago, and my cure has been indeed WONDERFUL. Already my cough has entirely disappeared, and the Rheumatism which for a few years past has threatened to make a cripple of me, is cured, and I am free from pain. This is the most wonderful and the cheapest remedy ever discovered. I am more thankful to you than words can tell and I want everybody to know what "5 DROPS" has done for me. Although I am OVER 70 YEARS old, I am feeling better than I have in years.

I shall be glad to answer any questions regarding my case from anyone enclosing a two cent stamp. Gratefully yours,

MRS. SAMUEL RIBLET, Litchfield, Mich.

CATARRH AND HAY FEVER.

I find the bottle of "5 DROPS" to be very good and just what you claim. My wife has been suffering with Catarrh and Hay Fever over 16 years. She has tried everything and doctored much, but no cure until she tried "5 DROPS" which completely cured her.

Yours truly REV. L. VON WALD,
March 31, 1896. Milbank, S. D.

NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA.

For twenty long years my wife suffered untold tortures from Sciatica and Neuralgia, and I thank God for the day that your heaven-sent remedy fell into my hands, for it completely cured her. I am a minister of the Gospel, and when I find any who suffer, I cannot help but recommend "5 DROPS", for I know it will do more than you claim for it.

REV. F. M. COOK, Washington Center, Md.

PARALYSIS AND RHEUMATISM.

DEAR SIRS: NOVEMBER 4, 1896.

It is with pleasure I write you of your priceless remedy and of the cure it has done me. For the last eight years I have been an almost helpless cripple from paralysis and rheumatism. Just think for eight years a total cripple, unable to eat a potato without assistance, unable to walk or even stand on the ground without the aid of support to lean on. Heaven bless the man who discovered this remedy, for thanks to him I am able to walk and attend to my business. I have only taken two-thirds of a bottle, but have not had any pain in my back since I took the first dose, and after the second dose I walked across the floor, which I have not done in years. I have thrown away my crutches and shall never need them again. To any one sending me a two-cent stamp I will send an affidavit. I have another bottle of "5 DROPS" and value it at $1.00 per drop.

Thankfully yours, EDWARD CASTLE,
1006 Wall Street. Sioux City, Iowa.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

DEAR SIRS: SEPTEMBER 28, 1896.

I wish to tell you and suffering humanity how much good "5 DROPS" has done me. I was in the beginning of this year I took down in bed last with Inflammatory Rheumatism, and I was doctored by as good physicians as the country has, but they could not cure me. In August 4, I began to take "5 DROPS", and at that time every joint in my body and my limbs were stiff, so that I could not be moved. Even my tongue was stiffened so that I could hardly speak so any one could understand me, but to-day, only seven weeks from that time, I am absolutely cured, and I thank you and God for my recovery.

Gratefully yours,

HORACE F. ANDERSON, McCracken, Kans.

If you have not sufficient confidence after reading these letters to send for a large bottle, send for a sample bottle, which contains sufficient medicine to convince you of its merits. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief, and is a permanent cure for Rheumatism Neuralgia, Sciatica, Catarrh, Asthma, Dyspepsia, Backache, Fever, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headache, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, "La Grippe," Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and kindred diseases.

"FIVE DROPS" is the name and dose. Large bottles (300 doses), $1.00. Six bottles for $5.00. Sample bottle, prepaid by mail, 25c. Not sold by druggists, but only by us and our agents. Agents appointed in new territory.

WEDDING BELLS RING MERRILY

Yesterday evening as the shades of night began to steal o'er the earth, a gallant gentleman from Georgia came and carried away with him one of Clanton's fairest belles. While the gentleman is to be congratulated upon his suuccessful wooing, there remains in Clanton many who need condoling with.

At 4:30 yesterday evening a select party of relatives and friends assembled at the home of Mr. W. L. Sampey to witness the nuptials of Miss Minnie Pinckard and Dr. W. J. Meadors, of West Point, Ga. Dr. J. Hall, of Newnan, Ga., who came over for the purpose performed the ceremony in an impressive manner. Mr. Batson, of West Point, was best man with Miss Ola McCree as Maid of Honor. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses, and Miss McCree one of yellow chrysanthemums.

The happy couple left on the mail for their home in West Point, Ga., carrying with them the best wishes of all for their future happiness and prosperity.

Oakgrove, Ala., Nov. 12, 1897

On the evening of the tenth at 8:30, Mr. Warren W. Wright and Miss Maggie Aldridge were happily united in matrimony at the Presbyterian church, at this place. Rev. Dr. Russel, of Piedmond, Ala., officiating. At the appointed hour as the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march pended forth the wedding procession marched to the alter, Mr. S. T. Palmore, as best man, Miss Hattie Aldridge, sister of the bride, as maid of honor. The other attendants were Miss Mattie S. Chandler, Miss Ada Johnson, Mr. L. M. Hopkins and Mr. S. L. Douglas. After the happy couple were made man and wife the party with a number of friends returned to the home of the bride's parents where they were entertained royally until a late hour with music, dancing and refreshmeets. Each one bidding the newly married pair good-night, with showers of good wishes and blessings, took their leave.

The services of Judge Honeycutt were called into requisition last Thursday to unite in matrimony Mr. George W. Tackett and Miss Rebecca A. Connell, both of southeast Chilton. We wish them much conjugal felisity.

Mr. S. E. Edwards and Miss M. E. Langston, of Jemison, were married in the probate office by Judge Honeycutt on Monday morning in his usual happy style. The BANNER joins their many friends in best wishes for their welfare.

A WHOLE MAN.

A whole man is another name for a healthy man. One of the prime essentials of health is cleanliness. The first step in this direction is a clean skin. This fact is well known. Not only should the outside of the body be perfectly clean, but the interior of the body as well. Clean teeth, clean mouth, clean throat, clean nasal passages, are all requisites of perfect health. The whole body, as well as every organ in the body, is lined with mucous membrane, which is even more liable than the skin to become very dirty. The most frequent cause of unclean mucous membrane is catarrh. Catarrh creates unnatural secretions, even though the catarrh be very slight. In this condition good health is impossible.

Dr. Hartman has made a specialty of treating chronic catarrh for nearly 40 years. His great remedy (Pe-ru-na) has become known throughout the United States and Canada. It is certainly the best, and probably the only effective internal remedy for chronic catarrh. Its cures are permanent. The Doctor is also the author of many books on chronic catarrh. His latest book on the subject will be sent free for a short time by The Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, O.

Ask your druggist for a free Pe-ru-na Almanac for 1898.

The two old gentlemen recently on the sick list are to the delight of friends moving around in their midst.

We have just returned from a visit to Mrs. Sophronia Whatley, of Mulberey. We are made to wonder what has become of the angels who should continually be administering to such afflicted ones as Mrs. Whatley. A tender word of sympathy and an act of Christian chairity is what St. James says is pure religion. Away with long prayers and outside demonstration of holiness, so long as the widow is not visted in trouble and affliction.

It is pleasant to see the farmer rolling in his barrels of choice home made syrup. How much 5c cotton would it take to buy 40 gallons of molasses? and all the while missing the jubilee of making syrup and candy.

Dear BANNER: Please receive my heartfelt congratulations for your improved paper. The courageous way in which your sentiments are spoken is commendable. For each to fearlessly express his opinions is good for his national health. Your political items are so condensed and tersely told that they are better understood than when in such a fog of long winded speeches that the few grains of gold (and often none of this last named) that must be winnowed from the chaff is not worth one's time.

Yours sincerely,

An Old Idea.

Every day strengthens the belief of eminent physicians that impure blood is the cause of the majority of our diseases. Twenty-five years ago this theory was used as a basis for the formula of Browns' Iron Bitters. The many remarkable cures effected by this famous old household remedy are sufficient to prove that the theory is correct. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

Considerable excitement was created among the convicts. but not a man escaped.

The three-year-old boy of J. A. Johnson, of Lynn Center, Ill., is subject to attacks of croup. Mr. Johnson says he is satisfied that the timely use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, during a severe attack, saved his little boy's life. He is in the drug business, a member of the firm of Johnson Bros. of that place and they handle a great many patent medicines for throat and lung diseases. He had all these to choose from, and skilled physicians ready to respond to his call, but selected this remedy for use in his own family at a time when his child's life was in danger, because he knew it to be superior to any other, and famous the country over for its cures of croup. SOMEBODY'S DARLING.

Into the ward of the whitewashed walls
Where the dead and dying lay—
Wounded by bayonets, shells, and balls—
Somebody's darling was borne one day.
Somebody's darling! so young and so brave,
Wearing still on his pale sweet face—
Soon to be hid by the dust of the grave—
The lingering light of his boyhood's grace.

Matted and damp are the curls of gold,
Kissing the snow of that fair young brow;
Pale are the lips of delicate mold—
Somebody's darling is dying now
Back from the beautiful blue-veined face
Brush every wandering, silken thread;
Cross his hands as a sign of grace—
Somebody's darling is still and dead!

Kiss him once more for somebody's sake;
Murmur a prayer, soft and low;
One bright curl from the cluster take—
They were somebody's pride, you know.
Somebody's hand hath rested there;
Was it a mother's soft and white,
And have the lips of a sister fair
Been baptised in those waves of light?

God knows best. He was somebody's love;
Somebody's heart enshrined him near;
Somebody wafted his name above,
Night and morn, on the wings of prayer.
Somebody wept when he marched away,
Looking so handsome, brave and grand;
Somebody's kiss on his forehead lay:
Somebody clung to his parting hand—

Somebody's watching and waiting for him,
Yearning to hold him again to her heart:
There he lies—with the blue eyes dim,
And smiling, child-like lips apart.
Tenderly bury the fair young dead,
Pausing to drop on his grave a tear,
Carve on the wooden slab at his head,
"Somebody's darling lies buried here."

"WHO MAKETH ALL."

THE scholar sat in his study before his writing-table, but he did not write. He leaned his elbow on the table and his head on his hand, and he was thinking of Phyllis far away in Rai Pindi with her husband. The table was piled with books—several stood open invitingly—and a fair white sheet of paper lay on his blotting-pad—but he did not write.

Presently Jakes opened the door and said: "There's a young woman, sir, asking to see you; shall I say you're engaged?"

"A young woman, Jakes?" queried the scholar. "What sort of a woman, and from whence?"

"Well, sir," and Jakes closed the door behind him, "I do think she's from the circus as is on the village green."

"From the circus!" repeated the scholar. "What can she want?"

"She won't give no name nor yet no message, sir. Shall I say that you're engaged, sir?"

Jakes considered it the "height of impudence" that a hussy from the circus should dare to ask to see his master, and longed to send her about her business. Fine doings, indeed, for such as she to be asking for gentlemen, as bold as brass!

The scholar pondered, then he said to himself: "Phyllis would like me to see her—she was always kind. Jakes, you can show her in."

Jakes departed, much displeased, and presently ushered a young woman into the room and shut the door after her carefully, and in a fashion that said as plainly as possible: "Well, I wash my hands of this foolhardy proceeding."

The young woman advanced into the middle of the room and then stood awkwardly and said nothing. She was a tall, slight girl, attired in a variety of garments, startling in hue, and having apparently no connection with one another. Her hair was brushed about her forehead and stuck out in a series of large "rolls" behind. The hair was crowned by a hat of portentous size adorned by several rather dejected-looking feathers. But under the furze-bush of hair the face was oval and almost beautiful in its regularity of feature and pure color.

The scholar rose and bowed, then with old-fashioned courtesy he set a chair for her, and having seen her seated, murmured something shyly as "to what he was indebted for the pleasure of this visit?"

The girl stared at him with wide blue eyes, then said, abruptly: "I say, you're a knowin' old cove, aren't you?"

The scholar started a little at this description of himself, and waved his hands in deprecating wise. The girl went on: "I've 'eard in the village as you are always a-studying old books, and knows all sorts of heathenish lingo; now do you know 'ow to make a love poshin?"

The scholar gazed at her in speechless astonishment, then he grasped the edge of his writing-table for support and stammered: "Do I understand you to ask me if I know anything about love philters?"

"Yes, that's the ticket!" said the girl, genially. "I want a love poshin to give my young man. 'E's been and took up with Mad'selle Leonore, what does the trials of strength, and I wants to bring 'im back to me. You give me the perskiption and I'll ask the galipot to make it up. I was sure as you'd know."

The scholar felt quite sorry for her when he realized the disappointment he was about to inflict, she smiled so prettily and looked so pleased. He shook his head, then he said gently: "I'm afraid I am quite unable to help you in this matter. I know nothing of such things, neither do I believe that they can have the smallest effect."

"But I thought you was always a-studyin' ancient days," said the girl in an argumentative voice, leaning forward in her chair. "Do think—in some of them old books" (waving her hand in the direction of the book-lined walls). "Ain't there something in some of them old books?"

"I fear not," sad the scholar, almost sadly, she was so eager, so much in earnest. The girl drew herself up in her chair and said, abruptly:

"I'm a honest girl, I am."

"That I am sure you are, and therefore you need no love philters. Believe me, you are quite pretty and good enough to inspire love, an honest love, without recourse to magic." The scholar spoke persuasively, his voice was very gentle and his manner courtly. The girl winked her wide-blue eyes and made a little swallowing motion with her throat, then she cougned and continued:

"My father's brought us up strict, 'e 'ave. 'E doan't 'old with swearin' for women; and if we was light 'e'd lay the 'orse w'ip about our shoulders, 'e would. 'E's clown in our show, 'e is."

There was silence for a minute in the big library, then the scholar said gently: "Why do you want a love philter? Is the—man you are engaged to fickle?"

"Well, 'e runs after Mad'selle Leonore, and I can't stand it, and I rates 'im, and 'e laughs at me, and I'm beastly miserable, I am!"

The girl's voice broke, and great tears rolled down her cheeks. The scholar was much distressed. He was a very learned man, and instructed in the best wisdom of many lands, but he had also studied diligently a book that it requires no great erudition to understand, but only what is quite as rare, a humble heart. A certain saying in that book which runs: "But thou hast mercy upon all, and winkest at the sins of men; because they should amend," came into his mind, and the trouble of this poor circus girl was very real to him. She wiped her eyes with a gayly-bordered pocket-handkerchief, and said:

"What would a lidy do?"

The scholar pondered for a moment, then said diffidently, and with extreme shyness: "I think that she would not—show that she minded. That she would try to be always sweet and good-tempered and gracious, above all to Madam What's-her-name. Don't let him think himself so precious, my child. We all value what is hard to obtain. He's too sure of you or he wouldn't tease you. If you are wise, and if he is worth having—if he's worthy of you and of your good father, you'll find that all this nonsense will come to an end as a tale that is told."

It was a long speech for the scholar to make; he flushed a little as he made it, and the circus girl gazed at him admiringly, exclaiming:

"You are a knowin' old cove!"

The scholar shook his head and said humbly: "I fear I am ignorant in these matters. I have only known three women intimately in my life—my mother, my wife, and my daughter."

"Is that what your daughter did—the young lidy as is just married?" she asked eagerly.

"I don't know what she did," answered the scholar gently; and indeed it was true, for the engagement had come upon him as a bolt from the blue while he was thinking of Phyllis as still in pinafores.

"Was she very 'ard to please?" persisted the girl.

Hah Phyllis been hard to please? the scholar asked himself. He did not know. It had not taken long to please her, anyhow; so he said: "I don't know if she was hard to please, but I know that whatever she did was right and sweet and womanly, and you can do all that yourself my dear."

"I wish I was a lidy!" sighed the circus girl; "but father says as one can be as good a girl in a troupe as if one was a scripture reader, 'e do. I see you're a sky pilot by yer choker. What do you say?"

"I quite agree with your father; he must be a most sensible man, and I wish I knew him. Believe me, a circus lady can be just as useful as any other if she will only try, and I am sure you'll try."

The girl rose from her seat, so did the scholar; she held out her hand to him and he took it, and the old man and the girl looked into each other's eyes.

"Good-bye," said the girl; "I'm glad I came, though you are so ignorant about love poshins."

"I'm very glad you came," said the scholar heartily; "and, believe me, you need no 'love poshins,' you are quite charming enough without!" The girl nushed up to the roots of the furze-brush. Then the scholar said: "Would you like some rosest" The girl said: "Please, sir," in the shyest, smallest voice, and the scholar held the door open for her to pass out. Then he followed her across the hall and through the open front door. He took his pruning-knife from his pocket and he cut a great bunch of the roses that were famed throughout the county, then he walked down the drive with her, and at the lodge gate he bade her good-by.

She started down the road, and then looking back and seeing him still standing at the gate, she ran back, saying breathlessly: "I wish you'd come and see me ride. I can jump through the 'oops beautiful, I can! I should like to show yer."

The scholar's eyes were very kind, but he shook his head, saying: "I'm getting an old man, my dear; I hardly ever go out at night."

"But there's a matinee—an afternoon show"—she explained, "this afternoon."

The scholar wavered, then the beseeching blue eyes caught his and held them. "Phyllis would like me to," he murmured; then—"I will come and see you ride this afternoon."

"I shall look out for you, mind," said the girl; "don't you forget!"

The scholar did not forget—he went! —Windsor Magazine.

How She Cured Him.

"I thought I was going to sell a coffin to one of my neighbors a few days ago," said the undertaker. "A certain young man who had been dissipating considerably of late, and had got into debt, became desperate and threatened on several occasions to commit suicide if his widowed mother did not give him some of the money she had borrowed on their little home. Not long ago he went home with a desperate look on his face, and, calling his mother into the drawing room, said, as he pulled a revolver from his hip pocket: 'I will have the money, or I will end my miserable existence.' 'Wait! Wait!' screamed his mother, as she rushed from the room. A look of satisfaction overspread the young man's face as he mumbled to himself about knowing he would get it. In a moment his mother returned carrying a large rug. Quietly she spread it down on the carpet, and then, straightening up, said: 'Now, George, go ahead. I was afraid you would spoil my carpet with blood stains. Any choice about coffins?' The young man almost sank to the floor in his astonishment and disappointment. He was sure if he threatened to shoot himself his mother would accede to his unjust demands and give him the little money she was saving to buy the necessaries of life with, but on the day before she had come over to my house and told my wife about his threats. My wife put the idea into her head to chaff her son the next time he threatened to commit suicide. She was afraid to try, but, summoning all her nerve, she carried out instructions, and succeeded. The young man hasn't said a word about dying since."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Elephants.

Some elephants are said to be good climbers. They make their way up and down mountains and through a country of steep cliffs, where mules would not dare to venture, and even where men find passage difficult. Their tracks have been found upon the very summit of mountains over seven thousand feet high. In these journeys an elephant is often compelled to descend hills and mountain sides which are almost precipitous. This is the way in which it is done. The elephant's first manoeuvre is to kneel down close to the declivity. One foreleg is then cautiously passed over the edge and a short way down the slope, and if he finds there is no good spot for a firm foothold, he speedily forms one by stamping into the soil if it is moist, or kicking out a footing if it is dry. If the elephant is now sure of a good foothold, the other foreleg is brought down in the same way. Then he performs the same work over again with his feet, bringing both forelegs a little in advance of the first foothold. This leaves good places already made for the hind feet. Now, bracing himself up by his huge, strong forelegs, he draws his hind legs, first one and then the other, carefully over the edge, where they occupy the first places made by the forefeet. This is the way the huge animal proceeds all the way down, zigzag, kneeling every time with the two hind legs while he makes footholes with his forefeet. Thus the center of gravity is preserved, and the huge beast prevented from toppling over on his nose.

Fox a Queer Character.

Henry Stephen Fox, one of the earliest English ministers at Washington, was so eccentric as to make himself the laughing stock of the whole town. He generally did not arise until other people were almost ready to go to bed. When duty compelled him to rise earlier, he was like an owl in the daytime. "How strange," said he to Mme. Caldron, one morning at a state "function" —"how strange we look to each other by daylight." His debts compelled him to economy, and he rarely gave dinners. He once invited a large party to his house—Mr. Clay, Mr. Calhoun, Mr. Webster and all the giants—and when they were all assembled, he said: "Gentlemen, now be good enough to put on your hats and follow me." And then he led them to a neighboring eating house.—Ohio State Journal.

The Musical Blacksmith.

"I was walking along a hot, dusty street in Redwood City the other day," remarked a tourist, "when I stopped to rest in the shade of the village smithy. The smith was a giant in stature, and, with the sleeves of his red flannel shirt rolled up to his brawny shoulder and his big leather apron on, he was as picturesque a son of Vulcan as I ever saw.

"I watched him blowing his wheezy old bellows, and then as he commenced fashioning a horseshoe he broke out into song. It was 'The Armorer's Song,' from Robin Hood, that made the sooty rafters ring.

"'Let hammer on anvil ring, ring ring,' he sang, as he struck the white hot iron blow after blow that made the fiery sparks fly. Then followed the familiar 'Cling, clang, cling, clang.'

"I have heard Cowles sing that a dozen times, and I have heard ambitious amateurs sing it all over the world, but that song never stirred me as it did when I heard that blacksmith's mighty voice singing it over his anvil. I will never forget it as long as I live."

The singer was big Bill McDonald, the second bass in Grace Church choir —San Francisco Post.

Qu te Diff rent.

There are fine distinctions, though usually with a difference. In the days when Scotland was even stricter in its observances than it is now, a visitor to Edinburgh was whistling in the street on Sunday.

"Mon," said another, reprovingly, "ye maunna whustle."

"I am whistling to my dog," was the conciliatory answer.

"Oh," was the concession, "ye may whustle to the doagie, but ye maunna whustle."—Youth's Companion.

My Brave Soldiers.

Two grave, quiet-looking men stood on the steps of a big house in Washington some years ago. They were watching four bright children get into a cart and drive down the street, throwing back kisses and "good-bys" to "papa," and "papa's" friend, the general.

The younger man, and the father, was General Phil Sheridan, "Fighting Phil," as he was called in those days. Another general, an old friend, said: "Phil, how do you manage your little army of four?"

"Don't manage—they are mischievous soldiers; but what good comrades! All the good there is in me they bring out. Their little mother is a most wonderful woman, and worth a regiment of officers! John, I often think what pitfalls are in waiting for my small brave soldiers all through life. I wish I could always help them over."

"Phil, if you could choose for your little son, from all the temptations which beset him, the one most to be feared, what would it be?"

General Sheridan leaned his head against the doorway, and said soberly: "It would be the curse of strong drink! Boys are not saints. We are all self-willed, strong-willed—maybe full of courage, and thrift, and push, and kindness, and charity—but woe be to the man or boy who becomes a slave to liquor. Oh! I had rather see my little son die to-day than see him carried in to his mother drunk. One of my brave soldier-boys, on the field, said just before a battle, when he gave me a message to his mother, if he should be killed: "Tell her I have kept my promise to her. Not one 'drink' have I ever tasted." The boy was killed. I carried the message with my own lips to his mother. She said: "General, that is more glory for my boy than if he had taken a city."

General Sheridan and the other brave man lie in historic Arlington. A great white monument marks the place.

The "little brave soldier, Phil Junior," is growing tall every year. He, with his mother and three pretty sisters, keep their soldier's grave beautiful with sweet flowers, and still more beautiful is the character of the small soldier, who scorns "strong drink," and declares himself to be a "temperance boy."—Temperance Banner.

About a Huge Joker.

An elephant enjoys a joke as well as any boy or girl. A writer in Our Animal Friends tells about the antics played by a huge elephant kept in the Zoo at Paris. He lived in a great inclosure out in the open air, so that he had plenty of room to roam about. In the same inclosure was a very large hippopotamus, for whose comfort and amusement a great stone basin had been built and filled with water, and the hippopotamus in turn furnished amusement for the elephant. It was quite early one morning—before the hour for admitting the public to the garden—when I noticed the elephant walking around on the stone edge of the basin, curiously watching the hippopotamus.

I felt quite sure that the elephant was up to some prank, and I was not mistaken; for, just as soon as the ears of the hippopotamus came into view, the elephant quickly seized one of them with his trunk and gave it a sudden pull. The enraged hippopotamus lifted his ponderous head clear out of the water and snorted and blew; but every time he rose to take a breath the elephant would recommence his antics. Around and around the beast would go, keeping a sharp lookout for the little ears of the hippopotamus, which he would seize the moment they appeared. His evident delight in teasing his huge neighbor was very comical, and there could be no doubt that he thoroughly enjoyed it.

Again, one day, the keeper placed some food for the hippopotamus in a corner of the inclosure, and at once the hippopotamus began to leave the water to get to it; but the elephant slowly ambled over to the same corner, and arriving there first, he placed his four feet over the favorite food in such a way that the hippopotamus could not get at it, gently swayed his trunk back and forth, and acted altogether as though he were there quite accidentally, and if the garden was thrown open to the public and he went forward to receive the daily contributions of bread, cake and pie, which were always offered him by his hosts of admirers.

They Know.

Scottish dogs are frequently to be seen at the kirk. They know, without being told, the Kirk day, or Sunday and are always ready to accompany their masters to the service.

On entering the sacred building, the dogs at once take up their positions beneath the seats and quietly go off to sleep. They rest peacefully all through the service and the sermon that follows until the benediction has been pronounced.

The moment that has been concluded by the minister, the dogs, one and all, immediately rise, give themselves a shake and calmly make for the door.

In olden days the turnspit dogs (dogs put in a wheel to turn the spit for roasting the meat) used to attend church and heartily enjoy their rest on the seventh day.

On one occasion, however, they were greatly disturbed, as in the course of the Scripture reading for that Sunday the word "wheel" was the signal for them to turn to their hated labor, and on hearing it in church the dogs replied by a low growl.

Again the word came, and another growl was heard; but when it came for the third time, the dogs could stand it no longer, and, giving a continuous growl, rushed out of the church.

Charley's Philosophy.

Charley and Bessie were two bright little children, aged three and five respectively. Out in the old pepper tree in the garden a pair of linnets had built their nest and hatched five young ones. Every day the little ones went to see how the birdies were getting along. One day when they went to look at them the birdies flew away. They were all feathered out. Bessie looked astonished. "How did they ever grow so quick?" she asked. "'Cause them's birds," he replied. "Well, but how did that make any difference?" she innocently asked. "Why don't we be growed, too?" "Oh, my, girls are so stupid," Charley replied in disgust. "I guess if our mamma would sit on us all the time we'd get growed up, too."—San Francisco Call.

All Important.

Aristocracies in different places and ages have prided themselves on many different things. One of the queerest, perhaps, is the aristocracy according to cheeses, which prevails among the patricians of Zermatt. The aristocracy of families is valued by the number and age of the cheeses they possess. When a child is born, a cheese is manufactured, which is then called by the name of the child. It is partly eaten when its namesake gets married, each wedding guest tasting a portion. The cheese is then put away again, and finally cut into and finished at the funeral of the person whose name it bears. When a young man wooes a maiden, he begs to be allowed to dine with her family on a Sunday. His offer being accepted, the lovers wait anxiously to see whether the girl's father will cause the cheese to be set on the table. At the end of the long meal, if all goes well, the master of the house solemnly fetches the cheese bearing the would-be bride's name, sets it on the table, cuts it and gives a piece to the young couple. When they have eaten it, they are a betrothed pair.

Curing the Hens.

Editor Terry, of the Minden Herald, wants to know how to keep his neighbors' hens out of his garden. Well, Charley, take a lot of small, stiff cards about 1 by 2 inches, write on them "Please keep your darned old hens at home," tie a short string to each card with a grain of corn at the other end of the string and scatter these where the hens congregate. When the hungry biddy gobbles up the grain that drags the prize, she follows up the string, stowing it away until she comes to the card, then you will see her pull out for home, carrying in her mouth your polite request. Try it, brother, and let us know how it works.—Brown City (Mich.) Standard.

Blind Statistics.

It is estimated that there are 1,000,000 blind people in the world, or one to every 1,500 inhabitants, says an exchange. Latest reports show 28,000 blind persons in England, or 870 to each million inhabitants. Blind infants of less than five years, 100 for each million; between five and fifteen, 286; between twenty and twenty-five, 422; between forty-five and sixty, 1,625; above sixty-five years, 7,000 for each million. Russia and Egypt are the countries where the blind constitute the largest proportionate number of their population.

The event was for the regimental dedication of monuments. The survivors of the regiments engaged in the Chickamauga battle gathered around the monuments erected in their honor and dedicated them with appropriate exercises. Their exercises consisted principally of addresses, music and the unveiling of the monuments.

WHITECAPS' BLOODY WORK.

Two White Girls Are Given a Terrible Beating in Ohio.

From Oakwood, Ohio, comes the news of an outrage perpetrated Thursday night by whitecaps upon two girls, Edith and May Roberts, aged 17 and 19 years. Ten days ago the young ladies received a whitecap notice warning them to leave the town and county, but they paid no attention to it. Last evening they retired early, and during the night they were awakened by a band of eight or ten men entering their room and dragging them from their beds in their night robes to the road, where they were terribly whipped by a cat-o'-nine-tails. After bearing the two girls, the whitecaps gave them a coat of tar and feathers and took them back to the house, where they were found unconscious the following morning.

The Low Water Mark.

General Wade Hampton, who has just been succeeded by General Longstreet as commissioner of railroads, has submitted to the interior department his report for the past fiscal year. He says that the year marked the low water mark of railway construction. During the year thirty-four companies, with 5,441 miles of road, passed into the hands of the courts and fifty-eight others, previously placed in receiverships, were sold at foreclosure. A steadily improvement in railroad earnings during the first six months of the current year is noted, an improvement particularly apparent in the bond-aided Pacific railroads.

AN INFUSION OF NEW LIFE

Marks Trade Conditions on Account of Colder Weather.

INCREASE IN IRON AND STEEL PRODUCTION.

Railroad Earnings Show Small Gains. Slight Re-action in Cotton Noted. Movement of Grain Continues Heavy. Southern States in the Increase.

Bradstreets trade review says: One of the most significant features of the business situation is found in the continued heavy weekly totals of the bank clearings, that for the six days ending Nov. 11 amounting to $1,347,000,000, an increase of 10 per cent. over the preceding week and 13 per cent. compared with the second week of November, 1896, when business began to revive sharply in speculative lines.

Railroad gross earnings shows smaller gains as comparisons begin to made with more nearly normal conditions one year ago. Total October earnings of 117 companies operating 100,000 miles of road, aggregate $55,464,339, a gain of $5,000,000 over September and 9 per cent. over October a year ago. This gain compares with gains of 14 per cent. in September and 12.5 per cent. in August over corresponding periods in 1896. The Pacific Southwestern and Central Western roads made the best showing.

Other favorable features are the continued firmness and activity in wool, iron and steel. The heavy output of iron and moderate reduction of stocks last week suggests the improbability of the advance in prices of iron and steel next, which so many have hoped for.

The slight reaction in the price of cotton, in view of the extreme depression to which that staple had been subjected, attracts attention as the possible beginning of the end of the prolonged decline. Already there is an improvement in the price of and demand for cotton yarns.

The unfavorable influences in price movements this week are declines for cottons and print cloths, the latter touching the lowest price on the record. Wheat, lard and lead are also heavier, and wire nails have been shaded. There is a long list of staples for which prices are unchanged. The more important advances are confined to Indian corn, oats, hops and turpentine.

Colder weather in the central west and northwest has stimulated demand for winter goods, particularly clothing.

Exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States and from Montreal this week amount to 5,445,542 bushels compared with 5,590,000 bushels last week, 4,664,000 bushels in the week a year ago, 3,325,000 bushels two years ago, 2,909,000 bushels three years ago and as contrasted with 2,645,000 bushels in the like week of 1893.

Exports of Indian corn this week amount to 2,651,546 bushels against 2,199,000 bushels last week, 3,782,000 bushels in the week a year ago.

There is an increase in the number of failures, the total throughout the United States this week being 273, compared with 223 last week, 258 in the week one year ago, 279 two years ago, 280 three years ago and 270 in the second week of November, 1893.

The large proportion of this week's increase over last week's is in New England and Southern states.

THIRTY KILLED.

A Russian Wedding Party Struck by a Locomotive.

A terrible accident has occurred near Bielostok, Russian Poland, resulting in the death of thirty persons. A wedding party was returning from the church to the home of the bride. All were in one wagon, a huge vehicle drawn by eight horses. The road along which they rode crosses the railroad tracks on the level, and the driver, either through carelessness or ignorance of the train schedule, pushed his swiftly moving horses upon the crossing just as the express was coming in. The locomotive struck the vehicle squarely, killing many members of the party outright and maiming others so that they soon expired. Not a member of the party escaped.

ALL IN BLAST.

First Time in Three Years Such Has Been the Case.

For the first time in over three years every blast furnace in Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, is in operation. In addition to this, more furnaces are in operation here than ever before for the past summer; four new plants completed and placed in active work. There are thirty iron furnaces in this county now making from two to three blasts every twenty-four hours. The daily output of smelted iron is approximately 10,000 tons.

It is estimated that there are 1,300,000 Irish people in Australia.

Masked bandits in woman's attire held up a passenger train on the Missouri Pacific railroad Friday night, but secured no booty.

POST-EPIDEMIC CRUSADE

Will Be Inaugurated by the Marine Hospital Service.

Now that the yellow fever epidemic in this country has been brought practically to an end by the appearance of cold weather the marine hospital service is preparing to begin a post-epidemic crusade for the purpose of preventing a recurrence of the contagion next year. The officials of the bureau will cooperate with the health authorities of the various states affected in conducting a thorough disinfection of the districts in which the fever gained a foothold. The cleansing of all infected cities will be urged and each house in which there was a case of fever will be thoroughly fumigated. It is believed that by pursuing this course the country can be protected against another yellow fever epidemic in 1898.

Montgomery Clear.

No new cases of yellow fever and no deaths were reported at Montgomery Friday. Only five cases have been reported the past week, and almost all of the patients have practically recovered.

New Orleans Almost Free.

The number of new cases of yellow fever at New Orleans Friday was 7; deaths, 2. Total cases of yellow fever to date, 1,790; total deaths from yellow fever to date, 559.

At Mobile Friday three new cases and one death was reported.

All other towns infected are free from new cases, and the end of the epidemic is at hand.

NO BLUFF IN THIS.

Germany Orders a Warship to Port au Prince to Defend Her Honor.

The German warship Geflon is under orders to sail for Port au Prince, Hayti, this month, in order to insist upon redress for the arrest there of Herr Lueders, a German subject, and his unlawful imprisonment, for which Count Scherwein, the German minister at Port au Prince, has demanded an indemnity. Lueders is now believed to be in Germany, having been released from prison in order to avoid further complications, the natives of Port au Prince having threatened to mob the German legation and lynch Lueders. The fitting out of the warship is being hastened as much as possible. The officials of the German foreign office do not believe the matter will be adjusted for some time to come, because the Haytian government has assumed a stubborn attitude.

A dispatch from Berlin says: "The United States is credited here with offering its intervention in the difficulty between Germany and Hayti, but the German government is waiting for the arrival of Herr Lueders and the report of Count Schwerein, due by the next mail packet."

A PASSENGER TRAIN BURNED.

A High Wind Overturned a Car and the Train Rushed Into It.

A passenger train on the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis road was derailed and entirely consumed by fire Thursday morning near Lewisport, Ky. No lives were lost, and, so far as is known, no one was seriously injured.

The accident was attributed to the freak of the high wind, which overturned a box car standing on the Lewisport siding. The car fell directly across the main track and near a sharp curve in the road. It was not seen by the engineer of the passenger train until it was too late to stop the engine, and the train rushed into the obstruction, caught fire and before anything could be removed was entirely consumed.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

To be Protected—Gen. Blanco Issues an Order to Allow No Molestation.

Captain-General Blanco has issued a circular announcing that he has decided to furnish all the necessary protection to bring about a general resumption of planting, harvesting and reconstruction throughout Cuba, especially in the way of the sugar crop. He sets forth that all the officials are to lend unstinted assistance to the owners of plantations and farmers in their efforts to gather their crops and tend their cattle. They are instructed to encourage to the utmost those who are apprehensive of grinding sugar cane and to offer them assurance and the necessary military forces.

Receiver Asked For.

A bill for receiver and injunction has been filed in the United States federal court against the Southern Home Building and Loan association, of Atlanta, Ga. The bill was brought by stockholders of the association who reside in Alabama, and who claim that the association cannot pay its withdrawal stock and that it is being conducted at a great loss to the stockholders. The charge is also made of insolvency, and the court was asked to name a receiver to take charge of the association's business and hold the assets subject to the future orders of the court.

Exports and Imports.

The export of specie from the port of New York for the week amounted to $4,793 in gold and $819,447 in silver. The imports were: Gold, $62,114; silver, $94,603; dry goods, $1,384,563; general merchandise, $9,748,892.

SPANISH ARMY IN CUBA.

Gen. Blanco's Investigation Reveals a Deplorable State of Affairs.

SOLDIERS IN A HALF-STARVED CONDITION.

Of the Vast Army of Men Only a Small Per Centage Are Fit For Active Service—Renewed Work of Incendiarism Begun.

A dispatch from Havana says: Much incredulity is expressed publicly as to the ability of the government to persuade or compel grinders to resume planting and to afford protection. The action of the insurgents does not seem to have been taken into consideration and without their consent for an exchange of tribute, no amount of government protection can avail to prevent the burning of cane.

Renewed work of incendiarism is said to have begun. Smoke is seen rising to the southwest of Havana, a distance apparently about twenty miles, and it is reported that the rebels are burning plantations.

Application of the decree of amnesty still hangs fire.

General Blanco's investigation into the condition of Spain's army in Cuba has already revealed a deplorable condition of affairs. Not only are frauds in connection with the payment of the troops being brought to light, but proof is being obtained that of the 200,000 men sent to General Weyler, only a small percentage are now fit for active service,

The towns are garrisoned principally by convalescent soldiers, too weak in many instances to offer more than a feeble resistance to the attacks of the rebels.

The military commander in Guines reports the patients in the military hospital there entirely without medicines and other necessities, and that the food supply is entirely inadequate. The small hospital fund, he states, has long since been expended, and large amounts are owing to shopkeepers. The proprietors of the stores have notified the hospital authorities that they will not furnish any more goods on credit.

The hills surrounding the members' homes are vine-clad, and in their gardens, which are carefully cultivated, they have planted olive trees and other fruits. The promoters of the colony are very much pleased with the outlook.

Three Indians Hanged by a Mob.

At Bismarck, N. D., Alexander Condot, Indian half breed, Paul Holytrack and Philip Ireland, full blooded Indians, the first of whom was sentenced to death for the murder of six members of the Syicer family last February and had just been granted a new trial by the supreme court, and the latter two self-confessed accessories in the murder, were taken from the county jail in Emons county Saturday night and lynched. The lynching had been apparently cooly planned and was carried out without a break in the programme.

In Each Others Arms.

Rome Bronson and Florence Williams, his betrothed, were overtaken by a storm on Blackpoint Mountain, near Little Rock, Ark., and both perished. After an all-night search they were found dead locked in each others arms under a tree where they had taken refuge from the storm. They had been struck by lightning. The bodies were interred in the same grave on the mountain side on their wedding day.

Will be Included in Amnesty Decree.

Dispatches from Madrid confirm the previous reports to the effect that the prisoners captured on board the American schooner Competitor, in April, 1896, will be included in the general amnesty decree soon to be issued. The second trial by court martial of the Competitors' crew was to have begun on Monday last, but was postponed on account of the sickness of the president of the court.

HIS FAMILY PRIDE.

Postmaster in Texas Holds Over for Reasons.

Postmaster E. T. Page, of Redwater, Texas, will be retained by this administration, and all because of the birth of quadruplets and twins in his family. Eleven years ago an effort was made to replace the postmaster with a candidate of the Republican party. Page appealed for retention, citing that his wife had just presented him with bouncing quadruplets, and that twice before twins had been born to them. This settled the case. The case has now come up again, and a number of candidates have sought the place. But Page has again protested that the successful raising of three of the quadruplets and two sets of twins entitle him to some consideration, and sent photographs of the three surviving quadruplets, now almost young ladies. Assistant Postmaster General Bristow conferred with Postmaster General Gary, and the two decided that there should be no change in the office.

Cremer, formerly member of parliament for the Haggerston division of Shoreditch, secretary of the International Workingmen's association and secretary of the International Arbitration league, was a passenger on the American liner St. Paul, which arrived at New York from Southampton Saturday. Nicaragua Ripe for Revolution.

There are many indications that there will be another revolution soon in Nicaragua, the third in about three years. The people are restless, and do not want President Zelya to sell the national railroad and the steamboats. It is claimed that some of the most prominent Nicaraguan officials have been placing large amounts to their credit in Europe.

THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

THE yellow fever is very nearly done with. The two or three frosty mornings we have had lately have put a better feeling into everyone. Refugees have flocked back to Montgomery and business is once more going on as usual.

As the time is now at hand when farmers are arranging their plans for another crop, it has occurred to us that a great deal of hard-earned money might be saved by the use of home made fertilizer instead of high-priced guanos. This is a matter every farmer can best determine for himself, but it is well worth looking into.

CHAIRMAN G. P. Deans says he will soon call the State Executive Committee together to arrange preliminaries for the forthcoming campaign. The prospects for a hot campaign are good, and it is well to take time by the forelock. The Populist party has sometimes made the mistake of waiting for the other parties to act, but we are inclined to think that line of policy is about played out. We know what we want, and cannot do better than to formulate our own plans and then go ahead and win.

AT the recent session of the Knights of Labor, General Master Workman J. R. Sovereign stepped down and out, and Henry A. Hicks of New York was elected in his place. Mr. Sovereign has made a splendid record and the Knights will be fortunate indeed if they have found his equal. The story is making the rounds of the daily papers that it is the intention of Mr. Sovereign to become a candidate for the Presidency in 1900. At this moment we do not know if there is any truth in the report, and all we can say is we hope it may prove to be true. We would be delighted to see him in the Presidential chair.

JUST a word to our readers who are coming to court. During the last year Clanton has made a considerable forward movemant and our merchants now have such well assorted stocks at city prices that you can save the trouble and expense of going either to Montgomery or Birmingham. Next week when your come to court will be a good opportunity for you to begin to lay in your Christmas supplies. You will confer a favor on THE BANNER by reading over the advertisements of our merchants, and when you call upon them be kind enough to tell them that you saw their adv. in THE BANNER. They will appreciate it and so will THE BANNER.

WE respectfully suggest that the reform editors of the State hold a Press meeting in Montgomery the first Wednesday in January to transact some business along reform lines. Lets all go up there and look at each other. We are to be fellow soldiers in the trying conflict of another year, and we ought to be better acquainted before we go into the battle. As for us we want to know the company. We want to know the real situation of their counties. We want their ideas as to the conduct of the campaign. We want to get in concert of action. The campaign of 1898 is now open. We say let's meet and swap ideas.—Ozark Free Press.

The Compress Must Go.

samples, etc., collected and baled, amounting to 180,000 bales of cotton annually, worth about $6,000,000. The grower may think he gets paid for this, but he is mistaken. It is all taken into account by the buyer. By the round bale process there is no waste, and only one sample is taken, and that while the bale is being rolled.

Fourth—The round bale is fire and water proof. Compressed cotton needs none. On July 13, 1897, a warehouse burned, in which were stored forty round bales. The cotton was burned about an inch deep, and all the rest saved. It was bought by the Rock River Cotton Company, of Janesville, Wis., who wrote on September 15, 1897, "The water had not penetrated any. They were damaged much less than we had anticipated they would be." I, myself, has poured coal oil and piled kindling wood over a round bale and fired it. The fire scorched the outside of the bale and died of itself—loss, about five pounds of couton.

Fifth—The weight of the covering on the compress bale is about twenty-five pounds; on the round bale three pounds. The freight on the difference amounts up astonishingly.

Sixth—The cost of the bagging and ties in Texas in 1896 was 85 cents per bale; the cost of the round bale covering is only about 20 cents, and home-grown cotton cloth can be used instead of imported bagging and ties.

Seventh—The bale is easily handled—needs no hooks to pull it to peices and waste it, and can be clearly marked.

Something to Know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired, out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centres in the stomach, gently stimulates the Liver and Kidneys and aids these organs in throwing off impurites in the blood. UNCLE JOE FOR GOVERNOR.

The People's Journal published at Jacksonville, Calhoun county, nominates Uncle Joe Harris of Chambers for Governor as the People's party's candidate. This is a good nomination—we believe the very best that perhaps could be made. Everybody is friendly to Uncle Joe, and everybody loves him. Even the democrats recognize in him a true man in every sense of the word; everybody knows him and has confidence in his honesty, capacity and incorruptible integrity. His nomination would have the effect to inspire renewed confidence in the propose of the party, In the chaotic condition of the democratic party in this state just at this time, he would command the support of thousands of democrats on account of his high character, against the shallow and blatant demagogue Joe Johnston. At one time we were inclined to Congressman Howard, but we have it pretty straight that he does not seek the nominatian. We cannot but believe that he is wise in this. We would have the benefit of his transcendant oratorical ability in the canvass, and at the same time keep him at his post in congress where he can do most good. Let it be Uncle Joe.—Living Truth

Negress Burned to Death

Alice Dunnigan, one of the best and hardest workers of Clanton's colored population, who has been partially deranged for some months past, by some means set herself on fire last Friday while working at an open fire in the yard. Mr. Charley McDaniel, who heard her screaming, finally succeeded in saving her from perishing, but her injuries were such she died on Sunday.

Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 17, 1897.

It may not be just the polite or considerate thing to do, when the G. O. P. is not recovered from the shock of the recent election defeats, but we feel constrained to remark on the growing treasury deficiency. It is climbing up at the rate of $10,000,000 a month. The excess of expenditures over receipts amounted up so the first week in November, to, $2,811,382, 18, At the pesent rate the dificiency for the fiscal year will exceed $190,000,000. Such figures should convince even the most stupid that the tariff man-of-straw has outlived his usefulness to divert the people from real issues

The Knights of Labor met in Louisville, Kentucky, November 9, and held a meeting to transact routine business and to formulate plans for the future. Grand Master Workman Sovreign has made excellent plans for educative work among the working men, and much good to the reform cause may be expected from this order

Kansas officials are following up the prosecution of employers who have been using script to pay workmen. The enforcement of the law as it stands on the Kansas statute books would do away with the "company store." Violations of the coal screening law are also to be investigated and rebuked.

Thomas M. Patterson, of the Rocky Mountain News, has been interviewed by St. Louis papers and he predicts that the middle-of-the-road element will, by their extreme views and violent methods, drive all conservative men out of the Populist party and they will ally themselves with the silver democrats before the fight of 1900 comes on. The interview reads a good deal like Mr. Patterson had never transferred his allegiance from the democratic party. He also declares that Mr. Bryan is the only possible candidate for the anti-gold parties.

J. A. Edgerton, State Secretary of the People's Party in Nebraska, has recently published several poems that show him as graceful a writer as he is a sagacious politician.

Talk of war with Spain still fills the daily papers and is supposed to engage the attention of the president and his cabinet, but dispassionate men do not anticipate any war.

Much capital is being made by the republican press, of the fact that Jerry Simpson's county went republican. It is well to mention in this connection that no other county in Kansas has received anything like the same amount of money for corruption purposes as has this county. Mr. Simpson's bravery both in the House and on the stump has made him a marked man, and his defeat in the future would be a sweet morsel under the tongues of Hanna or Reed.

An extraordinary condition of affairs exists in Mitchell county, Kansas. The democrats, who are in the minority, held their convention after both the populists and republicans had held their conventions, and nominated full tickets, but instead of putting on their own men they made up their ticket of three men off the republican and three off the populist tickets. Those so selected were elected while those that they did not select off of the two tickets were defeated, and they are claiming to have carried everything. Such a condition must be rather bewildering to those who regard fusion between any but those parties which have similar principles, as an unholy alliance.

Judge O. D. Jones, of Missouri, who recently protested against the dominance of eastern and foreign influences in the Missouri State University, has been justified in much that he said on this point by the late appointment on the faculty. A German doctor has been imported at a fast salary to fill the chair of Pathology.

Another evidence of the return of prosperity is given in the sweeping reductions made in wages of the employes in the cotton factories at Fall River, Massachusetts. The manufacturers say that they must choose between a shut-down and a reduction of all wages.

Several erstwhile middle-of-the-road papers have within the short time that has elapsed since the election, been converted into republican papers outright. The change had to be announced officially in order that any difference in the tone and policy of the paper might be noticed. Notably among these is the "Comet" of Jackson, Missouri.

Eight hundred Chinese are to be put in the coal mining district of Northern Illinois in the place of the miners who struck. It is well to bear in mind that the owners of these coal mines have never been able to deny the accusation that their men were instructed to vote the republican ticket last fall, and obeyed.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. Persistent Coughs

A cough which seems to hang on in spite of all the remedies which you have applied certainly needs energetic and sensible treatment. For twenty-five years that standard preparation of cod-liver oil, has proved its effectiveness in curing the trying affections of the throat and lungs, and this is the reason why: the cod-liver oil, partially digested, strengthens and vitalizes the whole system; the hypophosphites act as a tonic to the mind and nerves, and the glycerine soothes and heals the irritation. Can you think of any combination so effective as this?

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion. See that the man and fish are on the wrapper.

Chronic Dyspepsia Cured.

AFTER suffering for nearly thirty years from dyspepsia, Mrs. H. E. Dugdale, wife of a prominent business man of Warsaw, N. Y., writes: "For 28 years, I was a constant sufferer from dyspepsia and a weak stomach. The lightest food produced distress, causing severe pain and the formation of gas. No matter how careful of my diet I suffered agonizing pain after eating. I was treated by many physicians and tried numerous remedies without permanent help. Two years ago I began taking Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and Nervine. Within a week I commenced improving, and persisting in the treatment I was soon able to eat what I liked, with no evil effects I keep them at hand and a single dose dispels any old symptoms."

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints for its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, the economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five continents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no review published, in this country or in Europe, which combines so successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the alertness, timeliness, and energy of journalism with the sound judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged in the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; is "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

$1800.00 GIVEN AWAY TO INVENTORS.

$300.00 every month given away to any one who applies for it, on the most meritorious patent during the month preceding.

We seek to take best patents for our clients, but the object of this offer is to encourage inventors to keep track of their bright ideas. At the same time we wish to impress upon the public the fact that such as the "car-window" which can be easily slid up and down without breaking the passenger's back, "safety pin," "collar-button," "lock-lock," "book-clasp," and a thousand other little things that most any one can find a way of improving, and that simple patent, often the ones that bring largest returns to the author. So go to think of something to invent.

IT'S THE SIMPLE, TRIVIAL INVENTIONS THAT YIELD FORTUNES,

IT IS NOT SO HARD AS IT SEEMS.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice in the "National Recorder," published at Washington, D. C., which is the best newspaper published in America in the interests of inventors. We furnish a year's subscription to this journal, free of cost, to all our clients. We also advertise, free of cost, the invention each month which wins our $300 prize, and hundreds of thousands of copies of the "National Recorder," containing the sketch of the winner, and a description of his invention, will be scattered throughout the United States among capitalists and manufacturers, thus bringing further notice to the merits of the invention.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

NOTES OF INTEREST TO THE ANTI-LIQUOR LEADERS.

Liquor in Small Quantities — Water Versus Alcohol—Health Versus Liquor — Timely Topics for Temperance Advocates.

Through Nature Up to God.

Up through the hush
of dim cathedral arches,
In countless temples, rings His praise to-day;
For thee, the drooping boughs of shivering larches
Between thee and the skies, make places to pray.

Far off, the echo of unnumbered voices—
The whole world's prayers—makes murmur like the sea;
Think ye the God, whom mighty praise rejoices,
Hath not a listening ear for thee, for thee?

Bends He to hear the tide of music, swelling
From countless multitude and eager throng,
And answers not the silent love, up swelling
From hearts whose sobs are changing to a song?

Full sweet and still may be the solemn shadow
Of His own house, where faint souls find Him near—
But look! His smile is on this sunlit meadow,
And even green leaf whispers, God is here!

O sore, sad heart—and eyes so dim with weeping—
He hears thy call; and sky, and cloud, and sod,
And stream, and leaf, all safe in His dear keeping,
Answer—Come, hide thyself with us in God.

Let the great world go by. In this safe hiding
It shall not jar thee with its strife and noise,
Hide thee in Him—then He in thee abiding,
Shall make thy soul with nature to rejoice. —Mary Lowe Dickinson.

Small Quantities.

Some theorists, indeed, perversely argue that though alcohol, in large doses, is doubtless poisonous, yet, because it is not apparently hurtful when taken in small quantity, or "moderation," that therefore it is no poison. The same men may, in the same way, assoilzie every article of the animal and vegetable kingdoms that is brought as panel to their bar. Prussic acid in a full dose will kill you like a shot; but dose of two or three drops of diluted acid, taken three or four times a day, not only do no harm, in certain circumstances, but even effect a great deal of positive good. Therefore prussic acid is no true poison! And so of arsenic. Swallow an ounce, and you die in torture. But in Styria, you will be told that it "actually gives both to horses and men, increased vigor, increased beauty, and an enviable rejuvenescence, when taken regularly in minute doses." Ego, "horrible arsenic" is no true poison! Is not this horrible quibbling? Arguing thus, you virtually contend for the extinction of poisons as a class. According to your way of it, there can be no true poison. And verily there is none, if alcohol is not such.

Adopting the tactics of the alcoholists, we could make out almost as good a case for tartar emetic as for alcohol. A patient at one time had much too good an appetite, to his thinking; he was getting stout and pursy; and by no ordinary means could he keep the demands of his clamorous stomach within reasonable bounds. At last a happy idea struck him. He would have recourse to physic, so as to produce slight sickness—a morbid condition; and accordingly a slight dose of tartar emetic was taken a short time before every meal. This succeeded admirably; the appetite lessened; the "too solid flesh" began to melt, and the patient was quite satisfied. Now, the tartar emetic in one sense took the place of food, therefore was a substitute for food, therefore was equivalent to food, and therefore was food!

Water Vs. Alcohol.

The great advantage of the water-drinker, as compared with the alcoholist, under work is this. He has the same strength, with greater self-control. He is ready to stop, when necessity requires that he should, and runs less risk, consequently, of injury by excessive strain. He does not expend a temporary energy at the expense of future exhaustion. He does not avail himself of a doubtful and deceitful help, at the cost of deterioration of the blood, and consequently danger to health and life. He does not work at least as copiously and as well as the other, even for a time; and in long continuance of labor, he has the whip-hand of him quite. He obtains his desired end in all respects satisfactorily. There is no lassitude, headache, feverishness, foul tongue, or aching limbs next day—even after the hardest labor. All is fresh and supple and free. Reaction is real; blemished by no fever; and not falling suddenly and treacherously away. "I have backed as many as sixty tons in a day with perfect ease," says a London coal-whipper, "since I took the pledge. But before I could scarcely have been able to crawl home; certain to have lost the next day's work."—Extracts from "Alcohol: Its Place and Power," by James Miller, F. R. S. E., F. R. S. C. E.

Health Vs. Liquor.

The most perfect health and strength depend, it would seem, on frequent and complete disintegration of tissue, with a corresponding, constant and complete replacement of the effete parts by the formation of new material; and this salutary combination is best secured by abundant exercise, plentiful supply of nutritious food, good digestion, and copious drinking of water. The training of prizefighters, and other athletes, illustrates this; their "condition" being the result of much strong exercise in the open air, free use of animal food, and the eschewing of all strong drinks in favor of the pure element.

Temperance.

At the special license election in Waupaca, Wis., recently, the $500 license fee carried the day by fifty-eight majority over the $200 fee. The fight was spirited.

An order was issued a short time ago by the United States commissioner of pensions "requiring employes of the pension bureau to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors, not only during office hours, but at all other times, under penalty of dismissal from the service.

In his annual report Secretary Fitzgerald of the Illinois Liquor Dealers' Protective Association stated that the late campaign was disastrous to saloonkeepers. Out of 6,200 saloonkeepers in Chicago, 1,500 have gone out of business. And the Illinois association had lost 500 members. He also said more than 2,000 restaurants, department stores and disorderly houses in Chicago were selling liquor without a state license.

Good Evidence.

While a number of young men in the waiting room of an English railway were discussing the merits of total abstinence, a policeman came in with a handcuffed prisoner, and listened to the dispute, but gave no opinion.

A minister of the gospel, who was also present, stepped up to the policeman and said:

"Pray, sir, what have you to say about temperance?"

"Well," replied the guardian of the law, "all I have to say is that I never took a teetotaler to prison in my life."

Large Doses.

Alcohol kills in large doses, and half kills in smaller ones. It produces insanity, delirium, fits. It poisons the blood, and wastes the man. The brain suffers most injury, both in structure and function; next comes the liver, in the order and amount of suffering, and there is no vital organ of the body in which there is not induced, sooner or later, more or less, disease and disorder. I might go on. The list of evils is not exhausted, wherewith alcohol is found in most damnatory conjunction. But I feel confident that the case is already more than proved.

Uplifting Power of Prayer.

True prayers are prophecies. Their aspirations and supplications may not express the actual spiritual level of the one praying, but the ideal of feeling and motive toward which that one is looking and striving. Hence the unreasonableness of the disparaging remark sometimes heard, "If so-and-so were only as good as his prayers!" That would mean an end of all progress in the Christian life. Prayer is one of the means by which we work our way to higher ground. Sometimes, when the winds fail, a boat's crew rows out a cable's length with an anchor, and, when it is sunk, by means of it the windlass of the ship works up to her moorings. So the faith-believing prayer lays hold of perfections beyond our actual attainment, and we are drawn toward these ideal excellences as we pray for them. The prayer that expresses better things than the life, prophesies what the life shall be.—Sunday School Times.

Trees Producing Different Kinds of Fruit

A peach tree at Napa, Cal., belonging to the Rev. Richard Wylie produces five different kinds of fruit, namely, almonds, plums and three different kinds of peaches. This result was attained by Mr. Wylie grafting on his peach tree different varieties of fruit. A cherry tree belonging to a farmer in Herefordshire, in England, yields four different kinds of fruit, owing to his having grafted on a cherry, a pear, an apple, and a plum. A Naples orange grower grafted a lemon on one of his trees, and now gathers from the same tree both oranges and lemons. The Khatta orange tree, which grows in upper India, produces two different kinds of orange—first the ordinary smooth-skinned oranges, ripe at the end of the dry season, and then an after crop of warted oranges, ripe soon after the beginning of the rains.

He Does Not Wait.

Just as a mother would not love a child the better for its being turned into a model of perfection by one stroke of magic, but does love it the more deeply every time it tries to be good, so I do hope and believe our great Father does not wait for us to be good and wise to love us, but loves us and loves to help us in the very thick of our struggle with sin and folly.—Juliana Horatia Ewing.

More of a Hero.

A man who will sacrifice his wit to save the feelings of another is more of a hero than the man who risks his life to save a friend from fire or drowning before a crowd of spectators.—Walter Blackburne Harte.

A Feminine Paradox.

"There's another thing about woman that is paradoxical," growled Cynicky.

"What's that?"

"The less she puts on the longer it takes her to dress."

One Form.

"Davie, what's a friend?"

"Why, a friend's some one yuh tell things about yourself to so's they can tell about yuh to some one else."

THE UNION PACIFIC.

SYNDICATE DEALS HERE AND IN HONDURAS.

Corporation Ownership of Central America Is Duplicated Practically in the United States—Wiping Out of Government.

Honduras has fallen a speedy victim to the bond system which is more deliberately but no less surely getting its grip on nearly every municipality in the United States, as well as on the nation. Late in the sixties that state issued $25,000,000 of bonds, to borrow itself out of a debt, but speculators grabbed them in such a manner that only $1,000,000 was realized, leaving the state hopelessly in debt, and having first jumped from the frying-pan into a slow fire, she now jumps into a quick one by turning over all the custom-houses and banks to a syndicate of New York millionaires, who will bleed Honduras at every pore under pretense of discharging its debts, and throw it away like a sucked orange when nothing more can be got out of it, says the San Francisco Star. This is all of a piece with the past acquisition of twenty-odd great railroads and any number of small ones by a similar (or perhaps partly identical) combination, some or all of the members of which are in the deal to snatch the Union Pacific at a pretended "competitive" auction.

The grabbing of the Honduras custom-houses is based upon the same principle as corporation railroad combinations—that of individuals and companies usurping the legitimate functions of government. Carried to its logical conclusion it would involve contracting out the entire functions of government to syndicates. The Honduras grab, though more flagrant in appearance, is no more repugnant to ever principle of a popular government than is our present railroad and telegraph system.

Trust Abuses.

Byron W. Holt, of New York, in a recent speech before the Boston Reform Club, presented a startling array of figures showing the enormous profits of the sugar trust under the operation of the legislation secured at Washington in its favor. He said that the retail price of granulated sugar, which constitutes about nine-tenths of all the sugar consumed in this country, is about 5½ cents a pound, or 18 pounds for $1. When a family invests $1 in sugar it pays out about 55 cents for sugar and 45 cents for tariff. At present out of this 45 cents the government is getting about 20 cents, the refiners' monopoly 20 cents, and the sugar growers and wholesale grocers the remaining five cents. Next year, when the refined is made from the raw sugar on which the present duties have been paid, the government will get about 25 cents and the refiners about 15 cents. Of the $18 which the average family will spend for sugar this year $10 will go for sugar, $4.50 to the government, $3 to the sugar trust and 50 cents to sugar growers and wholesale grocers. As our sugar account amounts to about $200,000,000 a year, the sugar trust will this year pocket about $30,000,000 of our sugar tax.

It will be seen that the sugar trust is getting by far too large a proportion of the sugar duty. Consumers, knowing the revenue necessities of the government, would pay the duty with equanimity if they knew that a proper proportion of it was going into the national treasury. It was reported at the time the tariff bill was pending that the trust was able to get about what it wanted at the hands of congress, and this appears to have proven true. It accounts in a great measure for the rise of more than $50 per share in the sugar trust's common stock.

Degenerate Republicanism.

The Republican party, as it exists today, is the same party in purpose, in the bulk of its membership, as was the party that stood out in resistance to the spread of slavery, that elected Abraham Lincoln to be president, that took the lead in preserving the union of the states from destruction. The charge has been only in its organization. Its organization has brought the money power to bear upon elections; it has created boss-ships in the greater states of the union; it has subjected the party in those states to the rule of one man, who has governed it in the spirit of a despot, and has made it the instrument for the corruption of public morality.

Future of American Export Trade.

Manchester, N. H., Union: Two causes at least are likely to operate against a continued increase in our manufactured exports for the present, especially in those classes of goods which go to individual consumers. These causes are the failure of crops in other countries and the spirit of retaliation, that comes from the feeling that foreign products have been unreasonably discriminated against in the Dingley tariff act.

The Dangerous Classes.

The majority of our students, even at maturity, are distressingly lacking in moral enthusiasm. They unduly prize money, fame and success. They are at peace with the world. Their sense of justice is lax. Great principles and great causes fail to appeal to them strongly. To sum up: they know too little; they think too little, and they care too little about highest things—President Andrews, in Cosmopolitan.

POINTS FROM THE PRESS.

Plutocrat is defined as "one who exercises political power by virtue of his wealth." It fits like a glove and we see no reason for ruling it out of the vocabulary.—Civic Review.

The total output of the gold and silver mines of the United States last year was about $125,000,000, about what the wheat and corn crops of Kansas for 1897 are worth.—Topeka Advocate.

Those owning orchards allege that apples are too cheap to pick. The allegation is probably true. However, out this way they are too dear to eat. The railroads want 1,000 per cent more than the farmer gets for hauling them a few hours. Result: Apples rot on the ground. Let's have government ownership of railways.—Stillwater (Minn.) Populist.

It looks as if President McKinley might attack the stability of our currency by placing a few more Republicans in the offices now held by Gold Democrats. — Silver-Knight Watchman.

Wouldn't it be nice to elect your man every time you vote? The preferential ballot does that very thing, and yet the professional politician is against it.—Pittsburg Kansan.

These are some of the powerful figures given by the Single Tax advocates. There is not the most remote doubt of the fact that the single tax would benefit ninety-nine in a hundred of the farmers of the country.—Colusa Sun.

In the last five years George Gould has lost $25,644,637, or at the rate of $5,000,000 a year. In the last three months he has made it all back except $9,728,525, which is incontrovertible proof that the Dingley law is the workingman's best friend.—Chicago News.

Call it by any name you like, it will smell just as sweet, when "confiscation" or "repudiation" sets in in 1900. That's what Johnny Bull called it 121 years ago, when the American colonies rebelled against the British tax-gatherer. That is the ultimatum now, and it is brewing fast.—Coming Events.

The most dangerous anarchist is one worth a million dollars, mouthing patriotism and piety at every step, and continually trampling upon and setting at defiance the laws of God and man.—Hanford Radical.

The Chicago & Alton railroad pulls six mail trains daily between Chicago and St. Louis, for which it receives $360. This means $60 for each train trip. The distance is about three hundred miles. To operate a train requires an engineer, fireman, conductor, three brakemen—six men who receive, say, $4 per day each. This makes $24, leaving a balance of $36 for coal and each train's proportionate share of the office and track expense. You can plainly see that the mail charges pay all the expenses of operating a passenger train, even if the passengers were carried free and no charge were made for hauling the express car! And yet some are so thoughtless that they believe that the railroads do not pay because their stock is purposely manipulated so that it is worthless except to gamble in.—Appeal to Reason.

The utter unreliability of telegraphic news reports has come to be a serious question. No man can now tell with any degree of reasonable certainty whether a newspaper report is true or false. Generally it seems to be false and contradictions occupy nearly as much space as original reports. The Associated Press, which has most of the papers by the throat on ninety-nine year contracts, seems to have utilized its cinch to revel in corruption and unreliability. After a while national enlightenment will bring a postal telegraph, and then it will be impracticable to form combinations between telegraph and news monopolies.—Sacramento News.

That was a powerful comparison which George Fred Williams of Boston drew when he said that the British officers and men who shot down citizens in front of the old Boston State House on March 5, 1770, were surrendered to the civil courts for trial, while Sheriff Martin and his murdering gang of deputies were protected from arrest by Pennsylvania militia in September, 1897. More than what was gained in the war of the revolution has been thrown away in government by injunction and military rule today.—San Francisco Star.

Our Cause Sure to Triumph.

Fight on, thou brave, true hearts, and falter not, through dark fortune and through bright. The cause thou fightest for, so far as it is true, no farther, yet precisely so far, is very sure of victory. The falsehood alone of it will be conquered, will be abolished, as it ought to be, but the truth of it is part of nature's own laws, cooperates with the world's eternal tendencies, and cannot be conquered.—Carlyle.

So It Was.

It was a good thing for Patrick Henry that he lived during the last century, for if he was alive to-day and made a speech in Virginia like the one that made him famous, some little corporation judge would close his mouth with an injunction and probably send him to jail to boot.—Tacoma Sun.

ALABAMA NEWS ITEMS.

Happenings of a Week Throughout Our Commonwealth.

More Cases Settled.

Col. J. M. Falkner, of Montgomery, general attorney for the Louisville & Nashville railroad, was in Birmingham Monday engaged in settling many of the damage suits filed on account of the Cahaba river bridge disaster. Six more of the complaints were settled out of the court, and this leaves but two or three pending.

Well Supplied With Assessors.

J. M. Nolen, the appointee of Governor Johnston as tax commissioner of Coosa county, and against whom Judge Carmichael decided in the quo warranto proceedings at the last term of court, has taken an appeal to the supreme court. In the meantime both Mr. Nolen and Mr. Moore, the old assessor, are assessing the taxes of the county.

Steel Bridge Proposed.

Frank Conger, president and general manager of the Grotton Bridge company, New York, has a proposition to submit for the erection of a steel bridge across the Tennessee river at Decatur. Mr. Conger proposes at his own expense to make the survey for the bridge and approaches on both sides of the river, at a cost of about $1,000, provided he meets with the proper encouragement from the citizens of Decatur.

Five Stills Raided.

Franklin county has furnished the revenue officers with three stills in the last few days. One sixty-gallon copper still and 1,300 gallons of beer, One forty-gallon still and 2,100 gallons of beer and one fifty-gallon still and 4,500 gallons of beer destroyed, is the record. Lauderdale county furnished the officers with two stills of forty and fifty gallon capacity and about 1,500 gallons of beer.

To Increase the Price of Cotton.

A large number of cotton farmers at Maysville, Ala., have inaugurated a movement which they say will raise the price of cotton to 10 cents. Their plan is that every precinct organize an association with a president, secretary and treasurer, that the precinct organization be subordinate to a state association and the state association to the American Cotton Growers' Protective Association. A meeting will be held at Huntsville at an early date to give the movement a good start.

Practically at an End.

The local board of health at Montgomery Sunday issued the following:

"The board of health is of the opinion that the existence of yellow fever in this city is practically at an end. Citizens residing east of Court and Commerce streets can return to the city with a slight risk. However, we would not advise the return of those living west of these streets until after a killing frost."

No cases and no deaths were reported Sunday.

Public School Teachers to be Paid.

The public school teachers will be paid this week. The governor has borrowed $100,000 for this purpose. He obtained the loan in New York without the expense of any trip there at the rate of 4 cents per annum. The money was borrowed for sixty days. The state had to pay last year interest at the rate of 6 per cent. The treasurer has also been directed to pay one-half of the quarterly appropriation to all the normal and agricultural schools this week. The remainder will be paid next month.

New Lighting Company Formed.

A company has been organized in Birmingham under general laws governing business corporations in Alabama and has had assigned to it all the exclusive patent rights and royalties to make and use the Kitson hydro-carbon light and heating system for the city of Birmingham, and within the limits of the territory included in Jefferson county. The new light is made from coal oil gas burned in conjunction with air. It makes a bright, white light. The company was organized by local men, who have purchased all the patent rights. The capital of the concern is $50,000.

Whisky Receipts Growing.

Collector of Internal Revenue Julian H. Bingham reports a marked increase in the sales of Alabama-made whisky for the month of October.

During the past month over $10,000 was paid out for Alabama-made whisky. This was more than double the sales for the same month in 1896. It is estimated that the sales for November will exceed $15,000, double those for November, 1896. Mr. Bingham accounts for this remarkable increase by the fact that more whisky is being made in Alabama than formerly. Heretofore a great deal of whisky was shipped into Alabama which was stamped at the office from which it was sent.

Meetings Arranged.

Definite arrangements have been made for taking up the subject of the reciprocity treaty between the United States and Canada and to this end meetings have been fixed between Hon. John W. Kasson, who is specially designated by President McKinley to conduct the reciprocity negotiations, and Sir Louis Davies minister of marine. This is the result of a long and friendly conference held between Secretary Sherman and Sir Wilfred.

13. "Wherefore take unto you armor of God, that ye may be withstand in the evil day, and done all, to stand." One of the greatest things is to understand we are saved freely by His grace (Rom. iii., 24), so we stand continually the same grace (Rom. v., 1, 2) served favor of God. Unless we ly that all our salvation from first wholly undeserved on our part, ours only in and through Jesus Christ His finished work, satan will get advantage over us. We are not but Thou art worthy, O Lord. On us stand firmly and continually.

15. "And your feet shod with the aration of the gospel of peace." shod also takes us back to the Passover (Ex. xii., 11), for we can do and are asked to do nothing till safe under the blood. We are pointed by Isa. iii., 7, "How upon the mountains are the feet that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace." The first thing is to be at by the blood of Christ, "for He is our peace" (Eph. ii., 13, 14). Then in mind staid on Him in perfect peace xxvi., 3). Then carry the tidings through the blood of His cross (Col. to every creature.

From last all the knowledge and comfort come to us through His word, which ever settle in heaven and true from ginning (Ps. cxix., 89, 160).

18. "Praying always with all prayer supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints." Our Lord whole nights in prayer. David said, pray evening and morning and noon, and times a day (Ps. lv., 17; Dan. vi., 10). We should pray without ceasing (I Thess. v., 17). It is possible to live in an attitude of prayer, constantly communing with Him about everything who prays honestly will expect and watch for them as truly as one who throws his ball into the air for it to return to him.

19. "And for me that utterance may be given unto me, that I may open my mouth boldly to make known the mystery of the gospel." He said to the Corinthians, "ye are enriched by Him in all utterance and in all knowledge" (I Cor. i., 5). And yet, recognizing his own weakness and the reality of the wiles of the devil, he asks prayer for himself that he may have utterance and boldness for Christ. He was very conscious of his own weakness and often spoke of it.

20. "For which I am an ambassador in bonds; that therein (margin therein) I may speak boldly as I ought to speak." The Lord's messengers with the Lord's message are supposed to have no fear of the face of man, yet many are weak and not many seem to be in danger of thought of man's frown or favor, instead of the council of God. Many ministers know little or nothing of the message which God has just spoken, and which in chapter iii., the mystery hid from the beginning of the world, now specially revealed to Paul; that the postponement of the kingdom of God, gathering from Jews and gentiles a people for Christ, the church, which shall be His bride when He shall come in His glory to take unto Him His great power and reign. Many seem to think that instead of gathering out a body for Christ He is now working conversion of the world, and so are working and walking in much darkness.—Lesson Helper.

In an interview the president of the Haas, said: "The company has decided, as a result of the meeting held, to develop the brown ore in the Leeds. How extensively we will develop them or where we shall begin have not been decided upon. To raise the money necessary for this and other purposes of improvement the company voted an increase of its capital stock. The amount it was increased to has not made known later on."

The commissioners of Lee county have just let a contract for the erection of a fine steel bridge across Elk river in the northern part of the county at Redus' Shoals. The bridge will be of the best material, and will cost the county $9,000.

Germany has 1,900,000 acres of land in sugar beets, and France has 1,700,000. Ten or twelve tons of beets can be grown to the acre and will yield a ton of sugar. One million acres of sugar beets give a crop worth $50,000,000. One million acres in corn at present prices give a crop worth $8,250,000. Why not grow sugar beets?—Leavenworth Times.

Electric Light on Battlefields.

Special attention is being given by the French military authorities to the questions of succoring the wounded on battlefields when night comes on after a great battle. Experiments have been made with powerful electric arc lights, but the apparatus has conditions. At length it has been practically determined that the ambulance corps men shall wear little incandescent glow-lamps in their hats, just like ladies of the ballet in a spectacular extravaganza. Each man is to carry a little primary battery in his pocket for the production of the current. The wounded in need of succor will look out for the little moving lights, and if possible drag themselves toward them.—Paris letter.

Number of Foreign Cardinals.

Cardinal di Ronde's death, according to the Tablet, has made the number of foreign Cardinals greater than that of the Italian for the second time within twelve months. There are now thirty-one of the former to thirty of the latter, a state of things which, until within a few years, had not occurred for many centuries.

CHICAGO'S VETERAN POSTMAN.

Abram D. Jones Thirty Years a Letter Carrier in the Windy City.

Letter carriers are now wearing their service stripes. Each stripe is indicative of five years of service. The greatest honor to be conferred, that of six stripes, was awarded to Abram D.

CHICAGO'S OLDEST LETTER CARRIER.

Jones, the veteran letter carrier of Chicago. It was in 1867 that Jones received his appointment. At that time General Frank S. Sherman was postmaster. Jones had come here from New York a mere lad and gained his position through the influence of Judge Henry Fuller. He has remained in continuous service ever since, a period of thirty years, in which the veteran letter carrier has never paid the penalty of a single day's suspension for blunders. He has served at the central station, says the Times-Herald, since the day of his appointment, and has passed through all the various vicissitudes of the growth of the postoffice. In May, 1895, he was transferred at his own request to the Englewood station, where he is now in active service. Of fifty-one carriers appointed simultaneously with him in 1867, he is the only one who still remains. He is the only man among 1,500 postal clerks who wears six stripes.

Destructive Bullets.

Lee-Metford bullets were made effective during the recent Benin expedition through the soldiers shaving off the tops. This caused the case to drop off when the rifle was discharged, and enabled the leaden inner part to inflict a wound severe enough to stop the onset of attacking parties.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

SUNDAY'S DISCOURSE BY THE NOTED DIVINE.

God Among the Stars—Our Own World, the Smallest of Them All, Was Selected as the Theatre For Sin and Sorrow as an Awful Example to Others.

TEXT: "It is He that buildeth His stories in the heaven."—Amos, ix., 6.

This is first-rate poetry from Amos, the herdsman. While guarding his flocks at night, he got watching the heavens. He saw stars above stars, and the universe seemed to him like a great mansion many stories high, silver room above silver room, silver pillars besides silver pillars, and windows of silver and doors of silver, and turrets and domes of silver rising into the immensities, and the prophet's sanctified imagination walks through that great silver palace of the universe, through the first story, through the second story, through the third story, through the twentieth story, through the hundredth story, through the thousandth story, and realizing that God is the architect and carpenter and mason of all that upheaved splendor, he cries out in the words of the text, "It is He that buildeth His stories in the heaven."

The fact is that we have all spent too much time on one story of the great mansion of God's universe. We need occasionally to go upstairs or downstairs in this mansion; downstairs, and in the cellar study the rocks, or upstairs and see God in some of the higher stories, and learn the meaning of the text when it says: "It is He that buildeth His stories in the heaven."

Astronomy was born in Chaldea. Its mother was Astrology, or the science of foretelling events by juxtaposition of stars. The Orientals, living much out of doors and in a very clear atmosphere, through which the stars shone especially lustrous, got the habit of studying the night heavens. In the hot seasons caravans journeyed chiefly at night, and that gave travelers much opportunity of stellar information. On the first page of the Bible the sun and moon and stars roll in. The sun, a body nearly three million miles in circumference and more than twelve thousand times as large as our earth; the moon, more than two thousand miles in diameter. But God is used to doing things on such an omnipotent scale that he takes only one verse to tell of this solar and lunar manufacture. Yea, in three words all the other worlds are thrown in. The record says, "The stars also." It takes whole pages for a man to extol the making of a telescope or microscope or a magnetic telegraph or a threshing machine, or to describe a fine painting or statue, but it was so easy for God to hang the celestial upholstery that the story is compassed in one verse: "God made two great lights, the greater light to rule the day and the lesser light to rule the night. The stars also!" Astronomers have been trying to call the roll of them ever since, and they have counted multitudes of them passing in review before the observatories built at vast expense, and the size and number of those heavenly bodies have taxed to the utmost the scientists of all ages.

But God finishes all He has to say about them in three words, "The stars also!" That is Mars, with its more than fifty-five million square miles, and Venus, with its more than one hundred and ninety-one millions square miles, and Saturn, with its more than nineteen billion square miles, and Jupiter, with its more than twenty-four billion square miles, and all the planets of our system of more than seventy-eight billion square miles, and these stars of our system, when compared with the stars of the other systems, as a handful of sand compared with all the Rocky Mountains and all the Alps. "The stars also!" For brevity, for ponderosity, for splendor, for suggestiveness, for sublimity piled on sublimity, these words excel all that human speech ever uttered or human imagination ever soared after: "The stars also!" It is put in as you write a postscript—something you thought of afterward—as hardly worth putting into the body of a letter. "The stars also!" Oh, what a God we have, and He is our Father!

Read on in your Bibles, until after awhile the Bible flashes with the aurora borealis or northern lights, that strange illumination, as mysterious and undefined now as when, in the book of Job it was written: "Men see not the bright light which is in the clouds. Fair weather cometh out of the north." While all the nations supposed that the earth was built on a foundation of some sort, and many supposed that it stood on a huge turtle, or some great marine creature, Job knew enough of astronomy to say it had no foundation, but was suspended on the invisible arm of the Almighty, declaring that "He hangeth the earth upon nothing." While all nations thought the earth was level, the sky spread over it like a tent over a flat surface, Isaiah declared the world to be globular, circular, saying of God: "He sitteth upon the circle of the earth." See them glitter in this scriptural sky—Arcturus, Orion, the Pleiades, and the "bear with her young."

Without the use of telescope and without any observatory and without any astronomical calculation, I know that the other worlds are inhabited, because my Bible and my common sense tell me so. It has been estimated that in the worlds belonging to our solar system there is room for at least twenty-five trillion of population. And I believe it is all occupied, or will be occupied, by intelligent beings. God will not fill them with brutes. He would certainly put into those worlds beings intelligent enough to appreciate the architecture, the coloring, the grandeur, the beauty, the harmony of their surroundings. Yea, the inhabitants of those worlds have capacity of locomotion, for they would not have had such spacious opportunity for movement if they had not powers of motion. Yea, they have sight, else why the light, and hearing, else how get on with necessary language, and how clear themselves from advancing perils? Yea, as God made our human race in His own image, He probably made the inhabitants of other worlds in His own image; in other words, it is as near demonstration as I care to have it, that while the inhabitants of other worlds have adaptations of bodily structure to the particular climate in in which they dwell, there is yet similarity of mental and spiritual characteristics among all the inhabitants of the universe of God, and made in His image they are made wonderfully alike.

Now what should be the practical result of this discussion founded on scripture and common sense? It is first of all, to enlarge our ideas of God and so intensify our admiration and worship. Under such consideration, how much more graphic the Bible question, which seems to roll back the sleeve of the Almighty and say: "Hast thou an arm like God?" The contemplation also encourages us with the thought that if God made all these worlds and populated them, it will not be very much of an undertaking for Him to make our little world over again, and reconstruct the character of its population as by grace they are to be reconstructed.

What a monstrosity of ignorance that the majority of Christian people listen not to the voices of other worlds, although the Book says, "The heavens declare the glory of God," and, again, "The works of the Lord are great and to be sought out." How much have you sought them out? You have been satisfying yourself with some things about Christ, but have you noticed that Paul calls you to consider Christ as the Creator of other worlds, "by whom also He made the worlds." It is time you Christians started on a world hunt. That is the chief reason why God makes the night, that you may see other worlds. Go out to-night and look up at the great clock of the heavens. Listen to the silvery chime of the midnight sky. See that your children and grandchildren mount the heavens with telescope for alpenstock, leaning from acclivity of light to acclivity of light. What a thoughtful and sublime thing that John Quincy Adams, the ex-President, borne down with years, undertook at the peril of his life the journey from Washington to Cincinnati that he might lay the corner-stone of the pier of the great refracting telescope, and there making his last oration. What a service for all mankind which in 1839, Lord Rosse, lifted on the lawn of his castle eighty miles from Dublin a telescope that revealed worlds as fast as they could roll in and that started an enthusiasm which this moment concentrates the eyes of many of the most devout in all parts of the earth on celestial discovery. Thank God that we now know our own world is bounded on all sides by realms of glory, instead of being where Hesiod in his poetry described it to be, namely half way between heaven and hell, an anvil hurled out of heaven, taking ten days to strike the earth, and hurled out of earth, taking ten more days to strike perdition:

From the high heaven a brazen anvil cast,
Nine days and nights in rapid whirls would last:
And reach the earth the tenth; whence strongly hurled,
The same the passage to th' infernal world.

I thank God that we have found out that our world is not half way between heaven and hell, but is in a sisterhood of light, and that this sisterhood joins all the other sisterhoods of worlds, moving round some great homestead, which is no doubt heaven, where God is, and our departed Christian friends are, and we ourselves through pardoning mercy expect to become permanent residents. O, what a God we have, and He is our Father.

Furthermore, I get now from all this an answer to the question which every intelligent man and woman since the earth has stood has asked and received no answer. Why did God let sin and sorrow come into the world when He could have prevented them from coming? I wish reverently to say I think I have found the reason. To keep the universe loyal to a Holy God, it was important in some world somewhere to demonstrate the gigantic disasters that would come upon any world that allowed sin to enter. Which world should it be? Well, the smaller the world the better, for less numbers would suffer. So our world was selected. The stage was plenty large enough for the enactment of the tragedy. Enter on the stage Sin, followed by Murder, Pain, Theft, Fraud, Impurity, Falsehood, Massacre, War and all the abominations and horrors and agonies of centuries. Although we know comparatively little about the other worlds, lest we become completely dissatisfied with our own, no doubt the other worlds have heard and are now hearing all about this world in the awful experiment of sin which the human race has been making.

It is no longer to me a mystery why so small a world as ours was chosen for the tragedy. A chemist can demonstrate all the laws of earth and heaven in a small laboratory, ten feet by five, and our world was not too small to demonstrate to the universe the awful chemistry of unrighteousness, its explosive and riving and consuming power. On the tower of Pharos, Egypt, a metallic mirror was raised which reflected all that occurred both on land sea for a distance of three hundred miles, and so Egypt was informed of the coming of her enemies long before their arrival. By what process I know not, but in some way this ship of a struggling earth, I think, is mirrored to distant worlds. Surely this one disastrous experiment of a world unloosing itself from God will be enough for all worlds and all eternities.

But notice that as other worlds rolled into the first book of the Bible, the Book of Genesis, they also appear in the last book of the Bible, the Book of Revelation. They will take part in the scenes of that occasion which shall be the earth's winding up, and a tremendous occasion for you and me personally. My father was one night on the turnpike road between Trenton and Bound Brook, N. J. He was coming through the night from the legislative halls, where he was serving his State, to his home, where there was sickness. I often heard him tell about it. It was the night of the 12th and the morning of the 13th of November, 1833. Suddenly the whole heavens became a scene never to be forgotten. From the constellation Leo meteors began to shoot in all directions. For the two hours between 4 and 6 in the morning, it was estimated that a thousand meteors a minute flashed and expired. It grew lighter than noonday. Arrows of fire. Balls of fire. Trails of fire. Showers of fire. Some of the appearances were larger than the full moon. All around the heavens explosion followed explosion. Sounds as well as sights. The air filled with uproar. All the luminaries of the sky seemed to have received marching orders. The heavens ribbed and interlaced and garlanded with meteoric display. From horizon to horizon everything in combustion and conflagration.

Many a brain that night gave way. It was an awful strain on strongest nerves. Millions of people fell on their knees in prayer. Was the world ending, or was there some great event for which all heaven was illuminated? For eight momentous hours the phenomenon lasted. East, west, north, south, it looked as though the heavens were in maniac disorder. Astronomers watching that night said that those meteors started from 2200 miles above the earth's surface and moved with ten times the speed of a cannon ball. The owner of a plantation in South Carolina says of that night scene. I was suddenly awakened by the most distressing cries that ever fell on my ears. Shrieks of horror and cries of mercy I could hear from most of the slaves on three plantations, amounting in all to about six or eight hundred. While earnestly listening for the cause I heard a faint voice near the door calling my name. I arose, and taking my sword, stood at the door. At this moment I heard the same voice still beseeching me to rise, and saying: "Oh, my God! the world is on fire!" I then opened the door, and it is difficult to say which excited me most, the awfulness of the scene or the distressed cries of the Africans. Upwards of 100 lay prostrate on the ground; some speechless and some uttering the bitterest cries, but most with their hands raised, imploring God to save the world and them. The scene was truly awful, for never did rain fall much thicker than the meteors fell toward the earth.

The spectacle ceased not until the rising sun of the November morning eclipsed it, and the whole American nation sat down exhausted with the agitations of a night to be memorable until the earth itself shall become a falling star. The Bible closes with such a scene of falling lights, not only fidgety meteors, but grave old stars. St. John saw it in prospect, and wrote: "The stars of heaven fell unto the earth, even as a fig tree casteth her untimely figs when she is shaken of a mighty wind." What a time that will be when worlds drop. Rain of planets. Gravitation letting loose her grip on worlds. Constellations flying apart. Galaxies dissolved. The great orchard of the universe swept by the last hurricane letting down the stars like ripened fruit. Our old earth will go with the rest, and let it go, for it will have existed long enough to complete its tremendous experiment. But there will be enough worlds left to make a heaven of, if any more heaven needs to be built. That day finding us in Christ, our nature regenerated, and our sins pardoned, and our hope triumphant, we will feel no more alarm than when in September, passing through an orchard, you hear the apples thump to the ground, or through a conservatory and you hear an untimely fig drop to the floor. You will only go upstairs into another story, a better lighted story, a better furnished story, a better ventilated story, a better pictured story, and into a story where already many of your kindred are waiting for you, and where profits and apostles and martyrs will pay you celestial visitation, and where, with a rapture beyond the most radiant anticipation, you shall bow before Him that "buildeth his stories in heaven."

SAVINGS OF THE POOR.

Is It Right That They Should Be Used for the Profit of Others?

One of the principal reasons put forth in opposition to the establishment of postal savings banks is that the government ought not to interfere in any way with the business of private bankers by taking for safe-keeping deposits which they might like to handle.

Opposed to the general principle laid down by the opponents of postal savings banks as the basis of their opposition is another principle which The Record believes is more pertinent to the particular subject under consideration. It is that private individuals ought not to be allowed to make a profit from handling the small savings of the poor. This principle is one that is recognized not only in most civilized countries abroad, but also in those parts of the United States where wealth is most abundant and where provisions for the protection of property of all kinds are most highly developed. In the New England states and New York, the only portion of this country at all nequately supplied with savings-bank facilities, bankers are allowed, as in Illinois, to regard the small savings of the poor as funds to be invested for their own private inrichment. The savings banks of those states are mutual institutions, managed by trustees who serve without compensation and who derive no profit from the loaning of the funds intrusted to their care. No other kind of savings bank is permitted by law. The savings of the poor are held so sacred that it is deemed unwise to allow bankers to use them for private profit for fear the tendency to speculate with the funds and invest them in questionable securities because these pay high rates of interest might result in loss and hardship to a class that it should be especially the object of society to protect.

If we are not to have postal banks, then the states of the west and south should imitate the example of New England and New York and make provision for mutual savings instutions for the accommodation and safety of the small depositors.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and, therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely-educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account creed, race or nationality.

RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, CATARRH, ASTHMA, HEADACHE

and their marvelous cure. Science of the 19th Century looks on with amazement at the most remarkable record of cures ever known in the World's history.

5 DROPS

Hundreds of thousands of Sufferers cured without a single failure by "FIVE DROPS."

Though so universally used and tested did you ever hear anyone speak ill of this great remedy? No, you never did and never will, for if taken as directed and in the proper quantity "5 Drops" cannot fail to cure any of the diseases for which it is recommended. What it has already done to relieve the suffering is told in thousands of letters of grateful praise.

Mr. J. P. Limeburner, widely known for many years as the special representative of the Populists and Free Silver Press of the United States, has kindly forwarded the following letter for publication:

Jan. 25, 1897.

DEAR SIRS—I am anxious for the sake of the suffering and out of gratitude to you to give my personal endorsement of your wonderful remedy. On the 4th of January last I was in Washington and was suddenly seized with an accurate case of inflammatory rheumatism, so severe and painful was the attack that within 24 hours my left side was paralyzed and I was only able to dress with assistance. I secured a bottle of "5 Drops" and took a dose that night, rubbing some on externally as directed. The following morning I was surprised to find myself immensely relieved, and continuing the treatment I woke the second morning cured. My arm was absolutely free from pain, and all soreness and stiffness had disappeared. The quickness and completeness of my cure was the remarkable. I have known for over a year of the great curative properties of your medicine and have several friends who have been cured by it of Neuralgia, Catarrh and Asthma. Wishing you every success, and trusting that those similarly afflicted will at least give this remedy a trial. Sincerely yours,

J. P. LIMEBURNER,
Bureau of Populist and Reform Papers, Old Soldiers' Home Building, Chicago, Ill.

CURES THE INCURABLE.

DEAR SIRS—I would like to thank you for your great remedy, "5 DROPS," and tell you what it has done for me. I had Rheumatism in every joint and in the heart, and had Catarrh of the head for 30 years. I was so poorly that I lost the use of my legs and arms and could not move without pain. I was so crippled that I had some fine horses for seven years, and our family physician, a good doctor, told me that my Rheumatism and Catarrh were incurable and I believed him. But now, after using "5 Drops" one two months, I can truly say I have not felt so well for seven years. This medicine does more than is claimed for it. At this time my Catarrh is much better, and I have no sign of any Rheumatism at all and the heart weakness and pain are gone. My hearing is improved and my eyesight is much better. I have gained more than seven pounds of flesh and do a full day's work. It is the best medicine I ever saw to give a mother who has a sick child for it has the same effect on the child as on the mother. It stands off Croup and cures the hives of the child and causes sweet and refreshing sleep to both young and old.

Yours respectfully, WM. M. KELLEMS.
Siberia, Perry Co., Ind.

Jan. 29, 1896.

We received the following letter from Mr. J. J. Wilson of Omaha, Ill. Mr. Wilson has been for many years an invalid, and reading the above letter which was published over Dr. Kellems, asking if his endorsement was genuine, and received this reply, which he forwarded.

MR. J. J. WILSON.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of recent date at hand, the testimonial you speak of is genuine. The company who manufactures and sells "5 Drops" published my testimonial just as I gave it to them and every word of it is true, and I could swear to it and prove it by many witnesses. The company did not ask me for this letter. I sent it to them last January for publication in order that poor sufferers, incurable as I once was, and as you are, might be cured. Get "5 Drops" and use it and it will cure you as it has cured me. I have received many letters like yours, and it is a pleasure to me to answer all who write. Tell all your neighbors what I have written about "5 Drops." I know how to sympathize with those who are afflicted, for though I suffered so long, it is now 8 months since I have felt any pain.

Dr. S. W. Kellems, my brother, uses "5 Drops" in his practice, and joins me in endorsing this great remedy. He says for a case like yours it is a positive cure.

MR. W. M. AND DR. S. W. KELLEMS
Sept. 21, 1896.

If you have not sufficient confidence after reading these letters to send for a large bottle, send for a sample bottle, which contains sufficient medicine to convince you of its merit. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief and is a permanent cure for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Backache, Asthma, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, "La Grippe," Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and Kindred Diseases.

ONE REFORM AT A TIME.

The sole object of a bill for the establishment of a postal savings bank system should be to provide an absolutely safe depository for the savings of persons of small means. There are many things which the government ought to do, and there are many wants of the people which ought to be supplied. But the attempt ought not to be made to supply other wants in the measure creating a postal savings bank system.

The people in many parts of the country need better credit facilities. Anything which the government properly can do to enable its citizens to secure loans at lower rates it should do. But when it comes to determining what is proper in this line great difference of opinion is manifested. On the question of providing safe depositories for small savings, however, opinion is very generally agreed. Congress in all probability can be enduced to pass at an early date a bill providing simply for safe depositories and making such an agreement for investment of funds as is necerrary to the accomplishment of that purpose. It is very doubtful, however, if congress would pass a postal savings bank bill coupled with which was a proposition for enabling citizens in need of money to secure loans from the government.

All believers in postal banks should unite in favoring the only kind of bill that congress may be expected to pass—namely, one the sole object of which is to provide a safe place of deposit for persons of small means. The main purpose of the provision in relation to investments should be to safegard the funds and return to the postoffice department a rate of interest that will enable it in turn to make a small interest payment to depositors. Whatever the government might see fit to do, if anything, to enable farmers and others to secure loans at cheeper rates is a separate problem, attended with special difficulties to be worked out by itself, and in no way mixed up with the present movement to provide safe places of deposit for those who desire to save.—Chicago Record.

A HEALTHY WOMAN.

A perfectly healthy woman is a rare sight. Such a woman is always beautiful. Health brings clear complexion, clear eye, steady nerve elastic step, and graceful movements. A healthy woman is a woman with healthy mucous membranes. The mucous membranes line the whole body, every organ in the body. The slightest catarrh of one of these membranes produces languor, sallow skin, listless eye, and weakening discharges. Mrs Alvena Hanenkrat, Ribb Falls, Wis., in a recent letter to Dr. Hartman, says: "I was troubled for ten years with chronic catarrh. I used Pe-ru-na for about eight months, and I must say that I am perfectly cured of the disease. It will be two years next June since I was cured, and I have not been troubled with any of my old symptoms."

Dr. Hartman's latest book on chronic catarrh will be sent free to any address for a short time by The Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, O.

Maplesville.

The following is a truthful story told by a good old Baptist deacon who could no more tell a story than G. Washington when he cut the cherry tree.

A little fice was a great pet, would eat nothing but that was daintily prepared on his master's plate. One cold night he was snoozing in the corner of the bed room before a comfortable fire, when bed time came he had his usual order, "get out," which he obeyed reluctantly, dragging a hind leg most piteously. The kind hearted wife said poor Trip is so lame let him stay in here to-night. The next morning after his good breakfast his lameness was all gone but returned the next on receiving his customary order, this ruse was kept up all winter and kept him comfortable lodging. This trick was not taught him.

A MODERATE IMPROVEMENT

Colder Weather Has Done Much to Accelerate Retail Trade.

AN ACTIVE DEMAND FOR IRON PRODUCTS.

Some Planters Have Been Compelled to Sell Cotton at a Loss—Cotton Goods Weak—Wheat Exports Unusually Heavy for the Week.

Bradstreet's review of trade says: There is a moderate improvement in staple prices and in distribution of woolen goods, shoes, hats and hardware in the region tributary to Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha. Tennessee and Louisiana jobbers report a revival of demand from the interior merchants, with some of the business delayed by yellow fever quarantine. Trade reports from Georgia and Texas are quite irregular. Some cotton planters are compelled to sell cotton at a loss to meet advances made earlier in the season, and have little or no surplus with which to buy merchandise. Others, notably in Texas, continue to hold cotton, which delays mercantile collections, and in some sections has an unfavorable influence. Colder weather northwest and in the central Mississippi and Missouri river valleys has helped retail business.

Manufacturers of iron, steel, agricultural implements, stoves, railway cars and woolen goods report an active demand and large output, although the appearance of speculative steel has resulted in weakening the prices of billets and a like tendency on the part of Bessemer pig iron.

Higher prices are recorded for wheat, corn, oats, syrup, hides, shoes, leather, and for turpentine. The reaction in iron and steel is likely to be followed by an advance if the present rate of consumption continues. Lower prices for wheat flour and pork are expected to recognize the advances in wheat and Indian corn, so that a lower price for copper is practically the only important decline for the week.

Wheat exports show a heavy increase alike over last week and last year, and with one exception, that of the second week in September, is the largest single week's total on record.

The total exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States this week aggregate 6,635,792 bushels, against 5,445,542 bushels last week, 3,937,000 bushels in the week a year ago, 2,916,000 bushels in 1895, 3,312,675 bushels in 1894, and 2,764,080 bushels in 1893. The total exports of the second week of September, 1891, were 6,974,000 bushels.

Corn exports also show a gain aggregating 3,209,790 bushels for this week, against 2,975,721 last year, 1,743,000 in 1895, and 189,000 in 1894.

There are 235 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, compared with 273 last week, 308 in the week a year ago, 323 two years ago, 295 three years ago, and as compared with 358 in the like week of 1893.

THREE THOUSAND SHEEP BURN.

Prairie Fire Ten Miles Wide Sweeps Through Texas Counties.

A terrific prairie fire passed through Lubbock, Hale and Crosby counties, Tex., last week, doing great damage to the ranges.

It originated east of Crosby county, burned eastward through Crosby before a severe west wind, until it reached a point north of Emma, when a norther arose, bringing the fire south in its awful fury. The flames came leaping, making a fire ten miles wide and traveling at lightning speed. At least 400 square miles of territory were burned. Cattle suffered and many were burned to death. North of Emma, three thousand sheep were burned in one flock and many farmers lost their winter feed, fire burning it in the stacks.

Tammany Grows Generous.

The members of the executive committee of Tammany hall have subscribed $20,000 for the starving people of Cuba and a like sum for the poor of New York city. The Cuban check was handed to Senor Tomas Estrada Palma and other members of the junta who had called to seek the aid of Tammany in behalf of their starving countrymen.

Train Wrecked in Arkansas.

Train No. 2 on the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Memphis, which left Birmingham, Ala., for Kansas City, was derailed just west of Williford, Ark., Thursday morning. The combination coach, chair car and sleeper went over the bank, the combination car going into Spring river. The chair car and sleeper were both consumed. It is supposed that the truck gave way.

One passenger, J. T. Hoover, of Pleasant Hill, Mo., was fatally injured and about thirty others more or less seriously hurt. It is believed none of the latter will die.

Fatal Explosion.

News has just been received from Louisville, Miss., of the explosion of a boiler in John Woodward's steam mill, which occurred at 6 o'clock Saturday evening, occasioning the death of Frank Woodward, Jr., and Patrick Norton. Several others were perhaps fatally injured. John Woodward, owner of the mill, and his nephew, Mott, were badly scalded. Dr. J. C. Blair's two little boys and Jeff Hathern and John Coleman were also badly burned.

MORGAN TALKS ABOUT HAWAII

NEED HAVE NO FEARS OF FOREIGN OPPOSITION.

Since His Return He Favors Annexing the Island Stronger Than Ever.

Senator Morgan, of Alabama, member of the committee on foreign relations, has reached Washington on his return from Honolulu, where he went to post himself on the annexation question. For the first time, he submitted himself to an interview on the result of his trip, and in part said:

"My conclusions, based on my observations, are only a full confirmation of what I had previously believed, that it is our national duty, and will be in every way advantageous to all concerned, to annex Hawaii to this country. I have studied the questions from the most authentic and reliable sources. The establishment of an outpost of the United States within the tropics, and 2,200 miles from our coast, challenges the inquiry whether such action is necessary to our national welfare. Our northwestern possessions on the Pacific along the Aleutian Archipelago, are over 1,000 miles west of Honolulu. This gives us control of practically the entire American coast of the north Pacific. The intervention of the British possessions from the straits of Fuca to the northern boundary of Alaska creates a powerful reason for our occupation of Hawaii. Without imputing to Great Britain any other motive than to extend her national policy of commercial conquest, it seems very obvious that if she should acquire dominion of Hawaii and open and fortify Pearl harbor, her military fortress at Esquimalt, on the island of Vancouver, co-operating without, would cut our coast line in two and would leave us incumbered with a mass of territory in Alaska, whose defenses would be almost impossible, and the enormous advantages of which would be lost to us. The Vancouver coal fields would give the British navy almost irresistible advantages in case of war and virtual dominion of commerce in time of peace.

"There would not be the slightest difficulty in the character, condition or wish of the 31,000 native people of Hawaii. They are far better adapted to American citizenship than many millions of those whom we have welcomed here from southern Europe and better adapted than the Indians, Mexicans and native Alaskans.

"Except among the few who expect personal favors and advancement from re-establishment of the royal government, the general body of the Hawaiian population will rejoice in the honor, safety, peace, and prosperity which annexation will bring. Morally and practically, the silent invasion of Hawaii from the orient (the Japanese) violates all the declared policy and often expressed purposes of the United States, to protect those people against foreign interference. The island as a national possession would richly reward us for expenditure of a hundred millions. The annexation would cost us nothing and will not at present excite the open opposition of any nation."

A SINGULAR MISTAKE.

In Attempting to Capture a Murderer One Officer Shoots Another.

News of a singular mistake, which came near having a tragic ending, comes from Uhland, Ala., near Columbus, Ga., while the sheriff with a posse of men were endeavoring to capture a negro murderer, who was located by the officers in a house near Uhland. The building was immediately surrounded. The sheriff and Frank Peppers, one of the posse, went to the back of the house to prevent the desperado escaping in that direction. For some reason the sheriff sent Peppers around to the front of the house again. As Peppers turned the corner of the house he was perceived by Gus Farrows, another member of the posse, who, thinking it was the negro who was trying to escape, blazed away at his brother officer with a double-barreled shotgun. Peppers fell to the ground, and Farrows was about to pour a load of buckshot into him if he attempted resistance, when he happened to perceive his mistake.

Most of the shot lodged in Peppers' arms, and although he is seriously wounded he will probably recover. The sheriff, hearing the shot, rushed around the house, thinking that the negro was escaping. In the midst of the confusion the negro slipped out the back door and escaped.

SECRETARY BLISS' REPORT.

Big Reduction in the Amount of the Pension Roll Expected.

NEW LAWS FOR ALASKA RECOMMENDED.

Indian Population of the United States Given—Opening of the Wichita Reservation Would Promote That Country's Development.

Secretary of the Interior Bliss, in his annual report, made public last week, submits estimates aggregating $156,532,419 for appropriations by congress for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899.

Discussing pensions, he says 200,000 pension claims are awaiting adjudication, and it is estimated that 40 or 50 per cent of these will be finally admitted. If they are rapidly adjudicated they will swell the pension roll from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000. When, however, these claims are adjudicated, and the first payment made thereon, the amount of the pension roll will decrease very rapidly, possibly to $125,000,000 or $130,000,000 the first year.

About the Indians.

To total Indian population of the United States, exclusive of the New York Indians and the five civilized tribes, approximates 177,178, located on 177 reservations, which contain approximately 33,404,837 acres. Of these, 4,545 have accepted allotments of land, which aggregate about 644,147 acres.

Secretary Bliss says while the opening of the Wichita reservation in Oklahoma to white settlement would greatly promote the development of that country, yet, in view of the unsettled condition of the questions affecting their rights, until there is further legislation he does not see how it can be done without causing great injury and distress.

Concerning Alaska.

Concerning Alaska Secretary Bliss says existing conditions demand a radical change in the laws relating thereto and he recommends that the public land laws be extended to that district; that additional land offices be created and appropriations made to carry them into effect; that the granting of way for railroads, telegraph and telephone lines and the construction of roads and trails be specifically authorized; that provisions be made for the incorporation of municipalities, providing for the holding of elections, defining qualifications for voting and giving such powers as are used and exercised by municipalities elsewhere; that the legal and political status of the native population, which is in doubt, be defined; that citizenship be extended to the Metlakahtla Indians, who emigrated from British Columbia, and under authority of an act of congress, approved March 3, 1891, to occupy Annette island; that complete territorial government be authorized and established and that represenation in congress be granted.

A Fatal Street Duel.

J. W. Harris, of the Waco (Texas) Times-Herald, a morning paper, and W. A. Harris, his brother, on one side, and Judge G. B. Gerald, a prominent citizen, fought a duel on the street Friday evening. W. A. Harris was shot dead, J. W. Harris wounded fatally, his body being paralyzed, and Gerald shot in the side. He may die. The trouble was the outcome of the mobbing of W. C. Brann, publisher of the Iconoclast.

Steamer Bluff City Burned.

The magnificent Anchor Line steamer Bluff City, one of the finest and newest boats on the Mississippi river, which left St. Louis Wednesday bound for New Orleans with forty passengers and 1,000 tons of miscellaneous freight on board, burned to the water's edge at Chester, Ill., Thursday.

All passengers and the crew escaped to land without injury, but nothing on board was saved. The total loss will aggregate $100,000. A number of valuable race horses, being taken to New Orleans for the races there, lost their lives.

Mexico Steps In.

Mexico City.—The question of the future of Cuba excites some interest owing to the talk of a possible union of the island with the Mexican republic in case of its gaining ultimately its independence, which would be pleasing to a large portion of the Mexican people.

The Herald remarks: "Cuba should become a part of Mexico, which will eventually form a part of the great tropical republic, extending to the mouth of the Orinoco, making the Caribean sea and Gulf of Mexico the new world's Mediterranean."

GREAT FIRE DEVASTATES LONDON

One Hundred and Fifty Warehouses Burned—Loss Will Reach £5,000,000.

One of the most disastrous fires in London's history since the great fire of 1666 broke out in a large block of buildings lying eastward of Aldersgate street and between that thoroughfare and Red Cross street just after 1 o'clock Friday night. The flames were fanned by a strong wind and were fed by highly inflammable stocks of Christmas fancy goods and flimsy dress materials of all descriptions that filled every floor of the six-story buildings in the Old street. Consequently the conflagration gained headway with surprising rapidity and was soon far beyond the possibility of being checked by the few engines which were early on the spot. For four and a half hours the flames had their own way, and it was only after more than a hundred engines had worked for an hour that the chief of the fire brigade sent out the signal that the fire was under control.

The historic church of St. Giles was badly damaged, the principal damage being to the roof, the old windows, the baptismal font and Milton's statue.

Hamsell street was the scene of the outbreak of the fire which was started by an explosion in connection with a gas engine.

It is officially reported that 150 warehouses have been gutted. An estimate of the damage done places the amount at nearly £5,000,000 sterling ($25,000,000).

CANNOT STEM THE TIDE.

Hon. Hannis Taylor, ex-Minister to Spain Says Cuba Will Be Free.

Last Friday at Ithaca, N. Y., Hannis Taylor, ex-minister to Spain, spoke to a large and enthusiastic meeting of Cuban sympathizers on the situation in Cuba. Mr. Taylor said in part:

"Events are making fast, and no man, not even the president, can stop them. No real statesman ever tried to avoid a crisis by turning his back upon it; it would be self-deception. If the president makes the fatal mistake of attempting longer to muzzle congress by putting his imprimature upon false hopes and empty illusions, before the ink is dry upon his message events will discredit all his predictions.

"Let congress but speak the final and emphatic word—recognition—and in ninety days the long and bloody tragedy will be over, the whole Christian world will rejoice and say 'Amen,' Spain will be rescued from an impossible situation, there will be no war with the United States and Cuba will be free."

COTTON GROWERS' CONVENTION

Called to Meet in Atlanta on December 14 to Perfect an Organization.

J. C. Wilborne, president of the South Carolina State Alliance and of the recent Cotton Growers' Convention held in Columbia, has issued a call to delegates from every state in the south to assemble in convention in Atlanta, Ga., December 14.

The call says in part: "The purpose of this convention is to organize the cotton growers of the south, thereby securing unity of action in the marketing and sale of this great staple; also to devise ways and means by which we may be able to break and throw off the shackles of business slavery that now binds us. With foreign exchanges dictating the price, we can only expect ruin and distress in the future. We can achieve independence only by organization."

Governors of the cotton states will be appealed to in order to get farmers interested to send delegations, the plan being to have one delegate from each congressional district and two from each state at large.

MONEY BLANCO'S WEAPON

Bribery Resorted to by the Spaniards to Put Down the Rebellion.

WILL OFFER LARGE SUMS FOR SURRENDER

Revolutionary Leaders Preparing to Strike a Decisive Blow Before Congress Meets as an Encouragement to American Friends.

Havana, via Key West, Fla.—General Pando, who has been sent to the front by Marshal Blanco, carries with him a commission to treat with insurgent leaders to surrender and acceptance of autonomy. Marshal Blanco also instructs General Pando that autonomy in its most liberal sense shall be the basis of his terms offered the insurgent leaders. Pando selected Damien Cabellero, who is grandfather of the insurgent Rabi, the backbone of the rebels in Santiago de Cuba, as his agent to go among the Cuban camp. He authorizes Cabellero to offer Rabi large sums of money for himself and those who surrender with him. Pando and Blanco are negotiating with other leaders of the insurgents.

On the other hand, it is believed the insurgents have similar plans in an opposite direction and with a totally different object in view. If Cuban representatives among the friends of the insurgents are to be believed the revolutionary leaders hope to strike a decisive blow at Spain before congress meets as an encouragement to their friends in the United States, who are urging a recognition upon the part of the United States government of the belligerency of Cuba.

THE HOME OF GENERAL LEE

To Be Used as an Agricultural Experimental Station.

Representative Rixey, of Virginia, and James E. Clements, an attorney of Ballston, Va., have had an interview with Secretary of War Alger with a view to co-operating in proposed legislation for a division of the Arlington estate, the former home of General Robert E. Lee.

It was reported that only a small portion of the estate was used for a national cemetery, and that the remainder is slowly disintegrating into a veritable waste. It was urged that the government use the unused tract, about 500 acres, for a central experimental agricultural station of the agricultural department, to which all the existing stations in various parts of the country should contribute. It is also urged with the erection of the much agitated memorial bridge across the Potomac river at this point, the tract would prove a beautiful addition to the government parking system of this country.

General Alger gave his consent to the plan and Secretary Wilson is much pleased with the prospect. Representative Rixey will introduce a bill for this purpose at the next session and anticipates no material opposition.

SETTLING WITH UNCLE SAM.

Union Pacific Reorganization Committee Hands Over $13,000,000.

The treasury Monday received from the reorganization committee of the Union Pacific company $13,645,250 in cash and turned over to the committee that amount in bonds which had been on deposit with the government in the sinking fund of the road. Of the bonds, $4,500,000 were in the subtreasury at New York, and these were turned over directly to the committee. The remaining $9,145,250 were turned over to Messrs. Creick and Adee, representing the committee, on receipt of a message from Assistant Treasurer Maline that the money had been deposited in the National City bank of New York to the order of the government.

Didn't Find Andree.

Tromsoe, Tromsoe Island, Norway.—The steamer Victoria, which was fitted out by the Governor of Tromsoe, under instructions from King Oscar, to search for Professor Andree, the missing aeronaut, and his party, and which left Tromsoe on November 5, has returned from Spitzbergen. She brings no news as to the whereabouts or movements of Professor Andree, although exploring parties landed ten times at various points in the Danmands isles.

State Normal College.

In spite of the scare from pestilence and quarantine, the State Normal College at Troy went on the even tenor of its way with a good attendance, and as good work as the state ever had done for it by any institution.

Troy enjoys the distinction of being 596 feet above sea level, and yellow fever has never come within fifty miles of it, and it is not believed by those well informed that the disease can spread at such altitude, if health measures are carefully observed.

Out of the several thousands of students in the State Normal College there in the ten years past, only two deaths have occurred at the college, and these from pneumonia and measles.

The college never had brighter prospects, and many new students are expected at the new term to open December 7. President Eldredge has calls for trained teachers from every direction, and the demand is above the supply. As school officers learn the value of teacher training they will insist more and more upon it. The State Normal College at Troy delights to serve school officers, schools and teachers.

DR. TALMAGE DISCOURSES UPON "GOD AMONG THE SHELLS."

Rev. William H. Lewis, of Bridgeport, Conn., Discourses Upon "The Gift of Religious Consciousness" — All Men Are Possessed of Spiritual Capacity.

The New York Herald has offered a prize of $1000 for the best sermon, and three subsidiary prizes aggregating $1000 additional for the three next best sermons. Ministers of all denominations have been invited to compete for these prizes, and the sermons offered in competition will appear in the Herald's Sunday edition. Rev. William H. Lewis, D. D., whose name is appended to the initiatory sermon, is rector of St. John's, the largest and most fashionable Episcopal parish in Bridgeport, Conn., and is considered one of the ablest preachers. His subject is: "The Gift of Religious Consciousness," and the sermon in full is as follows:

Text: "And another came, saying, Lord, behold, here is thy pound, which I have kept laid up in a napkin, for I feared thee, because thou art an austere man. * * * And he saith up to him, Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee, thou wicked servant."—St. Luke xix., 20-22.

The lord of the parable, about to go away into a "far country," had given to each of his servants a certain amount to make use of while he was away. For these three the amount given is specified, but to all his servants he gave something. "To each man," the parable says, "according to his several ability." Only three are specially designated, because they serve as sufficient illustrations of the highest, the medium and the lowest gift. Each receiver seems to have known that the amount handed him was not a gift outright, but a trust, and that his lord would eventually come back and make an accounting. Each, therefore, treated his trust according to the opinion he held of his lord.

The substance of the parable is evidently this: that in every man living there is implanted a certain spiritual capacity or ability; that men have this capacity in degree, so that one has clear and distinct ideas of God and his duty, another has less, and another almost none at all. But the trust of a spiritual instinct or consciousness, and of a conscience which recognizes this consciousness, belongs to all. None is so low in the scale of humanity that the thought of God does not somehow enter into his life; and whoever has this gift has also the intelligence to know that he has it, and to ask himself, at least once in his life, if only once, what he shall do with it.

With this consciousness of God and this conscience there comes a sense of responsibility; and with that there comes a certainty of judgment. We endorse the reasoning of the parable when we excuse the man of small capacity by saying that he did not know any better; of another, that he ought to have known better, and of a third, that he did know better; and the popular judgment condemns each man with a severity according to his gift of capacity, his conscience, his educated or uneducated sense of the value of the gift which determines his use of it, and the very worst sin of all in the popular judgment is to have made no use of the gift. It was the servant who knew his gift and his lord, even though he knew him wrongly, and then made no use of his gift, who excited his lord's anger.

Make much of the thought, for it has much in it. If we grant the universal consciousness of God and the universal conscience, then everyone is bound to conduct himself always under pressure of the thought that one day he will be called upon to answer to God for his use of these capacities. If a man only recognizes God by taking His name in vain, that is a recognition. And in actual fact there are many people who excuse themselves in their neglect of religion on the very grounds on which this man of the parable rested his defence, viz., harsh and distorted ideas of God and religion. They do not see that logically a man with harsh ideas of God ought to be the stricter in his life for that. If he shapes his conduct by his theory and if he expects God to judge him by his own confession, if my whole idea of religion is that it is such a straight and narrow way that I cannot walk in it without help from above, and, knowing that I must walk in it if I would be saved, I have yet never sought that help, shall I care to plead this neglect as an excuse, when I come to stand before a righteous judge? Whether the napkin in which we tie up our religious consciousness be clean and white with the starch and bluing and ironing of a self-satisfied morality or filthy with the stains of every self-indulgence will make no difference with the fact that we tied it up and buried it. When capital combines for selfish purposes we know what to say of it; when an anarchist wants a division of capital for his own benefit we can deal with him. But when a man puts his thousands in an old stocking and hides it under his chimney hearth we simply call him a miser—a miserable one. He may plead that he had no faith in banks, but we condemn him nevertheless. Again the common judgment illustrates the parable.

In some shops you may find a device to keep check upon business transactions. A little disc springs up in full sight of buyer, seller and employer, records the price and drops out of sight again. But at the close of the day, when the accounting is made, the registry is there and the balance must agree with that. A man's conscience is like this—every thought of God and duty that comes into mind is on record there—a good thought, or a mistaken thought, or a bad thought. It held up its signal for a moment in the presence of all who cared to look and made its unalterable record of what was done. When the time comes the judges—God and conscience, and even the popular judgment—will be at the count, as they now are at the transaction. He is a darkly thief who with these three looking on can try to take money out of the box and throw up a bank. Every thought of God and duty is a talent, a pound, bringing with it a demand for interest upon the original capital of God's first gift of spiritual consciousness and conscience. When the day of reckoning comes we shall be condemned by every opportunity we have had to know and do better. No belief can possibly warrant neglect. Whatever we think of God we are bound to do something.

THE SHELLS IN THE BIBLE.

Dr. Talmage Draws an Interesting Lesson From Them.

Dr. T. De Witt Talmage delivered in Washington a sermon on "God Every-where." The subject of the sermon was "God Among the Shells," as found in the text, Exodus xxxviii. "And the Lord said unto Moses, Take unto thee sweet spices, stacte and onycha."

You may not have noticed the shells of the sea [illegible] as the ex-[illegible] text is a shell found on the shores of the Red Sea, and Moses and his army must have crushed many of them under foot as they crossed the bisected waters, one upon the beach and onycha in the unfolded bed of the deep.

I shall speak of this shell as a beautiful and practical revelation of God, and as true as the first chapter of Genesis and the last chapter of Revelations or everything between. Not only is this shell, the onycha, found in the Red Sea, but in the waters of India. It not only delectates the eye with its convolution of beauty, white and lustrous, and scriated, but blesses the nostrils with a pungent aroma. I spoke to you last Sabbath of God in the great; now I speak of God in the small, God in the infinite, and God in the infinitesimal.

It is a secret that you may keep for me, that in all the realms of the natural world there is nothing for me so fascinating, so completely absorbing, so full of divine suggestiveness as a shell. What? More entertaining than a bird, which can sing, when a shell cannot sing? Well, there you have made a great mistake. Pick up the onycha from the banks of the Red Sea, or pick up a bivalve from the beach of the Atlantic Ocean, and listen, and you hear a whole choir of marine voices—bass, alto, soprano—in an unknown tongue, but seeming to chant, as I put them to my ear, "The sea is His and He made it."

As the shell is only the house and the wardrobe of insignificant animals of the deep, why all the wonder and beauty of construction? God's care for them is the only reason. And if God provide so munificently for them, will He not see that you have wardrobe and shelter? Wardrobe and shelter for a periwinkle; shall there not be wardrobe and shelter for a man? Would God give a coat of mail for the defense of a Nautilus and leave you no defense against the storm? Does He build a stone house for a creature that lasts a season and leave without home a soul that takes hold on centuries and aeons?

But while you get this pointed lesson of providential care from the shelled creatures of the deep notice in their construction that God helps them to help themselves. This house of stone in which they live is not dropped on them and is not built around them. The material for it exudes from their own bodies and is adorned with a colored fluid from the pores of their own neck. It is a most interesting thing to see these crustacean animals fashion their own homes out of carbonate of lime and membrane. And all of this is a mighty lesson to those who are waiting for others to build their fortunes, when they ought to go to work and, like the mollusks, build their own fortunes out of their own brain, out of their own sweat, out of their own industries. Not a mollusk on all the beaches of all the seas would have a house of shell if it had not itself built one. Do not wait for others to shelter you or prosper you. All the crustaceous creatures of the earth, from every flake of their covering and from every ridge of their tiny castles on Atlantic and Pacific and Mediterranean coasts, say: "Help yourself, while God helps you to help yourself." Have great expectations from only two persons—God and yourself. Let the onycha of my text become your preceptor.

But the more I examine the shells, the more I am impressed that God is a God of emotion. Many scoff at emotion, and seem to think that God is a God of cold geometry, and iron laws, and eternal apathy, and enthroned stoicism. No, no! The shells with overpowering emphasis deny it. While law and order reign in the universe, you have but to see the lavishness of color on the crustacea, all shades of crimson from the faintest blush to blood of battle-field, all shades of blue, all shades of green, all shades of all colors from deepest black to whitest light, just called out on the shells with more order than a mother pencilledtates or calculates how many kisses and hugs she shall give her babe waking up in the morning sunlight. Yes, my God is an emotional God. And He says: "We must have colors and let the sun paint all of them on the scroll of that shell, and we must have music, and here is a carol for the robin, and a psalm for man, and a doxology for the seraphim, and a resurrection trumpet for the archangel. Aye, He showed Himself a God of sublime emotion when He flung Himself on this world in the personality of Christ to save it, without regard to the tears it would take, or the blood it would exhaust, or the agonies it would crush out. When I see the Louvres and the Luxembourgs and the Vaticans of divine painting strewn along the eight thousand miles of coast, and I hear, in a forest, on a summer morning, musical academies and Handel societies of full orchestras, I say God is a God of emotion, and if He observes mathematics, it is mathematics set to music, and His figures are written not in white chalk on blackboards, but written by a finger of sunlight on walls of jasmine and trumpet-creeper.

In my study of the conchology of the Bible, this onycha of the text also impresses me with the fact that religion is perfume. What else could God have meant when He said to Moses: "Take unto thee sweet spices, stacte and onycha. Moses took that shell of the onycha, put it over the fire, and as it crumbled into ashes, it exhaled an odor that hung in every curtain and filled the ancient tabernacle, and its sweet smoke escaped from the sacred precincts and saturated the outside air.

Perfume! That is what religion is. But, instead of that, some make it a mal-odor. They serve God in a rough and acerb way. They box their child's ears because he does not properly keep Sunday, instead of making Sunday so attractive the child could not help but keep it. They make him learn by heart a difficult chapter in the Book of Exodus, with all the hard names because he has been naughty. How many disagreeable good people there are. No one doubts their piety, and they will reach heaven, but they will have to get fixed up before they go there, or they will make trouble by calling out to us, "Keep off that grass!" "What do you mean by plucking that flower?" "Show your tickets!" Oh, how many Christian people need to obey my text, and take into their worship and their behavior and their consolations and presbyteries and general assemblies and conferences more onycha.

But what thrills me with suggestiveness is the material out of which all pearls are made. They are fashioned from the wound of the shellfish. The exudation from that wound is fixed and hardened and enlarged into a pearl. The ruptured vessels of the water animal fashioned the gem that now adorns finger or earring, or sword hilt or king's crown. So, out of the wounds of earth will come the pearls of heaven. Out of the wound of conviction the pearl of pardon. Out of the wound of bereavement the pearl of solace. Out of the wound of loss the pearl of gain. Out of the deep wound of the grave pearl of resurrection joy. Out of the wounds of a Saviour's death, the rich, the radiant, the everlasting pearl of heavenly gladness. "And the twelve gates were twelve pearls." Take the consolation all ye who have been hurt—whether hurt in body or hurt in mind or hurt in soul. Get your troubles sanctified. If you suffer with Christ on earth you will reign with Him in glory. The tears of earth are the crystals of heaven. "Every several gate was one pearl."

OMNIBUS AS POSTOFFICE.

Kept in the Middle of the Road It Leads to Litigation.

A novel question regarding a postoffice in the middle of the road came up before Judge Paul in the United States Court at Abingdon, Va. Thomas Payne, Postmaster at Pilot, Montgomery County, complained that the owners of all the lands within a radius of one mile of his office had refused to rent or sell a site on which he might open his office. He procured an omnibus which he placed in the road and used as an office. B. M. Garrett sued out in the Circuit Court, a writ of malevolent nature, before Judge Paul on the petition of Postmaster Payne, issued a temporary injunction restraining Garrett and the deputy sheriff from interfering with the Postmaster and his omnibus postoffice of the United States. A rule has been issued against the same Postmaster's opponents, requiring them to appear before the court and show cause why the temporary injunction should not be perpetuated.

PREGNANT THOUGHTS FROM THE WORLD'S GREATEST PROPHETS.

I am Thine own, O Christ;
Henceforth entirely Thine;
And life from this glad hour,
New life is mine.

No earthly joy can lure

This deep delight so pure
Is heaven to me.

I cannot tell the art

I know thou hast my heart,
And I—have heaven.

The Ambulance Corps.

"These are they which follow the Lamb whithersoever He goeth."—Rev. 14:4. There are three classes in the Christian life—the men of the wing, the men of the couch, and the men of the road. The first are those who fly before; they are the pioneers of progress; they are in advance of their follows. The second are those who stand still, or rather lie still; they are the invalids of the human race; they come not to minister, but to be ministered unto. The third are those who follow; they are the ambulance corps of humanity; they are the sacrificial souls that come up behind. I think with St. John that they are the most beautiful souls of all. They are lovely in their unobtrusiveness. They do not wish to lead, they would rather be in the rear; they only come forward when others are driven backward. They want no glory from the battle, no wreath for the victory, no honorable mention amid the heroes. They seek the wounded, the dying, the dead. They anoint for life's burial, they bring spices for the crucified, they give the cup of cold water, they wash the soiled feet. They break the fall of Adam; they break the fall of Magdalene. They take in Saul of Tarsus after he becomes blind. They are attracted by defects, they are lured by form of helplessness. They come out to meet the shadows; they go in the track, not of the lark, but of the nightingale; they follow the Lamb. Captain of salvation, put me in the rear of Thine army—with the ambulance corps. It is not for the sake of safety that I ask it; it is not to be relieved from the burden and the heat of the day that I wish to be in the rear. It is because I think the trouble is greater there; it is because I see more room for sacrifice, more chance of doing good. There are some whom Thou sendest before Thee—angels of the everlasting gospel who fly in advance over the face of heaven, speed them, bless them. But I am not fitted to be one of these; I am not swift enough, am not brilliant enough. Put me in a sphere where swiftness is not wanted, where brilliancy is not required. Give me the trouble without the glitter, O Lord. Let others lead, I am content to follow. Be Thou my reward. Help me to serve Thee in the background. Is it not written, "They that tarry at home divide the spoil?" I cannot fight Thy battles, but I can nurse Thy wounded. I cannot repel Thy foes, but I can repair Thy fortresses. I cannot conduct Thy marches, but I can succor them who have fainted by the way. Write my name amongst those who follow Thee.—Geo. Mathewson, D. D.

Self Forgotten in Common Grief.

A Hindoo woman, the beautiful Eastern legend tells us, lost her only child. Wild with grief she implored a prophet to give back her little one to her love. He looked at her for a long while tenderly, and said, "Go, my daughter, bring me a handful of rice from a house into which death has never entered, and I will do as thou desirest." The woman at once began her search. She went from dwelling to dwelling, and had no difficulty in obtaining what the prophet specified; but when they had granted it, she inquired, "Are you all here around the hearth—father, mother, children—none missing?" But the people invariably shook their heads with sighs and looks of sadness, for far and wide as she wandered, there was always some vacant seat by the hearth. And gradually, as she passed on, the narrator says, the waves of her grief subsided before the spectacle of sorrow everywhere, and her heart, ceasing to be occupied with its own selfish pang, flowing out in strong yearnings of sympathy with the universal suffering, tears of anguish softened into tears of pity, passion melted away in compassion, she forgot herself in the general interest, and found redemption in redeeming.—Rev. F. B. Meyer, in "How to Be Sorrow."

A Sunday Prayer

Almighty God, who has graciously opened for us a way into the holiest, may we on this Sunday have such a revealing of Thy love as shall flood our being. Unveil the cross to us and may we see there the heart of God. Bless us by showing us our faults, our secret sins. Search us, O God, and know our thoughts, and see if there be any wicked way in us, and then lead us in the way everlasting. May we be truly in the Spirit on this Lord's day. Set a watch before the doors of our lips that we may speak only such words as shall honor thee. May we think only reverent, pure and worthy thoughts. Prepare us for thy worship in our home and in thy sanctuary. May thy Word have new meaning for us today as we read it or listen to it. We ask that our minds may be opened to understand it and that thy spirit may guide us into the truth. May there be much power in the preaching of the gospel. Let a blessing be upon thy whole church, and may thy cause receive an impulse from on high which shall be felt over all the world. Amen.

How Happiness Comes.

Our happiest moments do not come because we plan them, they just happen. The more elaborate your preparations for having a good time, the more likelihood that you will be disappointed. Happiness comes unexpectedly. It comes when you are working for it, it is the gift of God. It comes in the course of the day's work, or in the evening when you are tired and want to rest. It comes out of the blue when you are in the depths of despair. It does not come by your command. You cannot open a book and find it there. You cannot open your door and find it there. You may be wandering in old forests, and the half-forgotten way you spend with him is red-letered in your calendar. You chance upon a book that opens to you a realm at which before you had knocked in vain. You look up and there is an unsuspected glory in the sky, or light in the eyes of one you love that transfigures your face. Happiness does not come by seeking for it, it is the gift of God.

Blessed to Be a Child Again.

I know not whether we are wearied enough in early manhood to realize our childhood and His Fatherhood; but when some years have passed and brought with them the daily burden of life it is a wonderful comfort to have a second self which is a child, and when the work of the day is passed to lay our folded hands upon the knees of God, as once we did upon our mother's knee, and, looking up, to say, "Our Father which art in heaven."—Stopford A. Brooke.

As for our opportunities, we can make a heroic life out of whatever is set before us to work with or upon.—Anna Robertson Brown.

A New "Ad" Scheme.

Advertising threatens to break out in a new place. Many barber shops in this city have recently received from a corporation, officered with men of distinguished surnames, a circular proposing an ingenious enterprise. The company wishes to obtain the privilege of posting advertisements on the walls and ceilings of barber shops at such points as shall come within the range of vision of persons that submit themselves to the hands of the barber and his assistants. It is the hope of the company that the barbers will yield up their wall space in return for so many shares of stock per chair in the company, and the glittering hope is held out that when the business is once well established the stock at a par value of $10 will pay dividends of 50 per cent. annually. It is announced that the business is already established in 3,000 barber shops in Philadelphia.—New York Sun.

Nervous Depression of Women.

A woman will often without knowing it commit slow suicide for her family. She will think, toil and worry for her children. Too often they do not appreciate it. Her tired nerves and weary body at last reach a stage when she is almost powerless for any kind of mental or physical work, and she is depressed and worried over the consciousness that she is unable to perform her accustomed duties. Her organs of digestion are disordered and although there is a constant disposition to rest, wakefulness and loss of power to sleep are serious indictions of nervous depression. What she needs is a course of Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine to restore a healthy functional activity and give tone and vitality to her nervous system. At the same time the stomach, liver and kidneys should be stimulated with Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine.

Jas. A. Cantrell

Bell Ground, Ga., writes: I have known Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine 20 years, and that it cures La Grippe, Headache and other complaints. I think it is stronger than "Zellin's Regulator" and "Black Draught," and that it gives better satisfaction.

Pain in Lower Back.

After reaching maturity, and especially after passing through the experience of maternity, most women feel their kidneys seriously damaged, if not entirely impaired. The painful and weary dragging or bearing down sensation in the back and loins every woman has at times experienced. Sometimes these are from uterine displacement, but often they are simply from weak kidneys. Women who have to bear heavy burdens, or undergo severe fatigue or to endure exciting disappointment, are subject to functional many other diseases. We cannot too strongly recommend the use of Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine, the great female tonic and regulator.

THANKSGIVING DAY is this and all should be truly thankful that one more year has been safely gone through. Especially thankful all in this section should be for having escaped the smallpox suffered by our neighbors at Birmingham on our northern side, and the yellow fever epidemic to the south of us.

REPORT OF THE GRAND JURY.

To the Hon. N. D. Denson,

Judge of 5th Judicial Circuit.

We the Grand Jury empaneled at the Fall Term 1897, of the Circuit Court ofChilton county, beg leaf to submit this as our final report:

We are pleased to report we find no very serious violations of the law have occured recently in our county.

We have investigated forty cases and found fourteen true bills.

We find the bonds of our county officers good and sufficient with the exception of the Treasurer's bond which we recommend to be strenghened to the amount of five thousand dollars. We are informed that the Treasurer has a new bond from an approved guarantee company which bond will be substituted for his present bond. We consider this kind of bond better protection to the county than a bond with personal sureties and would recommend that all large bonds of our officers be made in this way.

We have examined the public buildings and find the court house needs some shelving in the vault used by the Register in Chancery and Circuit Clerk. Some of the records are thrown about of the floor and are being injured by dampness and mildew. Otherwise the court house is complete and quite a credit to the county.

We are sorry to report that the jail is poorly kept and in a very unsanitary condition.

The public closets near the jail are in bad condition and do not seem to have ever received any attention as to being cleaned and disinfected.

We are of the opinion that the jail should be built one story higher and fitted with better sewerage as soon as the financial condition of the county will justify the expenditure. However, regular cleaning up and liberal use of lime would do a grest deal to abate these nuisances.

We have sent a committee to the poor house, which is very inconveniently located, being about thirteen miles from the court house. They report only four inmates of the poor house.

From what we can learn the poor farm seem to be a failure, as by far the greater number of the poor are helped by direct appropiations of money. Some complaint has been made as to the scanty help that was allowed the poor by the County Commissioners, but we find they have expended about one-fifth of the entire revenue of the county for this purpose, which is certainly enough to cause any prudend board to be slow to increase their appropriations.

We have examined the books of the various officers and find everything correct so far as we have been able to learn in the limited time we have had for this purpose. We find the County Treasurer has $1475.27 cash on hand and that there are outstanding registered claims agains the county to the amount of $2506.34.

The public roads have been reported to us as being in passable condition and that some of the overseers are having the roads ditched at the sides and elevated in the center. We consider this move in the right direction and if some means could be devised by which all the roads could be systematically worked in this manner we think in a few years there would be no more complaint of bad roods in this county.

Thanking your Honor, our able Solicitor, and the other officers for favors and courtesies shown, we now beg to be finally discharged.

Respectfully submitted,

W. L. SAMPEY, Foreman.

Mr. W. H. Conway made a most efficient bailiff.

Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 24, 1897.

Although the campaign is over W. J. Bryan does not give up active work as speaker and lecturer. He addressed a large audience at the Exposition Hall in St. Louis November 19. No admission fee was charged. A reception not open to the public followed the lecture.

The friends of James Sovereign will not regret his retirement from the office of Grand Master Workman of the K. of L. as it will give him greater leisure and freedom for campaign and lecture work, for which he is so perfectly fitted.

We take pleasure in announcing to the public that the sugar trust seems to be losing its grip on the throat of the market. The death of Havemeyer, the originator of this great octopus, and the extensive cultivation of sugar beets throughout the middle west are the causes given for sugar trust stock being plentiful on the market.

Roger Q. Mills, wants the people of Texas to choose their next United States senator at the primaries.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson is sending out poppy seeds with the hope, he says, that the United States will within a few years produce rather than import the $400,000 worth of opium consumed. A questionable industry to receive governmental encouragement.

The latest Hanna rumor is that as the prospects of the big boss being elected to the senate become more dim he has been assured of a place in the cabinet. If necessary Senator John Sherman will resign his cabinet position in Hanna's favor and return to Ohio and seek election to the senate.

Senator Harris' hold up at the anticipated sale of the Kansas Pacific at a loss of seven million dollars makes good reading and must be a source of genuine pleasure to the men whos votes put the Kansas senator where he has done such good work. Attorney General McKenna squirmed under Harris' fire of questions and it was clearly shown that the road had never paid a dividend of less than 4 per cent; the government will be forced to either make a good sale or take control of the road.

The $40,000,000 gass plant of the city of Philadelphia has been disposed of by the mayor and a majority of the city council when preparations were being made to have a referendum vote as to its improvement and management. Other sales of the people's rights will doubtless follow. The fear of municipal ownership, which will in time lead up to government ownership is a regular bagaboo to the plutes and makes them resort to almost any subterfuge to put off the day of equal rights for all and special privileges to none.

William C. Whitney, the millionaire Secretary of the Navy during Grover Cleveland's first term, who cast his fortunes with the gold or National Democrats last year, makes a plea for harmony and predicts a change in the next National platform, that will enable such bolters as he to return to the democratic party.

The official returns from the Ohio election give General Coxey 6,254 votes, a less number than was poled by the prohibition candidate and less than one-tenth the number cast for him in 1895. This result is the difference between Populism and "middle-of-the-roadism." In his exit from the People's party, Coxey failed to take the party with him. This should be a lesson to other bolters.

The Free Employment Department recently established at St. Louis by the State Bureau fo Labor secured employment for nearly 30 per cent of applicants during the first month in operation; surpassing the record of all other Free Employment Agencies in the United States.

It is gived out that twenty republican members of the legislature in Ohio will oppose Hanna's return to the United States Senate and that the democratic members of that body will unite with these republicans to elect Governor Bushnell.

Senator Elkins of West Verginia, has volunteered to inform the president that Congress is not going to take kindly to Secretary Gage's currency plans. The outlook for an early settlement of the currency problem is not very favorable.

It has been determined to appeal to the public at large for subscriptions to a memoral for Henry George on the broad grounds of respect for the memory of a man who devoted himself unselfishly to the public and entirely irrespective as to the differenc of opinions as to his economic or political views in the hope that the various projects which have sprung up in different parts of the country having this purpose in view can be brought into harmony.

Summary of the Epidemic.

According to the last weekly report issued by the surgeon-general of the Marine Hospital Service, gives the returns up to the 19th inst., there had then appeared during the yellow fever epidemic in the South a total of 4,298 cases, of which 446 have proved fatal. Of the total number of crses, 1,847 were reported from Louisiana 1,625 from Mississippi; 740 from Alabama; 62 from Tennessee; 16 from Texas; 4 from Illinois; 3 from Georgia, and one each from Florida and Kentucky.

All but ten of the cases reported from Louisiana are credited to New Orleans. Among the cities Biloxi and Edwards Miss., come next, the former with 584 and the latter with 483. Scranton, Miss., furnished 360 cases Mobile, 355. In Tennessee the fever was confined to Memphis. Ocean Spings, Miss., where the epidemic originated, furnished 23 cases and 6 deaths. The cases in Illinois, Kentucy and Georgia were confined to refugees. A computation shows that about 10½ per cent of the cases proved fatal. In Mississippi the death rate was less than 6 per cent of the total number. At New Orleans 14 1-3 of the patients died, and at Mobile less than 13 per cent.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints for its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, the economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five continents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no review published in this country or in Europe which combines so successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the alertness, timeliness, and energy of journalism with the sound judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged in the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; is "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

IT was growing dark when Miss Martie, with her basket on her arm, came into the corner market to buy her Thanksgiving dinner. The basket was absurdly small, but Miss Mattie was little herself, and when she set it on the high counter and stood blinking in the bright light, the calf's head at her elbow seemed to be grinning at them both.

"Well, Miss Mattie," called out the market man, in his hearty fashion, "I see your mind is not set on a turkey this time, but just wait till I start this basket off for Cap'n Lawson's and I'll show you the right thing—a plump little duck I clapped into the safe this morning, thinking to myself that's the very moral of a treat for Miss Mattie."
